TAKEN BY STORM

That's how Bode's Pepsin Menthal Gum took the people of Toronto last week. Never before has there been such a campaign known in Canada or any other country as was started by the BODE GUM CO., Limited, in the City of Toronto, begining March 17th.

This marvellous campaign will be carried on throughout the Dominion of Canada from Halifax to Vancouver.

Dealers throughout the Dominion are watching it with the utmost interest, and marvel that the BODE GUM CO., Limited, through their determined advertising methods have brought their brands of Gum to public notice in less time than it takes to tell about it.

Their success can only be attributed :

1st—To the excellent quality of the brands of Gum which they have put on the market.

2nd—Their liberal methods and views of handling their business to the trade.

will eventually consume the biggest cheese, and the loss of pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars, if it don't "bust" the biggest business, will reduce the profit to an alarming extent. And you're bound to lose more or less if you do a credit business, and depend on ledger balances taken from the day-book. Throw out your day-books and other time-wasting devices, and adopt the modern Allison Coupon System.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

or $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. DOMINION GROCERS' GUILD INQUIRY

Later history of the Guild, investigated before the Court at Hamilton By our special reporter.

The preliminary investigation into the charge of conspiracy in restraint of trade against seven officials of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild was resumed at Hamilton before Magistrate Jelfs Thursday of last week and continued on Friday The sessions were not wholly devoid of interest, but nothing new in support of the charge was adduced. It came out that a proposal had been made to engage an American detective as an inspector to discover and get evidence regarding price-cutting, and it was found that the sugar refiners had refused to strike firms off their list of direct buyers because they had left the guild or had declined to pay their fees. J. Stanley Cook, the Dominion secretary, was on the stand all Thursday. Aside from a little questioning of this witness the proceedings of the two days consisted again in reading letters. At the request of E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., and Edmund Bristol, M.P., who appear for the defence, an adjournment of a month was granted to enable them to review the case thus far. The Crown attorney stated that he had still a dozen witnesses to examine. These will be mainly men refused admittance to the guild or struck from the lists of direct buyers of sugar or tobaccos.

Not Quite so Ancient.

The evidence submitted on Thursday differed from that put in the previous week only in that it related to a subsequent period, mostly to the years 1902, 1903, 1904 and 1905. In 1898 and 1899 when the letters, read by Crown-Attorney Washington the week before, were written, the guild was struggling to establish the sugar and tobacco arrangements. Those letters dealt with applications for membership, refusals to come in and violations of the agreements. The same themes occupied the court on Thursday and the objective point the Crown Attorney had in view was evidently to show that some people had absolutely been cut off from getting their supplies. The evidence did not reach that point, so far as firms entirely wholesale were concerned. As before, there was plenty of evidence that people not considered legitimate wholesalers were dropped from the list of direct buyers of sugar, but they could get all they wanted at the price paid by retailers. The complaints about cutting tobacco prices were dealt with through the manufacturers, who, the understanding was, would not sell to people who persisted in cutting list prices. But it was not shown that anyone had actually been cut off. The threat was always sufficient to secure obedience. All this Mr. E. F. B. Johnston admitted for his clients when the investigation opened.

Sorted the Letters.

During the week's adjournment Crown Attorney Washington and his colleague, John G. Farmer, had sorted out a part at least of the sheaf of letters produced by Secretary J. Stanley Cook. of the Dominion Guild. He had scores of bundles of them, each bundle relating to a particular subject. He got 47 bundles in in the course of the day, besides reading relevant letters from Mr. Cook's letter book and examining that gentleman himself, who occupied a seat in the witness box all day.

Had Retail Stores.

The first matter dealt with the admission to the local guild at Quebec of Messrs. Revillon, a large firm with headquarters in Paris, France, and branches at several points in Canada. After they had given their check for $250 it was found they had been refused membership in Montreal and Winnipeg because they were to some extent retailers. There was a lot of correspondence about it because the local guild, having accepted the firm's application, didn't want to recede from its position.

Guild had the Right.

But Magistrate Jelfs broke in upon the recital with the remark that he didn't think it mattered, since the guild had a perfect right to admit or reject as members whom it chose.

"That, in my judgment," said the Crown Attorney, "is the strongest part of the Crown's case, because these people are not allowed in and are not allowed to buy except at prohibitive prices."

"That is nonsense," declared Mr. Johnston. "They may buy on the same basis as any other retailers. We are in the hands of the manufacturers just as the retailers are."

"Put the letters in," the magistrate said, leaving decision for the higher court. "But I don't see anything in this case if they were being kept out just because they were not wholesalers."

The next bundle Mr. Washington produced related to applications for admission to the guild by Castle & Co., Ottawa; Hunter & Co., Pembroke; and W. R. McRae, Kingston. Mr. Castle, writing to Mr. Laporte, president, Montreal, said: "I have been in the wholesale fancy groceries in this city for five years and find it is rather difficult doing business without sugar, rice and tobacco, which I cannot buy without admission to the guild."

He was admitted. Hunter & Co. were refused because they were retailers, and McRae was dead, and the business was being liquidated as retail. Hunter & Co. continued to be direct buyers from the refiners for some time and it was the occasion of a good deal of letter writing down to 1905.

Bedingfield & McCluster, Ottawa, wanted into the guild. Correspondence was kept up from February, 1902, to May, 1903, and they were refused because not strictly wholesalers.

The Cause of the trouble.

The Grocers' Wholesale Co., of Hamilton, made application for membership in December 1903. They were alleged to be an organization of retailers and were asked to sign a somewhat different undertaking than required of the ordinary wholesaler coming in, and to pay the usual admission fee of $250. They objected to both the fee and the statement required of them. and the correspondence continued a year and the firm remained out.

Mr. Washington inquired regarding Mr. Cook's relations with the Macdonald Tobacco Co.

"You know Mr. Stewart, Sir Wm. Macdonald's private secretary?"

"I do."

"Do you ever have occasion to see him?"

"I have."

"In conection with guild matters?"

"Yes."

"And for what purpose "

"Various purposes. Most frequently to report breaches for the price committee."

"Did you ever request him to strike people off the list?"

"No, I have not."

"Sure of that?"

"I would not be quite sure."

"You would go to Stewart and say so and so is breaking the agreement. What would he do?"

"Ask for particulars."

"Did he strike any off the list at your request?"

"Not that I know of."

Hennessy Came to it.

Mr. Washington read a complaint about a man named Hennessy.

"Did you see Stewart about him?" he asked the witness.

"Yes."

"Was he struck off?"

"No. Because he agreed to comply with the regulations."

"How was it done?"

"I suppose Mr. Stewart had written him."

Mr. Cook, replying to a complaint about the breaking of tobacco prices by some Maritime Province merchants, had written: "I feel that agressors will be dealt with promptly and effectually." Mr. Washington read this and asked: "Were you ever assured by Sir Wm.

Macdonald or Mr. Stewart that they would strike off the list people who did not adhere to the regulations?"

"Not distinctly, to my recollection, but from conversations I understood they would protect the trade."

Mr. Washington wanted to make clear the thoroughness of the guild organization and the secretary's relation to it.

"You have almost daily complaints about cutting prices?" he suggested.

"I get them very frequently."

"And it is your duty to investigate?"

"In a general way."

Importance of His Office.

"I wish you would not minimize the importance of your office," returned the Crown Attorney with an insinuating smile.

"I don't," declared the secretary, "but with the house complained of a hundred miles away, inquiry cannot be very thorough."

"Well, suppose you got a complaint about a Montreal house?"

"I would bring it up at the next meeting of the guild or I might see the house itself."

Mr. Washington produced letters relating to a complaint from down east that Sir Wm. Macdonald was selling to the Nova Scotia Steel Co. Sir William had refused to accede to the request not to sell to the steel company and did not recede from that position.

Sir William Declines to be Messenger.

"I have just had a lengthy interview with Mr. Stewart," read Mr. Washington, producing another letter from Mr. Cook to Mr. Beckett, "and Sir William would not allow his office to be the means of communication between the guild and outside direct buyers."

"What did that mean?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"We wanted to send out selling-price lists and asked him to send them to buyers outside the guild," explained the witness.

Tried Cross Examining.

Mr. Washington wanted to get information about a proposed agreement with the independent tobacco manufacturers, but Mr. Cook could not satisfy him and he assumed a cross-examining tone. Mr. Johnston objected.

"My learned friend has no right to cross-examine this witness," he said. "He is brought here by the Crown as one to be believed to prove the charges, and my learned friend proceeds to show he is not worthy of evidence because he will not give the kind of evidence he wants."

Mr. Washington again cited the plumbers' case and the magistrate thought he should have a little extra latitude. He expressed the view that Mr. Cook was not giving his evidence in a straightforward manner, because in answering in regard to Mr. Stewart he did not admit he had ever requested that a firm be struck off the list of direct buyers. The fact was that it was very well understood between the guild and the manufacturers that back of the latter's interference and the efficacy of it was the possibility or threat of a buyer being struck off the direct list.

The next bundle of correspondence related to cutting of prices by Stephens & Co., Collingwood, which was said to be a "matter of discipline for the manufacturers."

Not Confined to Guild Members.

A letter from Secretary Pafford of the Ontario Guild, to Mr. Cook was read regarding the membership of Warren Bros., Toronto. Therein it was stated that it was a mistake to allow those who had withdrawn from the guild to reap the advantages of the sugar and other agreements, and Mr. Cook was requested to ask the refiners to have the firm struck off the list of direct buyers. Mr. Cook's reply was read, stating he had seen the refiners and "they say that they never agreed to confine themselves to members of the guild and it is not likely they will be cut off." Later, Warren Bros. again joined the guild.

Mr. Cook's confident assurance expressed in several letters, that non-adherents to the price lists on Macdonald's tobacco would be dealt with effectually occasioned questioning by Mr. Washington as to the agreement or understanding between the guild and Sir William Macdonald, but Mr. Cook could tell nothing new.

Keeping of Records.

On Jan. 20, 1902, Mr. Cook, who was then assuming the secretaryship, wrote to Mr. Wills, Toronto, the former secretary, requesting the minutes and papers of the guild. Mr. Wills replied: "You are, of course, aware that no records of the institution have been kept for good and sufficient reasons."

"Are you aware of that?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"No, because since then I have kept all my letters and minutes of all meetings."

"Was the salt agreement for the Dominion?"

"No; Ontario only. It was put in with the Dominion papers in error."

"You had some interviews with Hudon, Hebert & Cie, Montreal, about cutting prices. They were cutting on matches. You got Eddy in, didn't you?"

"No sir."

"The wholesale grocers had an agreement with Eddy, hadn't they?"

"Not in a body, that I know of."

"Your letter states that certain prices are positive."

"There must have been a manufacturer's list."

Refiners are in the Fines.

"Do you remember that Turcotte & Co., Quebec, were fined $100? They eventually got their money back, didn't they?"

"I think so."

"By the way, what becomes of their rebates, confiscated by the refiners?"

"They are in that much."

"Do they contribute anything to the guild?"

"No."

Refused to Pay Fees.

"Sometimes members refused to pay their fees," pursued Mr. Washington. "Were the refiners asked to strike them off?"

"I don't remember asking the refiners to strike anybody off."

Mr. Washington produced a letter from Mr. Geo. Bristol stating that R. & J. H. Simpson, of Guelph, had refused to pay and proposing that they be struck off. Mr. Cook's letter book showed he had written the refiners and that Sir Geo. Drummond had replied he could take no action and that it was a matter wholly for the wholesalers to deal with.

The Canada Brokerage Co., Toronto, was next inquired about. They were said to be a retailers' co-operative concern. One letter of August, 1903, stated they were offering to retailers who would take a $50 share sugar at 2 per cent. discount. A report from the Toronto secretary stated they were "selling sugar all over Ontario as a bait for getting trade." They were not direct buyers and the question was, who was supplying them at a price that would enable them to cut? It was not answered.

Back to Tobacco.

Here the inquiry switched over to tobacco. Two firms in Chatham, N.B., are said to be cutting on Macdonald's tobacco, Messrs. Hocken and McLachlan and there were complaints. Mr. Cook, replying, had stated that he had written to the firms in question and "if that has no effect other steps will be taken."

"What steps?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"The manufacturers will write them themselves."

"Well, you wrote Hocken and McLachlan. What happened?"

"I think they have since signed the agreement, or promised to adhere to the arrangement."

The correspondence showed that this matter dragged on for months. Some of the letters by Mr. Cook read were:

Averse to Drastic Measures.

To A. F. Randolph & Sons, Fredericton, N.B., June 14, 1905:

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 12th inst., with further reference to the cutting of prices on Macdonald's tobacco in Chatham. I can assure you that I am doing everything possible in this matter and am satisfied that it will really be settled before very long, but, unfortunately, Sir William is always very averse to taking any drastic measures in matters of this kind, although in one or two instances he has, after exhausting every other means of settlement, done what was required. I will communicate with you immediately upon hearing anything further in the matter. In the meantime should a couple of weeks elapse without your hearing from me it might be well for you to again write, as your letters will help me to force Sir William's hand."

Mr. Washington wanted the names of the "one or two instances," but Mr. Cook could not remember them.

Came to Terms.

To A. F. Randolph & Sons, Sept. 15, 1905 :

"I am pleased to be able to inform you that M. S. Hockin, of Chatham, has at last agreed to adhere to the list prices and terms on Sir Wm. Macdonald's tobaccos, and MacLachlan of same place will be attended to, I think, without delay."

Will be Dealt With Promptly.

To Hall & Fairweather, St. John, N.B., Sept. 23, 1905 :

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 18th inst. re certain members of the Maritime trade who have not signed agreement on Sir Wm. Macdonald's tobacco. The only direct buyers who had not signed agreement up to the beginning of September were Messrs. Hocken and MacLachlan, of Chatham. The matter has been in the hands of the manufacturer for some months and, with his assistance, about the first of September we secured a promise from Mr. Hocken that he would adhere to the selling prices. I have a letter also, dated early in September, from Mr. MacLachlan, which I take to mean that he, too, will adhere to the prices, although I have written him for a more definite assurance than the letter conveys.

"I shall be glad to hear from you if you have any direct evidence against any house in connection with Sir William Macdonald's tobacco, as I feel confident that should such be forthcoming the transgressor will be dealt with promptly and effectually."

Asking for Judgment.

Time and again Mr. Washington returned to the question of whether or not Mr. Cook had asked to have any one struck from the list of direct buyers of Macdonald tobaccos.

"All we want is to have these people adhere to the prices," said Mr. Cook in reply to a question regarding the Maritime complaints.

"Did you never ask Stewart or Macdonald directly to cut a man off the list ?"

"No."

"Did you ever ask them indirectly ?"

"I suppose I did when I asked them to enforce the agreement. The alternative was to strike off the list. But I don't know of their ever doing that."

It was stated regarding the Wallaceburg Sugar Co. that they would not make the same arrangement as the other refiners and the wholesalers refused to deal with them.

Complaint was made about the refiners selling to Eaton & Co., and the statement was made that they were not now on the list of direct buyers.

There was a good deal of correspondence about James Lumbers, of Toronto, not being a member of the guild. Then the letter writing was with a view to getting the refiners to "warn" him.

Mr. Washington told of a violation of the sugar agreement by Davidson & Co., of Quebec, selling in New Brunswick according to the Quebec price. As soon as the firm was notified they made the retailer pay the difference and the Acadia Refinery finally settled with them by withholding $100 rebate.

Results of an Interview.

A number of matters already dealt with are mentioned in the following letter of Dec. 16, 1904, from Mr. Cook to Geo. E. Bristol, president of the Ontario Guild :

"I beg to inform you that the president, Mr. Laporte, secured an interview with Sir Geo. Drummond, of the Canada Sugar Refining Co., this morning, and I am now to communicate to you the results of that interview."

Re Provincial Grocers, Limited, Toronto :

"The company have decided not to sell that firm under any circumstances."

Re Geo. Robertson & Son., Kingston :

"Sir George undertook to urge this firm to join the guild, but in view of the fact that it took a great deal of pressure from the refiners to induce Geo. Robertson & Son to come into the sugar agreement originally, he does not consider that there is much prospect of being able to bring them into line. He is of opinion that it would not be advisable for the refiners to use drastic measures to force the firm in question into the guild so long as they adhere to the sugar agreement. In this connection I may say that the Montreal trade have long had the same trouble, that is, we have three or four firms in this city not members of the guild, but for the sake of the sugar agreement we have simply made the best of the existing state of affairs."

Re the R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph :

"While reiterating the refiners' desire to assist the trade in every way possible, Sir George was very emphatic in stating that he could not consider any request to take action in such a matter as this, it being entirely one for the wholesale grocers themselves to deal with."

Not Sell at Any Price.

A. H. Canning was another thorn in the side of the guild three years ago. Mr. Washington read these letters :

Geo. E. Bristol to H. Laporte, Feb. 2, 1903 :

"A man named A. H. Canning has been selling St. Lawrence granulated sugar less than the price, and I wrote to Davidson & Hay, Limited, and enclose a copy of their reply. How do you think it would work if all the members of the sugar agreement bound themselves not to sell a man like Canning at any price ? There surely should be a remedy for this sort of thing."

Davidson & Hay to Geo. E. Bristol, Feb. 6, 1903 :

"Replying to yours of the 4th inst., we know that Canning bought 750 barrels of St. Lawrence granulated sugar from Jas. Lumbers. Lumbers claims that he charged him the full price, making no allowances or rebates of any kind. Consequently we hardly know how to round up transactions like this. When a firm, or firms, are willing to supply illegitimate opposition with ammunition to blow their brains out, the writer confesses that he is incapable of controlling such transactions, and he is somewhat of the opinion that even the Hamilton trade would realize difficulties were they in a similar position."

The Proud Hamiltonians.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol to Davidson & Hay, Feb. 7, 1903 :

"We are in receipt of yours of the 6th February and note contents. In reply beg to say that it seems to us there should be some rule of the guild to prevent a man like Lumbers selling a man like Canning. If we all agreed not to sell Canning under a penalty of losing our rebate, or a man like Canning who is not a retailer but wants it to sell to the retail trade. However, it is a very difficult thing to decide what to do about it. The writer agrees with your president that it seems almost impossible to control such a transaction, and quite agrees with him that it would be too much even for the 'Proud Hamiltonians.' Will call your president up some time next week and see if we can, between us, find some means to prevent this thing."

Bitter With the Sweet.

"We've got down to pickles," remarked Mr. Washington, taking up correspondence relating to Crosse & Blackwell.

Mr. Johnston — "Getting the bitter with the sweet."

There was a letter to Mr. Cook from John I. Davidson, and a reply, stating that Mr. Cook had seen Mr. Colson, the agent of the pickle makers, who had informed him that Crosse & Blackwell would sell to anyone who would pay the price for their goods.

Col. Davidson's reply was as follows :

"Thank you for yours of the 25th inst., and see that you have been able to unmask Crosse & Blackwell. They have hedged when they were accused of selling to the retail trade and endeavored to create the impression that they were not. Their admission, don't you think, would justify the Dominion Guild in taking action. How would it do if all the wholesale houses were to decline to handle Crosse & Blackwell's goods until they either confine themselves to the wholesale trade or the retail trade?"

Committee did its Work.

But Crosse & Blackwell signed an agreement, and the following circular letter of encouragement to the trade by J. F. Eby, chairman of the Ontario Price Committee, dated June 28, 1904, was read :

"Your committee feel sure that this first arrangement and the first result of their efforts will be a convincing argument of what can be done by united action. The trade in the west, particularly, have stood firm in this matter, refusing to buy from Crosse & Blackwell until the contract was signed, notwithstanding the fact that their representative had been persistently soliciting orders from the trade for the last four or five weeks."

Tuckett Makes a List.

"This bundle shows an agreement with Tuckett & Son for selling prices," remarked Mr. Washington, producing papers which he proposed to put in without reading.

"I want to know what the agreement was, if there was one," remarked Mr. Johnston.

Gone into, the letters showed that the tobacco firm in question had agreed to issue list prices for their goods.

Now it Ought to Stick.

Mr. Washington announced that he had reached a starch agreement.

"The Crown's case is stiffening up a bit," remarked Mr. Johnston.

The magistrate, not to be outdone, added: "Sugar, vinegar and starch ought to make the thing stick."

The reference was merely striking from the list the name of a Quebec firm that had retired from business.

Mr. Cook had asked manufacturers for lists of their direct buyers.

"Why?" asked Mr. Washington.

"Merely for information. I am sometimes asked fool questions by wholesalers," remarked Mr. Cook, smiling.

Complaints came from British Columbia about the Hudson Bay Co. cutting prices 2c. on Tuckett's tobaccos, and the manufacturer for a time refused to interfere, but later the big trading company was brought into line by Tuckett & Son.

Crazy Prices Make a Fuss.

Mr. Washington produced a letter from Ontario Secretary Pafford to Mr. Cook, inclosing the following self-explanatory letter from Mr. Beckett to Col. Davidson:

"In to-day's Grocer you will notice a lot of crazy prices of Lumsden Bros.—Keen's blue 15c., starch 10 per cent. off the list prices, Royal Dome Lead $1.25, and so on.

Now, with regard to starch, we ought to be able to stop this, and if I remember correctly Magor, of Montreal, arranged a selling price of 17c. on Keen's blue. That is what we have always been getting for it.

"I thought it as well to direct your attention to this, and if you think steps should be taken to stop this you might think it advisable to write to the starch companies and, perhaps, bring the matter before the president.

"This illustration, however, shows the necessity of having some organization to take up matters of this kind, and the advantage of having a committee to deal with important matters.

"If Lumsden starts that 10 per cent. business on starch it will be a serious matter if it cannot be stopped, but I think it can be stopped if representation is made to the starch company. Steps should be made through the president of the guild, but as you are the father of the Ontario trade, I thought it wise to bring this matter immediately to your attention."

Friday's session, which adjourned shortly after noon, opened with more about the Hudson Bay Co. Mr. Washington had a headache, and his colleague, John G. Farmer, did the work, which consisted in reading letters, Mr. Cook not being called.

Kearns Bros., of the Soo, attracted some attention through cutting prices on Macdonald's tobaccos. In several letters relating to these, and other transgressors, the difficulty of getting evidence was dwelt upon. The number on caddies and the number on Inland Revenue stamps were given, but cases were found where these numbers had been obliterated.

Then came Mr. Beckett's proposal to engage a smart American detective or inspector, and send him out "in the guise of salesman, preacher, or anything that will fill the bill." There was nothing to show the suggestion had been acted upon.

A new idea came out in a letter from Col. Davidson to Mr. Cook. It was this: "I want to get a legal opinion with regard to our ability to keep out a firm here who are applying for admission to the guild, and we don't want to let them in if we can legally keep them out."

"That's the most foolish thing I have heard of them doing yet, getting a lawyer's advice," said Mr. Johnston.

In Nov. last Mr. Cook wrote that Mr. Stewart had succeeded in "inducing" the Hudson Bay Co. to stop cutting prices on tobacco.

A letter was read from the Walkerville Match Co. to Mr. Laporte, asking to make an arrangement to have the wholesale grocers handle their goods.

Guild Imposes a Fine.

A new method of disciplining by the guild itself was shown by the following letter to R. J. Carson, Kingston, dated August 17, 1905:

"Referring to the investigation of the charge against you that you have broken the sugar agreement, I beg to notify you that the committee of investigation met and decided that the evidence was quite sufficient to justify the committee in enforcing the straight fines according to the agreement, but in view of the explanation given by yourself they decided that without prejudice they would only charge you with the expenses entailed in connection with the examination on the understanding that you will pledge yourself that the sugar agreement be not again broken. The charges amount to railway fares of the committee, three members, $4 per member, $12; Mr. Scott's charges, which are extremely reasonable, only those occasioned by his having to stop over in Kingston, $28; and in all, $40.

"Kindly let me have your cheque and settle this unpleasant matter at your convenience, and much oblige."

Arrangement With Canners.

Light was thrown on the arrangement made last year with the canners by the reading of the following circular letter of March 13, 1905, from Mr. Cook to the members of the guild:

"I beg to inform you that the court appointed at the guild meeting under the chairmanship of the second vice-president, Mr. Beckett, to arrange an agreement with the canners securing to the trade a fair profit on the sale of canned goods, has successfully effected such an agreement applicable to the whole Dominion and based on the rebate plan.

"About 90 per cent. of the canners have come into the agreement, the understanding being that the rebate shall only be given to those wholesalers who keep the selling prices and make no purchases whatever from canners outside the arrangement.

"Full details will be sent you as soon as possible, this notice being merely intended to prevent members from making contracts which might prevent them from securing rebates under the new agreement, without being aware of its conditions."

Offer of the Canners.

With this letter Mr. Washington put in a confidential circular dated March 28, 1905, from the Canadian Canners, Limited, to the members of the guild. It was as follows:

"Referring to our letter of March 27, of which we ask your kind and careful perusal, also to contract enclosed herewith, we are particularly desirous of securing your entire trade in canned fruits and vegetables for the coming season. Our facilities for supplying you with everything in these lines are well known and the reputation of our various brands is sufficient guarantee to the public to make these lines comparatively easy sellers. As an inducement to secure your entire trade we confidentially make you the following offer provided same is accepted not later than April 30.

"We agree as follows, viz:

"That conditional upon your not having sold at less than list prices or on better terms of cash discount than 1 per cent. in ten days, the brands of canned goods in groups Nos. 1, 2 and 3 (see agreement with the trade), and conditional upon your agreeing to confine your purchases of canned fruits and vegetables exclusively to us (except on such lines as we are unable to supply) for the season of 1905, we will pay you a sum equal to 5 per cent. on your entire purchase of canned fruits and vegetables of the season of 1905, these payments to be made on the 15th July, 1905, and the 15th January, 1906, on all goods invoiced and paid for and upon receipt from you of statutory declaration to above effect.

"This offer is strictly confidential and if accepted by you will make the handling of canned goods purchased from us a profitable line. We would be pleased if you would signify your intention of accepting our offer by returning the enclosed form duly signed.

"Our prices will be put as low as it is possible to make them, having regard to the pack and quality. It is a reasonable assumption for yourselves and ourselves to conclude that it is absolutely necessary for us to make our prices as low as possible and thus protect our buyers and place them in a position to meet all competitors."

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

The grocery trade is well represented in the City Council of Quebec. At the recent elections held in that city, three gentlemen connected with the grocery trade were elected. These were: Louis A. Letourneau, who is engaged in the grocery business and is also proprietor of the Quebec Preserving Company; Ald. N. Drouin, in the grocery business and also a member of the Rock City Tobacco Company; and Ald. Tanguay, a prominent wholesale flour, grain and provision merchant.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

John Pinder, of John Pinder & Co., Montreal, was in New York this week.

D. J. Rattray, of D. Rattray & Sons, was in St. John, N.B., and Ottawa recently on business.

Mr. Barnard, manager of the Montreal office of Hunt & Co., Japan, is visiting London, Ont., Windsor, and other places in that part of the country on business.

C. A. Chouillou, of C. A. Chouillou & Co., Montreal, left on March 27 for New York, whence he will go to Europe. Mr. Chouillou intends to see as many of the European firms he represents as possible, and is in the hopes of bringing back some new agencies.

CONCLUDING SESSIONS OF FRUIT CONFERENCE

The concluding days of the Fruit Conference at Ottawa last week sustained the interest that the opening day promised, and unlike most conventions of this kind the delegates practically all remained to the last.

The Minister of Agriculture was indefatigable in attendance and made good his promise at the opening to be present at all the deliberations and learn from word of mouth as well as from formulated resolution the feelings of the people.

New Grading Defined.

The grading of apples, after much work in committee and the amusing passages in debate alluded to last week, was agreed upon as follows :

There are to be four grades, "Fancy," No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3.

"Fancy" are to be put up in boxes and are to be perfect fruit.

No. 1 remains as before and is the standard commercial grade.

No. 2 is more clearly defined. Wormy apples are excluded, but a margin of 20 per cent. is allowed for imperfect fruit, but not so as to cause any material waste.

No. 3, the last grade, is not intended for export.

The inspectors are rather doubtful about the feasibility of the definition of No. 2, because of the uncertainty as to what should be considered sufficient to cause appreciable waste.

Canadian Fruit Abroad.

The work of the department in exhibiting Canadian fruits abroad was acknowledged in an appreciative resolution and the recommendation made that it be continued and extended.

A valuable suggestion was appended that fruit for such exhibits be specially gathered and packed in the Fall, and that it be exhibited, in at least part, in the regular packages of commerce.

Fruit-Growers and Pure Food.

As a sequence to the admirable address of Mr. McGill, of the Inland Revenue Department, on adulteration of food products, the conference took up the question of pure food. It was very pertinently argued by E. D. Smith, of Winona, that if people were assured that their jams were pure and wholesome more would be consumed and hence a larger demand for choice fruit. It was a mistake, as some seemed to think, that good jam could be made from inferior fruit. He instanced the marked development of the jam industry in England as a consequence of the enforcement of the pure food laws.

A resolution was adopted as follows :

"Whereas a large percentage of the jams and jellies labeled 'genuine' or 'pure,' which are offered for sale within the Dominion are adulterated, and whereas the low prices quoted on these articles secure for them a ready sale to the disadvantage of the pure article.

"And whereas the interests of the manufacturers of pure goods, the fruit growers and consumers are thereby impaired,

"Therefore be it resolved that this conference urgently requests the Federal Government to secure the immediate enforcement of the Pure Foods Act and that the act be so amended as to compel the manufacturers of jams and jellies to print their formulas on their labels."

Governor-General Lord Grey in Attendance.

A feature of the conference was the presence of the Governor-General, Lord Grey, at the session on Wednesday afternoon. The topic of discussion was the experimental station work. Mr. Linus Woolverton, of Grimsby, introduced the subject, outlining the work done in Ontario. He was followed by Prof. Sears, of Nova Scotia, Lieut.-Col. Peters, New Brunswick, J. C. Ready, Prince Edward Island, Prof. Hutt, of the O.A.C., and A. E. Clendennan, of Alberta who were at one in endorsing the character of the work that had been accomplished.

Lord Grey followed the discussion with evident interest, and in a short address before leaving the hall eulogized the occupation of the fruit grower, and congratulated the minister on the success of the conference. His Excellency was emphatic in recommending the most scrupulous care in packing and the upholding of the good name of Canadian fruit men.

Resolutions urging the compiling of expert information and its distribution among the growers ; extension of experimental stations and the establishment of experimental orchards, were passed.

The Transportation Question.

No part of the conference was more keenly followed than that in which the transportation question was discussed. W. A. Bunting, of St. Catharines, introduced the question. No hesitancy was manifest in the expression of views by the delegates. The following resolution was passed :

"That the Railway Commission be requested to order : (a) that a time limit for the transportation of perishable fruits of not less than twelve miles per hour be put in force upon the railways of Canada, which time limit il not maintained shall place the onus of responsibility upon the carrying company if loss or damage is sustained thereby.

"(b) That when railwav companies fail to furnish suitable equipment for the transportation of fruit within six days after the time an order is placed with the local agent a penalty be provided for each subsequent day's delay.

"(c) That icing stations be established at divisional points on all railways engaged in the transportation of fruit and that cars fully iced be furnished when necessary by the shipper.

"(d) That at all stations where fruit is customarily loaded in car lots shelter from sun and rain shall be provided.

"(e) That when requested shippers of perishable fruit shall be furnished by the local agent with a daily report of the location of a car of fruit while in transit.

"(f) That a rate for transportation of apples shall correspond to the present rate for flour, until such time as the railway companies furnish satisfactory equipment and service."

Express Companies.

A proposal to recommend to the Government that express companies be placed under the control of the Railway Commission met with general approval and was speedily passed.

Messrs. Johnston, Shepherd, Eaton, Armstrong, Burrell and Burke were appointed a committee to present this resolution to the Government.

After the Commission Men.

The morals of commission men were pitch-forked into the arena of discussion by M. Pettit, of Winona, who in an experience of thirty years had reason to believe that there were dishonest members of this branch of the trade as well as among the packers.

Everyone seemed to have an axe ready for the unfortunate commission man till Mr. Hunt, of that fraternity in Ottawa, put up an argument for the defence. The complaint was against the occasionals and financially unsound, rather than against the trade as a whole. A proposition to license commission men and make them put up a bond found an obstacle in the fact that that did not come within the sphere of the Dominion.

It was therefore recommended that the provincial authorities take this up and that commission men be required to make returns within ten days of the sale of the consignment.

Steamship Service.

In deference to the wishes of the Maritime Province delegates a resolution was passed asking for an improved Atlantic service for fruit on the lines subsidized by the Government.

Compliments the Inspectors.

That the inspectors have done their duty in a faithful and yet courteous manner was evidenced by the following resolution :

"That this convention does hereby recommend to the Department of Agriculture the continuance of the services of fruit instructors in those provinces where such services have been so effective on account of the nascent nature of the fruit interests therein, the inspectors being used for instruction purposes when not actively engaged in the work of inspection."

Where to Place Marks.

The proper place on which to affix the marks required bv law was declared to be on the end of the package and all the marks must be placed on one end.

METRIC SYSTEM STILL FAR OFF.

A correspondent draws attention to the following clipping from the London Times of March 9, 1906, containing House of Commons report, March 8, to show that Great Britain is not likely to adopt the metric system in the immediate future :

"In reply to Mr. Norman (Wolverhampton), Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman said he could make no promise for the passing this session of a bill to make compulsory after a lapse of two years the use of the metric system of weights and measures. Such a bill if it became law would necessarily render illegal the use of existing weights and measures, and he did not think there was any ground for anticipating that such a measure would be noncontentious. (Hear, hear)."

Those gentlemen who have taken upon themselves the task of agitating in favor of the adoption of a decimal system of weights, measures and coinage throughout the Empire, have not permitted hard and constant work to damp their ardor.

Their latest crusade takes the form of a pamphlet entitled "Reasons why the metric weights and measures should be made compulsory throughout the British Empire." It deals with the subject in a concise but forceful and exhaustive manner, and emphasizes with clearness the need of a less complicated method of calculation than at present obtains in the Mother Country. In the new English House of Commons the agitation has many supporters, and an earnest effort will be made to pass a bill similar to the one which the House of Lords passed unanimously in 1904.

Explanatory literature may be had from the Decimal Association, Oxford Court, London, E.C., England.

THE SALMON SITUATION.

Canned salmon is a red spot, or better, perhaps, a golden, on the present grocery market. Statistics will not read the riddle of the market, but there are a few that are not uninteresting at this juncture. The salmon pack of British Columbia last year totaled 1,167,460 cases. Before February 152,118 cases had been shipped to Eastern Canada, and more than half the remainder, 551,668 cases, had been dispatched to Great Britain, while the packers had on hand 211,252 cases.

The average pack for the last ten years has been about 700,000 cases, but since 1901, according to the statement issued by the Fraser River Canners' Association on January 23, the total pack and its distribution has been as follows :

Pack	1,167,460	465,894	473,674	625,982	1,236,156
Distribution :
Great Britain	551,668	181,114	239,808	394,324	851,826
Eastern Canada	152,118	160,259	152,498	135,806	131,875
Australasia	53,847	37,050	35,463	10,355	38,022
Elsewhere	4,556	3,278	1,472	627	13,538
Local sales	57,037	15,919	10,344	5,156	19,956
Stock on hand	211,252	68,275	34,089	79,714	180,939

The average pack on the whole Pacific Coast, including Alaska, is put at 4,000,000 cases, and the consumptive distribution as follows : United States, 2,000,000; United Kingdom, 1,300,000 ; Canada, 150,000 ; Australia, 150,000 ; all other countries, 400,000. By these figures it will be seen that more than half the salmon consumed in Great Britain is United States packed.

Prices this year have been phenomenally low, the opening for the 1905 pack being 60c. below the opening in 1904. The resultant heavy consumption has so far cleaned up the stock that the outlook now is for a shortage before the new pack comes in. This is especially the fact in regard to the higher grades. Last year was a "big year," and according to the fourth year theory, which is that a big run of salmon occurs only every fourth year, this year will witness a small pack. This is an additional hardening tendency in the market.

This situation, combined with a rapidly increasing world demand for salmon of all kinds, fresh, canned and salted, has led experienced salmon men to the belief that the industry is entering upon a new era of generally higher prices.

ANOTHER FRUIT MARKER'S PROSECUTION.

The Dominion Government seems determined to enforce the Fruit Marks Act vigorously, as was intimated by Mr. Fisher some time ago. A remarkable prosecution took place at Brantford this week. It seems that Mr. Geo. Miles, an apple shipper of New Durham, packed apples last Fall and sold a carload to Mr. R. J. Graham at Belleville through the latter's agent at Norwich. The car was sold by them to a dealer in Prince Albert, Sask. The latter complained to the inspector at Winnipeg as to the condition in which he found the fruit. The inspector found occasion to go to Prince Albert and inspect the apples at that place. He reported the apples in good condition so far as keeping qualities were concerned, as almost none were rotten, but the packing, especially under the mark of one of the packers, showed very bad grading. The inspector made a particular examination of two representative barrels and found from 23 to 27 per cent. of culls in apples marked XXX, as against the 10 per cent. of margin allowed by the act. The other barrels packed by the same packer indicated a similar percentage. The inspector reported to the Government and on attending the fruit convention at Ottawa last week was instructed to institute prosecution against the shipper. The latter felt that he was being punished for the shortcomings of one of his employes, one Savage who had packed the barrels complained of. The inspector on looking into the matter laid information against both Miles and Savage before Magistrate Ludlow, of Brantford, and they were fined the minimum amount for the number of barrels complained against.

The lesson to be drawn from this case is that notwithstanding the distance the apples may be shipped or how far the place of destination may be from an inspector, the arm of the law is long enough to reach out and punish.

The inspector points out that though it may seem hard that the shipper should be punished for the fault of his employe, yet as a matter of fact he has received the price for first grade of apples when he has supplied fruit of an inferior quality.

THE CEREAL QUESTION AGAIN.

It is not very long since we drew attention to the likely development of serious competition in the cereal trade. It would seem as though our previous remarks were well-nigh prophetic, for at the present time complaints are reaching us from all sides of the extraordinary lengths to which price-cutting among dealers has already gone.

One retailer tells us he was induced, rather against his own judgment, by the solicitations of one of our over-persuasive gentlemen of the road, to lay in what was for him an abundant stock of bulk cereals at specially low prices. Believing he had a cinch, he set himself to endeavor to make a profitable hit, and promptly made a big show at an attractive bargain price.

Then his troubles began in real earnest. Not only did his customers see it, but also his opponent in business, a nearby grocer, who previously, like himself, had given no special thought to cereals. He immediately, however, awoke, and not to be outdone, goes for his dealer and finds him willing to quote a price one better than that at which his neighbor had bought, the final result being that the first grocer finds himself sadly left and is obliged to bring down his price to about cost in order to move his stocks.

This is just the old story over again. This kind of thing does no one any good. Millers, dealers and merchants are all complaining there is nothing in the trade and it is not unlikely the remedy is in their own hands. Extend this order of trade to the other lines of grocery and we will soon have our hands full of unavoidable bankrupts.

We strongly urge our grocer readers to be cautious in these questions. There can be no better plan for the grocer in this particular case than to stick to a few good lines of packet cereals and thus be certain of his profits.

WESTERN BOARD OF TRADE CONVENTION.

Secretary F. T. Fisher, of the Edmonton Board of Trade, has sent a circular letter to the secretaries of all the western boards of trade announcing that the third annual convention will be held in the capital city of Alberta on Wednesday and Thursday, June 13 and 14. Last year the "Associated Boards of Trade of the Northwest Territories" met in annual convention in Regina and a full report of the proceedings was published in this paper. The creation of two new provinces raised the question whether division on provincial lines into two associations would not be advisable and it was finally decided to keep the organization intact, giving it the name of "The Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada."

It is gratifying to note that care is being taken to remedy the one defect that was noticeable at last year's meeting. The delegates to the Regina convention failed, in most instances, to forward their resolutions to the secretary before the meeting and hence there was little opportunity given for previous consideration of the topics to be discussed. This year all resolutions must be in the hands of the secretary not later than May 24, such are the provisions of the by-law, but the secretary is asking as a favor that all resolutions be sent to his office not later than May 15. If the secretary's request is complied with there can be no doubt that the value and interest of the deliberations of the convention will be greatly increased.

Last year the best brains of the Northwest assembled in the convention at Regina as was evidenced by the high plane of the discussion. The character and standing of the delegates to the convention gave its conclusions weight throughout the entire west. The convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada is the most important gathering of business men held in the west during the year, and all indications point to the most successful meeting this year in the history of the organization.

GETTING AFTER THE TOURIST.

Properly looked after and energetically encouraged tourists, including holiday loiterers, Canadian and foreign, would become a very considerable source of income to the people of the Dominion. Beyond the efforts of the transportation companies, however, nothing is being done outside of the Maritime Provinces to spread a knowledge of Canada's unrivaled attractions as a summer resort.

Kentville, N.S., Board of Trade is furnishing an example of the kind of propaganda that should be carried on all over Canada. A standing committee deals with the question, and a recent annual report of the energetic chairman, Mr. G. De Wolfe, begins:

"Your committee beg leave to report that the tourist travel was much larger than that of the prevoius year, and the class of visitors of a much better grade. We also find that strangers made a much longer stay in town than usual. Tourists were from Texas, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Delaware and many other States farther south and west."

How many Canadian boards of trade know as much about the visitors to their city or town? Here are a few more interesting sentences:

"One new feature is the very large gain in people of our province who are coming here early in the season so as to escape the raw, cold winds that prevail in many parts of the Maritime Provinces. In April, May and June the hotels and private boarding houses were well filled with those seeking a more balmy climate."

"Your committee feel very much the need of a neat, illustrated booklet of the town and its surroundings."

"Your committee would suggest for this season that some arrangement be made with the Halifax Board of Trade to get one or two pages in their guide book."

"From inquiry among the livery men we find they had a very busy season and at times quite difficult to supply teams."

"One thing we have to deplore is the lack of interest taken by the majority of our citizens in the great benefits of encouraging this tourist travel to our town. A great many of our people fail to see that the tourist travel is a large cash asset and indirectly benefits all."

"We find the need of more private boarding houses that will cater to this class, as it is a well known fact that scores of persons applied for places here last summer but could not be accommodated."

"The day is not far distant when this province will be the great vacation land of the people of Quebec and Ontario besides the mighty army of our cousins from the 80,000,000 to the south of us."

"Next to the 'Look Off' that the finest view in the valley is twenty minutes walk from the centre of our town."

"When our own people get over the idea that there is nothing to attract tourists to our town we will find them here in great numbers and leaving thousands of dollars to circulate among all classes. One advantage of a tourist guide would be to inform our own people of what great things are right in their midst and to awaken them to our possibilities."

It is expected that when the tariff is amended at the November session there will be some change in the basis of duty on molasses.

CONCLUDING SESSIONS OF THE FRUIT CONFERENCE

How Big is a Barrel?

The proper size of a barrel came in for discussion toward the close of the conference, as the Ontario barrel and the Nova Scotia barrel differ materially in size, the latter being considerably the smaller. It was considered that there should be a standard size for all Canadian fruit and the standard size recommended to be fixed at 96 quarts.

Co-operative Packing.

The co-operative plan for packing apples came in for discussion incidentally again and again throughout the sessions and had the endorsation of all who have tried it. With higher standards and stricter enforcement of the law this seems to be the future of the packing system.

Apple Trade With Germany.

The effect of Germany's discrimination in tariff against Canadian apples was brought out strongly in a paper read by Mr. A. S. Chapin, of Toronto. United States apples pay 50 cents a barrel duty while the Canadian fruit is taxed $1.50, giving the United States full control of this market. Two years ago we sold Germany apples amounting to $50,000. If the duty were lowered Canada would gain the control as our apples were preferred. A direct line of steamships would soon result. The Minister of Agriculture expressed Canada's willingness to meet Germany, but the first step must come from the latter country.

The Sugar Question.

Mr. Robert Anderson, of Montreal, repeated in an address his charges against the sugar refiners, and characterized their reply as a jumble. He promised an answer in detail.

Happy British Columbia.

Mr. Maxwell Smith, fruit inspector for British Columbia, is authority for the statement that in 1904 the B. C. apple growers got more for their apples per box than the California orange growers got for their oranges per box, notwithstanding that the orange box is larger than the apple box and the land more expensive.

Dishonest Britons.

The Briton is notoriously a kicker, and complaints have been made against Canadian apples often upon very slight ground and slight defects greatly magnified. The cut prices Canadian shippers sometimes receive for their apples may be explained by the system of "stacking" consignments sometimes practiced by dishonest commission men across the Atlantic. It is charged that sound goods are placed in the middle of a pile and "wet" and "slack" goods around the outside, and the whole sold as inferior to persons on the "inside." The attention of the Canadian agents in England should be called to this and the dishonest salesmen exposed and punished. It is not enough to ensure that our packers put up first-class goods. They must be assured that their labors shall not be vitiated by dishonest salesmen.

Hemstreet Bros., Milton, groceries and dry goods, have dissolved partnership. Richard will continue the business and George is retiring.

THE LATE F. W. FEARMAN.

In a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer there appeared a notice of the death of Mr. Frederick W. Fearman, late president of the Fearman Packing Co., Hamilton, Ont. In the loss of Mr. Fearman Hamilton loses one of her most useful citizens, besides being a successful business man. Mr. Fearman was one of those men to whom prosperity comes as a kind of natural order, and whom it does not spoil, but who rather used the position thus acquired as a means to still further extend his usefulness and the advancement of his fellow citizens.

Like most great men, Mr. Fearman began life in an ordinary everyday employment, and might aptly be described as the "architect of his own fortune."

Mr. Fearman took a deep interest in public affairs. Educational matters were his especial study. In 1867 he became a member of the board of education and for 17 years was prominent in its work, occupying the important position of chairman and devoting his time and attention in a very large measure to the schools of the city.

The Late F. W. Fearman.

He was also one of the first to agitate for a water works system for Hamilton, and the call for the first public meeting in the interest of the movement was issued by him. For a short time he served as a member of the city council, but his tastes were rather for other lines.

When Hamilton began to agitate for a public library back in the 80's Mr. Fearman was one of the foremost supporters of the movement. He not only wrote on the subject, but called meetings, and his voice was heard throughout the city at public meetings in the interest of the by-law. He was one of the first members of the public library board, and was chairman of the building committee and chairman of the board in 1891.

When the next important public move was made, the purchase of Dundurn Park and the establishment of a parks system for Hamilton, Mr. Fearman, although a man of 70, metaphorically threw off his coat, rolled up his sleeves and got right into the thick of the contest. Those who recall the parks campaign will remember that never in his long and honorable public career did he show to better advantage than then. His speeches were full of force and sound argument, and, based on his wide observation abroad, he was able to handle the subject in a way that made many converts. He was one of those chosen for the first public parks board, and was the unanimous choice of the members for chairman. He stoutly declined, but the board insisted that he must be first chairman, even though he should resign at the close of the first meeting, for they felt that his name should be handed down as chairman — and so it was. He retained his membership on the board up to about two years ago.

Mr. Fearman was an ardent son of St. George and a lifelong member of St. George's Society, of which he was also president. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, although it was not until quite late in life that he joined, becoming a member of Barton Lodge in 1888. He was one of the founders and occupied the position of president of the Wentworth Historical Society, also an active member for many years of the Hamilton Scientific Association. Deceased was a member of the Methodist church, and had held important offices in Wesley and Centenary churches, having been connected with the latter for the past quarter of a century.

IMPORTANT CHANGE IN SALMON COMPANY.

An attractive folder has been issued by the Corby Commission Co., of New York, the main feature of which is to announce to the trade that they have taken over the business which has been carried on by the Pacific Selling Co. They will therefore in future control the "Clover Leaf" and "Arrow" brands of salmon for Canada as well as the United States.

These brands have been well advertised throughout the Dominion and their names will, in consequence, be pretty familiar to the trade. A leading feature pointed out in the folder is the firm's guarantee of 100 per cent. delivery, a point of great importance to the trade. The Corby Commission Co. are pointing out that in all probability the next season's run of salmon will be a very small one, and in consequence prices are expected to rule much higher. The Canadian agents of the company, Kyle & Hooper, Front street east, Toronto, Ont., will be pleased to give any further information.

GROCERS' EXCURSION.

The Toronto Retail Merchants' Association held a meeting in Mr. Panter's office, Spadina avenue, Monday night and decided to hold their annual excursion to Niagara Falls and Buffalo on Wednesday, July 25. Reports from the Annual At Home Committee were received showing a satisfactory cash balance over all expenses.

AN ALMOND PACKER VISITS CANADA.

The Canadian Grocer had an interesting interview with E. Cosmelli, the principal partner in the firm of Cosmelli, Meyer & Co., of London, England, with branches at Denia and Valencia, Spain. Mr. Cosmelli is passing through Canada on a business trip, visiting the company's agents at varous points. This firm make special feature of supplying the world's markets with that excellent fruit, the Mediterranean almond. The harvesting of this crop is carried on much the same as it was several decades ago.

The native hand labor is the predominant factor. The fruit is picked and then laid out in the open to mature and dry, and if required shelled, are broken with large native stones right on the spot. It is then packed ready for the several markets and consigned to its various destinations. The bleaching of the almond has not yet been undertaken on any extensive scale in Spain, and Mr. Cosmelli intends inspecting the different makes of machinery for this purpose while in America so that his firm can satisfy all classes of buyers. The Ontario agents of the firm are Kyle & Hooper, 27 Front street east, Toronto.

BACK FROM MOUNTAIN CLIMBING

Mr. W. H. Millman, the Front street broker, has returned to Toronto after a five weeks' trip to the Pacific Coast, and looks much the better for it. In addition to putting through no small quantity of business, Mr. Millman took a holiday, the first in some time, spending a week with his son Percy at Penticton in the Okanagan Valley. Long rides in the saddle among the mountains is the way Mr. Millman claims he spent the time, but the trade would like a photograph of these mountain climbing and gulch leaping exploits.

A great change in the last three and a half years, Mr. Millman finds everywhere in the west, notably in the increase of plowed land, and new towns along the railway. All the towns are growing very rapidly. Vancouver has now a population of 50,000, and its citizens hope to double this in six years. A hundred thousand club has been formed with this end in view.

THE TILLSON TROPHY.

Won by the Grocery Brokers.

The final game in the wholesale grocers' hockey league for the Tillson trophy and Colonel Davidson's individual trophy was decided Saturday afternoon, March 17, at the Mutual Street Rink, Toronto, when the Grocery Brokers, last year's champions, defeated T. Kinnear & Co. by a score of 6 to 2. It was a brilliant game from start to finish, the second half being particularly fast. The Brokers being in better condition excelled Kinnear's at every position. The former forward line played the best combination game of the season, in fact so good that Kinnear's heavy defence could not break up their rushes.

Jack Guthrie, Brokers' last year's goal, was out for the first time this year and played an excellent game. He strengthened the Brokers' defence considerably. Billie May was without doubt the best man on the ice; his individual rushes and shooting were phenomenal, he securing four of the Brokers' goals.

Banks and Millman played nice combinations and were very effective in checking back. Tom Webber, better known as "Whiskers," got a hard body check into the boards from Humphrey early in the game, but it did not affect his playing. The light defence, Donaldson, last year's forward, and Thompson worked hard and broke up many of Kinnear's old-time rushes. It was thought when Bidwell and Joe Wilson were frozen up early in the season that the Brokers would be weak on defence, but it is not always the heavy man that tells.

For T. Kinnear & Co., Tom Kinnear, C. Rennie and Graham played good hockey all the time and showed themselves to be in good condition, and with more assistance from their defence the score would have been closer. In the first half Tom Kinnear, late of St. George's, played out of his old position but changed around in the second half, which seemed to put him more at home and his playing was much better.

Referee Fred Starr acted impartially and to the satisfaction of both teams.

The teams were:

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Grocers have a splendid opportunity to renew their tea and coffee stocks now by buying from E. D. Marceau, Montreal. He is closing out many lines of special teas at low prices. The different blends offered will speak for themselves.

Buyers of genuine Barbadoes molasses will find it is their interest to get prices and samples from L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal. They have now in store new crop molasses, also other cheap grades at interesting prices.

C. E. Thurston, general eastern representative of the California Fruit Distributors, is back from the coast. He states that rain has destroyed some apricots. There should be 2,600 cars of grapes alone shipped this season. White & Co., Limited, Toronto and Hamilton, sole Ontario representatives.

Attention is called to the Ice Castle Brand Kippered Herring in oval cans, packed by J. W. Windsor. New prices are now out, and as the supply last year was not equal to the demand buyers will do well to place their orders at once. Price is low, and doubtless the consumption of these goods will steadily increase.

Notwithstanding the general complaint of "between seasons" quietness of trade, the Toronto office of "Salada" report business as remarkably good all over their system, including a steady demand for their natural leaf Ceylon greens. These teas are rapidly growing in as popular favor as the now famous black teas of "Salada" brand.

GREAT SORROW OF EX-GROCER.

A great misfortune has overtaken Mr. Horace Brazil, who for years conducted a grocery at the corner of Yonge and St. Albans streets, Toronto.

About four years ago Mr. Brazil removed to the Northwest with his family and engaged in farming. Word has just been received that in a fire recently, Mr. Brazil's three children, his aunt and all his household effects and clothing were consumed and he left destitute. The Retail Grocers' Association, of Toronto, of which Mr. Brazil was a member, are making up a purse to send to the unfortunate ex-grocer. Mr. H. D. Kelly and David Bell are in charge of the subscription list.

DAIRYING STARTS WELL.

Dairymen in Eastern Canada will start their season's work under very favorable conditions, that is, so far as the British market is concerned, but it still remains to be seen if the pastures will be in the same excellent condition as in the season of 1905. The butter trade with the Old Country will be watched very closely this year, so that the favorable opinion that this Canadian product has gained among British consumers shall not be lost. All dairymen know the importance of this trade with Britain, and may be trusted to further it in every way possible. The reputation of Canadian cheese is already made, but there is still much to be done to perfect the business, in the matter of packing, weights, boxes, and so forth.

Mr. J. J. Philp, Winnipeg fruit inspector, was a caller at the office of The Grocer this week.

GROCERIES.—It is possible this week to take a more optimistic view of the grocery situation. Although orders have not materially increased, inquiries for different lines handled by the grocer have been frequent, and this would seem to indicate better business. Wholesalers report little improvement in collections, but better collections cannot be looked for before business in the country braces up somewhat. At present most of the orders received are of the hand-to-mouth variety. Still, everything considered, there is little ground for complaint, as jobbers report as large a volume of business this year as for the same period last. This the trade may be thankful for, when the weather conditions of the past Winter are considered. Since the recent ten-cent advance in sugar demand has been very good, and from orders received from country points it would seem that merchants were pretty well cleaned up. The tea situation is improving. There has been an advance of half a cent in China greens, but otherwise prices are unchanged. Japans are strong but scarce. Ceylon and Indian teas are active, and other lines are doing very well.

CANNED GOODS.—The demand for tomatoes continues very brisk, and supplies are rapidly becoming lower in consequence. The price asked is the same as last week, $1.20. The scarcity is not confined to Canada, for reports from all parts of the States tell of the shortage on that side. There is nothing new in corn and peas. The demand is no greater than usual. Gallon apples are still on the market at the prices quoted a couple of weeks ago. Orders in other lines of canned goods are of the hand-to-mouth character.

SUGAR.—The market has been strong since the last rise of ten cents. The demand has been good, and wholesalers report that sales to country points have been very good, merchants apparently having been pretty well cleaned up. In some quarters it is said that this demand has fallen off considerably. It is rumored that there is to be a decline shortly, as the New York market is likely to fall ten cents owing to the fact that one refinery in that city is selling at a price just that much below the others.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.—Latest advices from the Islands report an unchanged market. Locally there is little to be said about the situation. The dealers report the usual consumptive demand, a little better perhaps on account of the Lenten season, but nothing of particular note.

TEA.—Taken all around, there seems to be a better feeling in teas this week. Japans are reported very strong and scarcer. The Canadian supply this year is about two million pounds short of last year's importations. There is a steady demand for teas ranging from 16c. to 18c., but dealers anticipate business in lower grades in the near future. A brisk demand is noted for Japan siftings and fannings. There are very few stocks of Japan teas in the country. China greens, which are scarce, especially gunpowders, are moving freely; prices are up half a cent a pound. Pingsueys, young hysons and gunpowders found ready sale last week, and several large invoices changed hands. One or two inquiries were received from Chicago, but these did not lead to any actual sales. Business in Ceylon and Indian blacks has been active, and in Ceylon and Indian greens supplies are small, prices firm, and poor assortments are offering.

COFFEE.—Business is reported as breaking up a little. There are a few more inquiries, but business transacted is not as large as it might be. Prices remain unchanged.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, March 29, 1906.

BUTTER—Market on quiet side. Prices unchanged.

CHEESE—Little business being transacted Prices steady, quoting 13 to 13½c.

EGGS—Active demand at prices hovering around 17c. Steady market. Stocks rather light.

PROVISIONS—Market firm for hams, bacon barreled pork. Prices advanced slightly. Rise about ½c. lb. in lard. Dressed hogs steady.

DRIED FRUITS. — The California supply of dried fruits is very scarce, and great difficulty is experienced in making up assortments. The outlook for apricots is very bad. From present indications there will not be more than a quarter of a crop, so that merchants may look for advanced prices. Prunes are rather scarce. Cable advices from Spain report a failure of the Tarragona stock; to what extent it is not known, but New York markets have advanced a quarter of a cent a pound on the strength of it. Other nuts are quoted at the same price as last week, with the exception of shelled walnuts, the lowest price at which these may be imported being 23c.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.—The tapioca market is firmer at the same price as was quoted last week, 6½c. The demand has not improved any and is not likely to do so as long as this price prevails. The rice situation presents no new features.

BEANS.—There has been a decline in beans, which are now obtainable at figures ranging from $1.50 to $1.55. One lot was sold (Montreal freight) at $1.40 this week, according to certain reports. The market is about stationary.

Choice prime beans	1 50	1 55

HONEY.—There is a good demand for honey, which is getting scarce. Prices are the same as they were last week, but spot stocks are rapidly being cleared at these figures:

MAPLE PRODUCTS.—In maple products nothing new has developed. The market is steady at unchanged prices. Dealers are reticent, but are inclined to believe that the coming season will be an excellent one. A few days with favorable weather would start the new crop.

EVAPORATED APPLES. — Nothing new has developed in evaporated apples. They are very scarce. The market is firm. The prices quoted by dealers are from 12c. to 12½c.

FISH.—The demand for fish this week has been fairly good, owing to favorable weather. Quantities of frozen fish have been sold and the market is pretty well cleared up, but supplies are ample at producing points and lots are coming forward every week, so that there is no visible scarcity. Frozen haddock and cod are lower and fresh caught haddock (not frozen) are coming in a little more freely at lower prices. Quotations are lower also on frozen herring, and demands are ample to supply the fair demand there is for these fish. Dore or pickerel are scarce, as are also white fish and lake trout, and prices have a tendency to advance. In smoked fish quantities of frozen haddies are still arriving on market and prices are low. Fresh cured stock is now beginning to arrive and meets with ready sale, seeing that the market is higher on frozen stock. Kippered and bloated herrings are in fair demand. In salt fish the large size green cod are scarce but small sizes are plentiful, while Labrador herring continue scarce, and owing to this scarcity there is a better demand for the Scotch-cured herring. The demand for boneless and prepared fish is quiet. Bulk oysters are also slow.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, March 30, 1906.

Salmon and tomatoes continue to absorb attention. The situation was never stronger. Sugar is quiet and the raw market slightly easier. Evaporated apples are firm. The lower prices for currants have been moved up a fraction and it is said the guild has agreed to sell nothing under 6c. The high price of lumber has suggested a probable early advance in the woodenware market. On all hands business is reported to be, for the season, very satisfactory. The lower grades have also advanced. There is said to be very little "Horseshoe" here and none at the coast and other first-class brands are also in small compass.

CANNED GOODS—Tomatoes have firmed up to nearly last week's highest quotation. The usual price named now is $1.20 and no wholesaler would sell many at that. The situation is unchanged. Stocks are not regarded as adequate until the new pack comes in. Sympathetically, corn and peas are very firm and an advance is looked for in these. Salmon occupies a very strong position and the advance spoken of last week as partial has become general, the only difference being that one or two houses continue to throw off 2 1-2c. on five-case lots.

SUGAR—The local refined situation is practically without change, quotations remaining as last advices, while the consumptive demand is steady and fair for the season of the year. There are no special indications at the moment, but the course of the raw sugar market will be watched with interest for some time.

The tone of the raw market is easier at the moment. Fifty thousand bags centrifugals sold last week in Philadelphia at the rate of 2 1-4c., c.f., New York, indicating an apparent decline of 1-32c. below recent quotations.

The world's visible supply was last reported as 3,930,000 tons, from which high figures it is hardly to be expected that high values will rule throughout the coming season, unless, of course, something quite unexpected should happen, such as an appreciable falling off in European beet sowings. In this connection Mr. F. O. Licht cabled to Willett & Gray on the 27th inst. as follows;: "Weather unfavorable for field work."

Mr. Hugh Blain received from the Berlin Sugar Refining Co. a report, stating that on March 21 they had made 1,650 contracts this season for beet planting, aggregating 3,704 acres. That is 843 acres more than at the same date last year.

TEA—The market is quiet, while advices from London show that the recent advances have been well maintained and that all sorts show an advancing tendency. Ordinary to good medium teas are in most request. Thompson's Tea Circular of March 15 says of Indian teas: "The healthier tone noted in our last, developed into a sharp advance in rates on all descriptions of Assam leaf during the current week's auctions, the tone at the close being even stronger than on Monday.

The Japan early crop is said to have been much damaged by cold weather.

COFFEE—The advance which the experts have been talking about has not yet materialized and the market is quiet within narrow limits.

Willett & Gray say: "Trade is aware that supplies are decreasing with great regularity. In this country alone the deliveries so far this month have been twice the amount of the total receipts in Rio and Santos, and with interior dealers carrying only hand-to-mouth stocks, a crop even 12 1-2 or 13 millions would most likely be needed to satisfy consumption during the crop year 1906-1907. While some people are ready to predict such a crop, the experience of past years, and the condition of plantations in Brazil, make it very doubtful whether so large a crop can be raised at all for a long time to come, even with favorable crop prospects in the beginning as has been the case during the past three years, the real outturn each year being fully 20 per cent. less than the prospects seemed to indicate."

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS— Prices of the commoner grades of currants have slightly advanced locally. Patras are marked up 1-4c. and while some houses still quote Filiatras at 5 1-2c. with others 6c. is the lowest for any grade. Cables from Patras are somewhat irregular as to prices, but all show a firmer and somewhat higher market, the average advance being about a shilling.

FOREIGN NUTS— The demand for field nuts of all kinds continues to be very large. Almonds are scarce on the spot and higher abroad. Cables were received this week refusing business under 2s. over last week's prices. Prices for walnuts are unchanged.

Advices from Europe state that the almond crop in France and Spain has been damaged by frost.

Prunes are very firm in New York, but there are no quotable advances locally yet.

HONEY—Prices are unchanged from last week. The demand continues fair.

FISH.—Oysters are scarce and hard to get at the advance of 20c to 50c quoted. This is due to stormy weather at the close of the season. The same atmospheric conditions have affected the supply of haddy. Old stocks are all cleaned up and the market is dependent upon the fresh catch. The result locally is a ½c. advance. The stock of frozen halibut is nearly disposed of and the fresh is in at about the same prices. Kippers and bloaters are all cleaned up here. Fresh haddock is a cent lower.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, March, 1906.

March has been a cold month and we have had more snow than any time since the first of the year. We have now more snow than at this time last season. Business is improving. Markets in general are firm. Molasses is again a matter of particular interest. The strained relations evident now for some few years is still a factor. Two results are evident—less profit to the importer and lower prices to the retailer. Fish, that is, dried, are easier. Halifax is reported over-stocked. Perhaps never was the market so bare of cheese. Rice is rather easier, some particularly fine samples seen. In Winter port business this will be a record year. Our trade complain of the impossibility of getting Barbadoes molasses forward by the West India steamers to meet the demand, owing to lack of space, St. John being discriminated against in the matter of space in favor of Halifax.

Oil.—There is a decline in the demand for burning oil owing to the lateness of of the season. Prices are unchanged. Lubricating oils have much attention and good business reported. Linseed and turpentine are now active lines. Prices quite high, particularly turpentine. In cod oil it is late for business.

Salt.—There are continued arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt, a good demand reported. While prices are unchanged there is a feeling that present figures are too high and there is talk of increased competition in this market. Fine salt has improved sale. Prices are unchanged.

Canned goods.—Tomatoes show an advance. The position is a very strong one. Fair stocks are held. Corn is firm. Peas are still very cheap. In gallon apples rather higher prices quoted. The situation is strong. Other fruits unchanged. Just a fair sale for salmon. Meats quite low. In oysters prices firm. Domestic canned fish are quiet. Stocks, except perhaps sardines, are light.

Dried fruit.—There is just a fair sale for seeded raisins at the lower prices ruling. Valencia raisins show quite an advance since the first of the year. Loose Muscatels unchanged. Malagas have the sale owing to price. In currants prices are firm, the local cleaned bring the best price. Dates are higher. Figs a light stock and light sale. Prunes are higher, small sizes scarce. Apricots and peaches higher. In peels our trade have not yet bought. Prices quoted are high and market advancing. Citron is likely to rule much higher than last year. Evaporated apples high. Dried have been advanced. Onions are firm. First shipments of Egyptian are to hand.

Sugar.—There was a further advance of ten cents last week. Stocks are very light. In foreign granulated market is also quite bare.

Molasses.—The sale is for Barbadoes, chiefly fancy grade. There is much complaint that it is impossible to get steamer space to meet the demand. The price of the fancy grade has been cut so that it is possible to buy much cheaper than a week ago. In Porto Rico prices unchanged. Considerable old stock still here, and but limited demand. It is said there will be a small output at the island and price will be quite high. Dealers here are not anxious buyers.

Fish.—In fresh fish season for frozen stock late, fair stocks, prices rather easier. In dry fish tendency is to lower figures. Stocks here not large. The high price and a poor West India market has affected sales. Pickled herring high and scarce. Smoked rather lower. Haddies are dull. Some Gaspereaux now seen.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, March 28, 1906.

The Acadia Sugar Refinery Company has again advanced the price of sugar ten cents per one hundred pounds. The recent advance was made just at the close of the week, and marks the third advance within three weeks, making a total of thirty cents in all.

Trade, generally, is pretty quiet. Collections continue very good.

Canned goods are in heavy demand; the jobbers all have good stocks on hand and there is no shortage in any lines.

The market is pretty well cleaned up as regards poultry, the stocks held in cold storage being about exhausted. Fresh poultry would command a good price on this market at present if it was available.

Pork is very scarce, all the dealers complaining about the shortage, and the very high price asked by those who hold hogs. Good hogs are fetching from 9c. to 9½c. per pound, which figures are away ahead of anything quoted hereabouts for years. Pork products are also high and good bacon and hams are scarce. Twenty cents per pound is the price quoted for both hams and bacon of local cure.

EGGS.—The recent cold snap has made a marked improvement in the egg market, and has had the effect of stiffening prices. The supply of fresh-laid eggs has fallen off as the result, and the price has been increased slightly. The jobbers are quoting them at 18c. per dozen wholesale, while the retailer is selling them from 20 to 25c. per dozen, the latter price being obtained for the very choicest stock. The demand is good, as is always the case during the Lenten season. Cold storage eggs are going off the market very slow, the jobbers finding some difficulty in disposing of their stock. It is hard to find the quantity of cold storage stock held here, the jobbers not being inclined to say much about the egg situation in that respect, but it is known that their holdings are very large.

BUTTER.—The local supply of butter continues very good, and it is expected that with the roads improving the farmers will reach the market frequently. The price has not eased off any. Creamery prints are quoted at 26c., and solids at 25c. Choice small tubs range from 23 to 25c., and rolls at 22c. These prices are much higher than the quotations in the Upper Provinces. The exports of butter from Halifax have fallen off very greatly. Some small shipments are being made to the West Indies, but the high prices prevent the trade from being as brisk as formerly.

FRUIT.—The market is well stocked with oranges, both navel and Jamaicas. The latter are arriving in very poor condition, and in most cases they have to be repacked. They are quoted at $7 per barrel. Dried fruits are in good supply with the prices steady. The American strawberries which arrived from Boston by the last boat were of splendid quality. They retailed at 40c. per box. The crop is said to be heavy, and it is likely that the price will be a little easier later. There is a good supply of celery, cukes, and rhubarb on the market.

VEGETABLES.—Stocks of vegetables are being thinned out, the waste being very great, particularly so in potatoes. Owing to the condition of the stock no advance has been made in prices. Parsnips are becoming very scarce, and are now quoted at $1.75 per barrel, which is an advance of 25c. The stock of carrots is fairly good. They are quoted at $1.50 per barrel.

Vancouver, March 21, 1906.

"In 1910
Vancouver then
Will have 100,000 men."

So mote it be, and they will all have to be fed and otherwise supplied. Therefore it is very much to the interest of the readers of The Grocer both east and west, for a very great proportion of the food supplies of this coming metropolis of the western coast is drawn from the east and from the prairie sections of the west.

The formation of a "hundred thousand club" in Vancouver this week is an outward expression of the faith the citizens have in the great future and immediate progress of the Terminal City. A most enthusiastic campaign has been mapped out, and all, old and young, business men and others, have joined hands in the work of bringing about the realization of the ambitious project. As it will involve doubling the present population, it means a great deal of hard work and careful planning. The object of the new club is not only to get people here, but to provide, first, inducements for them to come, and second, means of occupation when they are here, so that the making of Vancouver a city of 100,000 people shall not be a one-sided affair.

Business is picking up very rapidly in all lines in the trade both wholesale and retail in the past week, and by the end of the month, when northern shipments, both Yukon and to the northern coast of British Columbia are in full swing, times will be very lively here.

MARKETS.—In groceries nothing very important in the way of changes can be recorded. In the rice market prices are now quoted as low as $84 per ton, which is cheap on present basis. Conditions indicate that the price may increase a good deal, and it is possible that it may again go up to $100. Sago and tapioca are now at their highest market price for a long time, the current quotation being 5½c. The supply market is short and the tendency is upward.

In dried fruits the market remains practically unchanged. The demand is normal and trade fairly good, but no recent move has been made. In canned goods local jobbers are holding tomatoes at very much stiffer prices than some time ago. However, they are still 10c. lower on the market here than present eastern basis. The ruling quotation is from $1.25 to $1.30 per dozen.

PRODUCE.—There is a very great scarcity of really choice butter on the local market just at present, and an almost equal abundance of fresh eggs The supply of good eastern butter is practically exhausted, and the local creameries cannot cope with the demand. Last month was the smallest in point of production of local creameries, of the season. This month the supply is increasing. The price dropped back from the Winter rate of 35c. per lb. wholesale which has prevailed for two months or more, to 30c., below which it is very seldom necessary for the creameries of British Columbia to reduce the wholesale price of their fresh product.

A limited quantity of New Zealand butter is really the most exclusive article on the market in butter. A small stock arrived this week by the Miowera. It is quoting at 30c. and 31c. There is not enough to go round.

Exceedingly fine, warm, bright weather has prevailed for so many weeks now that the egg production of the British Columbia hen has gone up to very nearly the maximum. The price has dropped considerably, and imported eggs and store stock have been put off the market. The price of local fresh in Vancouver is now 25c. wholesale and in Victoria it is 20c. per dozen. But at the latter price there is no danger that the stock will not be taken.

FRUIT.—The last car of Coldstream apples of 1905 crop is likely to be received this week. With the shortening up of local stocks and very slight importations from Washington, the market is drawing into very small compass in this line. The price is now about at the maximum, $2 to $2.50 wholesale for choice fruit, and there is practically none else offering from the wholesale side.

Oranges have gone up in price considerably, the quotations from the brokers in California showing very stiff tendencies. The quality remains excellent as it has been throughout this season. The average price now quoted here to the trade is $3.25 to $3.75 per box.

Bananas are coming in regularly, fresh stock being expected the last of the week. The price is firm at $3.25 per bunch. Not a pine arrived from Honolulu by the Australian steamer this week, contrary to expectations. The shipments do not usually stop so early in the year. It may be that other lots will arrive by the next steamer.

VEGETABLES.—Because there will be a royal prince in Vancouver next week there is a stock of extra choice California vegetables in the wholesale houses. One particularly attractive lot of fresh young asparagus is costing $6.50 per crate of 30 lbs. It had to be specially ordered, and is of course away over the average stock. Ruling price for California asparagus is now 10c. to the trade. Very fine fresh lettuce is again in plentiful supply. Vancouver growers are now competing very actively with Victoria hot-house men who formerly had this trade exclusively. The price has dropped back to $1.50 per crate, from $1.75 which ruled while there was a scarcity for several weeks.

Cucumbers, radishes, parsley and tomatoes, all California stock, are in sufficient supply in the market. Prices are about as the regular quotations.

Potatoes are showing no recent move in prices. Really choice locals are scarce, even Ashcrofts being held at $2 to $2.25 per hundred in a retail way. Some Yakimas from Washington State are still supplied at $30 to the trade.

Hamelin, Winnipeg, Man.; secretary, W. A. Coulson, Winnipeg Man.; treasurer, J. E. McRobie, Winnipeg, Man.; auditor, J. A. Lindsay, Winnipeg, Man.

Association offices, 53 Scott building, Main street, Winnipeg.

Secretary Coulson left Winnipeg on Monday morning on the organization trip in the west mentioned in last issue of this paper. From communications received from members in the various towns to be visited there are good prospects for a successful tour. The only satisfactory way to arrange local disputes and settle a working basis for the future is for the dealers in each district to meet in some central town and discuss the situation freely and frankly. When such a meeting has been brought together the biggest difficulty has been overcome. Their interests being common, the general merchants can usually arrange a basis of agreement on the most contentious points if once they can be brought together to discuss the situation. In former years one of the biggest troubles in the west has been the unreasonably high price paid country merchants during the Spring and Summer for country produce. Butter and eggs have been handled at an actual loss, as many dealers can testify to their sorrow. One of the principal objects of the meetings this week and next is to remedy this evil, and if the secretary's visit has any effect in checking this reckless practice of other years he will confer a great benefit on the long-suffering trade.

The offices of the association at No. 53 Scott Building, Main street, Winnipeg, are open at all times to visiting members of the association, and, in fact, to all merchants. When Secretary Coulson is out of town Secretary McRobie, of the Hardware Association, is in charge, and merchants will always be made welcome to visit the offices. Merchants visiting Winnipeg are invited to have their mail addressed in care of the association offices. There is a comfortable reception room in connection and letters may be written there. A file of The Canadian Grocer, and others of the MacLean Trade Newspapers, will be found on the tables.

The association remedy for bad debts, outlined in the issue of March 9, seems to be meeting with popular favor. Hundreds of the blank forms described in The Grocer have been sent out to merchants who have asked for them, and reports received at the Winnipeg office of the association indicate that in most instances the scheme is working well. In very many cases a notice of the kind provided by the association is all that is required to collect the money.

At the joint meetings of the general merchants and hardwaremen last February a vexed question came up several times in the course of other discussions, but, unfortunately, was not itself discussed at any length. The time of the convention was so fully occupied by an eastern visitor, who came with a new and unexpected proposition, that but scant consideration was given to a number of topics upon which it was desirable that there should be a clear understanding. This particular question—the relation of the general store to the class hardware store—was naturally suggested by the affiliation of the two associations and the organization of the "Western Board." In many towns in the west there is friction between the general store, with its hardware department, and the straight-line hardware store. Now it would be unreasonable to say that the general store should not handle hardware, and he would be an unreasonable hardwareman who advanced any such argument. But there is no more reason why the general merchant should cut prices in hardware than in groceries, and in towns where hardware is handled by the general store at cut prices the hardwareman has even more reason to complain than has the grocer or general merchant who finds the neighboring hardware store selling plug tobacco at "three for a quarter." He has more reason to complain because a stove or a furnace is a bigger item than a few plugs of tobacco, but the principle is the same in both cases. This is a matter on which the two associations should be able to come to a satisfactory agreement.

DEATH OF HORACE L. SMITH.

The Winnipeg grocery and fruit trade were surprised to hear last Saturday of the death of Horace L. Smith, manager of the fruit department of Foley, Lock & Larson. As mentioned in The Canadian Grocer last week, Mr. Smith had undergone an operation for appendicitis, but no doubts were entertained of his recovery. His kindly and generous disposition made him deservedly popular among the trade.

Manitoba Markets

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, March 29, 1906.)

ABBREVIATED MARKET NOTES FOR CURRENT WEEK

Sugar—Advanced 10c. per cwt.
Cooking Figs—Advanced ½c. per lb.
Standard Peaches—Advanced ¼c. per lb.
Oatmeal—Reduced 10c. per sack.
Cornmeal—Reduced 10c. per sack.
Cheese—Advanced ½c. to 1c. per lb.
Lard—Advanced ¼c. per lb.

Cold weather during the last fortnight has to some extent interfered with trade, but there has been a fair movement of most general lines. There are not many price changes to record. Sugar is now on the advance and still higher prices seem probable, although the early opening of navigation, and consequent reduction in transportation charges from the east, may relieve the situation slightly. Oatmeal and cornmeal are cheaper, but tapioca continues to be held at an unusually high price. Cooking figs are advancing and the entire foreign dried fruit list shows a tendency towards higher prices.

CANNED GOODS—All jobbers are short on tomatoes and strawberries, and it does not seem possible to obtain fresh supplies at reasonable prices.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The cheese market remains unchanged, very firm, very few lots unsold, and the British markets are just commencing to feel the shortage of supplies which we predicted several months ago.

A few straggling, small lots of new fodder cheese have been received here, but so far there has been no market price established for them.

Butter remains neglected, finest quality Fall creamery is getting scarce, being mostly stale in flavor, and new butter is still very scarce, so there is not much of interest on the market to report.

The following cable was received here a few days ago from London, viz.:

"Information has been received here that the Danish Government is sending a commission consisting of three agricultural dairy experts, to tour Canada for the purpose of making reports upon the handling and shipment of produce."

This seems like a great compliment to our dairy industry, as Danish butter is considered the "standard" for finest quality in the British markets and we have studied the Danish ways for years to capture a part of the butter trade in Great Britain. Have we actually succeeded in establishing ourselves in British markets sufficiently to make the wide-awake Danes come over to study our methods? The above notice would almost imply this, yet, on an average, our butter is still at a considerable discount in British markets as compared with Danish butter. However, as we have repeatedly pointed out, we can and do produce as fine a quality of butter as can be made anywhere.

In this connection we wish to express once more our regret to see the growing practice of farmers in adopting the "hand separators." It is a "penny wise and pound foolish" policy; the small gain of the individual farmer will be a general loss both to the farmers and the country, the quality of our butter will be of a lower standard and prices will be lower accordingly.

Here is another article of interest on butter, viz.: Mr. P. B. Ball, Canadian agent at Birmingham, sends to the Department of Trade and Commerce an interesting report on the subject of "fake butter," over 200 tons of which are being produced daily in England at a profit of about $60 a ton. Owing to the extent of the growth of this practice the Federation of Grocers' Associations have had an exhaustive report upon the subject and are now urging the new Government to pass a "butter bill." The butters principally manipulated are those from the colonies and Siberia, which, as a rule, have considerably less moisture than the Irish, Danish and other continental butters. Especially does Canadian butter suffer through the "faking" process. The practice of the manipulator is to add solidified milk and "treated" milk. Sweet separated milk is solidified by the action of a small quantity of hydrochioric acid. The two classes of milk mentioned are worked into the genuine butter by a kneading machine and two or three times the quantity of the original package is turned out. Mr. Ball recommends that all Canadian butter packages should be marked with the name of the dairy or creamery, so as to identify the Canadian product. He also suggests that more moisture be allowed to remain in Canadian-made butter so as to prevent manipulation.

As we have pointed out in our last week's article, the water content in butter in both Great Britain and Canada is limited to 16 per cent maximum. The keen competition in selling butter in retail shops in Great Britain at a certain price, has brought about the above mentioned "fraudulent" practices. It is not for us to alter our ways; we ship good, honestly made butter to Great Britain; if they manipulate it, and, if the laws of Great Britain are such as to permit this "fraudulent" manipulation, we, in Canada, are powerless in the matter, but we would like to see "honest" Canadian butter sold as such and packages should be branded "Canadian Creamery," not only marked with a "stencil" and brush, which can easily be erased, but a universal "brand" might be adopted, which could be branded into the wood.

This has been suggested some years ago and it has been under discussion a number of times, so far, we regret to say, without result. If our finest creamery were put on the British markets as "Canadian Creamery" our butter would soon get a reputation of its own, but when "Danish Casks" are imported to be packed at the creameries, even if it is then exported as "Canadian Creamery," it will doubtless be sold to the British consumer as "Danish Butter," and what is known as "Canadian Creamery" in the U. K. is generally of a secondary quality and sold at a lower price.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The general tone of the packing trades is certainly more healthy than at time of last review. The Maritime Provinces report demand as well maintained, with prices advancing. At Montreal and eastern points trade is also good, and a more amicable feeling exists as between packers and farmers, the latter showing a better disposition to study the points of quality in hog production. At Ontario points things are running more smoothly, although there is ample room for complaint as to short supplies.

A report is current that a project is on foot to erect a large packing house at Port Huron, Michigan, to be known as the Huron Packing Company, and it will include an Englishman of large means. The plant is to have a capacity of a thousand hogs a week at the outset; it is said the site has already been secured. It is also understood that the new concern across the border is a direct outgrowth of the Government order which prohibits the importation of American hogs. It is questionable, however, even if this is so, whether it will be any material detriment to the Canadian product, as, of course, it must be essentially an American concern, producing American bacon.

Arrivals of live hogs at factories are not yet up to required standards, and in consequence the finished product is not considered all that it should be. To this is attributed the slow movement on the British market, although at the same time the tone on that market is an improvement on earlier reports, and still advancing in both demand and price. As supplies get more abundant there is little doubt but that trade will make an upward move.

Packers have faith in the industry, and are anxious that the farmers give them increasing quantities of first-class bacon hogs that are finished at about 180 pounds each.

A certain percentage of the Canadian bacon is equal to the best Danish bacon, but the percentage of inferior bacon is still too large. Recently fully 80 per cent. of the hogs received by the packers has been of the bacon type, but a very large number were not fully developed. The packers wanted a hog that was long and weighed from 175 to 185 pounds, with not more than one and a half inches of fat evenly distributed over the back.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

There were a few lines in the Montreal report of The Grocer, dated February 23, in regard to the matter of placing Canadian poultry upon the British market, which were very seasonable and deserve further consideration.

It is just about this time that the demand for Canadian poultry is at its best, but, unfortunately, the supply is altogether too small, and such supplies as come to hand can very frequently stand improvement in the matter of packing and quality.

Canadians who intend to cultivate the English market cannot do better than follow in the footsteps of their United States neighbors. Poultry, imported into Britain from the States, is packed in three grades, ranging from 14c. to 16c. per lb.; medium grade, 16c. to 18c. per lb.; best, 18c. to 22c. per lb. The greatest part of the demand is for crates weighing from 36 to 42 lbs., although a sale can always be found for fowls of lighter weight in crates of between 33 and 36 lbs. In every instance the birds are packed twelve to the box. United States packers have very wisely devoted special attention to the shipping of poultry only of a very fine white color, and yellow-legged fowls, for which there is no demand, have been rigorously excluded.

In a contemporary, published here in London, complaint is made that Canadian chickens are not sufficiently well feathered, and are not selected and packed with the same care as those with which they have to compete. The Chicago poultry shipper, eager to please the palate and to satisfy the requirements of the English householder, is careful to send along only the tender, young chickens, and he sees to it that they are all cleaned and almost quite ready, when unpacked, to be placed straight into the oven or pot. It is thus that the big, but now decreasing, business which American poultry packers have built up has been held and it is by following their methods that Canadians will best step in to supply the demand with which Friend Jonathan finds himself unable fully to cope.

Apropos of the embargo on Canadian cattle entering British ports, the Meat Trades Journal, which is the organ of the British meat trade, quotes: "According to the Times there is a very strong feeling amongst cattle breeders in all parts of the country against any modification of the law which prohibits the importation of Canadian store animals. We may be pardoned for saying there is an equally strong feeling amongst many feeders, cattle dealers, butchers, and others, in favor of their importation."

CHEESE.—A complaint comes from Manchester that half of the boxes which contained a recent shipment from Canada to that centre were broken and seriously damaged, and as they still had to be passed on from the general warehouse to the importers' local store, and from there, if they ever sold in their battered condition, to the retailer's shop, they probably suffered considerable through being exposed to the air. The sooner the new cheese-packing method is adopted the better. From one of Bristol's leading importers there comes another grumble. This time it relates to the "mottled" and "moldy" condition of some Canadian cheese, which had been delivered at that port. The cause of the mold is evidently faulty packing and the use of unsatisfactory grease-proof paper. As to the mottle evil, Canadians know well the cause of that. Bristol, by the way, is one of the chief centres of Canadian cheese, and complaints from that quarter are less desirable than from elsewhere.

During the past week there has been a very good demand for Canadian cheese here in London, and 63s. to 64s. are being realized for "white," and 66s. to 67s. for "colored." Arrivals have been on a very small scale, only 5 boxes having come to hand within the last six days. Stocks in the dock's storage have been reduced to 68,423 boxes.

BUTTER.—As was expected, the demand during the past few days has been altogether too small to cope with the large stocks on hand, and importers of colonial butter have found it advisable to meet buyers by a reduction of 2s. per cwt.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—There is a good general demand in the provision market at present. There have been several changes in prices since last quotations. Lard, smoke meats, and hams are in fairly good demand, and for this time of year business in these lines is very good. Prices on dressed hogs are firm. Abattoir dressed are selling from $9.75 to $10. Country dressed hogs are practically off the market.

CHEESE.—The local cheese market is just about cleared up. What there is selling brings in the neighborhood of 13½c. A strong market is reported on the other side, but inquiries received here indicate that they are not disposed to buy.

EGGS.—Prices have declined owing to the break in the weather. They are offering freely in the west at prices which are dropping. The present weather is favorable to shipping by freight, which will have the effect of bringing down the price about one cent a dozen. Dealers are quoting 17c. at present.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS. — Firmness characterizes the tone of the provision market throughout. The shortage in hogs and the packing situation seems to be having its natural result. Roll bacon and hams are advanced ½c., and lard is up ¼c. to last week's highest quotations. Beef prices are the same, with one exception. Finest qualities have been marked up 25c.

BUTTER.—The situation is very firm with prices advanced over last week's levels for the choicest qualities, but for the ordinary last week's quotations will do. That means that 27c. or 28c. can be got for a few choicest makes of creamery prints, but the run is from 26c. to 27c. In the same way separator dairy prints, direct from the farm and of prime quality, will fetch 24c., but what generally passes as choice brings 20c. to 23c. Choice large rolls are a cent or two higher than last week. The quality of butter continues to be the subject of complaint, and will be until the new grass comes in. The creameries are said to be increasing their output.

EGGS.—The colder weather does not seem to have cooled the ardor of the Ontario hens. Eggs are in excellent demand, but the price is tending downward. For new laid 16c. to 17c. is the usual quotation, but 15½c. is heard and may indicate a weakening tendency. Stocks of storage and pickled eggs are said to be pretty well cleaned up, and if they are not the holders are grinning under their loads, and the quotations are 13c. to 14c.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

There has been no great feature to note since our last review. In wheat there has been a more active demand at some points. Winnipeg reports an improvement, with a slight advance in values, this not so much from the local millers as from export dealers. Toronto market reports fair demand from the milling trade but no very great activity; offerings are light, and the disposition appears to be to hold rather than let go at present prices. There has been a little more life in inquiries from Newfoundland and the Maritime Provinces.

In regard to flour, there has been a much better outlook during week under review, a number of the millers reporting having put through sales, although the prices were not very satisfactory, as the profits had to be cut very fine to secure the orders.

Other millers who have not booked any orders reported an active inquiry; in fact, the best in months, and if the wheat market continues steady, or shows a slight advance, millers look for a good business during the next few weeks. There is a growing feeling among the dealers that the price of flour will be better, and that the low figures at which some flours have been offered was entirely owing to its being pushed into the market when there was no demand for it.

Both millers and flour brokers report that a few export orders have come to hand, on which they have been able to get about cost, by figuring wheat at the low prices that were prevailing the beginning of the week, but they would not have been able to do this, had it not been for the very high price they were able to get for the mill offal, combined with the present low freight rates.

The oat market has also shown more activity for feed purposes, and a fair trade is reported; the export trade has been only medium, although some fair business is reported.

The cereal situation is still an unsatisfactory one. Stocks are reported to be far in advance of requirements, and the amount of cutting among dealers is a feature of serious moment to the trade.

The Grand Trunk Railway have plans completed by which they hope to prevent any repetition of the grain blockade that occurred at Ontario lake ports last year, and which will enable them to look after all the needs of the Ontario millers. By the Summer time the company expect to have several hundred more cars available for the Ontario lines than in any previous season. They anticipate that not a single mill in Ontario would have to close down through being unable to get their wheat through from the lake ports.

In addition the elevator capacity will be largely increased both at Midland and Goderich.

Last year the blockade was so complete that the Ontario Millers' Association applied to the Railway Commission for redress.

WHEAT IMPORTS INTO GREAT BRITAIN.

A report of the Canadian commercial agent at Birmingham, England, gives some statistics which should be wise reading to those who are looking to Canada to be the "granary of the Empire." That she has much ground to capture in the British market is evident from the facts which are revealed in the report.

In 1905, Russia exported to Great Britain 24,703,200 bushels of wheat, valued at £9,142,146. The Argentine Republic was close behind with 23,236,400 bushels, valued at £8,282,388. The British East Indies ranked third with 22,807,422 bushels, worth £7,882,937, and even Australia exceeded Canada, with 10,064,000 bushels, valued at £3,800,000. The United States comes fifth with 6,634,700 bushels, valued at £2,453,575, and Canada trails along in sixth place with 6,522,030 bushels, valued at £2,412,137. The following figures exhibit Great Britain's total import of wheat, and the value in the years named:

1903	88,131,030	£29,940,191
1904	97,782,500	34,266,416
1905	97,622,752	35,279,928

The above figures do not take into account wheat meal and flour, the figures of which for 1905 are as follows:

	Cwts.	Value.
Germany	479,300	£ 262,610
France	1,034,503	472,286
Austria-Hungary.	622,885	389,381
United States	5,685,418	2,896,317
Canada	1,330,100	653,804
Other countries	2,802,557	1,370,347
Totals	11,954,763	£6,044,745

The importation of wheat meal and flour into Great Britain is steadily declining, showing that the British mills are turning out an increasing proportion of the flour consumed in the country.

The figures of the wheat imports show that the British market can absorb all that Canada can produce for an indefinite time. Although Canada is only sixth on the list at present, the wheat acreage of this country is expanding more rapidly than that of other exporting countries, and the next few years will tell a different tale.

TO CHANGE WHEAT GRADE.

At a special sitting of the Manitoba Legislature's committee on agriculture, an important resolution was passed suggesting changes in the grain standards. The resolution reads:

"Resolved, that in view of the representation made to this committee in regard to lowering the present standard of Manitoba wheat, we recommend that the Provincial Legislature memorialize the Federal Government to make such changes in the Manitoba Inspection Act as will describe the various grades of wheat as follows:

"No. 1 extra Manitoba hard wheat shall be sound and well cleaned and weighing not less than 60 pounds to the bushel, and shall be composed of at least 75 per cent. of hard red fife wheat; No. 1 Manitoba hard wheat shall be sound, well cleaned, weighing not less than 60 pounds to the bushel, and shall be composed of not less than 60 per cent. of hard red fife wheat; No. 1 Manitoba northern wheat shall be sound and reasonably clean, of good milling qualities, weighing not less than 58 pounds to the bushel and shall be composed of at least 45 per cent. of hard red fife wheat; No. 2 Manitoba northern wheat shall be reasonably sound and reasonably clean and of good milling qualities and fit for warehousing and weighing not less than 57 pounds per bushel and shall be composed of 35 per cent. of red fife wheat. Any wheat not good enough to be graded as No. 2 northern shall be graded as No. 3 Manitoba northern at the discretion of the inspector; scoured wheat shall be subject to re-inspection."

CEREAL NOTES.

The McCann Milling Company, Toronto, whose buildings were burned down recently, have already started operations on the construction of new buildings, and will spend $250,000 in the work. They will increase the capacity of their mills and elevator to five times that of the old ones, and give employment to as many more men. It is understood that the company will in the near future increase their capital to $500,000, in order to enable them to carry on their business as extensively as the new buildings will permit. The new structures will be on the old site on the Esplanade, and work will begin almost immediately.

The valuable saw and grist mill belonging to John Hannah, of Greenbush, Ont., caught fire on Friday night, the 23rd, and was totally destroyed, with all the machinery and much stock. A stable and granary attached also went up in smoke. There was no insurance.

Another great terminal elevator with capacity of 300,000 bushels will be constructed at Port Arthur this year by the Empire Elevator Company. Barnett & McQueen have the contract.

ROLLED OATS—There has been no change in the prices of rolled oats since last quotations. The market is firm. It is still very hard to get quotations the same from any two or three mills, but those given hereunder are what are asked by the average miller.

HAY—There is no change in the hay situation. Stocks are on the large side, but demands are light. Many farmers have hay to sell, but find very great trouble in disposing of it as nobody seems anxious to buy.

The export market has not changed much since last week. Shipments from this side are falling off somewhat, and stocks on dock at Liverpool are being gradually cleared up. Quotations are 55s. c.i.f.

TORONTO MARKETS.

FLOUR—No great movement is manifest in either the domestic or export market. A fair degree of activity is reported at the mills for local demand, but prices are away down and there is no great disposition to let go holdings; present prices are only made possible by the abnormally high value of offal, which in a measure offsets the loss on flour prices. The expectation is for an upward movement. Recent sales have been shaded on our prices, but not sufficiently to warrant change in official quotations.

GRAIN—The grain market has shown a disposition to more healthy movement. There has been better export inquiry, and some fair sales to the Maritime Provinces, especially in feed oats. Prices of wheat are inclining toward firmness, but no quotable change.

CANADIAN PUFF RICE.

Quite a lot of interest has already been taken in the novel new cereal product, puffed rice. This process changes the little, hard rice grains to delicious cooked puffs. The nutritious value of rice as a food product is so well known that only the length of time it took to prepare it has kept the grain from taking its proper place among our foods. Puffed rice prepared in two minutes is bound to increase the consumption of rice many times. It can be served in many ways, besides making a most tempting, brittle candy.

A large plant has just been built at the Peterboro, Ont., mills of the American Cereal Company, who own the patent on the process and product, and puffing machinery has been installed so that Canadian Puffed Rice is now being offered on the Canadian market. It is put up in packages under the "Quaker" brand, which guarantees the highest quality and absolute purity.

Gendron, Denault & Cie., Sherbrooke, P.Q., have received a large consignment of Japanese starch and will be in position to look after the trade in Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

SEASONABLE ADVICE.

This is undoubtedly a slow season for the grocer, and possibly his inventive ingenuity will have to be brought into prominence to know just how to move trade.

It would be well to try the different plans for creating business, such as special sales, circularizing, advertising slips, etc.

There is positively nothing new coming in, so you will have to fall back upon existing conditions. Continue to advertise fruit as a main line, perhaps making a feature of the fact that while arrivals are becoming fewer "you have plenty."

Keeping fruit advertising prominent does not prevent you from making announcements on staple lines. You can even incorporate both into one good-sized advertisement. But see that seasonable goods get the chief share of prominence.

A REVIEW.

Jennie E. Beaton, of Oshawa, knows how to write "snappy" advertising if the advertisements she sends in for review are representative samples of her work.

The advertisement given on this page is attractive beyond the first degree. While considerable space has apparently been used (and not a great many lines have been advertised) each and every item is "lit up" by a happy phrase that at once convinces.

The other advertisement of Miss Beaton's is headed "Honest Groceries at Honest Prices," and the subsequent "talk" is relative thereto. Three display lines catch the eye, and a detailed list of particulars and prices complete the announcement.

Back of Miss Beaton's advertising there is a desire to get away from the commonplace. In the "Honest" ad. there is a spark of sentiment. In the ad. on this page there is a heart-to-heart atmosphere. In both there is the compelling "we."

USE PRICE CARDS.

There isn't a merchant who will contest this proposition: "Show windows are valuable to attract trade." You display your goods, and if they are attractive you will do some business. How much more you could do with price tickets properly displayed is perhaps a question, but there is no question but what your trade would be increased, and materially.

There are many people who are backward in the matter of pricing goods. They feel some little compunctions against asking questions and then going away without buying. You will find this trait much more highly developed in the man than in the woman. The latter lean a little too much the other way.

If you have a good location there are people passing your store every minute in the business day. The prices plainly shown talk to them as they pass, and they strike home. The average man knows little about bargains. He may think an article looks too high-priced for his pocketbook, but the actual price may be within his reach.

Use the tags and the cards with prices in plain figures throughout your entire establishment, and they will increase your sales. New goods are going on the shelves and tables. Plain marking helps the customer and it helps the salesmen.

Plain marking is taken to mean one price and in this day and age of sharp competition no merchant can afford to play favoritism with his trade. One price is the surest safeguard. If you have sliding scales you run the risk, and a big one at that, of offending your good customers.

Women talk and they gossip on trade matters as well as on social. Overcharge one and let her find it out and your competitor will control her trade hereafter. Use price cards. They may be had cheap. Use home-made cards and learn to make them neat and attractive. If you are a failure at it, your print shop will gladly accept the order, or you can send to the city for samples. Tag everything. If you have not been following this practice, try it and you will find your returns for the next year better by a material percentage.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The fruit situation is, at the present time, considerably lacking in interest owing to a large extent to the between-season character.

The great feature at all points of the Dominion is the remarkably strong manner in which prices have been maintained right along, and continue to show disposition to advance.

Oranges at primal points are soaring right away; they have already made a substantial advance at Montreal, which will probably reflect itself at Toronto and more western points during the coming week. At New York prices have been away up, and recent sales were very firm. There are various causes contributing to this strengthening of the California orange market. The total offerings have been moderate for the season, consisting of some ninety cars. Shipments from the coast have been held up by the heavy rains in the growing districts which prevented picking and packing. Finally the decreased competition of eastern oranges had its effect to stiffen the views of receivers. The actual advance in prices as a result of the week's sales was about 35c. a box over the average of the preceding week, all sizes and grades sharing in the improvement. The season for Florida oranges ended practically last week. Offerings of Porto Rico oranges have been liberal during the week, and met with a good reception.

Supplies of Sicily lemons are increasing and the market is easier.

The fruit is arriving in good condition and quality, these characteristics being more pronounced according to competent authorities and the fruit being more uniform in size than for many years past at this season.

California lemons were in moderate supply, but felt the increasing competition of Sicily and the market is somewhat lower.

California celery is now about finished and no further arrivals are expected. Domestic celery stopped some two or three months ago, but the market has been well supplied by the imported variety.

The export of apples has continued apace and high prices are still ruling at the English ports.

THE PECULIARITY OF THE BANANA PLANT.

The banana plant is not properly a tree at all. It has no woody fiber. It is a large, green, fleshy plant, with big leaves six or eight feet long and sometimes two feet broad. It grows to a height of ten to fourteen feet or even more, according to the variety of plant and the soil and climate.

Each tree produces one bunch of fruit only, which is really the terminal bud of the plant, just like an ear of wheat or barley. It has no branches, and when the fruit is ready, which is twelve or fifteen months from the date of planting, the tree is cut down and done with.

While it is growing up and maturing its fruit is at the same time sending up from its roots other young plants or suckers—perhaps eight or nine of them. Each of these will produce its own bunch in turn, some of them in a couple of months after the parent plant, and there will thus be a regular succession of fruit. Many of these suckers have to be dug up and planted elsewhere, or they would be too thick on the ground.

There is this peculiarity about the banana: You can plant it at any season, and the fruit ripens all the year round. When once a banana field has been planted out, all that is necessary to be done is to keep it clear of weeds and keep thinning out the multiplying suckers.

NIAGARA FRUIT-GROWERS AND THEIR BASKETS.

The fruit and tomato growers of the Niagara peninsula are talking of joining together, with a view to procuring baskets from the United States next Summer. They say they can get baskets laid down at the Bridge at $19.50 per 1,000, including duty and freight, whereas the local basket manufacturers ask $34 per 1,000. The growers say the Ontario basketmakers are in a combine, and if the American baskets are found to be satisfactory they will be bought in preference to the high-priced Canadian article.

FISHING IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The outlook in the fishing industry on the British Columbia coast is at the present time brighter than during any previous year. The salmon fishing, which has made Vancouver and British Columbia famous, is not by any means the only fish taken in large quantities in British Columbia waters and off the coast.

The halibut, that most toothsome of all fish, are very numerous in northern Pacific waters, and the greater part of the catch will be handled this year through the port of Vancouver and by the C.P.R. The halibut fishing fleet operating out of Vancouver this Summer will number about ten steamers and a number of fishing schooners.

The halibut industry on the British Columbia coast will in a very short time be among the principal industries there.

The fish are shipped almost entirely to New York and other eastern American cities where there is at all times a great demand for them.

FRUIT NOTES.

Arrivals of Sicily lemons at New York from November 1, 1905, to March 16, 1906, aggregated 307,900 boxes, compared with 509,275 boxes for the corresponding period last season.

From February 1 to March 16 there were received at New York, according to statistics compiled by the New York Fruit Exchange, 4,379 crates of Havana pineapples, against 12,778 crates for the corresponding period last year.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS.—Business in fruit circles the past week has not been above the average in volume. There has been the usual demand for most lines. California navel oranges have advanced fifty cents and now command $4. It is expected that there will be another advance within the next two weeks. The Liverpool quotations on Valencia oranges have advanced fifty-five cents. Florida grape fruit is obtainable from $6 to $6.50, but the demand is not brisk. Apples are not asked for as often as they should be to ensure good business.

VEGETABLES.—Dealers report very quiet business at present. The demand in all lines is small, despite the fact that it should be large on account of the Lenten season. Cucumbers are selling slowly at $2. Florida tomatoes have declined and now bring $6, but are not asked for as frequently as they might be. Barrel-crates of Florida cabbage have advanced to $5. Brussels sprouts are practically off the market; they may be quoted again around Easter. The new Spring vegetables are still holding back on account of the high prices.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS.—Navel oranges this week are in the peculiar situation of being lower locally, while at the coast there has been an advance of as much as 50c. a box on the choicest grades. Despite promises the icing charges have not gone on yet, but they may be added any time, and with the price advancing at the coast some dealers are looking for a substantial advance next week. Strawberries continue to decline at the even pace of about 10c. a week. Mexican oranges are about over. Grape fruit is scarcer, though some houses still quote as low as last week's prices. Locally there was a flurry in bananas last week because the trust shipped in a dozen carloads here that they didn't know what to do with. Good bananas are known to have been sold as low as 25c. a bunch, but the glut being purely

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

EASTER TRADE IN VIEW.

How about the "Easter" confectionery goods?

Have you yet taken this line in hand? In it there is an opportunity for the progressive grocer which he cannot afford to miss.

Talking to a prominent manufacturer a few days ago on this very subject, he gave expression to some very sweeping assertions about the manner in which the average grocer treated this subject. He said: "The ordinary old-fashioned grocer looks upon 'confectionery' with disdain and does not consider it worth his attention. He will buy a few lines of indifferent chocolate in order to have something to show, but more often to give away to his customers, and then complain that it does not pay.

"If he would put some good lines in stock and abstain from the objectionable 'present' business he would soon discover that there is more in running a confectionery department than in many of his staple lines."

During the conversation the same manufacturer mentioned that out in the Northwest the new grocers were making a great mark of confectionery and were to a large extent becoming the candy distributors for the new provinces, and were making an excellent thing of it.

In the face of such evidence as this there can be no excuse for negligence to take up these goods. A little attention at this very time will be a good beginning; all that is required is to allot a prominent corner in the display window, fit up a few temporary shelves in an attractive manner, such as a pyramid, or, better still, arrange a small table to imitate an Easter morn breakfast table, and on it arrange in dainty style an assortment of the very fine Easter goods which are now on the market. This would serve as a fine beginning for the initiation of an ultimately flourishing department of confectionery.

MONEY IN BISCUITS.

The National Biscuit Co. has filed a statement of its condition on January 31 last, which shows a very satisfactory standing, the increase in assets for the year being $781,561. A comparison with the previous year reveals the fact that there must be "something in biscuits."

In real estate, patents, machinery, etc., the figures for 1906 are $52,357,444 compared to $52,303,938 for the year 1905, showing increase of $53,506.

In merchandise and stock in process, the figures are $3,948,346, compared to $5,115,528 for 1905, a valuable decrease of $1,167,182.

In cash and debts receivable $7,065,905 against $5,170,668 for 1905, showing increase of $1,895,237.

Thus producing the total increase in assets referred to.

The liabilities also show a consequent valuable distribution.

The capital stock stands at $54,040,500, a not insignificant amount.

The accounts payable are reduced by $27,534 when compared to previous year's balance sheet, and bonds and mortgages are reduced some $107,488, thus showing an increased surplus of $916,583.

Altogether the balance sheet is a most satisfactory one, and clearly shows that notwithstanding the enormous competition this company is up against, there is abundance of room for properly utilized capital in biscuit manufacture.

CANADA SALT COMPANY.

The financial statement of the Canadian Salt Company for the year 1905 shows that the net profits amounted to $56,635.36, an increase of $2,882.47 over the preceding year. Of this amount $40,000 was paid in quarterly 2 per cent. dividends, and the balance, less $3,531.14, interest on loan, added to profit and loss, which now amounts to $46,333.16, as compared with $33,228.94 on the 31st Dec., 1904.

THE REAL WAY TO ADVERTISE.

In discussing the great posters in denunciation of Mayor Weaver that "the gang" recently plastered Philadelphia with, an advertising agent said :

"Billboard ads don't pay. Sir Alfred Harmsworth, the young Englishman who, starting out as a poor reporter, now owns something like fifty newspapers, weeklies and magazines, agrees with me in this.

"Sir Alfred probably knows as much about advertising as any man alive, and he told me last Summer that advertisements on barns and fences and walls were worthless. He said :

" 'Several times I advertised the Daily Mail on the hoardings, making the experiment with a considerable amount of expectation, but the result was inevitably a distinct disappointment.

" 'I have tried hoarding advertisements with persistency on several occasions, and I have at length come to the conclusion that it is about as rapid a way of sinking cash without result as one can find. You Americans, who are certainly not behind us in advertising, have practically ceased, I believe, to get publicity in this manner.

" 'The proprietor of one of the largest businesses in the United States told me once that he had come to the conclusion that a highly-colored and attractive poster might fetch country "jays" to a circus, but that the intellectual public was not in the least influenced by hoarding advertising.

" 'All my advertisements now appear in periodicals and newspapers.' "

GOOD BUSINESS DEPORTMENT.

An inspiring series of addresses on business subjects is just now being delivered at the Montreal Y.M.C.A., and many ambitious clerks are taking advantage of the good advice which is there given by some of the leading men of the city.

One of the best of these was a talk delivered recently by Mr. Abner Kingman on the subject of "The Commercial Value of Good Business Deportment."

Mr. Kingman spoke very strongly against the bribe and treating habit, which is now very common in life. An employe who accepts a bribe robs his employer, and the salesman who resorts to the treating habit to secure any part of his custom is a disadvantage rather than a benefit to the house which employs him.

Good business deportment is exemplified by the union of good address, politeness, and unassailable character. It is not always the good appearance of a man that makes him succeed. It is more essential that he be polite and trustworthy. Good business deportment is one of the greatest factors in commercial life.

Governments recognize the enormous advantages accruing from politeness, and in their diplomatic negotiations are careful to employ only those men who have an engaging and polite manner. Some men there are, certainly, who attempt to benefit by their natural advantage in this respect, by working confidence games. These men are to be discouraged, but it must not be supposed that, because this species of grafter is eminently polite, other and well-disposed young men should not be polite also.

COURTESY TO THE TRAVELER

No man ever gained anything by being discourteous to a traveling man. If you are too busy to talk to a traveler when he calls, you can at least treat him courteously.

Some men, though fortunately their number is limited, seem to take delight in making it as hard as possible for the traveling man to sell them his goods. While overlooking the laws of common decency, they also overlook the fact that the traveling man has a great many opportunities to do a favor for his customer and it is but natural to imagine that the ones who get these favors are the men who treat the traveler with the same courtesy that they extend to their customers.

If you are one of the men who gets busy doing up parcels or looking after some small and unimportant details the minute the traveling man comes into your store, stop and ask yourself the question, "Won't it pay me better to give a little more attention to the traveling men in future?"

IDEAS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

RUSSELL SAGE—A GROCER'S BOY.

Russell Sage, the oldest and one of the richest men in Wall street, began life on the farm and business a retail grocer's clerk. He worked on his father's farm till he was sixteen, then went into a grocery store in Troy, N.Y., at $5 a month, and in five years had saved enough to buy out the business. That was in 1837. In 1863 he moved to New York.

"What I have done," he says, others can do. The path to success is thorny, it is true, but any young man who makes up his mind to do it can accumulate money. He must at the start make cast-iron rules; to practise self-denial, regularity and temperance, love for work, a rigid regard for the minutest details of business, and, above all, choose the loss of every dollar rather than a single act of dishonesty.

"Failure is most frequently caused by falling by the wayside. Young men become victims of the desire for immediate pleasure rather than pursue a long and courageous struggle to permanent success.

"My mother taught me the rudiments—reading, writing and spelling. That was the only schooling I ever had.

"If I were broke now I should go to work with the same desire to climb up that I had the first day I ever put my shoulder to the wheel. Just what my first step would be I don't know. That would depend on circumstances. But I am sure that by hard work I could win."

Russell Sage can produce more money of his own at instant call than any other man in America, probably in the world. Five millions within half an hour is not too much.

The man believes in work and abhors idleness.

"Because a man is rich, there is no reason or excuse for his being idle," he says. "A slothful man, be he rich or poor, is not a desirable member of society. He presents a bad example. The rich man is not expected to toil with pick and shovel, but human society places upon him the obligation to give his best thoughts to the use of his wealth, so that his accumulation may be stow good upon others as well as himself."

Mr. Sage made much of his money by buying stocks at a bargain, then by hard work and industry bringing them up to par. Now he wants to bring himself up to par. He is at 89 and wants to reach 100.

"My theory for a long life," he says, "is that temperance lengthens the days of all. Plenty of sleep, and escape from worry as much as possible. Worry and lack of rest break down the strongest men. I get up every morning at 6 o'clock and get to my office at 9. I leave at 5 p.m. I go up to my house and take things easy for the rest of the day."

"Good habits in living result in good health; good health increases a man's ability and gives him zest for industry; and industry, intelligent industry, leads on to prosperity. It is a very simple recipe, but the great majority of men continually ignore what is so plain. It is perfectly obvious that dissolute habits can end in but one thing—failure. Reverses are bound to come at some period of the life of a man of evil ways. A crying sin of today is profligacy. The wasting of money entails a vast amount of suffering for some one, and often leads to actual crime."

Russell Sage wears clothes that the Wall street clerks laugh at; he likes to drive a good horse, and is philanthropic despite a general impression to the contrary, but all his charity is dispensed by Mrs. Sage. Hard work, frugality and system are his watchwords.

HOW THE "NEW GROCER" MADE MONEY.

When a man without business experience of any kind opens a store in a small town, with small capital, works eight years and retires with $50,000 to his credit, it is evident he must have discovered some of the basic principles of money making. Such a man has recently told the story of his success and the lines along which he achieved it.

Worked as Delivery Boy.

When he was twenty-one years old he inherited about $1,500. He had not been fitted for any calling or line of work, but as this money was the sum of his inheritance it was evident that he must fit himself for something, and that speedily. He got work as a delivery boy for a local grocer, worked six months on the wagon and was promoted to an indoor job. Here he had a chance to see something of the executive end of the business—saw the buying from wholesale houses, and got acquainted with the drummers. He worked behind the counter six months, then threw up his position and opened a store of his own.

There were five other grocers in town. They were all dignified; their newspaper advertisements ran along the "we are still in the old location, where we will be pleased to attend to the wants of our patrons" line, so familiar and so meaningless.

The New Grocer.

The "New Grocer"—that was what he called himself—tried to be explicit before being dignified, and usually found that there was not enough space for both qualities. This lack of formality caused adverse criticism, at first—for instance, when he discovered that his walk was wider than the town ordinances demanded, and used the extra space for displaying goods marked with prices and accurate descriptions, some of the artistic descriptions mmmm mm mm mmmmmn spirits were shocked. It was noticeable, however, that this did not prevent their taking advantage of the bargains offered.

Honest, Daring Buyer.

Inside the store the same policy of honest statements and plain price marks was employed. Of course this necessitated selling goods as cheap as his competitors and even a little cheaper, where possible, which made close buying a necessity. But the "New Grocer" was a good buyer without this incentive. Moreover, on occasion he could be a daring buyer, as one incident shows. During the Fall of his first year in business, grapes were scarce and the price was correspondingly high. One day the agent of a commission house called him out of earshot of the clerks and made him an offer on a carload of grapes, the salesman's idea being that the grocer should take the lot at this bargain price and run his own risk of selling some of them to dealers in smaller towns.

Policy With Employes.

Many business men have succeeded as long as they could do their own work, only to lose when they had to employ assistants—for it is not given to every one to get help out of "help." In the "New Grocer's" store was a blackboard on which every night the boss himself wrote out the work to be done on the day following, indicating the part each one was to be responsible for. Each clerk went to his board for orders, and never failed to carry them out thoroughly—never failed but once, at any rate.

The Blackboard.

Among the maxims were these, as copied one day by Paul E. Triem:

"Never send a customer to another store for anything in our line that we are out of. Get it for him. I try to keep the most affable and attractive salespeople in town, but one of unusual ability might get into John Johnson's employment, and the customer you meditate sending there might fall a victim to his blandishments. Keep 'em here—that's what I pay you for."

"Be polite, but don't stop there. Be benevolent—learn to take an interest in the people who come here, and to make sales that will suit them after they've tried the goods. Know what you're selling, and to whom you're selling it."

"Never take anything out of the scales. If you put in too much sugar—which I advise you not to do—leave it there. What goes into the scales belongs to the customer. See that he gets it."

"'All's well that ends well.' Good as far as the label will not do."—J. Bruce Payne.

The day is fast going by when impostor methods can "pass" in cigar-making. And it is the bounden duty of every grocer to see that those days are made to go by as fast as possible.

"Somebody has to pay for everything," is a phrase the significance of which all buyers do not fully realize. Stint in honest tobacco means stint in Grocers' Profits, Smokers' Satisfaction, so "good as far as the label" brings disaster for somebody, doesn't it?

Pebble and Pharaoh

Cigars harmonize with the "all's well that ends well" tune. No "this-will-do" tobacco ever comes near these cigars. They are made by skilled workmen. They are made from personally selected tobacco.

Knowing what my Pebble (5c.) and Pharaoh (10c.) represent, and what some other cigars represent, is it to be wondered at that I expect you grocers to order my Cigars—not the other kind? Am I right in expecting that High Quality, Full Value, Honest Treatment, will receive consideration at your hands? Is it too much to hope for, that if you are selling other cigars, you will, on my word, ask me to send you 1000 of the Pebble and Pharaoh on "take-back-at-the-end-of-three-months-all-unsold-stock" terms.

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR KENT TOBACCO.

From present indications there will be a bumper crop of tobacco raised this year in the district about Chatham. Already there are more than 450 acres being got under way for the growth of the weed, and it is probable that when the tobacco companies get busy many more acres will be contracted for.

Prices this year, though not so good as last, have been satisfactory, and the farmers who suffered by the failure of the Marine City Sugar Co. will likely go in for raising tobacco and the season prove the greatest on record.

PROSPECTS BAD FOR CUBAN LEAF

In all tobacco growing sections, be it in the United States, Cuba or elsewhere, there are certain general conditions which have the same effects on tobacco. Thus excessive rain results in washed out, thin leaf without substance, be it in Ohio, Wisconsin, Cuba or anywhere else. This is what has happened in Cuba, owing to the torrential rain storm of the latter part of December and the beginning of January.

In the Vuelta district it may be taken that the tobacco will be very bad, and there will be very little of it. The small percentage that will come on the market will be thin, poor and devoid of quality and substance. Nevertheless bad as it will be, it will sell for exceedingly high prices. Tobacco is steadily advancing and the poor tobacco of the new crop will bring higher figures than the good tobacco of the old.

With the Partido tobacco, conditions are very much the same. There will probably be more of it, perhaps 60 per cent. of the crop will be saved—but it will be thin and without substance.

As for the semi-Vuelta crop, it is a total failure, as was inevitable from the late planting.

Concerning the Remedios one cannot speak with so much certainty. We cannot yet tell the results of the second planting which took place in the middle of January. Much depends on the quantity of rain that will have fallen before the harvest. Rain is now needed for this tobacco badly. The leaf, however, cannot be a high standard. The Remedios tobacco in order to be suitable for filler for seed and Havana cigars must be heavy bodied. To secure this, cold nights are essential, and there has been practically no cold since the tobacco was planted. Consequently the leaf must be thin, poor and unsuited for the purposes to which it is especially adapted.

TOBACCO CULTURE.

Hon. Nelson Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, is arranging to have experiments carried on this year at the experimental station, Ruthven, Essex county, in tobacco culture. Special attention will be paid to the matter of curing, which is the weak point in the production of manufactured Canadian tobacco, the leaf being all right. Tests of different varieties will be made.

TOBACCO NOTES.

The Dominion Cigar Co., manufacturers, St. Hyacinthe, Que., demand of assignment.

W. J. Herbert, who has been in the employ of the Tuckett Cigar Co. as bookkeeper for the past three years, has left the firm. Mr. Herbert is going into business for himself in New Ontario on the first of April. His many friends will wish him every success in his new undertaking.

An account given by Allic Sylvester, a U. S. tobacco expert, who has recently taken on extensive tour of the tobacco-growing districts in Cuba, agrees with the reports already published and fully confirms the poor prospects of the new crop.

The tobacco crop takes from the soil about 103 pounds of actual potash per acre, which must be replaced or else the yield will fall off in quantity and quality. A good tobacco fertilizer should contain at least ten per cent. of pure potash, and the potash should be in the form of sulphate.

EXTRA FINE SIFTED PEAS, NO. 1

SWEET WRINKLED PEAS, NO. 2

EARLY JUNE PEAS, NO. 3

STANDARD PEAS, NO. 4

We are delighted to know that the Retail Merchants, generally, are pushing the sale of the finer grades, which will mean increased profits and satisfied customers. Our orders through the Wholesale Trade within the past few weeks have been largely for the finer grades of peas, showing that the Retailers and consumers are benefitting by the knowledge of the difference in size and quality.

The brands are, viz :—

Group 1.—"Canada First" (Aylmer), "Little Chief," "Log Cabin," "Horseshoe" (Bowlby), and "Auto" (Canadian Canners.)

Group 2.—"Lynnvalley" (Simcoe), "Maple Leaf" (Delhi), "Kent," "Lion" (Boulter), "Thistle" (Brighton), and "Grand River" (Lalor.)

Group 3.—'Globe" (Schenck), "Jubilee" (Lowrey), "White Rose" (Lakeport), and "Deer" (Saylor.)

"Facts speak louder than words"

Let your customers be the judges ; if they want Black Tea let them have it, Ceylon Black pure and fragrant.

> "Ceylon last year produced the largest crop on record."
> "In Great Britain ... Ceylon Tea ... forced its way into consumption on its merits in face of every obstacle and the usual prejudice against anything new."—INDIAN PLANTING AND GARDENING, Feb. 24, 1906.

It is an indisputable fact, published by disinterested parties that Ceylon Tea returns for the year 1905 were 23½ millions of lbs. in advance of the year 1902.

Thirty years ago tea production was little known in Ceylon, in fact was in its infancy. Last year it produced the not insignificant amount of upwards of 172,629,960 lbs.

Why this progress ?

That's the all-important question—Other teas were on the market long before Ceylon Tea was thought of, and had every opportunity to "take hold" before Ceylon was marketed.

It's the old and oft-repeated story, quality wins, and wins every time.

Ceylon Tea—Green and Black.

The Salt that Saves Money and Time for You

"Time is money"—save time then, and you save money too. Waste no time and you waste no money. Is it really worth while to spend useless energy in an endeavor to push inferior articles of trade? We think not.

Windsor Salt is the standard because so often used for comparison—you hear "as pure as Windsor Salt" used everywhere to-day. You don't have to argue with a customer over its merits—its quality is too well known. It's pure white, dry, crystalline. It is nothing but salt.

You lose more than we do by not stocking up with it—lose time, lose money, lose trade.

Gentlemen,—Having used your Monthly Account System of book-keeping in our general store business for our first year in business, we are well pleased, and can't speak too highly of it. We bought our outfit through your Toronto Office, February 9, 1905, and have had several business men of the village come in to see it, but not with the intention of ever selling them an outfit until last week we heard of our shoe man taking in a partner in his business, and got talking of book-keeping, and have since been able to take their order and another from our hardware merchant. You will please find enclosed on separate sheets the orders.

AS OTHERS SEE US

A Chat with Our Subscribers.

"It is not often we can spare the time to rest from our labor, and, leaning on our staff, let our thoughts run in upon ourselves and our own affairs. We must confess, however, that there is a measure of satisfaction in doing so, and a spirit of contentment possesses us at the remembrance that our efforts are appreciated, and that some of those whom we seek to serve have spared a few of their valuable moments to write and tell us so.

We have set ourselves to serve others—and incidentally to serve ourselves—and it is certainly a pleasant task. The employe who finds himself called aside to receive the congratulations of an appreciative employer, can scarcely feel more gratified than does The Canadian Grocer at the many expressions which have reached the office, and in thanking our numerous friends we will produce a few of the remarks for the benefit of our readers.

This From an Old Subscriber.

Berlin, Ont.

"Having been a subscriber to The Canadian Grocer quite a number of years, think it not out of place to acknowledge our appreciation, and the paper is always read with a great deal of interest. May state the article on 'Cocoa, its History and Cultivation,' under date of January 5, 1906, was certainly very interesting.

"Will you some time in the near future give us an article on the cultivation and preparation of tapioca and sago; seems quite a controversy as to the production of the above named."

Question for Inquiry Column.

Guelph, Ont.

"Would you kindly inform me through your valuable paper, The Canadian Grocer, whether you reckon the percentage of gain on the cost price or selling price?"

A Reader in Japan.

Yokohama.

"I have much pleasure in reading The Grocer and the other trade publications issued by the same company. They come to hand regularly and are much appreciated."

Praises from California.

San Francisco.

"Yours of the 10th reached me a day or two ago and also the copy of your issue of 9th. Permit me to congratulate you upon your paper—it is certainly a good one. Permit me to assure you that my praise is sincere and not actuated by any desire to 'pat you upon the back.'"

England Interested.

Bristol, England.

"The attached cutting from the Western Daily Press (in which an editorial in The Canadian Grocer was reprinted), though the heading may be a little misleading, will show that The Grocer contains matter of interest to people on this side."

Marquis Doria Impressed.

Marquis Doria, emissary of the Italian Government, who is at present in Canada in an effort to interest the Canadian Government in a direct steamship line to that country, secured copies of the Canadian trade newspapers as one of the first steps towards an important work of this kind. Speaking to a representative of The MacLean Publishing Co. subsequently Marquis Doria said: "I was astonished to find in Canada publications so large and dealing with their respective subjects in such a particular way as your Canadian Grocer and Dry Goods Review."

What Our Advertisers Say.

Peterboro, Ont.

"A tangible result of our advertising in The Canadian Grocer is the establishment of the Canada Flakes' agency in England.

"Sutcliffe & Bingham, of Manchester, saw our ad. in the Export Number and took the initial steps to secure control of the sale of Canada Flakes for Great Britain. Correspondence led to a number of cablegrams and finally a personal interview which consummated an agreement.

"The result proclaims the value of your publication as an advertising medium.

"The Peterboro Cereal Co., Limited."

You may depend upon it that the man who pays his good money for advertising space in a trade newspaper has something to sell worth your attention. He probably employs no "expert writer," and may not be over clever at advertisement writing himself. His copy, therefore, may not be dressed in seductive form, yet he has "something worth while," something it is to your interest to know about. If he had not, you can rest assured he would not part with good money for valuable space. There are firms running their advertisements in The Canadian Grocer week by week, and who are constantly offering live bargains. Let them realize that you, as a grocer, are alive and interested, and it will help complete their education in real advertising. When in the market, call and tell them that you watch their advertisements and appreciate their information. Continually keep your eyes open for those advertisements which have something to say, something to sell—something you can make money on.

THE MILAN EXHIBITION.

A well known Montreal manufacturer has been appointed honorary representative of the Canadian Government to the Milan exhibition, Italy, which is to open on April 18 and close on October 13. This gentleman is C. H. Catelli, president of the Chambre de Commerce of Montreal. Mr. Catelli, who is a native of Milan, has long been connected with the trade of Montreal and Canada generally as a manufacturer of macaroni and vermicelli. Mr. Catelli is very enthusiastic over the approaching exhibition, which is to be opened by the King of Italy himself. Speaking to a representative of The Canadian Grocer, Mr. Catelli said:

"There are great possibilities for trade between Canada and Italy. There are many products which Italy is at present importing from different countries which could be largely obtained from Canada. Take wheat, for instance, what a large quantity Italy imports from Russia and other countries. It would be easy to arrange for a great part of this wheat to be bought from Canada. Of course they do not know the quality of our Canadian wheat, say that which is known as Manitoba No. 1 hard. As many of our products as possible will be exhibited at the approaching exhibition, and I am sure that the result will be very much increased trade between the two countries.

"Another line in which trade might be developed is cattle. Beef in Italy is worth about twenty cents a pound today. This price might be reduced in the course of time were cattle exported from Canada to Italy. These are only examples of what branches of trade might be developed. Apples and other fruits are also possibilities. Canadian fruits are very highly prized in Italy. Last year Italy imported about 4,000,000 tons of coal; why should not Canada receive a portion of this business? Lumber is required also, and this is another field for Canadians. The steamship line between Canada and Italy which is talked of would doubtless be a fine thing for both countries, but to be successful it would be necessary that trade in all possible lines should be developed. I believe that Italy would be quite willing to trade in these different lines if satisfactory shipping arrangements were completed," said Mr. Catelli, concluding, "for there are certainly many Italian products which could be profitably exchanged for Canadian goods."

WHOLESALE GROCERS' ANNUAL MEETING.

The Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild will hold its annual meeting in the Board of Trade Building, Montreal, on Thursday, April 19. The meeting will no doubt be a very large one, as the guild has a membership of one hundred and fifty. Delegates will attend the meeting from every part of Canada—Vancouver, Victoria, Halifax, St. John, Ottawa, and other centres. Col. J. I. Davidson, of Toronto, is president of the guild.

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

AN INTERIOR DISPLAY.

The accompanying illustration is that of a store interior at Sarnia, of which S. E. Cornell is proprietor. The arrangements are characterized by that neatness and order which is fast gaining ground and which is a great factor in economising labor.

The show case in the immediate foreground of the picture is one of those attractions which no store should be without. It forms one of the best possible displays for certain kinds of goods, keeping them in excellent condition and providing at the same time an elegant addition to the appearance of the store.

For an ordinary store in which expensive fixtures are out of the question, no better arrangement of fittings can be had than that shown in the illustration, of classified shelving behind the counter. Not only does it keep everything close to hand, but the amount of a particular line in stock can be checked at a glance.

The putting of the refrigerator at the extreme rear of the store is also an excellent idea; it carries the whole of the provision lines to one place and minimizes the liklihood of their aroma mixing with other lines, an important feature in a general store.

One feature which strikes the eye is the amount of room before the counter; this is often overlooked, sometimes, of course, of necessity, but wherever possible in the arrangement of a store ample space should be left for the buying public; it greatly conduces to ease and comfort of doing business.

A good deal of care and thought has evidently been spent on this particular store, and will give ample suggestions to those of our readers who are contemplating refitting their store.

WINDOW DISPLAY AS AN ATTRACTION.

Mr. John Wanamaker, speaking on the subject of window displays, said:

"A store without a displayed show window is like a ship without sails, for these exhibits are the features which distinguish one business from another; they also show many of the specialties of one's business, and when arranged attractively give tone and strength to the line of goods they represent. They are advertisements as to quality and style, and the crowds who view them are sure to be influenced to a certain extent thereby. A display of pictures, bric-a-brac, or groceries, is sure to suggest some article wanted or a pleasure gratified. Unless seen in the window this might not have been possible. It matters little what branch of business is represented, the general effect is the same in all. As for the intrinsic value of window exhibits I am not prepared to say, but it would seem as if in some instances substantial benefits must result. I can see no reason, however, why window exhibits should not be of much value to the grocers; they also have the means wherewith to make effective and attractive displays."

THE IMPORTANCE OF A SHOW WINDOW.

There is no better paying investment or advertisement for the grocer than a good window display. It has all other methods beaten one hundred different ways. It has been hard work, and it has only been by constantly hammering away on this one subject that a good many grocers have been brought to see the value of window dressing.

Move Into Line.

There are, however, still a number of doubters to be seen on almost every street or avenue in almost every city you visit, and good grocers at that. Enterprising grocers, shrewd in buying and in the conducting of their business, have been successful, yet don't or won't realize the benefits to be derived from a well kept window. They still cling to the old-time canned goods display to attract customers to their store, forgetting or else being ignorant of the fact that they have dozens of other articles in stock which would make a far better and attractive display than canned goods.

Keep Constantly Changed.

Pull out the old canned goods, or at least the greater part of them, and put in their place some fancy bottled goods, intermingled with fruits and fancy package goods. Change them around, say once a week, alter the design, and you will find that instead of the customers whose trade you are seeking passing by your store, in many instances will stop and admire your display, which means that half the battle of winning new trade has been accomplished.

An interesting interior store display—S. E. Cornell, Sarnia, Ontario.

FIRST SEALER ARRIVES AT ST. JOHN'S

Latest information from St. John's, Nfld., states that the first sealing steamer of the season has arrived in port and the reports she brings with her augur well for the Spring trade of the colony. The name of the first arrival is the "Bloodhound." Her crew report that all of the sealing steamers with the exception of four of the smaller boats, did well, all of them being well loaded. The shortage in the four smaller boats will not materially effect the season's catch. Business men in St. John's are quite satisfied with the catch reported, which is said to be very large, and look forward to big Spring business in consequence. The crew of the "Bloodhound" say that the Virginia Lake has 18,000 seals.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

EASTER TRADE.

Easter season is at hand and it would be well for grocers to take advantage of this opportunity to cultivate specialty advertising.

There is no adequate reason why confectionery should be given such scant attention in the retailer's announcements.

You carry high-grade biscuits—advertise them. You have a supply of —— chocolates—state that fact in the paper.

Your candy trade is perhaps flat. Now is the time to give it publicity.

If you can handle cake orders for parties, etc., that is surely a good point to make known.

Then if coffee and tea are to be advertised strongly, why not a portion of an ad devoted to cocoa ?

Easter season presents the progressive grocer with a chance to be original in his advertising. How many will come out with confectionery ?

Advertisements of T. A. Rowat & Co., London, Ont., were reviewed in The Grocer November 24, 1905, but another set of specimens have come in and because of their peculiar relationship to the spirit of this department comment is pertinent.

As you are well aware, the editor of "Good Advertising," especially of late, has been putting great stress on the necessity for seasonable advertising.

By seasonableness is meant not only advertising goods in season (for the majority of grocers appreciate the value of doing this), but driving home seasonable hints, etc.

Rowat's ads are the concrete fulfillment of this policy. They fit the niche exactly.

A quotation from R. J. Donaghy's letter explains itself. Speaking of T. A. Rowat & Co.'s business he says : "We have a very large sale for pure maple sugar and syrup, which we attribute to handling a pure article and persistently advertising it in its season."

Then, again : "A splendid scheme in marmalade season is to run special orange sales for one or two days at a time, also the giving of a recipe for marmalade with each sale."

As a series Rowat's ads promulgate the doctrine "time is money." They show that some clerks keep their eye on this page and weigh well what it advocates.

The sentence structure of Rowat's ads is an improvement over the last specimens. The reproduction of a coffee ad next week will demonstrate this fact.

TREATMENT FOR ABSENT CUSTOMERS.

Once upon a time, when the world was young and grass grew upon the mountain tops, it was customary for the women of the house in charge of the culinary department to take their little baskets and walk to the grocery store for the purpose of laying in the necessary supplies for the day.

They poked about in the store, bought this or that, selected what was needed, and some things that were not, and knew what the grocer had to sell about as well as did the grocer himself. It was up to the grocer to present his wares in the most attractive way, and depend upon that to sell good-sized bills.

But with the invention of the order man and the cheap telephone, conditions changed. The grocery business became more and more a case of absent treatment, in which it was the duty of the grocer to sell goods at long range to customers who seldom found it necessary to enter his doors.

This is the day when the grocer can win trade by the skill of his absent treatment. He must devote a good share of his energy to the task of helping customers buy things which they don't see, and consequently won't think about unless these things are called to their attention.

It is the day of the order man and the telephone. In the average grocery store to-day, it is likely that about fifty per cent. of the orders come in through the order men, and twenty-five per cent. by telephone. To the task of handling this large portion of his trade, the grocer must assign his ablest helpers.

It does not pay to hire a cheap boy to take orders or to answer a telephone. Whenever possible, in the medium-sized store, the proprietor himself should answer telephone calls. It pleases the woman at the other end of the line to know that she is talking straight to headquarters. The order man, or men, must have a good fund of knowledge and horse sense, must possess tact and must be obliging. The grocer can afford to pay well for good order men, for on them depends the success of modern merchandising by the absent treatment.

GOOD CLERKS.

A cheap clerk will cost more money in the long run and make half as much profit for a merchant as a higher priced clerk.

A well paid man loves his employer and watches his employer's interests and saves his employer's profits.

A cheap clerk does neither and because of his enforced poverty, he sometimes becomes dishonest. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and the "higher" it is the more worthy he is.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT

By Howard R. Wellington.

A RETAIL MERCHANT'S ACCOUNT.

The object of the suggestions outlined and the methods described in these articles is to give the small retailer assistance in keeping a record of his business transactions in the simplest way possible, without involving too much work for himself or his assistant. In almost every business there are a comparatively large number of "credit sales," and the recording of these sales forms the principal part of the retailer's bookkeeping. No one system could be outlined which would answer all requirements, but no doubt some suggestions of practical and "workable" methods will lead to the adoption of some labor-saving ideas.

The question constantly before the merchant should be, "Is it possible to record these transactions in a shorter and more effective manner?" For instance, in the case of using the duplicate sales slip, the goods are fully described on the ticket handed to the customer when purchasing the goods, the items are then copied into a day book from the duplicate copy, from the day book in detail to the customer's account in the ledger, and, later, when a statement is demanded, the items are carefully copied for the fourth time on the customer's statement. Think of the work involved! Do you wonder that the poor retailer has no time to arrange for the settlement of his accounts and save his cash discounts?

Another important matter to be considered when the adoption of a system presents itself is the expense involved in working it out, and the danger of having too much system, entailing a large amount of unnecessary labor with no better results than would be produced by a simpler method.

Opening of a Set of Books.

The first step to be taken in opening a set of books is to ascertain the value of the investment. Stock should actually be taken at cost, the amount of accounts receivable and accounts payable ascertained, the amount due in bills receivable and bills payable, a value placed on the premises in which business is carried on (if owned by the storekeeper), also the amount represented in rigs, horses, harness, office fixtures, store fittings and equipment of this nature, the value of fuel on hand, a record of insurance prepaid or due, also of taxes and other rates; the amount of mortgages on property or chattels recorded, and, lastly, the most important of all the assets, the amount of cash on hand in bank.

With these particulars we will suppose that Mr. J. M. Russell is either commencing business or wishes to open a set of books by double entry, which will enable him to keep a simple record of all the transactions which take place in the ordinary course of his daily business.

IDEAS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

THE ONLY DICE THAT WIN.

By Arthur Brisbane in New York American.

So many people have a secret leaning towards speculation ; are dazzled every day by the sight of a few men made immensely rich by chance ; and lose sight of the many, many more thousands who have made not only nothing, but who have lost all they had.

As you look at the shower of gold in the world it all seems like a gamble, like a game of chance. You do not think of the days and nights of work and toil that went to the gathering up of all this wealth. You see only the gold, the money in rivers and streams. But there is only one road to success in life—the road of industry, energy, thrift.

Industry, energy, thrift. These are the only dice that win.

The lesson is hard to learn for the young. It seems so easy to throw the five little cubes out of the box, so much easier to get the coin without working. The finish is always as in the picture above. You become an old man, with trembling limbs and white hair, without friends, without resources, without hope.

Nature teaches that comfort and success in this life is due to thrift ; that the days when nature was bountiful and showered its riches on us with open hands and asked little exertion from us in return have passed away forever.

Sometimes it may seem, when you hear that stocks have gone up, that men have bought them cheap and sold them dear, as though they were the way to fortune. Then you rush in by the thousand, and behold ! you are the victims of the get-rich-quick swindlers.

There is no such thing as an honest gambler.

Every gamble is a dishonest scheme. You seek to get the other man's money without giving him anything in return.

You are not entitled to one penny in this world unless you have given value in return. If you are in business you know that every promissory note, to be valid, must bear on its face the two words, "value received."

You must give to get.

There is an old-fashioned book, not much read nowadays, Smiles' "Self Help." It points the road to success, to comfort, although if its maxims were too carefully followed by everyone this would indeed become a sordid world.

Everyone cannot become rich. Do not think that industry, energy, thrift, and all the other wise maxims of themselves will bring you fortune. If that were true and everybody in the world hoarded their earnings and denied themselves not only luxuries, but necessities, this, indeed, would be a miserable world, and its progress would be at an end.

But energy, industry and thrift can bring you something better than wealth or fortune. They bring success.

Learn what real success is.

Success is not the mere piling up of riches. Real success is the development of yourself, of your life, of all that is best in you. It means the development of every side of your being.

Success means character.

Success is character. Success means growth along right lines. It is the building up of your intelligence, of your reverence for all that is good and true, the cultivation of your mind, the surrounding of yourself with a real home, with happy wife, and smiling children.

There is no home, no life, no success for the gambler.

Even though he is not a professional, even though he only devotes some of his time, some of his earnings, in worship at the altar of Chance, that partial gambler is a total failure.

He has anxious days and feverish nights who risks what should be devoted to the nobler ends of life, to making himself complete ; who throws it on the green cloth, who watches the snake-like tape coming from the "ticker," who gazes at a bunch of horses running round a ring.

Give it all up !

Give yourself an object in life. Read books, learn what great men have done. Learn even what has been done by men who never became great. There is none of us, however poorly equipped by nature, who cannot make his life all a success. It does not need the intellect of a Napoleon or the persistent energy of an Edison to have real success.

IMPORTANCE OF PROMPTNESS.

From New York Commercial.

A young man who is working for a large retail store went one day to the man at the head of his department and said : "Would you mind letting me know why I don't get on as fast as some of the men in the establishment ? Is it because I have less aptitude ?"

"Your time card will give the reason," answered the questioned man. "Instead of coming a few minutes late two or three mornings a week come fifteen minutes ahead of time and stand waiting to begin work."

Every capable business man places a high value on promptness to do the thing just on time or a little ahead of time, but never just a little after time. And well he may, for "Habit is second nature or ten times nature." And it does not take a man long to acquire the habit of delaying his work. The man who is lax with his work usually has a shambling walk, a drawling manner, while the man who is prompt goes about his business as if he had a purpose in life. A well known New York broker was waiting for his train one night, when a man stepped up to him and queried : "Aren't you Mr. S. of Portchester ?"

"I am he," came the modest answer.

"Well, I'm not surprised," was the comment. "I've heard my friend speak of you as a great broker and wondered if it is largely a matter of luck. But if you're as prompt in handling people's affairs as you are in meeting your train every day it's not to be wondered that your customers place confidence in you."

Said a successful business man the other day : "Do you want to know why I increase my business each year and my friend across the way is glad to make ends meet ? I'll explain in a nutshell. I'm prompt and he isn't. I'm down at this desk before my manager comes to consult me. I never start a day's work without planning, and the only way to plan is to begin promptly. I've been in our friend's office many a time and what do I find there ? He's usually hunting for something among the rubbish in his desk, where there are bushels of letters and papers piled up. Yet he always is hurrying, pushing and driving his employes, telling them that everything is behind and urging them to get through with more work. Everything is in confusion, and why ? Just because the man at the helm delays, he is not prompt. I'm always calm and cool. It does not matter how hard business is pressing, because I give myself time to find out what I've got to do, and then I go ahead and do it."

The man who delays always is working and never finds time for recreation. A young man who works for his father said one day : "It's strange I'm working all day and I don't find time for pleasure."

"That's because you're not prompt," the father answered. "You think you're working when you're pulling yourself together to begin."

Men of affairs arrange their work so as to enjoy recreation every day, be it automobiling, yachting, golf or hunting. There are plenty of energetic men who begin their day's work with a long walk or ride. One energetic man is up and dressed at 5 o'clock to enjoy an hour each day with his horse before reaching his place of business. As he puts it : "My mornings belong to my horse and my evenings to my family."

DWIGHT L. MOODY.

Dwight L. Moody was a shoe clerk before he was an evangelist and he was as good a seller as he was a soul saver. Beginning in Boston, he removed to Chicago, where he worked for a big firm and sold more shoes than any other clerk in the store. It was a jobbing as well as a retail business and Moody was advanced to the position of adjuster. He made as good a collector as he had a salesman.

There's no moral to this, except that energy and application are good in any line of work.

It sometimes happens that in getting out of a rut a man finds himself in a hole.

TORONTO PURE FOOD EXHIBITION

Under the Auspices of the Grocers' Section of the R M A.

The Pure Food Show now in progress deserves public and trade support. It has not reached the zenith of pure food show possibility, but it is a move in the right direction; it is an educator, and education is undoubtedly the panacea for social and economic ills. To undertake such a show bespeaks a vast store of energy and a good deal of courage. Grocers, especially good ones, are busy men, and Messrs. Geo. Good, M. Moyer, and F. C. Higgins are deserving of all the encouragement the trade can spare in their enterprise. It is not suggested that they are simon pure philanthropists. Samuel Smiles' "Self Help" is more to their purpose; but that's why they have succeeded. They have assembled in the big hall scores of food producers whose business it is to interest the public in their wares; they have provided abundant musical entertainment for their patrons, and better yet, they have provided a series of very interesting lectures on foods and food preparation by the ablest Government experts. The grocer within reach who does not patronize the show is unworthy his position as a purveyor of the food stuffs of the people.

In a town that has to whoop it up every year for the Canadian National Exhibition, as Toronto has, it is pretty hard to grow enthusiastic over a facsimile in miniature of a small section of the Canadian National Exhibition even if it is labeled "Pure Food Show." But it is a perfectly legitimate enterprise for the gentlemen who are managing it, and if the springs of enthusiasm have been exhausted, that's no fault of the show. Many people have gone and learned a lot, and if they didn't learn more it was their own fault. The fact that in addition to a better insight into food stuffs they gathered some information about toilet soaps, stoves, electric fixtures, palmistry, woodenware, loose leaf account books, musical instruments, egg carriers, sewing machines, mattresses, dressmaking, stove polish, and cash registers will do them no harm.

The Scope of It.

There are altogether seventy booths, and most of them are occupied. It was stated by one of the managers that 500 people were engaged in the various booths. The programme, without giving the names of the speakers, gives the following list of subjects upon which lectures are to be given: Vinegar and its use as a food, spices, flour and bread, all kinds of cereals, lard and substances used for shortening, honey and maple syrup, fruit and all its preparations, butter, cheese and milk, coffee, tea, chocolate, the different values of the different things we eat.

The show is housed in Massey Hall and occupies the ground floor of the main auditorium, from which the seats have been removed, and the basement. On the main floor are forty booths, arranged to form a maze and encourage the impression of largeness. Much care has been given by the exhibitors to the decoration of their stalls and the arrangement of the exhibits, and there isn't an unattractive one in the lot.

Things to be Seen.

Entering by the east door the visitor comes first upon the booth of the Canada Maple Exchange with a fine display of the sweets of Canada's national tree. Todhunter & Mitchell, the spice and coffee firm, are located at the opposite corner overlooking the inner circle of the show. Theirs is the class of goods oftenest adulterated and their display of the various grades of absolutely pure gingers, peppers and other spices is interesting and instructive. The name and fame of this firm of spice millers is sufficient guarantee that the commodities shown are the real thing.

There's no missing the Egg-o-See booth across the way. Its characteristic packages are arranged to catch the eye and when people see their breakfast staring them in the face they can't resist the temptation to say a word to the pretty girl in charge.

At the opposite corner of the same section Minto Bros. are located with an enticing display of Melagama tea, one of the choicest growths of famed Ceylon.

Not Much Demonstration.

Being a pure food show, one is struck by the lack of demonstration. It is merely "taste and know," or just "Here we are, look at us." The Quaker molasses candy man has improved on that and from his point of vantage shows the process of manufacture, and being the only candy booth in the show drives a thriving trade besides. On either hand is a condensed milk display, the one Borden's, the other Truro. Condensed milk is getting a footing for domestic consumption, and a great many people listen to the explanations of the attendants with interest. The other occupant of this section is Lamont, Corliss & Co., of Montreal.

From Sunny Ceylon.

Getting round to the south-east corner one meets a display of red roses and a delicious odor of the beverage that cheers, and they indicate the Red Rose tea booth. Here again it is drink and be convinced that "Red Rose tea is good tea." Judging by the stack of orders filed the argument went down with a good many.

Across the aisle T. A. Lytle & Co. display attractively an assortment of vinegars, pickles and relishes. In this line Canadians are beginning, because of the efforts of such firms as this, to appreciate the domestic product.

Always at a Food Show.

Next door is a salt exhibition by the Toronto Salt Works. The staple is shown in all its forms. Farther on is MacLaren's Imperial Cheese. One knows it must be somewhere in the show, because wherever pure food stuffs are gathered together there is MacLaren's Imperial in the midst of them. "Gum by the ton" might be the label of the booth opposite. It is the display of the American Chicle Co., the largest producers of gum in the world. On the same thoroughfare is an attractive display of Kkovah jellies.

On the opposite side of the room the virtues and delicacy of Shredded Wheat Biscuits are set forth. Grimm & Co. have another attractive and seasonable display of maple syrup and sugar and the Imperial Extract Co. make an array of flavoring essences that exhausts the list in that line.

The adjacent section includes a booth where Lowney's cocoa is dispensed to win custom on its excellence, Norka, the delicious, tempts the seeker after breakfast food to forsake his present fad and next door G. F. Sutton, Sons & Co., of London, England, offer for the delectation of the tired palate a large assortment of their high-class pickles and such delicacies.

In the Lower Regions.

Below stairs appurtenances rather than food stuffs predominate. Of these woodenware is prominent and the display of the Taylor-Scott Broom Co. deserves to be studied by every grocer as an excellent illustration of tasteful and attractive display of these important lines. United Factories, Limited, also make a fine display. The National Cash Register is displayed as a necessary equipment in every progressive grocery plant. The side shows are here, too, and consist of a gipsy palm-reading layout and a moving picture entertainment. Some of this is funny if not edifying, but one number on the programme, a murder, robbery, pursuit and lynching in a western mining town is not a desirable kind of entertainment, especially for women and children.

The Entertainment.

A story of the show would be incomplete without mention of the musical entertainment provided. On the main floor the Cleveland Ladies' Orchestra performs hourly, and below stairs the Lyra Ladies' Orchestra and Band furnishes a continuous programme with a Punch and Judy show interspersed. On Saturday last, afternoon and evening, the premier attraction, Sousa's Band, induced an attendance that taxed the capacity of the show. Occasionally Mary Florence Stevens, H. Ruthven McDonald, H. G. Morris, C. L. Abbott, Bennett, vocalists, added to the interest of the musical entertainment. The show will continue to April 14.

PACKING CO. TO REORGANIZE.

A report is current that the Petrolia Packing Company is to be reorganized. It is said that promises have been made by English capitalists to support the scheme provided local financiers will take the matter in hand. The whole business of the old company will be offered for sale shortly, and will form the title to the new purchasers.

RETAIL GROCERS IN CONVENTION.

Fifteen out of the five thousand retailers of groceries in Ontario met in the lecture room of the Pure Food Show, Toronto, on Tuesday morning and opened the second provincial retail grocers' convention. In the afternoon the attendance increased to the maximum, thirty-four. But it is usually few who do the work of reform and improvement while the many who reap the benefits sit idly by or perhaps find fault.

The attendance, however, was not a response to a general invitation to the grocers of the province. Technically it was termed the Provincial Committee of the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association, and every grocers' section throughout the province was entitled to representation. Seventeen responded.

There were two features to the convention, the addresses of Dr. Anthony McGill, analyst of the pure food branch of the Department of Inland Revenue, and the discussion of the relations of wholesaler and retailer with a view to defining the advantageous line of cleavage. To facilitate the latter consideration a deputation representing the Wholesale Grocers' Guild, T. Kinnear, the Ontario president, H. C. Beckett, Hamilton, and F. M. Sloan, met a committee of the convention Tuesday evening in the rooms of the Retail Merchants' Association, Richmond street.

F. C. Higgins, Toronto, presided over the convention and in opening the proceedings paid special attention to the question of the wholesaler cutting in on the retailer's ground.

In the States, he told them, this marauding tendency of the wholesaler has been dealt with in two ways, in Philadelphia, for example, by co-operative buying, utilizing a $150,000 warehouse with a $300,000 stock, and in California by mutual arrangement recognizing and conserving a legitimate field for both sections of the trade. One or other method had to be adopted here.

"The situation in Toronto is one of chaos," pursued the speaker. "The retailers are not going to stand idly by and see their trade taken away by the men they are supporting. Heretofore we lacked that united action and force that would accomplish anything."

Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, continued the chairman, should join in adopting the price contract plan of distributing goods. That was the solution of the whole difficulty. Thereby the manufacturer would fix the price his goods were to be sold at to the consumer. He read a letter from Mr. Newbury, a Californian with 14 large retail groceries, to the Armours pointing out that it was a shame that retailers had to handle the output of any manufacturer at less than the cost of doing business because a few pirates wished to cut for advertising purposes. He stated that retailers naturally pushed other lines to the detriment of Armour's.

Three Resolutions.

When Mr. Higgins called for resolutions on any subject the delegates might desire to bring to the attention of the convention it was evident no one had been losing sleep over matters relating to "the good of the order." None of the delegates seemed to have anything on their minds, so Secretary Trowern submitted the three following:

"(1) That it is the opinion of the retail grocers of the Province of Ontario that the time has arrived when the three classes, the manufacturers, the wholesalers and retailers, must be defined and each take their own and their exclusive place in the distribution of merchandise in the grocery line.

Co-Operation of Interests.

"(2) That it is the opinion of the retail grocers of the Province of Ontario that much good can be accomplished by co-operation of the three interests, the manufacturers, the wholesalers and the retailers, and that we believe that the present Criminal Code, which prohibits the three classes from entering into any fair agreement between one another and which allows the laboring classes and their employers to enter into agreements, is unfair and that we do all in our power to assist the Dominion association to have the present criminal law amended.

Boycott Price-Cutters.

"(3) That it be an instruction from this meeting to all of our members throughout the Province of Ontario and a recommendation to the other provincial grocers' committees in Canada that when the goods of any manufacturer are sold in the stores of price-cutters, and when those manufacturers have been notified to that effect and requested to have the practice stopped and they take no notice of the same, that we notify our members of this condition and that they do not make any further purchases of those goods."

Retailer Should Guarantee Goods.

Discussion of the resolutions was reserved, and Dr. Anthony McGill, of the Dominion Inland Revenue Department, present as a lecturer in connection with the Pure Food Show, said a few words. Besides being a necessary medium of distribution between the manufacturer and the consumer the retailer should, the doctor contended, be a guarantor of the goods he handles. The number of men who took that conscious view of their work was increasing. He and a friend in the Washington service had been trying for years to direct domestic tests for the purity of food stuffs. But aside from tests when an article was put on the market much cheaper than standard goods, merchants should be suspicious and get a test made.

"The grocer does not realize his importance in the community," asserted Mr. Higgins. "To be a grocer is not anything to be ashamed of, and if we know our business and are conducting it on right lines we should hold our heads high in the community, because we stand between the unscrupulous manufacturer and the consumer."

Just Wholesale and Retail.

After luncheon the first of the resolutions was discussed a little, but the delegates were not very spontaneous with ideas on the subject. Mr. Ellis, of Ottawa, thought it should deal only with the wholesalers and retailers, leaving the sphere of the manufacturers for arrangement between themselves and the wholesalers. That found favor with the convention and with that change the resolution was adopted.

It was announced that Thos. Kinnear, president of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, had expressed a desire that a deputation of the wholesalers be permitted to address the convention. It was decided to meet them that evening and to make sure of an attendance a committee was named for the purpose, including the chairman, Messrs. Ellis, Ottawa; Cornell, Peterboro; McMurtry, Bowmanville; Darnley, Preston; Haddy, Bowmanville; Ford, Ottawa; Mills, Sarnia; Erskin, Atwood; Earls, Lucknow; Engel, Hanover; Mundy, Bracebridge; Moyer, Walker, Giles and Bond, Toronto.

Reasons for Food Inspection.

Then Dr. McGill was heard and sketched hurriedly but very interestingly the history of the governmental supervision of food products. But first he submitted five reasons for such supervision: 1. The great importance of the question because good digestion was the foundation of national progress. 2. To distinguish between sound and unsound foods required expert knowledge and tests the individual was not in a position to make. 3. The health of the poorer classes dependent on cheaper foods was just as important as that of the wealthy. 4. Knowledge of the quality of an article offered for food should precede consumption. 5. There is a very rapidly increasing manufacture on a large scale of food that used to be made at home.

Difficulty of Definitions.

One great difficulty in the way of enforcement has been to determine the chemical standards of many foods. Milk from the cow may vary in its percentage of butter fat from 6 to 2½ per cent. So with the percentage of gluten in flour. The question has been settled in regard to a great many substances by specific acts of Parliament and for six or seven years a committee of which Dr. McGill is a member has been working at Washington formulating definitions.

Within a few decades science has placed at the disposal of manufacturers many substances for adulteration, such as glucose, cottonseed oil, the coal tar dyes and chemical preservatives.

Grocer Should Know.

The grocer should assume responsibility for the genuineness of the articles he sells, and to that end should inform himself on the subject. Tests will be made upon request by the Government for a charge of not more than $5. A grocer should be suspicious of low-priced goods, and for his own reputation it is worth while getting an analysis of doubtful articles. It has been found in Massachusetts that the publication of the results of analyses is a more powerful deterrent against adulteration than the exaction of penalties.

With the Wholesalers.

While the conference with the wholesalers in the evening may have been merely a diplomatic exchange of courtesies, the two parties found themselves on surprisingly similar grounds in regard to the questions at issue and if the views there expressed find a hearty endorsation in the wholesalers' guild and the retailers of the province, the end of price-cutting, except by the so-called "pirates" in the grocery trade is in sight.

MERCHANT AS PUBLICIST.

New York telephone users are saving $1,525,000 annually because the Merchants' Association took up the question of rates and after a thorough investigation made an agreement with the company to reduce rates. That was only one of a hundred things the Merchants' Association of New York did last year.

Every business man in Canada should know about that association and its work. The year book just published, an artistic brochure of forty pages, and the membership list, elegant in every typographical detail, is a revelation of what can be attempted and done in regard to matters of public policy by organized business effort. The subjects dealt with last year are too numerous to mention here in detail, but here is the classification of the year book: Public utilities, franchises, domestic commerce, foreign and colonial relations, water supply and insurance, municipal finance, business law, taxation, judicial administration, city transportation, streets and pavements, over-charges by hack drivers, and various subjects.

The association arranged with the railways for special rates to New York for out-of-town merchants during the two buying seasons and 7,000 merchants took advantage of them, including many who had not been accustomed to make purchases in that market.

The association had on January 1 a membership of 1,059, an increase of 330 during the year. The expenses for the year totalled $53,890. They employ a staff of experts. They have a secretary, business manager, editor and statistician and legal counsel. The association work is carried on largely by special committees appointed for the purpose.

Of course such an organization requires a New York to back it; but the work it does for New York, the business men of every town in Canada might be doing locally through the boards of trade.

A BILL TO BE KILLED.

Every retail grocer in Ontario should send a letter or post card to his representative in the Legislature asking him to oppose Mr. Downey's bill to amend the Pharmacy Act. The purpose of the bill is to prohibit dealing in drugs by a joint stock company unless every member of the company is a qualified druggist. At present every such company must employ qualified chemists to dispense drugs and poisons. That is for the protection of the public. This act of Mr. Downey's is for the protection of the druggists, simply to prohibit competition and enable a privileged few to perpetuate a system that has given rise to the saying, "As dear as doctor's stuff."

The next move will be to prohibit anyone but druggists from selling proprietary medicines. There would be quite as much justification for it as for this bill of Mr. Downey's. Class legislation to benefit the few at the expense of the many is not in the public interest and aside altogether from their own interests, which are next in line of attack, retailers should do what they can to oppose this iniquitous bill.

COURTESY DEMANDED.

Recently a valued reader of this paper asked us why we didn't teach some lessons in courtesy to bookkeepers and other subordinate officers of wholesale firms. It had been his experience that these persons were in several instances abusing their authority and behaving in a careless and discourteous manner to customers. We wonder if this will not account for breaks which have occurred in the relationships between some jobbers and their old customers—breaks for which the former have long sought to discover the cause.

If we are to believe our correspondent there is a great deal of discourtesy evinced in letters coming from certain Canadian wholesale houses. Simple questions are answered curtly or not at all; when explanations are requested why such and such a thing was not done, the reply comes couched in autocratic terms. Of course these letters were not written by the principals, nor were they dictated by salesmen. Certainly the travelers had nothing to do with them. They must have come from employes not directly connected with the sales department. Perhaps if their authors realized how they were undoing the hard work of salesmen and travelers, they would not allow their impatience and their superior airs to express themselves in their correspondence.

A CUSTOMER WAS LOST.

There was a mad commercial traveler in a provincial town the other day; not a candidate for a straight jacket. His mind was sound enough, but he was mad clear through. He was saying things, too, but the young man he was praying for was safely and probably comfortably ensconced behind a ledger in the big wholesale house the traveler represented.

After a good deal of painstaking effort the salesman had made a customer of a man with a considerable trade in the town where he was. This was his next trip, and he had approached his new patron with a very kindly feeling. He met with a marked lack of cordiality and the statement that the merchant did not care to continue business relations with his firm.

The customer had written to the firm and had received a discourteous reply from the gentleman behind the ledger.

Courtesy is so cheap a commodity that many young men, and a few older ones, disregard it. They couldn't make a greater mistake. An engineer might as well try to run new machinery without oil. A florist might as well attempt to grow roses without sunshine.

Discourtesy as a response to impertinence is not justifiable, but to be discourteous when one is asked to grant a favor is a crime against one's better self.

There is a saying by a very ancient gentleman that might support the natural kindliness of some young men of business if they would bear it in mind: "No man can do me an injury because no man can make me misbehave myself."

A STRONG CHEESE SITUATION.

The present situation of the cheese market is an extraordinary strong one, and the prospects for the coming season are very encouraging. The demand for Canadian cheese on the English market is most encouraging. Buyers there are discriminating in its favor in a most decided manner. It is very evident that the opportunity for Canadian dairy industries was never more promising, and it is greatly to be hoped that the industries themselves will be equal to the occasion, and set themselves to meet every demand, especially that of quality.

ITALY AS A MARKET FOR CANADIAN PRODUCTS

Few people in Canada realize what a change has come over Italy in the last few years. Most of us know that country from our ancient histories and from the hard working, but ignorant and excitable navvies who build our railways and work on our big contracts.

From a number of small kingdoms, Italy has developed into a strong united nation, apparently determined to get and hold a leading place in the commercial world. They are now endeavoring to open new channels for trade by the appointment of commercial agents.

Some time ago the arrival of Marquis Doria, who was sent to Canada to see whether trade between this country and Italy could not be developed, was recorded in these columns. During the last few weeks the marquis has seen many Canadians—leading representatives of the political and commercial life of the country—and has opened our eyes to the possibilities for a really valuable exchange of products and has suggested the advisability of the encouragement of a direct steamship line between Mediterranean ports and Canada.

It would open a most valuable part of Europe for Canadian trade. Such a line would be of much more importance to Canada than even our Australian, Mexican or South African routes, because we could place our farm products and many of our manufactures in a short time right among an immense consuming population. Such a line would open a market for Canadian shippers and importers, a district not now touched by Canada at all, Southern France, Switzerland, Northern Italy and Austria, and all these countries are just beginning to take an interest in Canada. Switzerland has been importing cattle from Canada and one Canadian cattle exporter has informed us that he could guarantee 500 head of cattle a month for the Swiss trade alone. Switzerland has of late years been importing on an average about 44,000 head of cattle per annum. Argentine Republic is trying to get that trade.

Austrian and Italian manufacturers, particularly the former, have awakened to the opportunities of the Canadian market given them over their rivals in Germany, who are handicapped by a surtax, and during the last two years there has been a very large increase in the shipment of Austrian goods to this country.

Perhaps the most important development from such a line would be to get us a class of emigrant we unfortunately have had very few of in this country. Natives of Northern Italy are nearly all successful farmers, nearly 2,000,000 of them having settled in Argentina, and are competing strongly with Canada in the European markets for farm products. They are an intelligent class of farmers and 90 per cent. of them can read and write and have a fairly good education. They are industrious, economical and good citizens.

If Canada is to take advantage of trade opportunities with Italy and other countries on the Mediterranean, it is imperatively necessary that a line of steamers should run regularly between this country and ports on that sea. There are no less than 14 lines of steamers running between Italian ports and the United States, while between South American ports and Italy there are five lines.

It is obviously time, therefore, that Canada made some effort to inaugurate a direct service. Besides attracting trade a direct line of steamers to a Canadian port would naturally be used by travelers and immigrants from Italy who were desirous of reaching the Western States.

Italy is a country which, while producing a great many things that this country requires, is also a large importing country. She imports about $12,000,000 worth of machinery, to say nothing of about 5,000 tons of agricultural implements, from plows to reapers. The imports of lumber aggregate about $13,000,000; of coal, 5,000,000 tons; of wood pulp, 30,000 tons. Large quantities of dried fish are also imported by Italy, so that in this article of merchandise alone a direct line of steamships would prove beneficial to a staple Canadian industry which is not at the present time in a flourishing condition. Another Canadian industry which would be benefited by a direct line would be the wheat industry. Italy imports on an average of about 30,000,000 bushels per annum. Last year she imported over 40,000,000 bushels.

Our trade with France would also naturally be benefited by a line of steamships such as that advocated, for it would doubtless touch at French ports in the Mediterranean as well as at Italian ports, and as every business man is aware, many of the French products which are well known in this country are produced in Southern France

Canada is likely to have a creditable display of her products at the Milan exhibition which is to be opened about the end of April. If this exhibition is followed up by the inauguration of a steamship line between Italy and Canada, as well as by other businesslike efforts, this country should benefit a great deal from the exhibition. Otherwise, whatever benefit the exhibition might be to Canadian products is likely to be greatly minimized.

AN ENTERPRISING FIRM.

Connors Bros., Limited, of Black's Harbour, N.B., are sending out advice of the purchase of the plant of the Beaver Harbour Trading Co. By this purchase they secure one of the largest factories on the Bay of Fundy.

It is situated on the beautiful Harbour of Beaver, which is the home of a large number of industrious fishermen, and fish are received at the factory every day, and prepared at once for canning purposes.

At Black's Harbour, Connors Bros. control three large factories, which they have equipped with modern machinery, and have been kept going to their full capacity in order to supply the demands of a rapidly growing trade.

Fish (as in Beaver Harbour) are prepared the same day as caught.

Notwithstanding the keenest competition in price, etc., this firm, by their close attention to business, promptness and square dealings with customers, and by keeping up the quality of the pack of Brunswick Sea Foods (of which we understand they guarantee every tin they pack) have won the confidence of the trade and built up a business that they are to be congratulated on.

Their goods are sold over North America and West Indies, but the largest portion is sold in Canada. They cater only to the wholesale trade.

Connors Bros. invite all their friends and customers to visit their plants, either at Black's or Beaver Harbour, where they will be shown through the works and in every way accorded respectful treatment."

DOES NOT INTERFERE.

The newspaper reports of the recent fire at the F. W. Fearman Co.'s factory at Hamilton are greatly exaggerated. In reply to inquiries of The Canadian Grocer the company state:

"Editor Canadian Grocer:—

"Gentlemen: With regard to the fire in our plant Saturday afternoon we are pleased to say that it will not interfere with our business in any way. We started in at once to repair and rebuild. We are in a position to fill all orders as usual.

"Yours truly,

"F. W. FEARMAN CO., LTD."

THE SPANIARD ON THE WAR PATH.

The enterprising Spaniard who has been writing seductive letters to business men all over Canada is as versatile as he is persistent. The following letter reproduced with original spelling received by Mr. McIntosh of P. McIntosh & Sons, cereal millers, Toronto, is without doubt a very artistic production and to the uninitiated might have proved a tempting bait. But as there was no female relative by the name of Mary in the McIntosh family and as another Toronto gentleman received a letter, with the exception of the names, identical with this one, all the ingenuity displayed came to nought. If the letter writer should turn his talents towards the production of melodramas or historical novels he might be able to earn a semi-honest living.

Castle Fort of Barracar, 27, 5, 1905.

Dear Sir and Relative—Having not the honor to know you, but for the references which my dead wife, Mary MacIntosh, your relative gave me, who mentioning the individuals of our family, praised the honest and good qualities that distinguish you, I address myself you for the first time, and perhaps the last one considering the grave state of my health, explaining you my sad position and requesting your protection for my only daughter 15 years old, that I keep as a pensioner in the College of Ste. Elena.

Being a secretary and treasurer of Mr. Martinez Campos in the last war of Cuba and deserving the confidence of such an illustrious gentleman, placing my capital in public funds transactions, so that I might make a brilliant position for my daughter whom I love with passion since when her mother died, now my fortune increase fast, have been happy had my protector continued at the end of the campaign, as no sooner was replaced by the General Weyler that my misfortune presented itself, as I could not succeed in making him company to Spain, and not being in my power to see Cuba republic but as we were victims of the greatest treason I was obliged to emigrate in English ground taking along with me my money valued to £29,000, twenty and nine thousand pounds, after having resided some time in London I received the sad news my wife had died leaving my dear daughter in despair and without help, in this sad situation I found myself in the necessity of coming to Spain to help my daughter and bring her in my company to your country.

Before starting considering as important to take along with me this respectable sum of money I decided to place it in a good bank, in London (that you only will know if you accept my proposal) against a special private contract and only as a deposit, as it appears in the security document payable to the bearer, that the Bank gave me a guarantee, which document I hidden in a concealed hollow of my portmanteau very well made, which the most keenest eyes cannot find out. When very satisfied that the money was in security I started for Spain to help my daughter, when I was discovered by the military authorities, brought immediately before the Goberment Militar of Caragena and condemned to 18 years penal servitude destined to undergo my condemn at this Castle, where I bitterly suffer, deprived of all communication from outside. When I was sentenced my equipage and the portmanteau have been confiscated, this embargo was made as a guarantee for the payment of the costs of my process, but paying the costs of this embargo will be raised, I am only visited by the chaplain of the Castle, who beside being my confessor is my best friend, thanks to him, that seeing my grave state of health I can write you this letter. As I am strictly watched for my politics enemies, you do not reveal to nobody the most insignificant detail of my secrecy. I trust in your discretion and induces me the noble wish pretending your protection for my daughter who perhaps I may no be able to see her again.

If you are disposed to be the protector of my daughter I will to call on a notary to make my last will, appoint you her guardian, I shall manage to send the respectable chaplain with my dear daughter to your house also the equipage, we will act then accordingly for getting my capital, will be granted to my daughter Julia, in my testament, and a part besides for you and your family as a justly reward.

As it is prohibited to me to receive any direct public correspondence, I entreat you in that case you accept the guardianship, I expect your promptly reply by cable to the address of the servant of my protector the chaplain, writing only in the cable the name of the town and your surname (Herewith enough to know your help) makes not your reply by letter by cause easy to understand and in the last term for my broken state of health. If by chance, and in the unexpected case, you were helpless to practise the guardianship of my daughter, it is my desire that your relation more near take the charge of the tutelage, in this case, say me the name and surname of your successor in your cablegram, to execute my last will.

I trust in your discretion the future of my daughter, meantime I remain yours faithfully and relative,

Estanislas Cortina.

TIME TO DISPLAY BROOMS AND BRUSHES.

About woodenware, do you handle it? You do. Then are you making out of it all you can? Just what profit it is paying you is a matter of accounting with which we're not concerned here, except to say every business should include such a system of account-keeping that each department will show its own gains or losses. The question now is: Are you presenting woodenware in a manner to attract attention and increase sales? Some people object to arm-chair suggestions about business, but every newspaper is supposed to do some thinking for its subscribers.

If you have not given this subject special attention it's pretty good betting you have these things distributed all over the store—tubs in the back shop, pails stocked in a dark corner, boot brushes in a drawer, scrub brushes in a soap box under the counter, brooms behind the refrigerator, and the whisks hung up somewhere as fly catchers. That's not the way it is done in the big departmental stores. They pay money, and a lot of it, too, for system, and send men long distances just to see things. There isn't a merchant in Canada that hasn't been through one of those systemized general stores, and every one that had his wits about him saw that all the things we class generally as woodenware, and articles akin, were assembled to make up a department.

But it isn't enough to get them together. If a man had the finest line of woodenware in the world, and stocked it in a heap in a corner, it would dry up and blow away before anyone would buy. Some time ago a big Montreal wholesale firm was burned out badly—the place was a wreck. Prior to that it had been the custom of the underwriters to take what they could get for the stock damaged but not totally destroyed. This time an American firm who made a specialty of it were brought in to dispose of the salvage. They took a vacant building and occupied some time arranging the goods. When they were ready to sell they invited the members of the burned-out firm to an inspection, and to say they were surprised doesn't express their feeling at all; they were astounded at the transformation effected. Of course the sale was a success, and the sum realized was far in excess of what had been supposed possible. It was all because study and care was given to the appearance of the stock.

In the window of a big marble-fronted Toronto hardware and furnishing store there is a board about 18 by 24 inches, covered with a dark red material, and on it is a display of brushes that would attract attention anywhere, and they are just ordinary brushes: it's the grouping that tells. If the same brushes were heaped in a corner they would never be noticed.

This is the time of the year when the housecleaning cloud is a spot on the domestic horizon, that people need and get to thinking about certain lines, and in a way all lines of woodenware. Why not clear out a space and make a woodenware section? It need not be large. It is not so much a question of space as of arrangement. Make it look as if you had some ideas about taste and display, whether you have or not, and it will attract attention. Even if you didn't sell a clothespin more it would be worth while for the good impression it would make on your customers, and especially the stranger within the gates.

Mr. Higgins nicely introduced the subject matter of the conference and called upon Mr. Kinnear, who told the retailers he had grown up from their ranks and would like to see a more brotherly feeling existing between retailers and wholesalers. He suggested that they more frequently invite the wholesalers to meet with them. He referred to the Hamilton proceedings against the guild and declared that all the wholesalers wanted was a living profit. The total trade last year was done at something like one per cent. less than running expenses. "You don't want us to live on porridge," he protested.

End of all Desire.

Mr. Beckett, whose enthusiasm for organization is excelled only by his ability in advocating the cause, made the retailers feel that the millennium was just over the hill and a very modest effort would land the grocery trade well within the limits. He deprecated the lack of co-operation between the wholesale and retail organizations. In Hamilton he advocated the retailers attending the guild meetings. If the convention would appoint a committee the Dominion guild to meet in Montreal on the 19th would appoint another to meet them. It cost the wholesaler 7½ per cent. to do business and 60 per cent. of his turn-over was done on a margin of 5 per cent., 2½ per cent. less than the cost of doing business. Why should a retail merchant be working on a margin of 20 to 25 per cent. when the cost of doing business was 20 to 22 per cent. ? And there were manufacturers who had the gall to ask them to handle their goods on a margin of 10 per cent.

Not Married, a Grocer.

Mr. Sloan responded briefly and happily to the call for a speech. He very greatly appreciated being present, but pretended knowledge of nothing but the small profits of the wholesale trade. Brokers came to him every day with new lines they wanted him to handle. "Take some home to your wife," they would say.

He would just look at them and in a little while they would say "Of course you're married aren't you ?" He would tell them, "No, I'm not married ; I'm just a grocer."

Get Together.

It was agreed to co-operate with the Dominion guild in securing an amendment to the Criminal Code to permit of legitimate trade organizations and agreements.

Wednesday morning the convention assembled in the association board room and after hearing the report of the conference with wholesalers adopted resolutions two and three.

The selling by wholesalers to hotels, boarding houses and public institutions was discussed and the following resolution by Mr. Ford, Ottawa, and Mr. Darnley, Preston, was adopted :

"That it is the opinion of this meeting that it is injurious to the retail trade of the province to have wholesale dealers or semi-jobbers sell to hotels, boarding houses, public institutions, steamboats, etc., and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild."

Discussion of the peddlers' and hawkers' bill occupied some time, the question whether or not farmers should be prevented from peddling stuff they had produced themselves. It was decided on a close vote to make the bill apply to the farmers also. The delegates then waited on the Government to urge the adoption of the bill.

A PURE FOOD EXHIBIT.

In the pure food show held at S. Carsley & Co.'s, Montreal, recently, there was one exhibit of great interest. This was that of the St. Charles Condensing Co., Limited, Ingersoll, for which company S. H. Ewing & Sons are Montreal agents. The effect, which was an exceptionally pleasing one, was designed and erected by W. H. Halford, representing S. H. Ewing & Sons, and C. H. Cowles, Canadian traveling representative, and during the time of the exhibition was well managed and looked after, Mr. Halford, particularly, being most assiduous in his work to display and serve the St. Charles Company's products to best advantage. Most satisfactory business is reported through the display, a cut of which we publish herewith.

St. Charles Condensing Co.'s Exhibit at Montreal Pure Food Show.

Mr. E. L. Millward has been succeeded by Roelofson & Roelofson, 152 Bay street, Toronto, as the agents for Sutcliffe & Bingham, Kkovah products. They have the exclusive agency for Ontario.

SMART BAG CO. APPOINTMENT.

In a recent issue we had a notice of the organization of the Smart Bag Company. The new company will operate the factories at Toronto and Winnipeg and will establish a plant in Montreal as well. F. Judd Kennedy, for twelve years with the John Dick Company, will be manager of the Toronto end of the business.

Holbrooks Limited are putting on the Canadian market a line of pickles and also one of malt vinegar suitable for the Canadian trade.

Mr. J. H. Bradwell, Montreal representative of Sutcliffe & Bingham, is spending a few days in Toronto.

ABBREVIATED MARKET NOTES FOR CURRENT WEEK.

MONTREAL.

Almonds—Advanced 1c. in shell and 1½c. shelled.
Maple Products—Advances in new syrup.

GROCERIES—Business in grocery circles is reported as being very quiet this week. It is rather surprising in a way, the season being so near the end of Lent and Easter, but when the condition of country roads is taken into consideration, the quiet which prevails is in a measure explained. Collections have not been so good as they might have been, but everything considered they have been fairly satisfactory. Most of the orders being placed by retailers at present are rather small, the goods bought being ordered only in such quantities as are needed for immediate consumption. A survey of the grocery markets in general does not show many changes since last week. A little excitement was caused in the dried fruits by a report from Spain and France to the effect that the crops of almonds and filberts had been seriously injured by frost. In teas there seems to be a firmer feeling for all good lines. Sugar is just about the same as it was last week, the demand being very good. City business in sugar is better than that being transacted in the country owing to the bad country roads. A report from the Barbadoes says that the crop there of molasses is about three-fourths sold. Canned goods are rather quiet and no changes are noticeable on the list. Coffee and spices are being sold in nice quantities. New stock is beginning to arrive in maple syrup and prices have advanced slightly. Other grocery lines are rather quiet.

CANNED GOODS—There is very little of interest to report in canned goods. Wholesalers say that business is almost nil in most lines. Tomatoes are still selling at $1.20, and of course there is the usual good demand there always is when a shortage prevails. In corn and peas there is very little business being transacted. Canned fruits are not active. Gallon apples are still on the market and do not show any change. This applies to all canned goods.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS—Molasses in local markets is reported as being firm and active, the demand being good. A cable from the Barbadoes reports the crop as being three-quarters sold. Dealers cannot yet tell whether or not there will be any changes in advance in prices and will not know until it is found what proportion of Muscovado molasses there is in the remainder of the crop.

TEA—Japans are moving better this week. Those Japans which have been held since last season especially are becoming pretty well cleared up. In China greens, Ping Suey gunpowders are getting cleared up. They are not in such large supply as they have been recently. Young Hysons are quiet. Ceylon greens are held very firm and few Ceylon importing houses have any stock to speak of, so that it is necessary to place orders in Ceylon for import. A few lots of Ceylon green gunpowders have been placed on the market recently and have taken well. Not every house has this line. The tea is small of leaf and well made. It is intended to take the place of China gunpowders. Ceylon blacks are firmer. In fact good teas generally are firmer.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Owing to the report which has reached here to the effect that serious damage has been done to the almond and filbert crops in Spain and France, quite a little excitement has prevailed in the dried fruits market. Almonds have advanced one cent a pound in shell, and shelled have gone up one and a half cents, being sold now for 24½c. Filberts in stock here are still selling at the old prices, but new stock will have to be sold about half a cent higher. Other lines of nuts are about the same as usual. The outlook for raisins at present is very good. A Montreal jobber complained this week that there are some old stock prunes of unknown age being offered to retail merchants at present at a very low figure. The standard packers, however, are not selling these nor handling them, in fact, at any price.

SPICES—An all round better market is expected in the near future, but at present there is not much business in spices. Jamaica gingers are still going up, although the prices here are not yet affected. Pepper and spices are firmer in the primary markets. RICE AND TAPIOCA—Wholesalers do not find any better demand for tapioca this week than there has been since the price went up to the present figure. Some houses are placing orders in Singapore for April and May delivery. They are paying 4¾c. These shipments will not arrive here before July or August. At that time the market may become a little easier, and possibly there will be a decline in prices.

EVAPORATED APPLES—There is no change since last week. The demand is not very great at present, as it never is at this time of year. Stocks, however, are pretty well cleaned up. Prices average 12½c.

FISH—Owing to the recent mild weather the demand for fish has fallen off considerably. The season for frozen fish is nearly over now, but dealers expect a very fair demand for the remainder of the Lenten season. Several lines of fresh stock are beginning to arrive, and these replace the frozen fish even at higher prices. No fresh salmon has yet arrived from British Columbia owing to the scarcity, so that the demand for frozen stock is still good. Fresh halibut are arriving freely and are offered at reasonable prices. Fresh haddock, steak cod, and dore, or pickerel, are also being received. In smoked fish, fresh cured haddock is arriving freely and there is no demand for frozen fish even at low prices. The demand for salt fish has fallen off perceptibly and in prepared fish the demand is only fair.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, April 5, 1906.

BUTTER—Stocks rapidly being cleaned up. Quotations for choicest new creamery range from 23 to 23½c.

CHEESE—Little change. Few small lots new make fodder cheese selling at 12 to 12¼c. in country.

EGGS—Market firm. Receipts light and demand good. Prices from 17 to 17½c.

Ontario Markets.

ABBREVIATED MARKET NOTES FOR CURRENT WEEK.

TORONTO.

Tomatoes—Advanced to $1.30
Mackerel—Scotch, added at $1.41.

GROCERIES.

The general outlook is good. On the street trade has been fairly active. Some good lines of teas have changed hands, and inquiry for quality is most noticeable. The firmness of canned goods is also remarked. Tomatoes have made another advance, and other lines are showing signs of being depleted. The demand for coffee is improving. Foreign dried fruits are firming up, and almonds have made a jump of 2c. per lb. Tapioca is interesting. For a long time it has been steadily advancing, but for some reason, probably in view of prospective new crops, it is now showing a slight weakening. Honey is firm and commanding slightly higher figures.

CANNED GOODS—The situation in canned goods is a very strong one generally. Demand continues good, and stocks in several lines are getting low. Tomatoes have made a further advance and are now quoted at one price, $1.30; gallons at $3.75. Scotch mackerel is now on the market at $1.45.

The remainder of canned goods prices continue same as last week's quotations, except tomatoes, which have advanced 10c.

SUGAR—The local market shows no particular development, trade is fairly good, and a better feeling exists, but no great animation manifest. The position of foreign raws is somewhat weakening. Willett & Gray, in their report, state that: "For the first time since the upward swing of the market set in at 3.42c. per lb. for 96 deg. centrifugals which carried prices up last week to 3.56c. on the spot and 3.61c. for shipment, we have to report a retrograde movement in raw sugars, quotations for the week showing a decline of .06c. to .11c. from the high point. Exactly what is causing this recession is difficult to say, particularly as Cuba centrifugals are still .24c. per lb. below the parity of beet sugar.

"The reaction, however, has extended to the European markets, which are now quoted at 8s. 4½d for prompt and 8s. 6¼d for August beet, or 1½d to 2¼d below the highest recent quotations.

"Cuba holders may be influenced to sell by seeing their weekly crop receipts increasing and closing the gap which recently existed.

"Europe, also, which evidently advanced on pessimistic cables of Cuban fall shorts, finds reason for less strength in the late weekly figures.

"The Cuba mills are quite sure of having eight good grinding weeks up to June 1, in which it is quite probable that the crop will show conclusive evidence of reaching the last season's figures, and if the weather in June and July holds propitious the excess above last year may become quite noticeable. It is always well to bear in mind that there is plenty of cane in the fields and the amount of it to be used in present crop is only a question of weather and labor.

"If beet sowings are to be regulated in any way by the probable outturn of the Cuba crop they should be considerably reduced this season.

"Another reason for such reduction in sowings is found in the fact that we are to have in this country seven newly completed beet sugar factories at work this year, and the indications are that the beet acreage of the United States in 1906 will be increased to an extent sufficient to carry the production of domestic beet sugar for the first time above the production of cane sugar in Louisiana.

"These are all points for careful consideration in estimating the question of supply and demand of sugar in the world, which must regulate the price therefor.

"In refined, trade buyers generally having recently covered their wants for 30 days ahead, under the usual contracts, the demand fell off sharply.

"Withdrawals continued to be made in satisfactory volume, until all dealers, both wholesalers and retailers, became well stocked, and now the daily quantities called for are much reduced.

"List prices remain unchanged, basis of granulated at 4.60c. less 1 per cent. cash, and maintained by all refiners, except the Federal, who are allowing a concession of 10 points.

"Buyers are now waiting for the actual consumption of the supplies on hand, and, also watching the movement in raw sugars, the tone of the market at the close being rather easier."

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—The local market is steady, with fair demand in these lines, but no special feature. Reports from New York say that supplies of the New Orleans grades are limited both on spot and in the south, and, although the demand is not particularly brisk at the moment, holders are not disposed to make any concessions in prices. This is especially true with regard to blackstrap, which is very firmly held, with Philadelphia a buyer in this market. The foreign grades are offered in a limited way and are well taken care of at firm prices.

TEA—A better demand for tea is reported, especially good Japan, on the domestic market, and prices are well maintained. The London market is in rather an anxious state on account of the abundance of supplies sent forward from primal points. This must inevitably bring down values if continued. In Indian, notwithstanding the risk that is being run by pressing forward supplies largely in excess of current requirements, the market has again exhibited a fairly strong demand for all good and useful liquoring kinds. Common teas have remained about steady, but the slightly advancing tendency in these sorts which has been noticeable during the last week or two has in a measure been checked.

Ceylons continue in good demand, and helped by a slight improvement in the quality, rates have shown an advancing tendency, and the average price is now 3-4d per lb. above what it was a month ago. There is a fairly satisfactory demand which has favorably affected the price of many whole leaf parcels from 6d to 8d per lb.

COFFEE—Domestic demand for coffee appears to be gradually but surely increasing, and better grades are getting attention. There is, however, at the present moment no new feature locally. Willett & Gray, in their most recent report, give some interesting remarks, which we quote; they say: "Nine months of the crop having passed, the receipts continue to prove that the current crop, so far, is smaller than last year and fully two million bags below the positive estimates of a year ago. In view of this outturn, the large and prominent Brizilian firms, who do the principal business with this country, are very careful not to name figures for the next crop, recognizing their inability to even approximately do so, the outturn during the past ten years having been millions out of the way each year. European speculators, however, are naming extreme figures with the same assurance as if such estimates had been correct in the past instead of continually wrong. Their desire is, if possible, to have the trade ignore the fact that consumption is largely ahead of production and to replace it by predictions of an abundance in the future. To have an intelligent trade accept any such advice is rather taking its mental capacity to be below the normal, especially when the experienced leaders of the first houses in Brazil recognize and express the absolute impossibility of correctly forecasting the crop. The trade correctly assumes that the forcing of speculative estimates upon them from unknown channels, not recognized as authorities, in most cases the sender in Brazil being annoymous, is not for the purpose of aiding the owners of coffee in this country, but rather to try to induce them to sell for the purpose of enabling a large short interest in Europe to cover."

"There can be no doubt of a large short interest for May. It is true that the stock of coffee here in New York is still large, but the majority is in the hands of a few large houses, and unless they desire to deliver, it would not be so easy for the European shorts to cover at a low price—and the pressure exercised lately is largely in view of this May interest. The statistical figures for the 1st April will probably prove a reduction in the visible supply of the world in excess of two million bags compared with the same date last year."

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — The great feature of the week is the sudden advance on primal markets of almonds to the equivalent of 2c. per lb. and the domestic market has moved in sympathy. Currants are also firming up. The definite results of the new bank arrangements, however, are not yet known; a great deal will depend upon what will happen to the bank accumulations. Prunes are firmer by about 1-2c.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, April 4, 1906.

The tone of the Maritime grocery markets is steady. There is not much doing at the present time, business being about up to the usual average for the season of the year. The market is well supplied with all lines, no shortage being reported, with the exception of good Jamaica oranges. The market was cleaned up of this brand of oranges early in the week, and the arrival of the steamer from the West Indies has been anxiously awaited. Dealers say the demand for Jamacias is very great, the people here preferring them to the other brands, even the navels. There is no shortage of the latter brand, or the Floridas, both of which are of fine quality. The former retail here at 60c. per dozen. Bananas are also very scarce, but with the arrival of the steamer now due the market will be replenished.

APPLES—Good apples are becoming very scarce on this market. The few dealers who have some in stock are very independent, and only let their best customers have them. Even the best of these apples must be classed as poor, and what is considered a fabulous price is asked for them. The principal demand is for Spies, and those offering, which are classed as No. 1's, are no better than good 2's. The apple grower should grow rich quick on the prices quoted. $4.50 and $5 for fruit on the home market is considered here to be out of reason. Still people who have money, and want the fruit, will pay any price for it. The Russets are of very poor quality, but the Ben Davis are good. The latter brand only comes on the market when all the others are cleared up. The demand for them is slight, as the apple looks far better than it really is. Some of the farmers in the Valley still have some small quantities of apples on hand, and it is expected that they will be marketed for the Easter trade if they receive the price they are asking. Evaporated apples are in good demand. The price is firm at former quotation.

PROVISIONS—Markets are exceedingly firm, and the tendency is upward. Pork has taken an upward bound, the recent advances totalling $2, while lard has gone up 1c. per pound. No Canadian lard has been on this market for months, and American leaf lard is still being used. Lard landed here at the present time costs about 11¾c. per pound, while American fat pork landed in store here, duty paid, costs $20.50 per barrel. The advance in beef has also been correspondingly large, amounting to about 75c. per barrel, and it is expected that the price will go still higher.

GROCERIES—The sugar market is steady, there being no change since last report. The demand is light. There is a feeling in the market here that the price will advance, though the increase may not be very great. Rice is also strong, and a further advance would not surprise the trade in view of the demand for shipment to the famine-stricken districts in Japan. Rice is now jobbing here at 3¼ to 3½c. Raisins and currants also promise firmer prices.

BUTTER AND EGGS.—The receipts of both butter and eggs are improving. During the week quite a lot of small tubs of fresh-made butter were marketed, and producers found no difficulty in disposing of their stock. The butter is of good quality and sold from 24 to 25c. per pound. Creamery continues to come in in good supply, and also fresh rolls. The latter sell very slowly on this market unless the quality is something extra. The increased receipts have not caused the price to recede any.

The egg situation remains about the same. There has been a slight increase in the receipts of fresh-laid stock, which is jobbing from 17 to 19c. The demand is good. An effort is being made by some of the holders of cold storage eggs to clean up their holdings, and they have cut the price so that the retailer can sell them for 15c. per doz. These eggs are good for cooking purposes, and at the reduced price they are being worked off slowly.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, April, 1906.

We are beginning to have Spring weather. Business is more active, though navigation has not yet opened. Markets show little of interest. Very few lines show advance; there are, however, some rather odd features. The market is practically bare of cheese. The outlook for peels is for extreme prices; in fact, it is reported citron will be difficult to obtain. In whole spice, pepper is quite low. Ginger shows considerably higher value. Cloves have again advanced, after rather lower prices ruling for a short time. Rice, which has been rather easier, is again firmer. Hops are reported lower, the sale here is not large. Cream of tartar continues at what is somewhat below the average price.

OIL—In burning oil a fairly steady business at even prices. Lubricatings now begin to move; the outlook is good; there is strong competition. Paint oils are firmly held at full prices. White lead is also high this year. Mixed paints, while not showing much advance, are generally higher. In cod oil, season about closed. It has been a very successful one from the fishermen's standpoint, which is after all the most important.

CANNED GOODS—There it more interest, particularly in vegetables; prices firmer. In tomatoes there has been quite an advance and holders are looking for higher prices. There is an improved demand for gallon apples, prices tending higher. Other fruits unchanged. Salmon just fair business. Lobsters still extreme. Oysters very firmly held. Meats begin to have inquiry, prices are low. In domestic fish situation is quiet. There is still a fair stock of sardines. Haddies and other lines scarce.

DRIED FRUIT—There is fair business. Raisins are unchanged, seeded are held firmer. In other lines no change; currants have a steady demand, prices are firm; demand is for package goods. Prunes have good inquiry, stocks not large, small sizes difficult to replace, prices are higher. Apricots and peaches are higher. Dates: a steady sale at slightly advanced figures. Peels, particularly citron, are higher; for citron quite extreme prices likely to rule. Evaporated and dried apples firmly held at full figures. Onions are rather easier. Egyptian are now offered.

SUGAR—There is just a steady business. Prices are quite firm. Buyers of foreign sugar have quite fair stocks bought to arrive. Some low figures were quoted.

MOLASSES—While quite a quantity of fancy and choice Barbadoes has been received, it has largely gone into consumption. Dealers find difficulty getting stocks forward. Quite large quantities have been bought; prices are low. Porto Rico is dull; while quite a stock of old still here, prices are well above Barbadoes; little new expected.

FISH—Fresh fish are now being received. Some few Gaspereaux have been caught; early in the season there is a splendid market for these, smoked, in Bangor, Maine. In dry fish prices are rather lower, market tending downward. Smoked herring also easier. Pickled herring are still scarce and high. Finnan haddies are dull.

ABBREVIATED MARKET NOTES FOR CURRENT WEEK

Tomatoes—Advanced 5c. per case.
Choice Apricots—Advanced to 14c. per lb.
Evaporated Apples—Advancing.

Business in the city has been demoralized by the street car strike, but trade in the country continues very active. Values are steady in most lines and there are few changes to report.

CANNED GOODS.—Tomatoes have been advanced to $2.65 per case, an advance of 5c. One or two jobbing houses seem to have fair stocks, but others are almost sold out and find it difficult to procure fresh supplies. Tomatoes are a "good buy" at present, as there is no doubt that higher prices will prevail before the new stock is available.

B. C. News.

Futures in sockeye salmon pack, especially half pound tins, are already selling high, though there are yet several months before the pack will be in, either in the north or on the Fraser River. Sales reported as having been made for delivery of 1906 pack have been on basis of $7.50 per case for half pound flats, and approximately $4.50 per case for talls. The fact that the Alaskan pack is largely talls, and will thus compete very keenly, is given as a reason for the price of that shaped tin being so much lower. Fraser River canners have of late years been making rather a specialty of the half pound flat. This size and shape tin is in good demand, and because there is very sure to be a much smaller pack of salmon this year, and consequent possible shortage, every broker is bidding for the desirable sizes. A movement such as this may result in causing too great a production of that size when the pack is being put up, and the result would of course be to drive down the price.

Nearly every northern cannery is now rushing supplies north, and the steamers have all they can handle conveniently, in some cases special vessels having to be chartered to take supplies out. The new canneries under construction at Rivers Inlet and Skeena River are pretty well on to completion. The supplies of tin plate for can making have been coming forward by the big Blue Funnel steamers direct from the Old Country, and sufficient stock is in hand for all the cans to be made. This year the U.S. tin plate manufactories have secured a larger share of the canners' trade than ever before. The fact that there is no duty on tin plate has, of course, given as free a market here to the American makers as to the British.

Ramsay Bros. & Co., Limited, are making considerable increases in their plant for biscuit, macaroni and candy-making. With completion of improvements now in hand, the plant of this company will be one of the largest in Western Canada. It is but a year ago since arrangements were made to engage in the making of macaroni, and in this line the company has achieved a distinct success. In the ordinary biscuit and candy manufacture, trade is expanding so that greater facilities are required. Jas. Ramsay, the head of the company, while east recently, made some extensive purchases of machinery for the candy factory and this will be installed when the additions are complete.

Thos. Duke, for fifteen years prominently engaged in the grocery trade in Vancouver, and in a great part of that time chief owner and manager of the City Grocery Co., Limited, has sold his interests to Mr. W. Schroeder, formerly of Victoria and Dawson. Mr. Duke intends remaining in Vancouver, and later on may engage in some other line of business. As he is a large owner of valuable city property, he has considerable interests to look after for the time being.

An instance of critical illness through ptomaine poisoning in Vancouver was reported this week. Geo. Williams, tobacconist, fell violently ill from this acute form of poisoning immediately after partaking of canned peas from a tin which it was alleged was bulged at the ends. One grocer informed Mr. Williams that a bulged can was a sure indication that the contents were not fit for food. It would seem that more grocers should know this elementary bit of knowledge regarding canned goods. A suggestion made long ago, and in part carried out, of dating every can with a small stamp to show day, month and year of canning, is one of several that would greatly improve conditions in the selling and use of this very important line of modern food products.

The annual meeting of the Chilliwack Creamery Association held recently received a very satisfactory report. Summarized, it was: The output for 1905 was 222,704 lbs., for which was distributed to the ranchers supplying the cream, $42,470.59 in addition to a bonus of 1-3c. on every pound of cream, this bonus paid out of profits; the cost of operating the creamery for the year was $8,880.70. So satisfactory has been the progress of this company, practically owned and operated by the farmers themselves, that it is possible cheese making may be added to extend the business. This is but one of the prosperous creameries of the Fraser Valley.

MARKETS—In the creamery market the feature of the past week has been the increase of price of sugar 1-8c., which went into effect last Saturday. Base price quoted by the wholesale trade here is now, granulated 5 1-4c., extra C. (yellow) 4 5-8c. per lb.

PROVISIONS—The produce market shows but little change from last report. The small quantity of New Zealand butter added to other supplies was soon absorbed. There is an actual scarcity of the first-class article at the present moment. The price remains 28c. for eastern creamery, 30c. for local creamery and 31c. for New Zealand.

Eggs are still plentiful and may really be quoted lower than 25c. wholesale now. It is probable though, that in anticipation of Easter demands, stocks will be held back a little, though the fresh supplies continue to reach the market in good quantities. (

Cured meats show upward tendencies. The big demand for northern supplies, both to logging camps and to northern cannery points, is having some influence on local market conditions. Prices are 16 to 16 1-2c. for hams; breakfast bacon, 17c. to 17 1-2c.; dry salt, long clear, 12 1-2c.; lard, 11 1-2c. to 12 1-2c., as to size of package.

FRUIT—Increasing scarcity of apples and somewhat stiffer prices for oranges cover the range of movement. No pines are in the market now, and bananas continue to arrive in regular shipments to meet the demand. Oranges are quoted $3.25 to $3.75; apples, $2.50 for choice, with little else offering; bananas, $3.25 per bunch.

VEGETABLES—Fresh vegetables of several sorts are regularly in the market, lettuce at $1.50 per crate is in good supply, cabbage from California, also radishes, string beans, celery, etc., are received regularly. Ripe tomatoes are also fairly steady as a feature of the market. No movement of note in the potato market is chronicled. The price of locals at $15 and $16 per ton, of what few Ashcrofts that are in the market at $28, and of Yakimas at $30 per ton, remains steady.

STRANGE ACCIDENT TO FACTORY.

An very peculiar accident occurred to the Davies Packing Co's factory, Montreal, recently. A large water tank containing 30,000 gallons of water situated on the high roof of the main building, toppled over sideways, falling over the edge of the roof, and crashing through to the ground three storeys below. In falling the tank carried away a large portion of the wall for one storey down. When it struck the ground a miniature flood ensued. Nobody was hurt, as the accident occurred at night. A new tank has been ordered.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The situation on cheese remains practically unchanged, the tone of the market is decidedly strong on both sides of the Atlantic, stocks in Canada are nearly exhausted, and stocks in Great Britain are generally reported as being very light. Yet prices are high, trade is from hand to mouth, and we are close on to the opening of the new season. Meanwhile no holder of cheese is showing any anxiety about the possibility of a break in values, yet there is a feeling that it might be as well to get sold out.

A few straggling, small lots of new fodder goods are coming in, and as the cows are shedding their calves the flow of new milk is increasing. Butter making is not profitable at present prices as compared with cheese, and all those who can make cheese will probably make no butter, even if the latter is the most favored product at the commencement of the new season. The skim milk is a useful by-product for the farmer, and as a rule he favors the making of butter at first. However, cheese being high in price, and butter low, it will not take the farmer long to decide in favor of making cheese.

There is as yet no fixed valuation for the new product of cheese, but many factories are beginning operations for the season, and it will not take long now when we will have a regular market price established for the new product. Meanwhile the ideas of the value of new cheese differ materially, and most conflicting reports are the order of the day among the principal operators.

Fresh butter, made from new milk, is in good demand at present, but prices are somewhat affected by the general market for Fall made butter, which is anything but satisfactory to the holders of these goods, and at present it is most difficult to get a really palatable article of butter on the market.

Some sections have abandoned cheese entirely, and will only make butter, notably the Eastern Townships, and perhaps it is well to have factories for cheese and others for butter entirely. If one maker is employed, and he is ordered to change from making cheese to butter, or vice versa, he is apt to make an inferior article of either, and what may be gained in the difference of the market price of either article might be lost in quality, and result in a consequent cut in price.

Both cheese and butter are wanted for our trade with Great Britain, but if either is produced in excess of the natural demand it is apt to become a losing game. If our farmers now insist on making cheese as the better paying product of their milk they may overdo it, and reverse the condition by producing an over supply of cheese, and thus lowering its market value later on.

Taking everything into due consideration, the prospects for butter are not very bright, as the Siberian butter will undoubtedly be coming to the British markets in increased quantities this coming season, and if our production of cheese is increased to any considerable extent prices of this article must also decline.

The future for the season is at present a problem of much speculation. New trade combinations have been formed between export houses here and import houses in the United Kingdom which creates a great feeling of uncertainty about the final outcome. There seems to be a general tendency for "centralization" and a desire to control markets, which may not prove a benefit to the country in the end. Good, healthy competition is, after all, the life of trade, in spite of the recent idea of co-operation.

The business in dairy products, cheese and butter is a very large one, and every house engaged in it has its own customers or trade. Any one house attempting to control this trade would find so much opposition in prejudice, etc., that the attempt would fail in the end, and while these combinations may upset the equilibrium of the trade for a while they would never succeed in completely ousting all other houses doing a legitimate business now, which may have been established for many years. The interests in this business are so varied and, we may say, antagonistic, that no real "trust" can ever be accomplished, and it is well that this is so. It takes personal judgment to buy cheese and butter, and the house pleasing a certain customer in quality will always receive his preference in his orders.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

There has been no particular change in the provision situation during week under review. The shortage of hogs continues. It was thought last week that, at Ontario points, the reason was attributable to the bad roads consequent upon the short spell of severe weather. This, however, could not have been the only reason, seeing that with the return of milder weather the shortage continues.

It would appear as though the situation in this regard is reflected the world over. From the European Continent, Ireland and America, supplies are all reported below requirements, and in England the situation is much the same.

Demand is good at all markets. At Montreal there has been an improved demand for all hog products for the eastern trade. At Ontario points orders are plentiful, with the result that prices have advanced all round.

Factories for the most part are working full time, although in some instances the working staffs have been reduced. The quality of the hogs sent in is much behind, and packers in their anxiety to secure profitable hogs are induced to still further advance prices for best-grown hogs. Buyers are all for leanest selections, and the consequence is that while those have appreciated in value fat and heavy sides have had to be disposed of at a reduction. The leading brands are unchanged.

The export market has shown disposition to advance, probably on account of the shortage of supply from all sources. It has, however, had the effect of counterbalancing the advance packers must pay for live hogs.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

By Our Own Correspondent.

The market for butter in London has assumed an exceedingly weak aspect, owing almost entirely to the general over-supply of butter. Russian and Australian receipts have been exceedingly heavy, particularly inferior quality from Australia. Reference to statistics shows that the total imports of butter of all kinds for the first three weeks of March were 293,191 cwts. as against 216,989 cwts. for the corresponding period of 1905. From Australia supplies have been slightly below three times as heavy for the same period this year as last. It is noticeable, too, that America has been shipping on a larger scale. The remedy, one would imagine, would lie in a reduction of price to the consumer, but apparently no advice to that effect has been given out.

Next week, according to rumor, the Copenhagen official quotation will be advanced 6 to 10 kroner. For a very considerable time this Danish quotation, which is generally believed to be on a level with the selling price on the other side, has not been anything like on a level with the prices charged. Beginning at 6d. over, it has advanced by stages until it is now 8 shillings over. The position of the Danish dairy trade, which has enabled it to play fast and loose with this market, is a remarkable one, and shows the reward attending upon efforts towards perfection. The demand for Danish butter, on account of its uniform good quality, is very great, although it must be admitted it is feeling the fierceness of competition more each year. Of course, when one refers to the over-supplies of butter from Australia and New Zealand, and then takes into consideration the fact that Denmark has sent some 2,000 odd cwts. less during the first three weeks of March this year as compared with 1905, one is able to realize why there is a big difference in values between colonial and Danish butter.

Canadian and New Zealand cheese remained unaltered in value, with transactions for the past week on a fair scale. Every day which passes emphasizes the fact that a great deal now depends upon what supplies of cheese are received from Canada, and sellers would certainly give a great deal to know for absolute certain whether they may expect large, small or normal supplies from the Dominion. Of course the general opinion prevailing is that stocks will be on a limited scale, the tone and temper of shippers giving color to this impression. But buyers, and for the matter of that many sellers also, are not putting implicit reliance upon all the rumors which reach their ears. The demand for Dutch cheese is not large, but the limited quantities to hand are keeping transactions on a level basis.

The Argentine Republic has been devoting great efforts to the building of a better butter trade with Europe, particularly with England, and the Government of that country is exerting itself to ensure the purity of all butter which emanates from their factories. In the first six months of 1905 3,222 tons were exported, as against 5,294 for the whole of 1904.

The Prime Minister, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, has stated that there is before the House of Parliament a bill dealing with the restrictions on the importation of live Canadian cattle, but that the decision of the Government would only be made known when the bill was dealt with. Meanwhile Irish breeders, and others interested, are putting up fight against the removal of the embargo with undiminished determination.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Prices in pure lard have advanced about half a cent since last quotations. There has been a considerable advance in pork, too, but this is only natural considering the great scarcity of hogs. At present there is nothing which is likely to bring prices down any. CHEESE—The market is firm and hardly any stock is offered for sale. A few small lots of fodder cheese have arrived but have scarcely attained any market value. The prices asked range from 13c. to 13½c. The market on the other side is very firm also. New made cheese offered at 12¼, a remarkable price.

EGGS—Despite the nearness of Easter there has not yet been any advance in eggs. The supplies have only been large enough to meet the sales. Farmers seem to be holding off, and this in the end may cause prices to advance just before Easter. At present quotations are about 17c.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—Pork products continue to move upward, quotations for long clear breakfast bacon and small hams being ½c. higher than last week. Heavy mess pork has firmed up to the highest quotation and $22.50 is asked for short cut per barrel. Street lots of hogs have advanced 25c. POWDERED MILK—NEW INDUSTRY.

Progress is characterizing the dairy industry as well as other fields of husbandry. An important increase in dairy business may be consummated by an extension of the newly discovered process of making milk powder. The milk is passed over heated rollers and thin sheets of evaporated milk are removed and reduced to flour, which is then put up in packages for consumption. The new process is adapted to skim milk or whole milk. It is also contended that eggs can be indefinitely preserved by this new discovery, which promises to have a far-reaching effect on many industries.

Should the invention achieve what is claimed by its promoters it will revolutionize the storage industry, particularly for eggs and other perishable products that can economically be reduced to powder by the hot-roller process. It is not expected to interfere with the growth of the dairy or poultry industries, as fresh milk and eggs as produced by nature will always be in urgent demand. It is more likely to promote the expansion of these industries, as the surplus can be utilized by the new process and stored in packages for future consumption.

The manufacture of skim milk into powder milk would create a new outlet for this by-product of creameries and add materially to the value of the dairy industry. It could be operated in localities remote from markets for milk, but well adapted to the operation of a dairy.

The water is evaporated and only the butter fats and the solids of milk would comprise the component parts of milk powder. The powder-milk industry has already attained considerable proportions in several localities in Europe, where the new process originated. It is being largely utilized as food for infants and is regarded as superior to sterilized milk. Its strength is seven times the potency of whole milk, and it needs to be diluted with seven times its bulk of warm water to bring it to the standard of pure milk of average quality.

The new invention will be useful in manufacturing milk powder for army use and for long sea voyages and will come into competition with the condensed-milk industry. It will be useful where a compact, long-keeping food product is necessary, such as military operations, voyages of discovery, as well as reducing pure milk to a most sanitary condition for general consumption. While milk-powder factories could not pay more than condensing and creamery establishments, the dairy farmer will herald the new industry as creating a broader demand for his products.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The general situation is certainly more healthy, although nothing of great moment to report. The markets in both flour and wheat are described as unsteady. The recent upward movement has been followed with a slight weakening which is at all times a disquieting feature.

The week has seen a decided improvement in the export trade. Cable bids show a good advance for the week, and both millers and flour brokers have been able to put through a number of sales at satisfactory figures. One good feature is that the demand is not confined to any one part, but seems to be general.

There is very little Ontario wheat offering. It is believed that more trade could be done if it could be secured, as exporters are buyers at present values.

Manitoba wheat has been in fair demand for milling. The thermometer ranged several degrees below zero at Fort William, dissipating the hopes of an early opening of navigation. It brought an improved demand for spot wheat this side of the lakes. A decided scarcity would probably exist if it were not that some millers have larger stocks than necessary to carry them until after navigation opens, and are willing to let the surplus go at a premium, replacing it for May. There is a big demand for April seaboard, said to be caused by the unsatisfactory condition of the Argentine wheat, and sales have been put through for future shipment as late as June and July.

Stocks of flour in hands of Manitoba millers are very heavy. The market has been such that there has been nothing for it but to allow stocks to accumulate. If it had been practicable many millers would have shut down and so prevent the present accumulations, but it was necessary to keep going, hence the heavy stocks. As it was, many mills have been running half time.

WHEAT INSPECTION.

Wheat inspections at Winnipeg for seven months of past crop year have totalled 52,235,506 bushels, just 11,448,506 bushels more than total inspections for preceding year.

There are still 17,000,000 bushels in interior elevators and farmers' hands for export.

BREAKFAST FOOD ENTERPRISE.

Mrs. Rorer's Saratoga chips are now being placed on the market in real earnest. Robert E. Burton, who is the proprietor and manager of the Hamilton Saratoga Chip Co., was in Toronto this week interviewing the trade, and was a caller at the office of The Canadian Grocer.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

FLOUR—The situation shows a continual improvement and millers are beginning to wear their old-time smile. Prices have not advanced any, but the demand is ever increasing.

GRAIN—The market is quiet at present. There is very little demand except for oats, for which 38½c. to 40c. is obtainable, according to quality, but nothing higher than this figure is offered.

ROLLED OATS—There is nothing new to report in the situation of rolled oats. There is a quiet feeling in the market. Business is not good owing to certain conditions among the millers. As one miller remarked, "The less said about rolled oats now the better."

FEED.—The market is reported as being very strong this week. Bran and shorts are held higher, and are exceedingly hard to obtain. Prices do not show any changes.

HAY—The arrivals of hay from farmers are easing off considerably as country roads are about done, besides the fact that it is so difficult to place any hay while the market is in its present state. Quotations show no change since last week.

Reports from the other side say that there is a slightly better feeling in the market since the shipments from this side have eased off.

TORONTO MARKETS.

FLOUR—There has been very little movement in trade since our last report. The tendency of buyers is to hold off and nothing but immediate need will induce them to enter market. Prices have made a downward movement, and cannot be said to be strong at that; whilst dealers do not express their belief of a further decline, there is every indication that weakness will continue.

GRAIN—There is no definite development in the local situation. There has been a measure of activity on account of current demand, but there is really no life or animation on market. Whilst Manitoba wheat has been fairly active for export, Ontario wheat has been slow and uncertain. Prices are weakening but no quotable change.

ANCIENT COLONY NOTES.

St. John's, Newfoundland.

We have had a very mild Winter here. Trains have been making Summer time.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Bell, of the Crosbie Hotel, left for a trip to Prince Edward Island. Mrs. Bell will stay some time visiting relatives.

Some of our leading outport merchants are members of the Assembly, and are taking quite an active part in the discussions. Messrs. Moulton, Cashin, Earle, Maddock and Capt. Chas. Dawe are all good representatives, and know the wants of the districts, and what is good for the colony.

There is a big shortage in pickled herring in this country and prices, in consequence, are away up.

A cold storage plant will shortly be erected in this country.

By the time this reaches your readers the sealing fleet will have returned. On the result of this trip largely depends the Spring trade.

The price of old molasses is away off. New to arrive is quoted at 24c. It is all Barbadoes that is used here.

A. Leslie, of Toronto, who makes semi-annual visits to this colony, has been here, and reports business good.

"Diamond Dyes still hold the trade." So says Mr. Masters, the genial representative of that well-known dye company.

Capt. Thompson, of Poole & Thompson, Montague, P.E.I., has returned home. The firm does a large business in that district, as well as in this colony.

Reid-Newfoundland Co. are making big preparations for the Summer traffic. All their steamers are being thoroughly overhauled. There is a report that they will run a daily steamer between North Sydney and Port au Basque, to meet the demands of the increasing freight and passenger service.

Rossiter & Co. is the firm name of a new wholesale grocery house just started. Both partners are energetic young men.

Hugh Ross, traveler for Thos. Smyth Co., has been laid up for a few days.

The sudden death of Mr. Hattie, of Hattie & Mvlius, of Halifax, came as a great shock to the many friends he made while visiting the Ancient Colony.

One of the leading firms handling large quantities of produce is in difficulties.

R. J. Coleman, one of our most progressive manufacturers' agents, has just returned from an extended visit to the United States.

J. Sellars, the local representative of Union Blend tea, has been visiting the outports.

There is a report around the city that there is likely to be a lawsuit between one of the St. John, N.B., firms and a late employe of theirs. Interesting developments are promised.

Thos. Smyth Co. have had fitted up a special showroom and office for their tea department, which has grown to such proportions that in future Mr. T. T. Cartwright will devote his whole time to the tea end of the business. Three extra travelers will be put on to thoroughly work the Island. This enterprising firm makes a specialty of Nectar tea. Your correspondent called on Mr. Cartwright the other day and found him consulting catalogues of blending and other machinery. In answer to our inquiries he said: "Yes, we will go into the package business and put up our own." He also stated that they were negotiating with a tea taster and blender whose reputation was second to none. "The best is none too good for us," said he.

NEW MONTREAL WAREHOUSE.

By the time navigation has opened this year Montreal will have a business enterprise which will be able to take care of all goods which merchants and others in the trade find necessary to put into storage.

The Terminal Warehouse & Cartage Co., Limited, is the name of the new company, the capital of which is $1,250,000. It is the intention of the company to take over the Lilley & Cameron Cartage Co., Limited, of Montreal. They have already secured options on 90,000 square feet of land, on which they intend to erect warehouses capable of taking care of every description of merchandise, and ground is being broken this week. The main storage warehouse will be about 296 feet long by 100 feet wide, constructed upon the most modern and up-to-date plan for the purposes required. It will be six-storeys high and fire-proof. There will be plenty of yard room, where may be stored pig iron, oils, chemicals, and such merchandise. The rates the company propose to charge will be very reasonable.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Geo. E. Taylor has been added to the Toronto selling staff of Red Rose Tea.

M. Butwell, 876 Manning avenue, Toronto, has sold his grocery to David McCrorie.

E. M. Elliott, Goderich, has sold his grocery and crockery business to J. J. McEwan, grocer, of the same town.

A. S. Hallman, grocer, Berlin, has taken a new store and refitted it handsomely. He moved into it this week.

Jos. Ryder, Parry Sound, has opened a nice grocery and confectionery business in the stand lately vacated by Mr. Jones.

T. Dean, Goderich, has purchased the Morenz bankrupt stock in Mitchell, and will continue the business there during the Summer.

C. W. Switzer, of Meadowvale, who has been conducting business in Alton for a year, is moving his home to the latter place this week.

Gray, Bernie & Co., Listowel, have refitted their store for the Spring and Summer trade, and have made arrangements for a big stock of choice goods.

Chas. Hutchins, butcher, Port Hope, has purchased the grocery business of D. J. McLennan, in the McLennan Block, and has removed the butcher business there. He will continue with both lines.

Jas. Arnold, Durham, one of the oldest merchants there, is advertising that he is retiring from business. He has not yet decided where he will reside, and may make up his mind to continue in Durham.

A. Young, Seaforth, one of the most respected merchants of that town, died suddenly last Thursday, of heart failure. He had been at the store as usual the day before. Mr. Young was very highly thought of and had a large circle of friends.

Walsh Bros., Stratford, are refitting their grocery department, will put in a fine stock, and are expecting to do a fine trade this Summer. Ed. Walsh is superintending the work, and it's a certainty that the result will be something worth while.

Arnott & Hunt, Bracebridge, have dissolved partnership, and Mr. Hunt will continue the business. Mr. Arnott has accepted a position as traveler with with the Turner Mfg. Co., Toronto, producers of syrups, unfermented wine, etc. Mr. Arnott's territory will be in the north country.

Burglars effected an entrance into Lang's provision store, corner Main and Guilbault streets, Montreal, on the night of March 23. They chiselled out the door glass to make an entrance. The exact amount lost through the theft is hard to determine because of the amount of new goods the store had been receiving.

"Name me an up-to-date grocer in your territory," said The Grocer man to a traveler Saturday. "Well, we were just talking of Goderich," replied the hard-working wholesale individual, "Now O. C. Whitely, of that town, to go no further, has one of the nicest groceries in the west. He is doing a very nice trade and is always on the move to increase it."

A prominent grocer, when recently asked what kind of goods he liked to sell best, replied:—

"Give me a good repeater like Royal Baking Powder; an established article of undisputed merit which housekeepers repeatedly buy and are always satisfied with."

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

It is hard to discover any feature on the domestic market of interest at the present moment; not that any complaint is heard—far from that, there are many indications that trade is considered satisfactory generally.

At all points oranges are selling freely, and quality satisfactory. Arrivals now coming to hand at Ontario points are charged icing rates, whilst at Quebec points these charges were added a week earlier. Recent reports from New York are rather indicative of still higher prices and say:

"A good percentage of the offerings came in under refrigeration. Ventilated stock, however, in the majority of cases arrived in excellent condition. Navels have now reached that stage of maturity where they are pretty well perfect in eating qualities. It is reported that there are very few cars held on track and receipts for next week are expected to be considerably lighter. This being the case there is every indication of a still higher market, the advance made at the closing sale of this week, over the closing sale of last week, might be fairly put at from 15 to 40c. per box on medium to small sizes."

Prospects are reported as very good for the approaching season in the Niagara district, and although there have been many rumors of damage to the trees, it is impossible to get any confirmation of this from the districts themselves, in fact reports denote that the contrary is the case.

FRUIT IN GROCERY STORES.

Fruit of different kinds is rapidly becoming a part of every progressive retail grocer's stock in trade. They are beginning to realize that when properly handled, fruit is a profitable side line. Aside from looking at it in this light, there is to be considered the fact that customers are beginning to look to their grocer for the common fruits, such as bananas, oranges and apples, which are obtainable at all seasons of the year, and strawberries, peaches, pears and other such in their season.

Do Not Hesitate.

Owing to the perishable nature of the goods many merchants are not anxious to handle them, fearing to lose on the transaction rather than to gain. Possibly they have not the energy necessary to take up a new line; others have so long got along without it that they believe they would benefit in no way by taking up this line. But he must overcome his natural trepidation if he wishes to prosper in anything. It is not necessary that he should buy more than a couple of bunches of bananas and a crate of oranges, and perhaps a barrel of apples, to start with. Giving these only proper care, and pushing ahead, he will easily dispose of them advantageously. This will form a beginning after which he finds it the easiest thing in the world to conduct a side line in fruits, and as his business grows so will his fruit trade.

Make Good Display.

From the beginning a very important factor in making a success of the venture is to give such fruits as possible good window and store display. String up a couple of bunches of bananas in the window or before the window, but see that they are the very best fruit obtainable. Splendid window displays may be made in oranges, and it is left to the dealer's imagination to dress a window attractively in these and other fruits once in a while.

Advertising space must also be given this line to a certain extent just as well as it is to other goods.

THE MAN WHO BROKE THE BANK.

The hero of that once popular song, "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo"—"Monte Carlo"—Wells is his name in real life—was sentenced the other day at the Old Bailey in London to three years' penal servitude for his connection with a fraudulent concern called the South and Southwest Coast Steam Trawling and Fishing Syndicate. His companion, the Rev. Vyvyan Henry Moyle, who was sentenced at the same time, was a clergyman of the Church of England, and during the trial the startling fact was brought out that, though in 1873 he had been sentenced to seven years' imprisonment for forgery, he had, after his release, been appointed to a vicarage, the bishop believing that he had reformed.

EVAPORATED APPLE CASE FINISHED.

The case of Chouillou vs. Dougall has come to a close at last. An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada was refused because the case was not deemed of sufficient importance. Full particulars of the case were related in The Canadian Grocer some little time ago. Chouillou bought some dried apples from Dougall, and afterward brought action for damages against him, claiming that the apples were not of the quality they should have been according to contract. He won his case in the Superior Court, receiving $1,200 damages. This judgment was confirmed in the Court of Appeal of the King's Bench when an appeal had been made by Dougall. Dougall's lawyer then made a motion to have the case brought before the Supreme Court. Chouillou's counsel opposed the motion and was successful in having the appeal dismissed, as has been stated.

The case, involving as it did different questions concerning contracts, deliveries, and other important trade questions attracted considerable attention.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—The tone of the green fruits market just now is steady. Prices are the same as those quoted last week. There is no great demand for any special line. Navel oranges are selling freely. It is expected that there will be an advance in the course of next week. Bananas have dropped fifty to sixty cents. Asked the reason of this sudden decline a large Montreal firm explained that seven tramp cars of bananas had arrived in Montreal the latter part of last week and the early part of this.

VEGETABLES—The market is quiet and in many lines prices have dropped a little, although in some instances there has been an advance. Home grown cabbage is scarcer than it has been for some time and now commands $2.50 to $3. Boston lettuce and cucumbers are more plentiful and prices have declined. New stock is coming in in greater quantities. Beets which were formerly $2 are now obtainable at $1.50, but even this price is too high to bring in the business.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUIT—Icing charges went on California oranges this week, adding 25c. to the cost. Otherwise the market is nearly featureless. Bananas have recovered from the effect of the local glut, but the top prices are lower and the range within narrower limits. Strawberries are tending downward but very slowly. Pints are on the market. One large wholesale house reports that last month was the best month in their history.

VEGETABLES—This is the season of the year when the vegetable market rules "steady and unchanged." The imported stuff continues to come in slowly owing to limited demand. New carrots are in at $1 dozen bunches. Mint also is offered. New spinach is offered at $1.40 to $1.50 a crate. Florida tomatoes are a little lower. Some asparagus comes in small bunches and sells at $2.75 to $3 a dozen bunches. Florida celery is appearing. The crates are about two-thirds the size of those from California and are quoted at $4.50. The Jews are now buying horseradish to serve as the bitter herb for the Feast of the Pass-over. The supply this year is ample, but when it is not the Jew will pay very high prices for the root.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples are somewhat out of season; stocks very light; high prices obtained for best stock.

Oranges, particularly Californias, are higher. Valencias at this season are very fine.

Lemons just fair business, prices unchanged.

The bananas to hand are largely a cheap grade.

Shipments of lemons from Sicily to the United States are increasing, but the total for the season to date is much less than for the corresponding period last year. According to figures compiled by the New York Fruit Exchange the total shipments from Sicily to New York from November 1, 1905, to March 23 aggregate 360,100 boxes, against 522,625 boxes for the same time last season.

GET READY IN ADVANCE.

Easter is fast closing in with its numerous attractions; and judging from reports which come to hand from the many travelers, grocers generally are paying more attention to Easter displays. There certainly should be every inducement to take hold on these confectionery lines, the public want them and they are necessarily part of the grocer's trade, much more so than the druggist's, who generally makes a good thing out of his candies and confections.

The breaking up of the late heavy spell of cold is a gentle reminder that Summer is coming, and it is time to look ahead and prepare for another season's trade. What new attraction can be devised or copied as a trade bringer. The grocer should be the leader in his locality; no one has a better right.

A "maple" display is the very thing for the present season. After having run "Easter" goods for all they are worth, have all in readiness to bring out a surprise for your locality in the shape of a timely "maple" show. Lay out a corner of the window in the time honored sugar camp. Let there be the log hut with its camp fire—the latter can be made of scarlet paper with an electric light behind—the tripod with kettle, and the whole scene as realistic as possible.

A display of this kind can be done with very little expense, Everything should be as crude as possible, and there should be clearly in evidence a full display of seasonable confectionery so that lookers-on will see some inviting line at attractive prices.

HARVESTING THE PEANUT.

Suffolk, Va., is the largest market in the world for home-grown nuts. When it is remembered that Americans consume annually more than 6,000,000 bushels of peanuts grown in this and other southern states, at a cost of more than $14,000,000, it is not to be wondered that a short crop has caused the producers to demand a high price.

Crop Depends on Climate.

In suitable soil the peanut will grow in any latitude where Indian corn will thrive, but a good crop depends entirely on the climate—conditions which are found on the Atlantic seaboard from New Jersey southward, in the Mississippi valley as far north as Wisconsin, and on the Pacific coast south of the Columbia River. In the Virginia peanut section—and it is a very extensive one—it has been found that where the land is properly prepared there is little to be done in the way of cultivation after the seeds are placed in the ground.

It is always a nip and tuck race with Jack Frost to get the crop harvested before he shows his work, for a biting frost injures the nut and lessens the value of the vine for forage purposes.

Care in Harvesting.

Ploughs are made for harvesting the crop. The plough is long and keen and goes deep in the soil, thus preventing the bruising of the nuts. As the ploughman loosens the vines from their beds laborers with pitchforks follow him and remove the vines from the earth, shake off the loose soil and pile the vines with their roots laden with nuts in great piles. These workers are followed by others, who take the nut-laden vines and shock them around seven-foot poles.

When the shock is finished it is capped to keep out the rain, and the shock is left undisturbed until ready for the pickers, who are generally women and children and are paid so much per bushel.

Picking the Nuts.

The picking of the nuts is slow and tedious work and one of the largest items of expense to the grower. Some planters have invested in threshing machines, but nuts picked this way are not as marketable as the hand picked, the machine cracking and breaking the hulls.

In former years most planters had the nuts cleaned before sending to market, but since the establishing of peanut factories the nuts are brought in just as they are picked from the vines. The factories, which are, in fact, recleaners and graders, buy the output of the planters as farmers' stock, and after a treatment of cleaning, polishing and sorting by both hand and machinery the nut is ready for the consumer.

The Factory Workers.

The factories are four-storey buildings, but the machinery is neither costly nor complicated, consisting of fans, brushes, polishers, sifters and separators. As the great loads of nuts are brought to the factory they are sacked and carried to the top floor by elevators, where the nuts are dumped into large cylinders on the next floor, where they are cleaned by attrition, fans taking out the dust as they pass around the cylinders. From this floor the nuts pass to the second floor, where they go through fans which blow out and separate the lightweights, and the others pass on to tables on endless movable belts. At these tables the hundreds of negro women and children pick out the discolored and faulty nuts and allow the better ones to pass into a grader that grades the nuts as to size. Through all this machinery the nuts have been polished until they come out looking as clean and polished as a pearl. In this condition they are placed in chutes running to the lower floor, where they are sacked in burlap bags which have been stenciled with the names of the several brands, and are ready to be shipped to the cities throughout the country.

Every year the crop is becoming more valuable, and, while almost all Americans are peanut eaters, great inroads are being made on the crop by utilization for other purposes. Millions of bushels are now being used in the Old World for the production of oil.

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

THE VALUE OF A TOBACCO CROP.

A report which has come to hand referring to the tobacco crops of Central and South America is interesting, not only as showing the development which has been made in that country, but also as an example to Canada of the great monetary value of a tobacco crop. Canadian tobacco cultivation can scarcely be said to have passed the experimental stage; yet Canadian leaf is gradually growing in favor as a blend with foreign growth.

Given the necessary amount of care in cultivation, coupled with the experience of past and future experiments, there is no reason why tobacco culture should not be to Canada a valuable and continually increasing agricultural asset.

The tobacco crop of Cuba for the past year is given as $30,000,000 in value; about $13,500,000 was exported as "leaf," about $10,000 value was exported as "stems," about $12,500,000 as "cigars," and $4,500 as "cigarettes." The export of cut tobacco amounted to over $81,000 and tobacco seed to the value of upwards of $3,000.

The tobacco crop of Mexico was estimated as $20,000,000. The exported tobacco is chiefly the production of one state, named Vera Cruz, all of which goes to the European market. Very little Mexican tobacco goes to the United States on account of the prohibitive tariff. Almost all the exports are made up of cigars and cigarettes, which accounts for the fact that a quantity of leaf tobacco is imported from Virginia for the purpose of blending with the native leaf.

IS NICOTINE POISONING?

A Montreal daily recently published the following article on the much discussed nicotine question. The article should prove interesting reading for those interested in tobacco.

"Much tomfoolery has been written about nicotine. As a matter of fact, there is probably no subject upon which the general public has received so much misinformation. Nearly every one speaks of the dark brown substance which has about the consistency and color of molasses and accumulates in the stems of pipes as nicotine. According to well-informed authorities, it is not nicotine, and it has no nicotine in it. It is nothing but tar—tobacco tar, distilled from the smoke, just as coal tar is distilled from coal and pine tar from pine wood. One might swallow all the tobacco tar that a rank clay pipe contains without serious harm. If he swallowed the same quantity of nicotine he would probably be dead inside of five minutes. It is the tar that stains the pipe, and it is the same tar that stains the cigarette smoker's fingers. It is also found inside the nostrils of one who inhales smoke, and it puts an indelible stain on his moustache.

"It is true that tobacco contains more nicotine than any other known plant, but nicotine is not a plentiful article in nature. The rankest Kentucky tobacco contains less than 8 per cent. of nicotine, and the finer grades of tobacco, such as Havana, have less than 2 per cent. One often hears cigarettes condemned because the smoker gets so much more nicotine through inhaling the smoke. The fact is that a cigarette smoker gets almost no nicotine, because the tobacco of which cigarettes are made contains next to no nicotine. Turkish and Egyptian tobaccos carry only a trace of nicotine, and some of them none at all. No matter how much of this deadly element a tobacco contains, the smoker does not get it. Nicotine is not extracted by burning the tobacco. Burning destroys it entirely. One often hears of nicotine poisoning, but it is very doubtful if there is any such thing. When one is poisoned with nicotine he dies, and he doesn't get poisoned by smoking. There are plenty of good reasons why smoking should not be carried to excess, but nicotine poisoning is not one of them."

MAY BE THERE.

The obliging clerk had taken down piece after piece of goods, until he could hardly see over the pile on the counter.

"I don't care to purchase to-day," remarked the shopper, as she turned away; "I was only looking for a friend."

"There is one more piece on the shelf, madam," said the clerk; "your friend may be behind that."

BODE'S ENERGETIC GUM ADVERTISING.

The Bode Gum Co., Montreal, have caused quite a sensation in trade circles—grocery, drug and cigars—by the vigorous and striking advertising plan set going in Toronto, which commenced on March 17. Bode's gum has certainly led all others in the rapidity with which it has been placed upon the market and the system begun in Toronto will be extended from Halifax to Vancouver. The trade will, of course, benefit by the extra demand created by this up-to-date campaign of the Bode Gum Co., Limited. The Toronto offices of the company are in the Pacific Building, Scott street, and Messrs. McEachren and McPherson are in charge.

SHERBROOKE, P.Q.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ANNUAL MEETING.

The Montreal branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Inc., held its annual meeting in the association rooms, 88 St. Denis street, Thursday evening, March 22. There was a large attendance and several important questions were dealt with.

After the reading of the minutes, the president, J. G. Watson, who occupied the chair, addressed the association, and particularly the representatives of the three new sections admitted, men's furnishings, hats and furs, and furniture. He bade these sections welcome on behalf of his fellow members. The committee which had been sent to interview His Grace the Archbishop of Montreal re the trade of the religious communities, reported that something would be done to remedy the present state of affairs.

The treasurer's report was read and showed a very good balance. It was adopted subject to audit. J. A. Beaudry, the secretary, then read his report which touched upon many points of interest to the trade. It showed that the association is steadily growing. It now consists of ten sections, with a total membership of 804. The report further stated that at the formation of the branch in October, 1905, they were called upon to see that the trading stamp law was strictly observed by all merchants. In this connection, at the end of October a delegation consisting of J. G. Watson, J. O. Gareau and J. A. Beaudry went to Ottawa and interviewed the Prime Minister, who assured them of his help in their work. Shortly afterward another delegation had an interview with Hon. Lomer Gouin, who told them that they should have all the help it was in his power to give them in this case. He consented to appoint the lawyer of the crown to work with the association's lawyer to prosecute the cases it was their intention to institute. With the help of detectives employed by the association, these two gentlemen were able to prosecute in all twenty-two cases, the results of which were very satisfactory to the association.

Steps were taken by the legislation committee to have something done re the peddlars' and hawkers' law.

Something was done to try to facilitate the collection of small accounts, also to have the inspection of weights and measures done at the Government's expense.

Steps were taken to have amendments made to the law concerning liquor licenses of the Province of Quebec, especially where Montreal grocers were concerned, and principally to the article regarding wholesale and retail licenses and license transfers. The first point was satisfactorily arranged, and in future wholesale and retail licenses will be separate. Regarding the transfer of licenses an amendment was made whereby the grocers' license would be $100, but they were to be restricted from going direct to consumers to solicit orders.

The question of the equalization of taxes was then brought up. It is understood that at present certain merchants are paying out a larger sum in taxes than some wholesalers. The matter is a very complex one and a committee was appointed to look up facts concerning the question, with instructions to report after they had done so.

It was arranged that something should be done to have the action of wholesale houses in selling at retail stopped.

The butchers' section requested that steps be taken so that a proper inspection of meats should be guaranteed.

Another interesting question discussed was the contract plan. It was decided that measures should be taken to have this plan carried out, as it protected merchants against price-cutting.

A motion was made and carried that the secretary's salary for the past term be fixed by the executive committee.

The election of officers then took place and resulted as follows: President, J. G. Watson; vice-presidents, J. O. Gareau, F. Martineau; treasurer, P. Daoust; secretary, J. A. Beaudry; auditors, Filion and Bruneau.

With the exception of the auditors, these officers all served last year and all were re-elected by acclamation.

THE "SQUARE DEAL" IN TRADE.

There is a war of match makers on in the United States. The Diamond Match Co., commonly known as the match trust, has made, with as many of the wholesale grocers as would come in, an agreement to handle exclusively their matches on a commission plan. This agreement constitutes the wholesaler a selling agent on a 10 per cent. commission payable quarterly. Should the wholesaler handle the matches of any other company the commission is cut off.

The independent manufacturers are taking steps to test the legality of the arrangement, claiming that it and the means taken to secure its acceptance are in restraint of trade. One of the largest of the independent manufacturers says:

"The sole object of the new selling plan of the trust is to get rid of all legitimate competition and it is not fair that the wholesale grocers should lend themselves to such a scheme. The trust says to the wholesaler: 'You must distribute our matches exclusively or not at all; in order to rid ourselves of undesirable competition we propose to take charge of your business and run it in our own interest.' Strange to say, the grocery distributing trade, with few notable exceptions, agreed to the proposition.

"The consequence is that all independent manufacturers are deprived of the services of the legitimate distributors, and in order to dispose of our product must go direct to the retail trade. Can the wholesale grocers stand this when their very existence is threatened by the direct selling proposition?"

The natural result of this monopolizing method is found in the recent organization in New York of wholesale and retail grocers, commission men and independent manufacturers to fight the trust. The purpose of the combination, it is said, is not so much to enter into the match business from a profit standpoint as to force the trust to do business on a fair and equable basis, instead of seeking a monopoly.

In this week's report of the investigation of the Grocers' Guild at Hamilton is a circular letter of Secretary Cook regarding the agreement with the canners and a circular letter from the Canadian Canners, Limited, to the trade offering an additional rebate of 5 per cent. to wholesalers who will handle their goods exclusively. The great aim of the guild has been to establish the position of the wholesaler against the "direct selling proposition." It is based on the claim that the wholesale trade is the manufacturers' legitimate means of distribution to the retailer. What, then, is the excuse when a large number of the guild members enter into a contract the purpose of which is to exclude a large number of manufacturers from the services of the wholesalers as the distributing agency to the retail trade? Surely there is a lack of consistency here. The temptation to monopolize is not new; for centuries it has been the stumbling-block in the way of fair dealing. To-day the tendency is stronger than ever before.

"If public opinion and the standard of honorable business men can be set firmly against the devices of monopolizing 'trusts,' they can be defeated more effectually by sustaining fair competition in trade than by resort to legislation or litigation. If wholesale dealers and jobbers will agree together and refuse to enter into any such contracts as those offered by this match company, and will be 'fair and square' in their own dealing with customers; and if buyers generally will show their antipathy to monopolies and give their preference to manufacturers and dealers who are 'fair and square' in their methods, all this 'trust' business in trade will not only fall into disrepute but into bankruptcy. What is especially needed is more common honesty and everyday moral sense in business."

VALUE OF TRADE WITH YUKON.

A report received at the customs department, Ottawa, shows that the quantity of Canadian goods shipped into the Yukon Territory last year decreased considerably when compared with the previous year. The tonnage for 1905 was 15,272 as against 21,866 for 1904. There was a proportionate falling off in foreign goods. The tonnage last year was 10,648 compared with 12,602 in 1904. The total value of Canadian goods shipped into the Territory for the year was $3,224,217 and of foreign goods $1,451,400. so that the balance of trade was in favor of Canada to the extent of $1,772,817. In 1904 the balance in favor of Canada was $2,643,622.

A FRATERNAL CALL.

A donkey stepped into a store and the owner approached the beast and asked: "What are you doing here? You know this is no place for a donkey." "I am here," said the donkey, "because I saw your advertisement on the fence that surrounds my pasture. I know you, too, must be a donkey, or you would place your advertisement in a newspaper where it would be read by people, not by donkeys. Being lonesome to-day, I thought I would be neighborly and make a fraternal call."

WARNING!

Crescent BM&Co TRADE MARK Brand

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

Half the Battle is Won

by going on to the fighting line with proper equip ment. The boy with the old muzzle loader sometimes gets a bird but more often he loses from sheer waste of time in loading the gun. And his powder horn gets damp, flint lock won't work, ramrod sticks.

Are you wasting time and energy by arguing over "quality" that you're not quite sure of? What's gained—how many customers lost? Half the battle is won by "quality." There's no better time to equip than right now.

EXTRA FINE SIFTED PEAS, NO. 1

SWEET WRINKLED PEAS, NO. 2

EARLY JUNE PEAS, NO. 3

STANDARD PEAS, NO. 4

We are delighted to know that the Retail Merchants, generally, are pushing the sale of the finer grades, which will mean increased profits and satisfied customers. Our orders through the Wholesale Trade within the past few weeks have been largely for the finer grades of peas, showing that the Retailers and consumers are benefitting by the knowledge of the difference in size and quality.

The brands are, viz :—

Group 1.—"Canada First" (Aylmer), "Little Chief," "Log Cabin," "Horseshoe" (Bowlby), and "Auto" (Canadian Canners.)

Group 2.—"Lynnvalley" (Simcoe), "Maple Leaf" (Delhi), "Kent," "Lion" (Boulter), "Thistle" (Brighton), and "Grand River" (Lalor.)

Group. 3.—"Globe" (Schenck), "Jubilee" (Lowrey), "White Rose" (Lakeport), and "Deer" (Saylor.)

HAMILTON, CANADA.

CEYLON TEA (green and black) preserves in perfect proportion the necessary quantity of "essential oil" for refreshment and exhilaration.

CEYLON TEA (natural green) contains full measure of that important alkaloid "theine." An agreeable stimulant and invigorator.

CEYLON TEA is proved by analysis to contain sufficient — and only sufficient — "tannin" to give necessary vim to the other component parts.

CEYLON TEA is absolutely "pure" and free from extraneous coloring matter, such as is often used in other teas.

CEYLON TEA, in its manufacture, combines all the most sanitary, up-to-date, and scientific methods known to the world.

MORAL—Inasmuch as the great aim of business is to give pleasure to the buyer whilst securing profit to the seller, the merchant grocer must buy only the most excellent goods, which in Tea means "buy only Ceylon Tea" for both pleasure and profit.

The Man behind the Counter

I believe I am known as a man who values, and secures in a very full measure, the friendship of the retail merchant and his clerks; and I am very proud of the fact.

But why is it? It is not easy to secure the friendship of thousands of men one has never seen; and I am not egotist enough to think that it is through any personality of mine.

It is, FIRST, the quality of Red Rose Tea that has helped make these friends. To men who sell it day in and day out, from year to year, it has become a standard of quality. They know it can be depended on. "Good tea" always good.

SECOND.—They are treated as business men should be. Every enquiry has immediate attention—mistakes are corrected promptly. Reasonable favors are granted pleasantly.

THIRD.—My travellers are not mere order takers. They are men who gain the respect and confidence of their customers by their upright business methods.

If one of them calls on you, I know that you will corroborate my opinion—and if you are not doing business with him now, you feel that you will some day. When you do, I am sure we will be friends.

"THE FAIRBANK PLAN"

LOOK INTO IT

and see just what "The Fairbank Plan" is. While we spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year advertising the six great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

and educating the public regarding them; and while we intend to continue doing this, we realize fully that advertising alone has not accomplished the splendid results we have enjoyed in the sale of these goods, but that "the man behind the counter" has been an important factor in extending and increasing our trade. It was the realization of this fact that gave birth to "The Fairbank Plan," as a method of rewarding the retail clerks for their earnest co-operation in selling these goods and, consequently, a portion of our immense advertising appropriation is now set aside for the recognition of the dealer and his clerks.

"The Fairbank Plan" is an absolutely fair method of rewarding the clerk in direct proportion to the interest displayed in pushing the six specialties, as each package of these goods is couponed in such a manner that the coupon can be easily removed before the goods pass into the hands of the consumer. For these coupons we offer many valuable articles.

If you will send for an illustrated premium list of "The Fairbank Plan" it will convince you that this is no cheap trading-stamp scheme.

26 A MINUTE

So great has become the demand for "SALADA" Ceylon Tea that the sale now equals 26 packets for every minute of our lives, or equivalent to 14,000,000 packets annually, and still growing.

Mark Twain says: "It's Foolish to Oppose a Success."

Some dealers (not you, of course) waste a good deal of time in worrying, planning and scheming out acceptable reasons (to themselves) as to why they should not handle "SALADA" Ceylon Tea, while their more progressive neighbors are readily grasping their opportunities, and pushing the sale with pleasure and profit.

A dealer can, of course, get along without "SALADA" if he is so inclined, but it will be to the injury of his trade and reputation—this is as sure as "night follows day."

A sample case will readily dispel a doubter's doubts.

NATIONAL CONTROL OF FOOD SUPPLIES*

By Anthony McGill, Government Analyst, Ottawa.

If it were necessary to justify food inspection as a national concern, the following, among other considerations might be given : First, the great importance of the subject; the national health and well-being are directly menaced by any lowering in the quality of its food material. Second, the necessarily high cost of such inspection, because expert skill must be employed, if the work is to possess any value. Third, the benefits of inspection should be equally available to the poor and the rich. It is equally to the interest of the whole commonwealth that the working classes should be properly nourished. It is not only the rich man who should be safeguarded in the character of the food stuffs offered for sale. Fourth, a continuous inspection must be provided in order that the quality of our foods may be known. We cannot afford to wait until a lowering of national vitality indicates something wrong. We need to prevent widespread harm, not to discover and account for it after the fact.

A Modern Innovation.

What are known in history as the assizes of beer, bread, etc., which were early attempts to control the quality of important articles of food, date back to the 15th and 16th centuries. It is, nevertheless, true that food laws of the kind that we are acquainted with are recent creations. Existing legislation on this subject, in English-speaking countries, owes its origin to the work done about the middle of the last century by the late Dr. Hassall, and to the publicity given to his work in the columns of the London Lancet. Dr. Hassall published an extended series of investigations into the character of various foods as offered in the London markets. His exposures of frauds in milk, bread, spices, drugs, etc., was so convincing as to cause the appointment of a parliamentary commission to inquire into the facts. As the result of the evidence brought before the commission, the first Adulteration Act was passed. Canada was not long in following the example of the mother country, and enacted her first Adulteration Act in 1874. The act has undergone many amendments since that date, in consequence of increased experience in its working, but the fundamental principles remain unchanged.

What Adulteration is.

It defines adulteration as follows:

1. If any substance has been mixed with it so as to reduce or lower or injuriously affect its quality or strength;

2. If any inferior or cheaper substance has been substituted, wholly or in part, for the article;

3. If any valuable consistent of the article has been wholly or in part abstracted;

4. If it is an imitation of, or is sold under the name of another article;

5. If it consists wholly or in part of a diseased or decomposed or putrid or rotten animal or vegetable substance, whether manufactured or not, or in the case of milk or butter, if it is the produce of a diseased animal, or of an animal fed upon unwholesome food;

6. If it contains any added poisonous ingredient which may render such an article injurious to the health of a person consuming it;

7. If its strength or purity falls below the standard, or its constituents are present in quantity not within the limits of variability, fixed by the governor-in-council, as hereinafter provided;

8. If it is so colored or coated or polished or powdered that damage is concealed, or if it is made to appear better or of greater value than it really is.

Not as Our Ancestors.

Why do we need national food inspection more than did our ancestors?

In the first place, the tendency of modern life is to leave the manufacture of food to a special class of the community. Food stuffs are no longer home made. The farmer no longer takes his grist to the mill, paying a toll for the grinding and bringing home his flour, home-made malt; home-brewed ale, even home-made bread, are scarcely known in our day. When baking is done at home, it is not done as formerly with home-brewed yeast, or with sour milk and soda. Baking powders are used almost exclusively; and the housewife knows nothing of their composition. That they yield gas on heating in the oven, and make the bread spongy, is all she knows about them. Whether or not the residue left in the bread is wholesome depends upon the knowledge and honesty of the manufacturer. Even jams and jellies are bought ready-made.

What Science Has Done.

But this is only a partial answer to the question. The achievements of chemistry have within recent years placed at the disposal of manufacturers a large number of substances which were quite unknown, or only known in private laboratories, until the last half century. Glucose, cotton-seed oil, cotton-seed stearin, coal-tar dyes, synthetic flavoring materials (as vanillin, wintergreen, etc.), chemical preservatives, (such as salicylic acid, formalin, etc.), are illustrations of what I mean. These substances enter into the composition of modern foods to an extent little imagined by the ordinary consumer.

New Food Products.

It must not be thought that we have any fault to find with the inventor of a new food material. Far from this, we recognize the discoverer of a new and nutritious food stuff as a benefactor to his kind, and is worthy of praise, as he who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before. And there can be no doubt that glucose, cotton-seed oil, cotton-seed stearin, oleo-margarine, renovated butter, milk-blended butter, condensed milk, tinned meats and vegetables and many other forms of food not known to our progenitors, are valuable additions to the national commissariat. But there are a few points to be kept in remembrance in regard to all of these. The fact that they are new forms of food is not, in itself, a recommendation. The human digestive organism is a development through long centuries, and has adapted itself to a certain diet, varying in different countries There is danger in trying radical experiments with it. However great may be the value attaching, for example, to the preserving of food by canning, anyone who has been compelled to live for a few months, or even weeks, on canned provisions, will realize that this simple and beautiful device for preserving perishable food materials, nevertheless, involves some slight change in the character of the food, sufficient to bring about a sense of unrest, if not of actual indigestion. Again, in the manufacture of many new food substances, powerful chemicals are used, and great care is necessary to make sure that these are properly rendered harmless before the finished product is put on the market. Many cases of poisoning through the use of dyes containing arsenic, glucose containing free acid, and other similar instances are on record. I must however, bear testimony to the great care which is now-a-days taken by manufacturers, and to the purity of the products now offered.

Chief Ground of Complaint.

The chief ground of complaint rests in the non-acknowledgement of the presence of a foreign substance. The importance which this assumes depends greatly upon the point of view. To the consumer it means that he is ignorant of what he eats. This is always a perfectly tenable ground for complaint. It frequently amounts to a very serious matter indeed, as in cases where personal idiosyncrasy or invalidism prohibits the use of certain classes of food. To the honest manufacturer it is a very heavy grievance, since it means unfair competition.

* This is a synopsis prepared by Mr. McGill, of a lecture delivered by him before the Ontario Grocers' Convention in Massey Hall, April 3. Similar synopsises of succeeding lectures will appear in next week's issue. -Editor.

To the producer it is also a ground for complaining. What of the fruit grower who finds apple, turnip or other pulp used as a basis for jams, sold as strawberry, raspberry, plum, etc., and dyed with coal tar colors to imitate the genuine fruit? Just in the same way has the dairy farmer a right to complain of unacknowledged competition by the sale of oleomargarine or renovated butter for the genuine article; the farmer who raises pigs has a bona fide grievance when cotton seed products are substituted for lard, and so on.

Who Shall be Held Responsible?

The consumer, naturally and inevitably, must hold the retail dealer responsible. The Adulteration Act provides the retailer with a safeguard in two ways. First, he may plead the guaranty of the manufacturer or wholesaler, provided that he has taken the precaution to obtain such. Second, the Inland Revenue Department (which is charged with the administration of the Food Act) provides an inexpensive means of acquainting him with the nature of the articles he sells, by chemical analysis at a nominal fee. Of course, the services of professional analysts everywhere are at his command.

The manufacturer may thus be held ultimately responsible for the correct naming of his goods. There is no bar to the manufacture or sale of any wholesome food in Canada (except butter substitutes) provided that they are correctly and honestly labelled. The act requires that such articles be distinctly labelled as a mixture, in conspicuous characters, forming an inseparable part of the label.

Penalties Provided.

Distinct penalties attach to violations of the act, and these may be classed as (1) penalties for adulterating foods, (2) penalties for selling adulterated foods. It is with the latter class that retail grocers are directly interested. If the adulteration is deemed injurious to health, the penalty for a first offense may reach $200 and costs, or three months imprisonment, or both; if the adulteration be deemed to be not injurious to health, the penalty may reach $100 and costs, and is not less than $5 and costs, "provided that if the person accused proves to the court before which he is tried that he had purchased the article in question as the same in nature, substance and quality as that demanded of him by the purchaser or inspector, and with a written warranty to that effect—which warranty is produced at the trial of the case—and that he sold it in the same state as when he purchased it, and that he could not with reasonable diligence have obtained knowledge of its adulteration, he shall be discharged from the prosecution, but shall be liable to pay the costs incurred by the prosecutor, etc."

The annual reports of the Inland Revenue Department, and the bulletins on food subjects, issued from time to time from the laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department, give an account of the actual working of the Adulteration Act.

These reports and bulletins are obtainable free of charge by any person interested on application to the Deputy Minister of Inland Revenue at Ottawa.

WESTERN STATES DEMAND PURE CORN.

Rupert Baxter, a prominent Maine corn packer, on his way home from a trip through the west, says :

"The wholesale grocers in the middle west, particularly in the Missouri River section, have come out flat-footed with a declaration that they will not handle canned corn unless the cans or labels bear a stamp with the legend, 'This package is prepared in conformity with the provisions of the pure food laws.' As a result thousands of cases of canned corn are still in the hands of packers unsold, and, under prevailing conditions—a glutted eastern market and low prices—a heavy loss threatens producers.

"The day of 'bleacher' and 'saccharin' has gone by," said Mr. Baxter. "Jobbers are so afraid of trouble because of the agitation over pure food and pure food legislation that they will not handle food products unless there is a reasonable guarantee of immunity from interference by officials. This action has really been forced upon the jobber by the retailer, the latter finding such a sentiment smong consumers against the use of the bleach and sweetener that he has been compelled to refuse to handle anything except the safe article."

A considerable percentage of the pack in the western states was bleached to meet the popular demand for white corn. The market there is glutted; bleached stock is interdicted in several eastern markets, and it means that the packers must just unload where they can and for what they can get.

One of the largest western packers, speaking on the subject recently, said : "You will find that from now on the jobber is going to be particular what he buys in the matter of food products. Even if we do not get national pure food legislation, the sentiment among consumers, working through the retailer, is going to force a better and a purer product.

"Just as soon as the packer is made to understand that only the best products, put up without the use of artificial color and preservatives are saleable at profit, just so soon will the conditions in the market improve. If the packer will put on his labels 'this package contains food prepared in conformity with the food regulations,' the consumer will buy more freely. There won't be a demoralized market, either. Now, there are at the present time several million cases of canned corn unsold in first hands.

"The percentage of really fancy grade in this quantity, compared with the whole, is small. Yet in face of this and the low prices ruling packers pretend to wonder why the jobber does not buy futures. Knowing, as the jobber does, that a large share of the carryover of western corn is poor and 'bleached,' he does not care to load up with futures."

OPPORTUNITY IN HOUSE CLEANING.

Your wife doesn't break into housecleaning in the thoughtless way you break into a can of corn, or a hog breaks through the ice to take an unpremeditated ducking. The first nice spring day starts her thinking about it, and she'd like to get right at it; but there comes a snowstorm or a sou'easter with rain and the dear girl gets time to think it over. It may be a week or a month before she finally gets into the scrape, and all that time she has it on her mind more or less, and anything bearing on the subject interests her. That is the state of the feminine mind of the nation.

If you have the right goods at the right time and right price, it's dollars to cotton dusters the people will buy if they know about them. Perhaps you've already guessed this is more about woodenware. Why not? A general merchant doesn't mix up dry goods, groceries and boots and shoes on his shelves. Silk and sausages wouldn't look well in the same drawer, and customers wouldn't like to sit on a molasses barrel to try on a pair of shoes. Why then should woodenware be divided up and distributed over the store? Why not give the woodenware the same show to make profits that you do other goods? All that is asked for the woodenware is the "square deal."

Probably you have twenty-five or thirty different shapes and kinds of brushes and half as many varieties of brooms, whisks, dusters, stepladders and window cleaners. Then there are half a score of woodenware articles that relate to the family washing, and three or four times as many varieties, besides kitchen ware and dairy ware. Keep your buying eye open for new things and improvements in these lines. Women are always interested in labor-saving devices for the kitchen or the laundry. They're not needed more any place on earth. There seems to be a bull movement in the cost of living, and only a few of us can afford to employ hired help in the home. The wife who does her own work and looks after one or more children needs all the labor-saving devices she can get.

A tastefully arranged woodenware section would attract attention anywhere on about house-cleaning time. Then try a window display of it and see how it will attract attention. To round out the experiment contribute some of your advertising space to the woodenware campaign. If business doesn't start then, why, better hike out of that branch of trade or you may take it as a sign that house-cleaning in your town is good and well over and all the washing is being sent out.

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

NOVELTY IN WINDOW DISPLAY.

The aim in all successful windows is usually novelty—something new. Unless the display has this element of novelty it cannot be otherwise than a greater or less failure. The use of too many canned goods in the window is usually objectionable, because they cannot easily be arranged in a manner that would attract by its originality. We urge the use of nothing in the window that suggests sameness of design and monotony of goods. Something new! Something fresh! Something original! That's what the window waits for.

Constant Change.

That "hits the nail squarely on the head." Constant change, something new, something that will draw the attention of the passer-by and bring the customer inside your store. That is what the window display is for, and when it has accomplished this it is for you to follow up the work accomplished through your window display.

Not Too Many Lines.

Some grocers in their window display seem to have the idea that in order to be effective it is necessary to have a multitude of articles, and as is often the case the displays are overdone and the intended effect thrown out of proportion. Where only one article is used the effects created are usually most excellent, for the very neatest designs can be successfully accomplished with one or two articles only, it in a great measure depending upon the skill of the dresser in originating the design.

Choice Goods and New.

Window display embraces two very essential features—it serves the purpose of sampling new or especially choice goods, and at the same time adding a picturesque charm to the windows which set forth the real standard and capacity of the salesroom within.

AN INTERIOR DISPLAY.

The illustration given in this issue is one which will well repay careful study. The store is that of Bain & Adams, of Hamilton, and shows an exceedingly fine stock, displayed in such a way as to suggest a regular market, rather than one of the very daintily arranged stores one is accustomed to see. This idea, too, is the characteristic of the store; whatever is in season is the line made prominent and pushed for all it is worth.

There is not a great deal to explain or describe in this picture. There are the usual ranges of shelving all round the walls, but what is somewhat striking is the abundant arrangement of counters, tables and stands upon which to display the goods. The favorite style, it will be seen, is that of the pyramid, many of which are formed of permanent shelving, so that one article can be taken without disarranging the remainder. This is a great convenience, and a great saver of time in serving.

The refrigerator, too, is placed in the extreme end of the store, a very excellent idea, as by this means the unpleasant aroma which will invariably arise from provision goods can be easily passed into the open.

Bain & Adams have always made a point of seasonable displays, and in conjunction with this form of advertising have issued a complete price list at regular intervals, one of which is now before us, and is certainly a most comprehensive catalogue.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

Mayell & Co., spice merchants and manufacturing confectioners, of Toronto, have just removed their factory to 1298 Queen street west of the same city. This move has become necessary through the expiration of the lease of the old premises. The firm intend utilizing the movement as a means to thoroughly overhaul their plant and introduce an organization equal to any in their line.

H. C. Beckett, of W. H. Gillard & Co., Hamilton, was noticed by The Canadian Grocer in Montreal grocery circles last week.

CO-OPERATIVE TRADING IN THE OLD LAND.

Owing to the comparatively sparse population, merchants in Canada will not for many generations feel the effect of the co-operative store movement. Yet it is interesting to know the extent to which that system of trade has grown among the hived millions of Great Britain. It is an avenue of British trade, too, which probably the Canadian manufacturer knows little about.

The industrial co-operative societies cover the land with their branch stores and menace the livelihood of the individual storekeeper, says a New York Journal of Commerce correspondent, writing from Manchester, England. it is possible to estimate the importance of their business very closely from the returns which the societies make to the Government. In 1902 their sales aggregated $450,000,000, and in view of the normal rate of expansion their turnover now probably exceeds $500,000,000. At least one-seventh of our 43,000,000 people buy a large proportion of their necessities from the co-operative stores. More than 2,000,000 people, of whom most are heads of families, are members of the 2,500 separate local societies. The members subscribe the capital on which the business is worked, and this, in shares and loans, exceeds $200,000,000. They also participate in the allocation of the profits, which are, on an average, some 10 per cent. of the amount of the sales, or about $50,000,000 per annum at present. Persons outside the membership are customers of the stores, and they receive a bonus on the amount of their purchases, or rather, a lower scale than members.

The volume of transactions is always increasing, indeed, the turnover has multiplied just forty times in forty years, and although the annual increment is now vastly lower than formerly it is quite regular and progressive.

Books have been written on the growth of the co-operative business since first a few workingmen in Rochdale (Lancashire) determined to be their own storekeepers and to sell food and clothing to each other after the factories were closed. Historically, the interest of the movement is almost romantic, but it is more to the point to indicate how the gigantic business has risen.

Primarily to Human Cupidity.

It appeals primarily to human cupidity, the workman sees in the local "co-op." a fit repository for his small savings. His wife sees in the bonus, which is payable either yearly or half-yearly, a certain means of saving that cannot be effected by other means. So the co-operative retail store does not need imperatively to sell more cheaply than the private trader. It does not always offer terms as good, and the attention to customers and the appearance of the shop are not always to be compared favorably with competitive enterprises. These details, however, matter little, since they do not deter the woman with bonus in her mind, or the man with an eye to his annual interest, from taking their custom to the stores. Idealists among the members harbor visions of a day when co-operative bodies shall transact all the business done in Great Britain, and the mere greed of the many is mixed with the philanthropic intentions of the few, without any detriment to business. Every society has its officials and board of directors, who are workingmen, sitting to transact affairs at the payment of a few pence per hour, which is viewed as overtime. The direction has not invariably been skillful, but the total sales of nearly $9,000,000,000 in forty-five years may speak for themselves.

Goods Dealt in.

The goods dealt in by co-operative societies are substantially all articles of household use or consumption. By far the largest are commodities of the grocery class and British co-operators consume huge quantities of American pork, corn and other products., Dry goods are next in order of importance and these comprise all the textiles worn by men, women and children. They are of a sort suited to a working-class trade, although they include a proportion of finery. Beef, boots and coal are items of importance in a trade which includes many more et ceteras than could profitably be mentioned. The store is a place where housewives buy as much as they can and a general effort to offer all they are likely to need results in the keeping of brooms, mousetraps, paints, pottery, washing machinery and innumerable sundry articles.

First Hand Arrangements.

Not all, but many, of these various supplies come into the hands of the local societies by way of the great wholesale co-operative concerns. These are the Co-operative Wholesale Society, Limited, of Manchester, which has a total business of $100,000,000 a year, and a total capital of $14,500,000; and the Scottish Wholesale Co-operative Society, Limited, of Glasgow, whose transactions run into $30,000,000 and whose capital is $11,500,000, inclusive of certain reserve, insurance and special funds.

In some sense these two may be looked on as parent, or feeding, societies, and while they enjoy no monopoly of that function, it is to them that Americans looking for large orders should apply. For the buying of hog products the Manchester wholesale has already representatives in Chicago and will presently have an agency in Winnipeg for the purchase of its grain. Co-operators like to go to headquarters for their supplies, and to save intermediate profits have acquired their own tea plantation in Ceylon. The large quantities of butter and eggs they import from Denmark are selected by their own representatives in Copenhagen, and for the transport of continental goods they maintain their own fleet of steamers. Large distributors, the wholesale societies are also large manufacturers, who produce in their own factories, flour, butter, biscuits, sweets, preserves, pickles, candied peel, cocoa, chocolate, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, snuff, soap, candles, matches, glycerine, starch, boots, saddlery, woolens, clothing, flannels, shirts, mantles, underclothing, corsets, millinery, hosiery, cottons, furniture and brushes. For these purposes the wholesale society uses the best approved plant and it has at times large orders to place for milling, sewing and other necessary machinery. On a smaller scale the Scottish Wholesale is also a productive society, joining to its tailoring, confectionery, tobacco and kindred trades a business in building wagons and carts. Nearly the whole of the output of these factories is sold to the local co-operative companies, but in addition to what they make in some lines the wholesale bodies buy from outside producers for resale.

Not Quick for Novelties.

It can hardly be said that the societies are quick to take up novelties put before them. They are more ready to treat offers for goods in established demand, but the buyers are open to conviction and the likelihood is that novelties will receive greater attention as time goes on. Of course cheapness is a strong point in favor of goods that are for the ultimate use of persons with severely limited means, and durability is rarely lost on the appreciation of the British public. Manufacturers fortunate enough to hit the tastes of co-operators have some assurance of orders for good quantities from organizations which have a large and virtually a guaranteed custom. It is due to add that the credit of the societies is generally excellent and that their settlements are prompt. The retail stores return bonuses on sales as high as 15 or 20 per cent. in some cases, but the wholesale concerns are worked necessarily at a much lower margin of profit. Taking the published accounts of the Manchester wholesale for 1903 it appears that a net profit was earned of 28 per cent. upon its share capital of $5,216,655. On its share capital of $1,549,590 the Scottish society earned a net profit of 77 per cent. These results would be eminently satisfactory to any private firm in the same business, but our co-operatives can hardly be likened to competitive ventures. They are more in the nature of public institutions, and the wholesale ones, at least, are conspicuously well-managed concerns.

TERMINAL CARTAGE CO'S PLANS.

The Montreal Terminal Cartage Co. submitted to the Montreal city council, on March 29, plans of the buildings they propose to erect, and obtained the necessary building permits. The warehouses they intend to erect, as soon as material can be secured, on King street, near Wellington street, Montreal, will cost in the neighborhood of $137,000.

Thomas Smith, Montreal representative of W. B. Stringer & Co., Toronto, spent a few days of the past week in the latter city.

IDEAS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

GRASPING THE PASSING STRAW.

There are two selling propositions: One is to hold acquired trade in line; the other is to build up a list of customers. The latter is considered the harder and requires the better salesmanship; at any rate it calls for greater ingenuity, more initiative and a harder strain.

This story of a salesman and a hard sale was told not long ago by F. J. Selden, who "keeps tabs" on almost everything that will help out a business subordinate in his efforts to "climb the ladder." I finished my list of customers in Montreal one Thursday night, two days ahead of my schedule time. Looking over my route I figured that I could use those two extra days to very good advantage by going out of my way to a little town of D—— where I long had my eye on a mill owner who ought to be buying our goods. I was so busy figuring and traveling and sleeping that night that the clerk in the hotel took me by surprise the next morning when he casually said that, the day being Good Friday, it ought to be welcome to us traveling men, since it gave us a day off.

"That had slipped my mind," I said. "Is everything closed up here to-day?"

"Tight as a drum," the clerk answered. "And, what's worse," another American salesman in the lobby spoke up, "there won't be anything doing here to-morrow: Englishmen don't believe in getting a start for just one day; it means a lay-over until Monday."

"Not if I know myself," I thought. And I dug around all day finding out about my mill, its owners, their work and methods. The mill was run by two partners, father and son—the old man grouchy and close-fisted, the young man sharp as Damascus and with an itch for the dollars, too.

"It takes them six weeks to make up their minds to buy anything," one man remarked.

At 8 o'clock the next morning I walked into the mill office and almost bumped into a wire rail, two feet higher than my head, stretched across the office separating the fixtures from the ante-room. A bent old man with a little skull cap above his grizzled face was pacing back and forth on the other side of the railing like a caged animal. I stood there a minute—not interrupting at all the old man's promenade. Then I laid my hand on the screen and as his walk brought him opposite me, I asked, "Is one of the partners in?"

"Yes," he replied, without losing a stride.

Twice more he paced up and down, with me trying to figure what method or species of individual this was.

"Can I see one of the partners?" I called through the wire at the next lap.

"I am one." This time he stopped short a moment.

"I am from G———— & Company. I want to talk to you about our flour, which I think is——"

"Don't want any of it."

The old man's voice had a conclusive tone about it, and his walk settled down into a that-ends-the-business-don't-disturb-me-again stride. I felt the ground slip from under my feet. I saw nothing to cling to. I was already turning to the door when I saw a little tin cup, the kind that the workman carries on his dinner pail, lying on the window sill. I picked it up trying to think of something I could say about it that would interest the man behind the screen. An idea flashed through my mind. As the old man passed by me, I held the can up before his eyes.

"It would be an easy thing to pack baking powder into this can and just fit a lid over it, wouldn't it?" I said casually.

"What's that? What's that?" Now the old man stopped short and for the first time looked at me.

"Why over in the States," I answered, "baking powder manufacturers make little cans that hold a quarter or half a pound of powder, fit a lid over it, paste a label around the whole thing to hold the lid on and then sell the packages for ten or twenty cents. They print their name on the packages in big type, and as it stands on the retailer's shelf it is a constant advertisement of the baking powder, something that you cannot get when you have it lying away under the counter or in cases or barrels."

"But the cost," the man objected; "the cost would swallow up all profits."

"Don't you suppose the retailer would be willing to pay a little more for powder put up in a neat, attractive form like this, much more conveniently handled than one which is in bulk, and with no loss attached? They do it in the States. And then think of the increase of business that would come from your being the first in the field in this country."

The old man suddenly darted to the door of the screen. "Come in," he said nervously, "come in"—and then turning to an office boy—"go up to the factory and call in my son." The junior partner came in. A keen, shrewd looking young fellow; more like a hustling Yankee than a French-Canadian manufacturer. His father explained what I had been telling him, and I saw the quick sparkle of the eye, which showed the young man's comprehension of the idea.

And then they plied me with questions and we figured costs and profits and the probable sales—all sides of the problem. From that we drifted on to processes and formula for manufacturing, the proper chemicals and flour to use.

"Our sleigh has just been brought to the door," the old man finally said. "Won't you ride out to our home with us and take dinner?"

"No, thank you," I said. "I have other people to see this afternoon and must leave town to-night."

The young man looked up understandingly. "Mr. Cotter is perhaps not so interested in our business as we are, father," he said. "Although he has been so interested in us that I at least have not learned his purpose in coming here."

"Well, gentlemen," I answered laughing, "do you know what I am after? I am here to sell goods." And within ten minutes I had signed an order for ten barrels.

"But won't you come back?" the old man persisted, as he blotted the signature on the order. "I want to take advantage of your being here to the greatest extent possible."

"Certainly," I said. "I will be very glad to drop in again and go into the matter even more in detail with you."

"This afternoon?" the young man queried.

"Sure," I assented, for I was interested—I wanted to clinch this first order into permanent trade.

MODERN FITTINGS.

"Modern Grocery Fixtures" is the title of a booklet which has fallen into the hands of the Canadian Grocer, published by the Walker Bin and Store Fixture Co., and an exceedingly interesting booklet it has proved itself, composed as it is of some 32 pages. Every page is of the liveliest interest to the grocer, in which are given many illustrations of the firm's fittings, and also a profusion of cuts of the stores which have been fitted from time to time.

There is no doubt we are just about at the parting of the ways, the time when the old-fashioned store is giving place to the modern, up-to-date, labor-saving establishment. The progressive storekeeper would do well to get one of these books and compare his own store with what is possible by the use of modern appliances.

CANADA AND THE MILAN EXPOSITION.

The approaching exposition at Milan, Italy, is causing much comment in all parts of the world, as much in Canada as elsewhere. The reason for the interest shown in the great fair by Canadians is apparent when there is taken into consideration the magnificent display it is the intention of the Canadian Government to make, in order that Canada may take a place among the greatest exhibiting countries of the world. But there is another and more substantial benefit which Canada will derive from this world's fair—a portion of the trade of Italy.

The Milan exposition will be the first one of its kind held in Italy for a great length of time, and the preparations being made by Italians to make the occasion one of great success, serve to show what an interest they attach to the coming event. The exposition will be held in the old castle Forzesco, a short distance out of the city of Milan itself. It will occupy a space of 1,000,000 metres, just one-fifth less space than that occupied by the Paris exposition in 1900. Needless to say, the old castle will be completely overhauled, or perhaps torn down altogether, and the grounds will be so arranged as to best suit the ends of the exhibiting countries. An electric car line will connect the exposition grounds with the city of Milan.

The exposition, which is to be opened the 18th of this month, will be under the patronage of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. The honorary president will be the Minister of Foreign Affairs; president, Giovanni Celoria, professor of astronomy, Brera; vice-president, Giuseppe Jumagalli, director National Library; also Giuseppe Vigoni, senator, and president of the geographical exploration and commercial society.

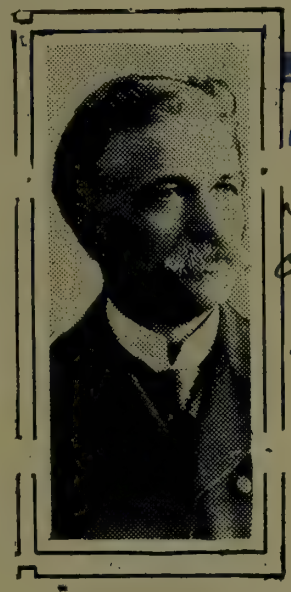
On the opening day the King and Queen will be accompanied to the grounds by the Prime Minister, Signor Soneno; the Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, Signor Pantano; and the Minister of Public Works, Signor Carmino.

It is not possible at present to even begin to give anything like a list of what will be exhibited by the different countries, and by Canada in particular. The Canadian exhibition as shown at Liege recently will be removed in its entirety to Milan, but will be greatly supplemented, so that it is impossible to judge Canada's showing by the Liege exhibit. An interesting feature of the exposition will be the hundreds of airships which will be seen.

C. H. Catelli, a Montreal manufacturer, and president of the Chambre de Commerce, Montreal, has been appointed honorary representative of the Canadian Government.

Speaking to a representative of the Canadian Grocer, Mr. Catelli was very enthusiastic over the prospects of increased trade between Canada and Italy as the likely result of the exposition.

"I am sure," said he, "that both Canada and Italy will derive the greatest benefit from this exposition. At present the products of Canada are very little known by the Italian people, and without a doubt when they realize what a splendid producing country Canada is, they will be only too anxious to establish such connection, in the very shortest time, as will be the means of building up a trade between the two countries. A trade such as could be established could not help but be of mutual benefit. The exports of Italy are equalled by the exports of Canada. What Italy has, Canada has not, and vice versa. There is no reason why these two countries should not trade with one another. What a lot of goods Italy imports from other countries that might just as well as not come from Canada! And once the connection is made, this trade is sure to be continued between the two countries.



M. C. H. CATELLI.

"Take wheat for instance. You would not believe what a quantity is imported by Italy from Russia. And Canada might easily supply the Italian market. Our Manitoba No. 1 wheat has been proved by Parisian analysts to be of better quality than the Russian article which Italy imports in such large quantities. Coal was brought into Italy in 1905 to the extent of 4,000,000 tons. Most of this came from England, but doubtless much of it came originally from Canada, as this country ships great quantities to the old country. This instance illustrates how useful would be a direct steamship line between Canada and Italy. Why, in almost no time Italy would be importing nearly all of her coal direct from Canada. Another product which might profitably be exported to Italy from Canada, the eastern part particularly, is fish. At present Italy obtains her supply of fish largely from Canada, but, of course, with a direct steamship line between the two countries, the business would be greatly increased. This is all the more probable when it is considered that the only easily obtainable fish to be had in Italy are those which come from the Mediterranean. There is a great demnad in Italy for haddock, herring, dried boneless haddock, and Canadian dried cod, and this is an opportunity for the development of trade between the two countries. Canned goods, or to be more exact canned meats, are being imported into Italy in ever increasing quantities, and Canada should have a share of this trade also. There is not much meat obtainable in Italy, and what is to be obtained is too expensive for the masses to be able to purchase, so that canned meats when offered at a reasonable price would meet with ready sale. Cattle could profitably be exported to Italy—perhaps not in large numbers at first, but the trade would soon increase. There is not a great demand for beef there at present, owing to the high price (twenty cents a pound) demanded. But if a direct steamship line were established beef could be imported at less cost than at present, and the demand would certainly increase. At present there is no means by which meat could be preserved, but, of course, this would be remedied as the demand increased. It must be remembered that Italy maintains an army of 200,000 men. This is supplied canned meats to a large extent at present, I believe, but what a splendid opportunity for Canada to export beef! Take lumber for another example of what could be done if we only had a direct line. You do not know how Canadian lumber is valued for all purposes. At present the supply comes from Norway and Sweden and the Tyrolese mountains mostly, but the wood is not so satisfactory as the Canadian product by any means. One reason why the Canadian wood is so valued is that the sap and gum is pretty well drawn out of it because the wood when in log form had been immersed for a more or less long period, making it much easier to work than that obtained from other countries. Now to name something else for export to Italy there are the Canadian apples. The people of Italy are gradually becoming aware of the fact that it is impossible to beat the Canadian fameuse apple, and as soon as these may be brought into the country and sold at a reasonable price there will be a tremendous business in them as well as in other apples.

"I have given you a few of the possible exports to Italy," said Mr. Catelli, "now let me tell you in what manner it would be possible to load the returning vessels.

"The products which might be brought from Italy to Canada are very numerous. Probably oranges and lemons would be a profitable line for importation to Canada. The freight at present is very high, but, of course, would be reduced by a direct line. Then there is marble, which is as plentiful in Italy as are common rocks in Canada, from the whitest Carrara marble to the famous black velvet, from the most expensive to the cheapest. Silk, too, is to be obtained from the north of Italy in quantities, and at a very reasonable price, since labor in that country is so cheap. Jewelery is another line which it would be well for Canadians to handle. Then we have bricks and tiles for floors. Owing to the cheapness of labor in Italy and the immense number of bricks it is possible to make, these could be brought to Canada and sold at a good profit. Sulphur and salt are also obtainable in quantities, and so I could go on naming products and manufactures it would be possible to import.

"The recent completion of the Simplon tunnel makes possible a very good connection between Italy and European, and even American countries, as it is possible to ship goods via Antwerp and thence by rail to Italy. But, of course, nothing could equal a direct line between Canada and Italy," said Mr. Catelli for the tenth time.

"By the way," he said, "I must not forget to tell you something else. I am going to see what can be done in the northern part of Italy towards introducing radiators, agricultural implements, etc. With regard to the radiators, you must know that the country in that region is quite cold at times, and, as they have at present no good heating system, I am going to see what Canada can do in this connection while I am over there."

When asked what he thought would be the order in values, of the exhibiting countries, Mr. Catelli said they would probably be, France, Great Britain, Germany, Canada, Austria and the United States.

"This," said Mr. Catelli, concluding, "will leave Canada fourth, and I am sure that she will merit that place."

HINTS TO BUYERS.

White & Co., Limited, received a car of extra fancy Florida grape fruit this week.

Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, have received a large parcel of Tunis dates, and report them as selling very well.

Probably the only direct consignments of Florida strawberries ever received in Toronto have been handled by White & Co. the past week. The berries are packed in large refrigerator iced boxes, containing 80 quarts of berries, and shipped by express, reaching Toronto four days after being plucked from the vines, and have been arriving in beautiful condition.

Arthur P. Tippet & Co., Montreal, have added a few new lines to their stock. They have secured two new lines from Griffin & Skelley, namely, asparagus and pineapples. These are for shipment with other canned goods in August, September and October. They are also prepared to fill orders for the finest olive oil.

W. H. Millman, who has just returned from the west, says if everything was as easy to sell as Homestead canned goods salesmen would have no troubles.

Laporte, Martin & Cie, Montreal, are placing on prominent corners and stores throughout Montreal, large illuminated clocks bearing the legend on the dial "It's time to drink Wiser's," referring to Wiser's whisky, for which they are agents.

When you sell Winnipeg Witch Hazel soap, same as the C.P.R. use on all their pullmans, boats and hotels, you are selling one of the finest toilet soaps made.

Laporte, Martin & Cie, Montreal, call the attention of the trade to their brands of Ceylon and Japan teas, which are winning a favorite place with the trade.

ENLARGEMENT OF SOAP PLANT NECESSARY.

Important alterations are soon to be made at the plant of the St. Croix Soap Manufacturing Co.

The original building in which Ganong Bros. & Pickard commenced the manufacture of soap in 1878 or 1879 at St. Croix, and around which a group of larger buildings has since grown, is to be torn down, and with it will go the adjoining building.

In their place will be erected a three-story building fifty-five by fifty feet. The roof of the centre section will be removed and all the buildings united in one frontage.

Cedar spiling will be driven for the new section, and the heavy foundation timbers will be of hard pine.

The buildings will also be extended further back than the old ones run, giving the company an added capacity for 30 or 40 per cent. over their present output.

The present company succeeded the original firm in 1884, and under their management the volume of business has greatly increased, the output of the present time being about twenty-five times as great as it was under Ganong Bros. & Pickard. The business of last year was the greatest in the history of the factory.

When the proposed alterations are completed the factory will have a frontage of one hundred and fifty feet and depth of one hundred and forty feet, with office, warehouse and boiler-room in separate buildings.

TRADE WITH AUSTRALIA.

The Australian Minister of Customs, is quoted in the Weekly Trade Bulletin issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce as saying:

"I do not think we can do very much in the way of preferential trade with Canada. After we received overtures from the Dominion recently I looked up the returns showing what we send to Canada and what we get back. They only show a tiny volume of trade, and consequently there does not appear to be much in the proposal at present."

Not only is it a tiny volume of trade, but it appears to be decreasing from this end and looking up a little from the other. Here are the figures showing our imports from and exports to Australia during the past four years:

Year.	Imports.	Exports.
1902....	$153,057	$2,586,554
1903....	98,532	2,929,861
1904....	102,169	2,622,756
1905....	161,470	2,194,223

To enable that small turnover of business between the antipodal colonies, wings of empire, the Dominion Government pays annually $194,666.66 as a subsidy to a mail steamship line, nearly nine per cent. a year on Canada's sales to Australia.

The steamship line serves the trade to New Zealand too. Last year the exports amounted to $540,633 and imports to $51,276. The steamship subsidy represents somewhat over seven per cent. of the combined exports.

J. S. Arnold, Mount Forest, was a delegate to the grocers' convention in Toronto last week on the lookout as usual for progressive ideas.

Alfred C. H. Froemcke, exporter of cheese and butter, Montreal, leaves this week, via Portland, by the SS. Canada for a short business trip to England. After visiting London, Bristol and Liverpool, Mr. Froemcke will return direct to Montreal again by the SS. Canada, leaving Liverpool on May 3.

R. T. Goodfellow, of Prince Albert, Sask., accompanied by his daughter, paid a visit to the Toronto office of the Canadian Grocer on the 6th inst. Mr. Goodfellow, who has been in the West for twenty-seven years, formerly lived at Peterborough. He has been a regular subscriber to the Canadian Grocer for several years and speaks very highly of the paper.

LITERATURE FOR THE GROCER.

Nearly everything the grocer sells is the product of agriculture. In Canada all our food stuffs are home grown, except sugar, some semi-tropical cereals and fruits such as rice and oranges, some canned delicacies and spices. The progressive grocer, the man who puts brains into his business, wants to be informed of the conditions and methods of production. He wants to know the best methods of producing and marketing the materials he handles. To that end we would suggest that every grocer get his name on the mailing list of the Department of Agriculture of the province in which he lives.

As a maker and publisher of books and bulletins the Department of Agriculture in Ontario is considerably in advance of any other similar department in the federation. Last year the output totalled over 2,400 pages, made up of twenty-five different reports and bulletins, in addition to three crop bulletins.

It is not suggested that anyone would want to read all of it, but a cursory glance will pick out the interesting matter. Look at a few of the reports. That of the Fruit-growers' Association contains three addresses twelve papers and five reports dealing with various phases of the growing and marketing of fruit. The annual report of the Agricultural College should interest everyone, showing as it does what is being done in agricultural education. The report of the Entomological Society tells of the insects that hinder the efforts of the agriculturist. A bulletin entitled "Gas Forming Bacteria" will give an insight into one very interesting cause of lack of quality in butter and cheese. A bulletin on apple culture would interest everyone that handles the national fruit. "The Weeds of Ontario," another bulletin, would interest mosts men. The report of the Dairymen's Association contains much that would be interesting and valuable to the people handling dairy products. There are but a few illustrations.

To secure this mass of interesting and instructive literature all that is needed is to become enrolled a member of the Farmers' Institute, and anyone is eligible. To do that, send a dollar to the Department of Education.

A SERIOUS PROPOSAL.

Ira Stratton, secretary of the Manitoba and Northwest Postmasters' Association, has sent a circular letter to the postmasters of the Northwest urging upon them the necessity and advantages of organization and asking their signatures to a petition to the Dominion Government. A synopsis of the petition is given in the circular and to the greater part of it no objection can be taken. The postmasters of the Dominion have many real grievances and they have the best wishes of this paper in their organized effort to secure redress. But to clause 11 of the petition the retailers of the west are likely to take decided objection. According to the synopsis of the petition, given in the circular letter referred to, the gist of the clause is as follows :

"That the Postmasters' Association be allowed to compile a post office directory containing lists of patrons of offices with a view to selling same to mail order firms, and proprietary medicine firms and enterprises."

This means that the machinery of the Post Office Department should be used to further the ends of the mail order houses to the disadvantage of the local stores in every town and village in the country. The cool effrontery of the proposal can best be appreciated when it is remembered that at least 85 per cent. of the postmasters in the Northwest are country storekeepers. Surely it is enough that they should be compelled to handle and distribute tons of mail order catalogues every year among their customers without being asked to lend themselves to a scheme whereby the city mail order houses may be furnished with complete and accurate lists of possible customers.

This is a matter on which the retailers should make themselves heard in order that this clause of the petition may receive the answer from the Dominion Government that it deserves. Retailers would be well advised in writing their members about it. Any communications on the subject will be welcomed by this paper.

OUR TRADE EXPANSION.

Canada's trade record for the first half of the fiscal year is interesting reading. Marked expansion is the outstanding feature which the returns for the six months reveals. The slight depression which was noted in the latter part of 1904 and continued during the first months of last year has entirely disappeared, and Canada's commerce is steadily expanding. This growth is evident in practically all departments of activity, the farm, the mine, the fisheries and the factory, each contributing its quota to the swelling volume of Canada's trade.

The aggregate foreign trade during the half year, according to the returns just published, was $278,541,345, a gain of nearly thirty millions, as compared with the aggregate for the corresponding period in 1904. This is a very gratifying increase, especially when it is borne in mind that the total for the whole of the previous fiscal year was $465,242,426. If this rate of increase be maintained the total foreign trade for the present year will be well over the half a billion mark. Especially satisfactory from every point of view is the substantial increase in the domestic exports which amounted to $133,091,829 or a gain of nearly twenty millions over the first half of 1904-05.

The principal items of increase in the exports were: Animals and their products, $4,376,945; fisheries, $2,296,299; agricultural products, $11,975,953; manufactures, $1,143,733. The total imports for the six months were, $133,814,210, or a gain of $10,770,560. For the month of December the imports were $21,317,089, as against $18,440,461 for the same month of 1904. The exports amounted to $21,300,747, a gain of $2,170,678. The following is a comparative statement of the imports and exports for the six months:

ONTARIO GIVING UP TO THE WEST.

How the west is drawing on Ontario or sections of it for settlers is shown by the statement of a grocery traveler to the Grocer this week, that between Palmerston and Southampton, a distance of 53 miles, 50 cars of settlers and settlers' effects had gone west in one week, and from Grand Valley 25 cars of settlers and their effects had gone to the great wheat country. A merchant had told him that he believed there were 25 per cent. fewer consumers in Huron and Bruce than there were ten years ago.

"The Indians in the west," said the traveler, "used to say, 'Bruce must be a big place, because everybody comes from there.' Like in Bruce," continued the traveler, "you can't make a mistake by addressing a man as Mac."

The traveler stated that farms were larger than they used to be, but considerable areas had been put into pasture for grazing purposes. The young folk have gone west and the old people get a hired man and raise stock.

TRAINING OF TRAVELERS.

Commercial travelers in Canada will compare favorably with the men of the same rank in business in any other country. They are keen men, hard workers and sell their goods in the face of driving competition, but cheerful and smiling ever. Most of them got their training in the warehouse and the rest in the retail trade. They themselves best know how thorough that training was. The other day one of them in the grocery line was telling a customer that another customer had asked him a question about the growing of pepper which he could not answer. "And I should have been able to answer it," he said. In this new country, it is true alike of business and of education, the pursuit of progress and the lust of achievement are so keen that primary details, though in a sense often fundamental, are slurred over.

U. S. Consul Twells, of Carlsbad, tells in the Daily Consular and Trade Reports how commercial travelers are trained in Austria. While it is not suggested that the same kind of training is better than ours or is suitable to conditions here, the recital is interesting.

"Most of the commercial travelers in Austria are men who have been at school at least from eight to ten years, i.e., from their sixth to their fourteenth or sixteenth year. After leaving school they entered a retail or wholesale shop or warehouse, where they have had to serve three years as apprentices (lehrknabe)—generally without salary; later on, perhaps, they get some pocket money. Lodging, food, and clothing has to be provided by their parents or guardians. After three years a "lehrknabe" becomes "free," and commences with a salary of from $6 to $10 a month. He is now either salesman (commis) or is transferred to the stock room (magazineur). Thence the intelligent youths are taken to become commercial travelers, being sent at first to the neighboring small villages to visit the country dealers. About $16 a month and $1.25 to $1.50 for traveling expenses a day is the usual payment for the first and second year after apprenticeship. Later the salary is increased and higher traveling expenses are granted. The salaries run from $600 to $3,000 per annum."

FREIGHT PREFERENCE AGAINST BRITAIN.

At a meeting of the Association of Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom, held in London in March, a resolution was passed calling upon the president of the Board of Trade to take steps to secure for British shippers equality of treatment in the matter of freight rates at the hands of the American shipping combine. The complaint aimed particularly at freights to South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

In justification of the move, Mr. Goodman, Birmingham, stated that the White Star line, with British management but in the American trust, gave a rate of 15s. to 20s. a ton on merchandise from New York to Sydney with transhipment at Liverpool, and charged British goods by the same steamer from Liverpool to Sydney 30s. to 42s. 6d a ton. The difference, it was asserted, created a material preference in favor of American goods.

MAPLE SUGAR RICHES.

To the Editor of Canadian Grocer :

Dear Sir,—Under the above heading, in the Montreal Star of March 14, 1906, J. E. K. Herrick, of Abbotsford, is reported as saying that not more than twenty per cent. of the maple trees in Quebec will be tapped this year. He says, "I ascribe this condition of affairs to the present law, which does not make it necessary to distinctly specify on the label of every package whether its contents are pure maple products or adulterated." This statement is not true, because the law provides that every package shall be plainly marked on the label, mixed or compound, when the maple is not absolutely pure.

Fifteen or twenty years ago, according to the best information available, maple sugar was sold at about the same price as cane sugar, and slow sale at that. There was at that time no object in using cane sugar to make maple syrup, because the maple sugar could be bought at price of cane sugar. As soon as the makers of maple syrup came into the market and advertised their special brands, and thus created a demand for their goods, price of maple sugar advanced, and to-dav one pound of maple sugar will buv from two to three pounds of granulated sugar.

Price of cane sugar is to-day quoted at from 3½ to 5c. per lb., and maple sugar is quoted at from 7 to 9c. per lb.

Is Mr. Herrick, of Abbotsford, sure that Quebec sugar producers refuse to tap their trees because the price of maple sugar is so much higher than it was formerly ?

What is all this trouble about, and what does Mr. Herrick expect to accomplish by additional legislation ? Would the passage of more stringent laws increase the consumption of sugar, and would it cause a greater demand for same ?

Possibly it might do away with the syrup dealer, who has worked hard to create a demand for the grower's maple sugar. Would such a result prove to be of advantage to the grower ? I think otherwise, because the more uses an article of food has the larger will be its consumption and, consequently, greater will be the demand.

Maple sugar is now in good demand in Canada, and all the sugar that is offered for sale finds prompt buyers.

Nearly all of last year's sugar crop was sold months ago, and I believe the bulk of it was sold to the syrup makers.

It must be remembered that the demand for these goods will increase year by year, as the population increases, while the production of maple sugar is limited and difficult to increase.

If the grower will be content with present improved market conditions, there is no doubt that all the sugar that he will be able to produce will be wanted in the future at good prices.

All this fuss about adulterated syrup and sugar will have as unfavorable effect on the producers' prices as it does on the syrup makers' prices, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Herrick, of Abbotsford, believes otherwise.

There is now a law in Canada which prohibits the use of the word "Honey" on any package or label unless contents of same is absolutely pure honey. It is a well-known fact to all dealers in honey that pure strained honey will become what is called candied, and when such is the case it has the appearance of corn meal, and the majority of consumers decline to buy it when in this condition. The result is, there is scarcely any demand for strained honey in Canada when it is packed in glass.

If the packer would be allowed to mix 10 or 15 per cent. of glucose with the pure strained honey the glucose would prevent the honey from becoming candied, in which case there would be larger sales of the commodity, and the consequence would be more demand and better prices for strained honey.

The honey law was doubtless enacted to increase the price of honey. The question now is: Has the law had the desired effect? Does strained honey command better prices to-day than it did before this law went into effect?

If consumption and demand have decreased the producer will be the only loser.

What would be the result in case a law be passed which shall prevent the use of the word "Maple" being used on any goods that are in part made from cane sugar? Such a law would stop all confectioners from using the word maple on any and all candies that are made in part from cane sugar. Maple cream and maple specialties would be unlawful under such a law.

The next question that presents itself is: What effect would such a law have on the consumption and demand for maple products? It is generally admitted that the more uses there are for an article of food the greater the demand for it.

It is also to be remembered that Beauce county maple is of dark color and rank flavor. If put on the market in its original condition it would not be a popular seller. The question is: Would additional legislation be of any benefit to the producer?

BEAUCE COUNTY.

OF VALUE TO EXPORTERS.

Few New York hotels and office buildhave just received further information from Australia regarding the details of the Trade Description Act which provides punishment for the false descriptions of goods imported into the Australian Commonwealth. The new law was assented to by the Commonwealth Government on Dec. 8, but will not come into operation until June 8.

The purpose of the bill is to stop the importation into Australia of the following goods which do not bear the prescribed trade description: Articles used for food or drink by man, or used in the manufacture or preparation of such articles medicines and medicinal preparations for internal and external use; fertilizers; apparel, including boots and shoes, and all material from which such apparel is made; jewelry; seeds and plants.

A penalty of $500 and the confiscation of the goods is the punishment provided for the importation of goods falsely described under the terms of this act, and a false description is defined as a label or wrapper bearing misleading information on the following points: The nature, number, quantity, quality, purity, class, grade, measure, gauge, size, or weight of the goods; the country or place in or at which the goods were made or produced; the manufacturer or producer of the goods, or the person by whom they were selected, packed, or in any way prepared for the market; the mode of manufacturing, producing, selecting, packing, or otherwise preparing the goods; the material or ingredients of which the goods are composed or from which they are derived.

The label or wrapper must also state whether the goods are the subject of an existing patent or copyright. It is further stated that the manufacturer or the importer is not required to furnish information which discloses trade secrets of manufacture or preparation unless the disclosure is, in the opinion of the governor-general, necessary for the protection of the health or welfare of the public.

HAMILTON GROCERS' SMOKER.

It was indeed a jovial company which met together at Hamilton in the Board of Trade building on the evening of the 5th inst. Not for business, but "on pleasure bent" was the order; and the retail grocers of Hamilton proved once again that they knew how to enjoy themselves when called together for a few hours of social intercourse.

Refreshments were in abundance. The programme speaks for itself:

J. Kirkpatrick was chairman and the committee was composed of W. Smye, chairman; Geo. Cann, John Forth, M. R. Hill.

R. T. Steele gave a few well-timed remarks on the City Improvement Society's work, and Bay Hill wound up the very pleasant evening with one of his famous speeches. An interesting and unique programme was put on and was much enjoyed.

WIARTON'S SUGAR FACTORY.

There is a report current that the Wiarton sugar factory is to be again revived. This factory, which has been closed down some two years, is in an excellent position in the midst of good country for beet cultivation, and it would seem a thousand pities not to be able to do something with it.

It will be remembered that a few months ago there was recorded the sale of the whole of the plant to a new company, which was to have been in operation at Whitby. For some reason or other that company has not developed, and the sale of the plant appears not to have been consummated. Alex. McNeill, ex-M.P., has taken the matter up with his usual energy and pluck, and it is to be hoped that some good will come out of the movement.

BROKERS' ASSOCIATION MEETING

On March 24 the first annual meeting of the Western Wholesale Brokers' Association was held in the offices of Tees & Persse, Winnipeg. The attendance was large and considerable enthusiasm was manifested in the work of the association, all being agreed as to the necessity of continuing its existence.

It was decided to hold a dinner during April, and Messrs. Watson, Carman and Cheyne were appointed as a committee to attend to the details.

General regret was exprssed at the continued illness of President Jas. Tees, and the secretary was instructed to send him a resolution of sympathy from the association.

Officers were elected as follows: Hon. president, Jas. Tees; president, E. Nicholson; vice-president, Jos. Carman; secretary-treasurer, Geo. Adam.

Executive Committee—Chas. Duncan, G. B. Thompson, J. Gordon, Jos. Carman, S. Watson.

The legislative committee will consist of Messrs. Nicholson, Gordon and Carman.

This association was formed one year ago and it is now in a flourishing state. The membership list is as follows: Geo. Adam & Co., Armytage & Flett, E. W. Ashley, Buchanan & Gordon, Jos. Carman, John A. Cheyne, Chas. Duncan, Jos. E. Huxley, Reg. Lawson, W. L. MacKenzie & Co., Fred T. Miller, Nicholson & Bain, H. P. Pennock & Co., C. J. Scandrett, Scott, Bathgate & Co., J. M. Scott, Tees & Persse, G. B. Thompson, Stuart Watson, R. B. Wiseman.

DOMINION PRODUCE CO. MOVE.

The Dominion Produce Co., of Winnipeg, moved last week from their warehouse on Princess street to larger and more convenient quarters on Higgins avenue. In their new location they have two large cold storage rooms in which to store their butter and they will have added facilities to handle their produce. Jos. Griffin, of St. Thomas, Ont., one of the directors of the company, was in the city last week and went on to the coast accompanied by J. Y. Griffin.

UPS AND DOWNS OF MARKET PRICES.

Montreal, April 12, 1906.

GROCERIES—On the whole business in grocery circles has been better the past week than it has been for a long time. This must be accounted for, of course, by the approach of Easter and the end of Lent. Jobbers report a better general demand, which, although not great, is better than what they have been receiving. Collections have been better, too, this week. Teas are on the quiet side, but what is required is, on the whole, better tea. This is very encouraging to the trade. Sugar is inactive at the old prices. Trade has not been very brisk during the week. Coffee is rather quiet. In spices, ginger has advanced about three cents, and is getting stronger. White pepper is quiet and black is firmer. There is nothing new in rice and tapioca, the demand for both being about normal. Evaporated apples are bringing 12½c. still, but it is expected that the demand will fall off as soon as new fruit begins to arrive. Beans have dropped again and are selling from $1.45 to $1.50. There has been a rise of one cent in molasses at the primary market, and it is thought that there will be an advance locally in the near future. Eggs are interesting, now that Easter is at hand. According to last reports the receipts are not quite equal to the demand. New maple syrup is still coming in, and jobbers are quite busy filling orders. There is no feature of importance in canned goods. Tomatoes are still in good demand at prices quoted. In foreign dried fruits a better demand for prunes is noticed. Almonds have experienced a decided advance since the report of damage to the Tarragona crop has been confirmed.

CANNED GOODS — No interesting feature has appeared on the canned goods horizon since last week. In fact the situation remains just as it was then. Tomatoes are still selling at $1.20. They did not advance, as it was thought they would some time ago. Stocks of corn and peas are ample to take care of all orders, which, unfortunately, are very slow in coming in. Canned fruits are rather quiet.

SUGARS—There is no change in the sugar situation since last week. Trade is on the quiet side. For the past three or four weeks the business transacted has been very good, but this week there seems to have been a falling off, as sales have not been as good as could be expected.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS—A firmer tone is reported in the local molasses market. Latest advices from the Barbadoes say there is a firmer feeling there too, even at the advance of one cent which has taken place. Although the prices have not experienced a rise yet, it is thought that in the near future there will be a change, since dealers cannot place orders in primary markets at old figures. Corn syrups are going very well, but the arrival of new maple stock has affected their sale to some extent, as is usual at this season.

TEA—The market is on the quiet side at present, demand for teas generally being rather small. It is encouraging to note that gradually the public demand for a better class of teas, particularly blacks, is constantly growing in Quebec Province. For a long time the quality of the tea sold in this province has not been up to the standard of what has been disposed of by Ontario and other provinces. There is no change in the condition of Ceylon blacks. The demand is only fair. Greens have been subject to the usual inquiry. Business has not been brisk in Japan. Most Japan tea representatives are busy with import orders, the local trade being very quiet.

COFFEE—The market is inactive. The visible supply, however, is continually decreasing, which would indicate that the firmness in prices will be likely to be maintained. Messrs. Watt, Scott & Goodacre, in their report of April 9, say :

"Both the New York and Brazil markets have been particularly uninteresting during the past week, owing to an inactive market. Prices have been held down in anticipation of sales of May contracts. There has, however, been considerable switching from May into more distant months, and what contracts have actually come on the market have found ready buyers without any further decline.

"The visible supply statement contains further encouragement for holders. The carry-over of previous accumulations on 1st July next is placed at 9 million bags, against 11¼ millions at the beginning of last crop year, and 12½ million of the year previous. This is not considered excessive in view of a consumption now placed at 16¾ millions, against the world's production of 14½ million bags per annum.

"The above are somewhat large figures to grasp, but the relations of carry-over, consumption and crop possibilities are apparent."

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Gradual advancing in prices on Valencia raisins and currants has at last had its effect, and jobbers have been picking up all desirable parcels on spot. In prunes a more active demand has been noticeable at firm prices. Dates in original packages quiet at last quotations, the trade seeming to prefer the package style, which has much to recommend it to the retailer. Figs—The market is completely bare of Comadres, or Smyrna in bags, and the demand is limited for any other kind. Almonds, Taragonas, have exhibited a most decided advance, owing to confirmation of the frost report, which appears to be of quite a serious nature. The same advance is also obtained on shelled almonds and filberts. Walnuts—Cablegram received the other day also reports severe damage in Grenoble Valley, and as stock of currant crop is now in very small compass in the primary market, better prices may be looked for in the future. Shelled walnuts have again advanced in consequence of the above mentioned circumstances. Pineapples—New season pineapple has now arrived from Singapore. The quality proves to be excellent, as usual, and the present low prices should stimulate an increased demand.

HONEY—As the season advances sales of honey fall off. The arrival of new maple syrup has cut down the demand very considerably. It will be noticed that prices are lower for this same reason.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, April 12, 1906.

BUTTER—Market rather firm. Choicest new creamery, selling 23½c. to 24½c. Still sales of old stock at wide range prices. No new dairy yet.

CHEESE—No change at all since detail report.

EGGS—Selling at 20c. Supplies not coming forward as fast as they should, consequently stock is limited.

PROVISIONS—Market still strong. Hams and bacon selling at prices quoted. Pure lard also unchanged. "Roar's Head" lard advanced ½c. lb. Dressed hogs bring $10.50 per 100 lbs.

BEANS—Prices picking up a little. Sales made to-day at $1.56.

MAPLE PRODUCTS — New maple syrup is coming in every day now, and orders that have been booked for some considerable time are rapidly being filled. Manufacturers are very busy. Although there is not a great deal of new stock placed on the market, dealers and manufacturers say that they experience no difficulty in obtaining all they require.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Stocks are still selling at 12½c., but buyers seem to hesitate, as if not anxious to purchase. It is just possible that there will be some little decline when the green fruits begin to arrive at a later date, but for the present the price will remain as it is, and any change will first be to a higher figure.

FISH—There is a good demand for most lines of fish on account of this being the last week of Lent. This applies particularly to fresh fish. There have been a few arrivals and shipments received of fresh dore and carp, which have met with ready sale. Owing to the law prohibiting the export of fresh dore to the United States from Canada, the local market has received much larger supply that it would otherwise have obtained, but even yet the receipts do not meet the demand. Fresh halibut is coming in in limited quantities, as is fresh haddock and steak cod, and these are selling at very reasonable prices. In smoked fish, haddock and haddies are in rather fair demand, but stocks are not large. The demand for salt fish has fallen off considerably.

Ontario Markets.

UPS AND DOWNS OF MARKET PRICES.

PROVISIONS— prices firmer; BUTTER—firm, creamery increasing; EGGS—higher before the fall, 17c.; ORANGES—quotably easier; VEGETABLES—old getting scarce, new are slow; FISH—fresh white fish in small quantities; HIDES—very scarce.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, April 13, 1906.

GROCERIES—Trade is very good and prices throughout practically the entire list are ruling firm and without change. There is a healthy tone to business and the opening of the season is expected to witness a considerable expansion.

CANNED GOODS—A very firm situation prevails in all lines. The advance in tomatoes seems to have halted for the moment and the price ranges from $1.25 to $1.30. The demand for the time being is said not to be large, because a good many retailers have taken on some surplus stock. Warmer weather would immediately increase consumption, but in any case stocks are not regarded as sufficient to meet the demand till the new pack comes in.

SUGAR — The situation locally is quiet, with quotations unchanged. Trading is within narrow limits, and the refiners' representatives are beginning to look to berry time for an accelerated movement.

The world's visible supply is still 1,171,780 tons ahead of last year's at uneven dates, the total on April 5 being 4,040,318 tons, as against 2,868,538 last year. The position in raws is firmer again, and Willett & Gray say: "Altogether the sugar situation shows an improving tendency in all directions." Germany has reduced the consumption tax on sugar from 14 to 10 marks, which will no doubt increase the German consumption considerably, a good feature for the future.

Willett & Gray estimate an increase of 2,668,898 tons in the world's production of sugar in 1906 over the production in 1905.

The estimate in tons on cane is as follows:

	1905-06.	1904-05.
America	3,271,308	2,997,608
Asia	1,144,525	1,145,775
Australasia	220,000	214,688
Africa	295,000	232,101
Europe	28,000	28,000
Total	4,951,833	4,618,172

And on beet:

	1905-06.	1904-05.
Europe	6,970,000	4,708,758
United States	283,717	209,722
Total	7,253,717	4,918,480
Total canned beet	12,205,550	9,536,652
Increase	2,668,898

Mr. Hugh Blain stated yesterday that the Berlin Sugar Co. would have all the beets they required this season. Already contracts have been made for 4,250 acres, which is 80 acres more than the total acreage contracted for last year.

TEA—The market here has not developed any features of note. In London the upward tendency received something of a set back by reason of unusually heavy offerings. Better quality teas are still in demand.

COFFEE—The experts are still waiting for the rise, which, according to the statistics, should have arrived some time ago. Willett & Gray say:

"The statistical figures for the first of April turned out more favorable than expected. The decrease in the world's visible for the month of March was 576,000 bags, against 305,000 bags for the same month last year, making a difference in the supplies on the first of April, compared with a year ago, of more than 2,200,000 bags. The speculative market has paid very little attention to this, preferring to listen to the repeated assertions of prospects of a large growing crop in Santos, the same as they did a year ago, with this difference, however, that at that time, all the leading firms in Brazil made estimates of a large crop, while the assertions that have lately been made are from unknown quarters in Brazil. While to merchants experienced in the business the crop stories from unknown quarters have little weight, to the outside speculators who do not know one name from the other, it leaves an impression, and many of them have liquidated lately.

"The consumption during the last two crop years has been 3,000,000 bags larger than the production, and since two years, the rate of exchange in Brazil has advanced from 12 to 16 pence. If, notwithstanding this, the price remains unchanged, it means selling out by holders who have become tired, and it usually happens that such holdings have been sold by the time the position has become much stronger and a condition created like twenty years ago, in 1886, when in the month of July, with the world expecting lower prices, a steady advance in price for nine months was experienced."

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Locally the currant market is unmoved, abroad the market is dearer. Quotations received by cable this week are at 18s. 6d., which shows an advance of 1-4c. Owing to the heavy withdrawal of currants under the regulations covering their export from Greece, the quantity available for export is now so small that it is not thought the price can possibly recede. Valencia raisins appear to be generally in fairly good supply in Canada, and there has been only a slight tendency towards hardening of prices, whereas in London, Eng., where the chief stocks are held, the market has advanced about 1-2c.

Candied peels are in small supply on spot. Heavy contracts have been made for Fall delivery, and these appear to have been fully justified, as the market generally has advanced recently several shillings, and it is thought that the supply, owing to the scarceness of raw material will be barely equal to the demand. The largest factory in England has already announced that they cannot book further orders this year, having contracted for all they will be able to supply.

The market in prunes is very firm, and stocks are said to be in small compass. One of the largest of the California prune packers telegraphs his representatives at New York that he has decided to hold the balance of his Santa Clara prunes on a 4 1-4c. f.o.b. bag basis. The same shipper asked 10c. f.o.b. for choice apricots and 9 1-2c. for choice Muir peaches, both packed in 50-pound boxes.

Referring to the increased demand for candied citron and peel for both April-May and later delivery, William Hills, jr., New York, says: "The position of these articles is an exceedingly strong one and on account of the goods being decided luxuries, the actual consumption is very little affected by the fluctuations in the market. If the bookings for later delivery are any indication of the demand which is likely to be seen during the active season there will not be sufficient citron and peels to supply the requirements of the market for the holiday trade. Citron continues to offer for April-May shipment at present prices, June-July shipment 1c. higher and August-September 2c. above present prices. Orange and lemon peel offer at present figures for shipments any time up to September 30, all prices being guaranteed against decline up to time of delivery."

FOREIGN NUTS—All European nuts have been affected by adverse weather conditions. Almonds have suffered most and they have advanced 2c. per pound. France has been buying shelled almonds in Sicily very freely within the last month, and consequently has ceased to be exporters. The market for other nuts is affected, because with very heavy shortage in the almond crop the demand will in part go to filberts, walnuts, etc.

B. C. Markets

Vancouver, April 4, 1906.

Activity in northern B.C. trade is the feature in wholesale and jobbing circles at the present moment. There are two factors. The preparations for the approaching cannery season in northern B.C. waters are now in full swing, and every vessel sailing for Skeena River, Rivers Inlet, Naas River and other ports is carrying a full cargo of supplies. The tinplate for the cans required for the season's pack of salmon has practically all gone forward. The employes who are engaged to make the cans and otherwise prepare the various plants for reception of the salmon run are all at the canneries, and now the provisions and other supplies are going forward. By the first of May everything will be in readiness. There are three or four new plants to be finished in time, and the work on these is being rushed. The last to ship machinery, etc., has a vessel already loaded and it goes forward to-day.

The other factor in the activity of coast trade at present is the unprecedented boom in the lumber trade, which is having the effect of turning attention to logging, and new camps are being opened every week. Many coasting steamers do a thriving trade carrying supplies to a hundred and one out-of-the-way spots where logging camps are located on the coast. As the demand for lumber is coming in stronger than ever from the Northwest, where thousands of settlers are going in and building homes, the raw material is likely to continue in demand, and that means the maintenance of a large number of logging camps, all of which are supplied by the jobbers of the coast cities.

THE MARKETS—In grocery lines it is noted that while most lines of canned goods are steady, the price of gallon apples has stiffened, the quotation here being now $3.40 per doz. Tomatoes are also firmer, though quotations which are from $1.27 to $1.30 are not yet up to present basis of eastern markets.

Dried fruits have not been moving very freely. Local wholesalers have to contend with the opposition of direct selling to the retail trade from San Francisco. The price of raisins has now dropped until the range is from 9 to 9 1-4c. in 1 lb. cartons. Demand is not strong.

Sugar has shown no further changes from the recent advance of 1-8c. base price. The market appears to be steady at the present quotations.

PRODUCE—Butter is nearly all local. The only exception is a lot of choice New Zealand creamery which arrived via the New Zealand-San Francisco line and came up from 'Frisco in the Pacific Coast SS. Co.'s steamer. This butter competes in price with the local fresh creamery, both being put at 30c. to the trade in 1 lb. bricks, 1c. cheaper in bulk.

No eastern creamery arrives, and price is now prohibitive. A quantity of storage, mainly Government creamery from the Northwest, is still in the market and bringing 26c. and 27c. A small quantity of California fresh creamery has been received. It is still rather high in price to import profitably.

Local fresh eggs continue plentiful and entirely fill the market. No importations are being made from Oregon and Washington, and case stock is finding no sale. Present price is quoted at 24c. per doz. to the trade.

Oranges continue firm in price, though no further advances have been made since last quotations. The range is covered from $3 to $3.75. Lemons have been moving up somewhat rapidly, increased demand having influenced the market.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, April, 1906.

All signs now point to Spring — it might almost be said, Summer. The river boats are beginning to make short trips, though navigation cannot yet be said to be open, but very soon will be. The last mail boat leaving Liverpool for St. John for this season sails on the 12th from Liverpool, leaving St. John on the 28th. Winter port business has far exceeded any previous year. The past two weeks have been extremely busy ones, our wharf accommodation taxed to its utmost, immense numbers of immigrants landing

OIL—Prices in burning oil unchanged. There is steady business. Sales in lubricating oils have been large. There is a great increase in the sale of gasoline. The increase in the number of gasoline engines is surprising. In paint oils, while linseeds are unchanged at quite full figures, market hardly as firm. Turpentine is still extremely high. Cod oil firm, business now light.

SALT—There are large arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt, prices are rather easier. The combine is broken. Sales are good. This is the busy season. Fine salt prices unchanged, improved demand. Dealers have fair stocks of rock salt.

CANNED GOODS — Tomatoes are again higher and market firm, further advance expected. Corn is firm. Peas cheap. Gallon apples have a good demand at higher figures, market tending upward. While fair stocks of fruit are held here, market is firm. In salmon good local stocks held ; owing to situation west, market is strong. Meats are low. In domestic fish situation is quiet, some sardines still held.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples are scarce and high, best stock is bringing five dollars. Banana season is now open and sales are good, prices about as usual. Oranges firmer, chiefly Valencias sold ; some Californias offered. Lemons are rather higher.

DRIED FRUIT—In raisins a fair sale, chiefly seeded, which are quite low. In bulk goods only fair demand. Malaga loose and Valencia layers chiefly offered. Currants are very firm, being slightly higher. Prunes have steady sale, prices higher, small sizes very scarce. Apricots and peaches also higher, sales not large. Dates, a steady demand, market firmer, package goods chiefly sold. Peels are being bought, prices high, particularly citron. Evaporated apples hold at full figures. Egyptian onions are very firm, some American are being sold, late Valencias show good quality.

SUGAR—Dealers are finding it hard to get supplies from the refinery, prices unchanged. While present figures are low market is firm.

MOLASSES—This is an interesting line. Barbadoes holds the market. During the past week there were quite large arrivals, rather more than half being fancy or syrup. Higher prices are asked this week and the situation is reported very firm. Old Porto Rico still offered, but sale limited. It is thought little new will be imported.

FISH—There is a fair variety of fresh fish, including lobsters. In dry fish, stocks are getting well worked off. The tendency is downward. The extreme prices are considered a thing of the past. Smoked herrings are also easier. Pickled herring are very scarce and high. Haddies getting out of season. The very dull market is slightly improved.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, April 10, 1906.

The tone of the Maritime grocery markets is very firm. Trade is reported good in all sections, and in some it is much better than expected. No notable changes in prices are recorded. The jobbers are looking for a big Easter business, and the prospects are that their hopes will be realized. The travelers are sending in good orders, and the improved condition of the roads has helped business very greatly.

BUTTER AND EGGS—The markets for butter and eggs are practically the same as last week, prices being firm, with a slight improvement in the receipts. More fresh butter was marketed during the week than since the first of the year, and it is expected that from now on receipts will continue to increase. The butter received is mostly all new made, and being packed in small tubs, from three to eight pounds, it finds ready sale. This class of butter is always in good demand, and many of the jobbers say that their customers prefer it to any other class of butter handled by them. The price for the choicest is always a cent or two above the other grades of butter, except the best creamery, but the consumer prefers it and pays the extra price.

Eggs are not coming in quite so plentifully as expected, but the receipts about the middle of Easter week will probably be heavy, as is usually the case. Besides the eggs coming in from points in the province, Prince Edward Island has now started to make shipment, and this competition will no doubt have a tendency to reduce prices. Hundreds of cases of cold storage eggs are held here, and those who have them stored cannot find a market for them. Fresh eggs are quoted on the island at 14 to 14½ cents, and they are jobbing here from 16 to 17 cents. Nova Scotia eggs are quoted at 17 cents.

Stocks of cheese held here are very light, and the quality of the new makes said not to be of the best. It is quoted here at 14 cents for large and small.

FRUITS—The market is now well supplied with fruit. Bananas are coming in quite freely, and stocks of oranges have improved. Prices are very firm, with a strong tendency. Oranges are considered very high, Jamaicas being quoted at $7 per barrel, and the jobber is complaining of heavy waste, all having to be picked over. This is said to be about the end of the old crop, and it is expected that the new crop, which is reported to be of good quality, will be along very shortly. Valencias are quoted here as follows: Large, 420s, $5.60; ordinary, $4.85, 7, 14, $6.10; California navels, 126 and 150, $4.60; 96s, $4.10; 176 and 200, $4.85.

Lemons are good in quality and quantity, and are quoted at $3 to $3.50.

Pineapples are $2.50 per dozen, cukes 10 cents each, strawberries 35 to 40 cents per box, rhubarb 9 to 10 cents, and onions from $2.25 to $2.50.

APPLES—Shipments of apples to the English market are still taking place. O. S. Miller, of Annapolis county, last week made a shipment of 1,250 of good hard Winter fruit, which was in fine condition. It is probable that he will obtain fancy prices for his stock, as the English markets are likely pretty clear of good fruit at this season of the year. Mr. Miller hopes that his fruit will reach the market in time for the Easter trade. The local market is almost bare of good apples. Some Nonpareils and Northern Spys are offering, but the quality is only fair. They are quoted at from $4.50 to $5. The stocks of Baldwins held by some jobbers have rotted in the cellars. The Ben Davis offered are good looking, but they are slow sellers here.

VEGETABLES—Stocks of vegetables are being greatly reduced through rot and consumption. All the stock now held has to be picked over, and the waste is very great. Potatoes are quoted at from 50 to 60 cents, turnips at 90 cents, parsnips at $1.75, beets at $1.50, and carrots at $1.50.

FISH—The local market for salt fish is fairly steady, and the home consumption is quite good. Prices are firm. The foreign markets are somewhat depressed, particularly the Trinidad markets, which are overstocked. Two Nova Scotia vessels which recently arrived at Port of Spain had 395 and 229 packages of fish respectively, and these have not helped the present condition of the market any. Pickled fish is selling freely. The receipts of fresh fish are improving some, and the demand as usual during Lent is good.

N. S. Notes.

The Furness-Withy steamer Annapolis sailed recently for London, with a large general cargo, including 4,079 barrels of apples.

R. B. Harris, formerly with B. H. Dodge & Co., and who left Kentville about a month ago for the west, has opened up a hardware store in Fielding, Saskatchewan.

Miss L. Shuttleworth, and Miss Miller, of Guelph, of the staff of the Farmers' Institute lecturers, have been appointed by the Provincial Government of Nova Scotia to take charge of two dairy schools in Nova Scotia.

The council of the Kentville Board of Trade met on Monday night last to arrange for the quarterly meeting. Capt. Allan and Mr. Burns advanced some good ideas and the president and council are desirous for a good forward movement.

The Annapolis Valley Vinegar Co. have shipped the whole of last Fall's output of cider in ten carloads, and amounting to about 220 tons, to the English market. This week they are sending one car of vinegar to Wm. Law & Co., Yarmouth, and still have some 68,000 gallons of vinegar remaining for the Spring trade.

Manitoba Markets

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, April 5, 1906.)

UPS AND DOWNS OF MARKET PRICES.

SALMON—Humpback advanced 35 cents per case; MATCHES—general advance in price; AXLE GREASE—advance; CALIFORNIA DRIED FRUITS—market firm and sharp advance likely; PRUNES—advance ¼ to ½ cent per lb.; NECTARINES—advance of ¾c. per lb.

Winnipeg, April 12, 1906.

Business continues very active and the general tone of the market indicates higher prices in several lines. A number of minor changes are noted above. The local market is without any features of special interest.

CANNED GOODS—Apparently coast supplies of humpback salmon are running low as local jobbing houses find this line difficult to obtain. The local price is now $4.10 per case.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — Owing to the continued rains on the Pacific coast all California fruits are likely to be sharply advanced. Many growers estimate that their crop has already been injured to the extent of 25 per cent. Silver prunes, early peaches and apricots have suffered severely and the pack will be light. There is accordingly a very firm tone to the California dried fruit market and prices are almost certain to be materially advanced. Local quotations on prunes show a general advance of ¼ to ½ cent per lb. and revised prices will be noted below.

A "VEGETABLE PRODUCT."

On page 48 of The Canadian Grocer, April 6, a reference was made to Mrs. Rorer's Saratoga Chips, and it was inadvertently put under the heading of "Breakfast Food Enterprise." Saratoga Chips are a vegetable product, and as such are useful as a general article of diet and should not be confounded with the many cereal foods.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

There is not much new to report on the market for cheese and butter, the old product is now so nearly exhausted that it is hardly worth while to even mention it, while the new make is still, and will remain so for some weeks yet, in its infancy. Yet, the present interest is entirely centred in this new make. Butter being generally the earlier product, is in demand for local consumption and prices show an advancing tendency, as consumers want a fresh flavored article rather than the stale goods made last Fall. But cheese still leads in price and farmers want the highest obtainable price for their milk. They will, therefore deliver their new milk to the cheese factories rather than to the creameries wherever this is practicable.

It is therefore only reasonable to expect that more cheese and less butter will be produced at the commencement of the new season, and the chances are that both products may soon come to an even level of prices.

We have repeatedly mentioned the undesirability of farmers adopting the hand separators, as it is a sure means of deteriorating the quality of our finest Canadian creameries. The Montreal Produce Merchants' Association are now coming out with a circular, endorsed by the officers of the Departments of Agriculture of the Dominion and of the Province of Quebec strongly condemning the use of these hand separators. This circular reads as follows:

"The members of the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association have during the past season been still further impressed by the inferior quality, generally, of butter made from hand-separated cream, especially when gathered less frequently than every day, and they desire once more to warn makers and patrons against the use of the hand separator.

"To patrons who find it desirable on other grounds than mere convenience to use hand separators, they would strongly advise that the cream be conveyed to the creameries every day in jacketed cans properly insulated. Makers are further most strongly urged to keep hand-separator cream apart from that separated at the factory, to churn it by itself and to pack and sell the product separately. If these precautions are not rigidly observed there is no doubt that our reputation for producing finest butter and the profitableness of the industry will suffer."

This is precisely what we have been advocating in these articles for some time past. Heretofore the highest price paid for butter in the Dominion of Canada was for the product of the Eastern Townships. This butter has gained an enviable reputation in British markets; it took the eye and taste of the consumers, who were willing to pay a good price for it. The manufacturers and dealers in dairy supplies, having supplied the factories or creameries of the country with their machinery, commenced to look for further markets, and introduced their hand separators to individual farmers. The farmer, buying such a hand separator, is told of the convenience of keeping his skim milk at home and only delivering the cream to the creamery at his leisure, which might be only in three to four days after milking, instead of delivering fresh milk daily.

So far, so good, but cream kept for some days and then carted over rough country roads in hot weather, cannot possibly produce as good quality of butter as milk delivered fresh to the creamery every day. The proper place to have the cream separated is the factory or creamery, and then the fresh cream churned will produce a high grade of butter.

It has often been truthfully said that Ontario produces a better quality of cheese, and Quebec a better quality of butter. The secret is that Ontario butter is made on the "gathered cream" system, and if our farmers in the Province of Quebec will now adopt this system, they will certainly ruin their reputation for fine butter.

What they should do is to continue making finest quality of butter and improve their cheese factory system to the level of Ontario. They need better cheese factories and they should make a more uniform size and style of cheese, and, if they will leave the hand separators out for making butter, they will surely come to the head of the dairy industry of the Dominion of Canada and the farmers will reap the benefit in securing top market prices for their products.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The situation is very strong; no special feature of development is reported since our last review. There are fair supplies of hogs coming to hand at Ontario points, nothing like sufficient to keep pace with the ever increasing trade. At Montreal and more eastern points deliveries have been light and competition keen between buyers, thus still further strengthening the market.

The English market reports an active demand for Canadian products with advancing prices equal to 25c. and 50c. respectively for lean and heavy. This advance has given an impetus to trade on this side, and in measure accounts for improved prices.

Stocks on this side are extremely small, and at present rate of production there is little chance of accumulation, as everything finds a ready market either at home or abroad.

The American situation appears to be about on the same lines as is in evidence in Canada, except that dealers on that side consider prices have reached their limit and are in consequence holding back. The National Provisioner in their most recent issue state:

"The hog products markets have tamed a little occasionally through the week, as occasioned in part by the apprehension of larger hog receipts at the packing points, and in a small degree by a fear of a coal strike. But in an all round way the situation is a favorable one for the selling interests, although it does not look probable that there will be any marked bulges in prices in the near future. Indeed, if hog supplies increase in the degree expected, temporarily, lower prices in a moderate degree are looked for.

"There is a more pronounced feeling on the part of some traders that the late range of prices has been high enough for the near future, and it has tempted occasionally to selling on the part of the 'longs.'

"Nevertheless, the prices of the products are very reasonable as against the cost of the hogs, and the fact that the packing does not accumulate shows the full rate of the consumption in home sources and the steady requirements of Europe either on demand or from consignments."

OUR LONDON LETTER.

By Our Own Correspondent.

Once more this week the market for New Zealand and Australian butter has been in a very weak position, and sellers have been compelled to cut into their prices by 3s. Stocks are still very heavy, and prospects are not particularly bright. No less than 50,000 boxes of Australian arrived here during the past seven days, and a further 10,000 boxes are expected shortly. New Zealand butter to the amount of 50,000 boxes is due to-day. An extraordinary feature of the market is the great difference between quotations on salted and unsalted. This is due to the very great over-supply of salted and scarcity of unsalted. The latter has remained stationary for some weeks at 108s. to 110s., while the former has steadily declined week by week, until Australian salted is now realizing only 92s. to 94s., which is 12s. less than at this time last year. Since the beginning of March 85,450 cwts. of butter have been received from Australia, 63,- 313 cwts. from New Zealand, and 823 cwts. from Canada.

It was stated at the Brisbane Butter Manufacturers' Association that last year 185,000 boxes of butter were shipped from Queensland to London. This year the amount is likely to be even greater. At one time the freight rate was £7 10s. per ton, but since the inauguration of the Orient service it has fallen to £3 14s. 4d.

The subject of butter adulteration is being debated with greater ardor now than ever, and the crucial moment is at hand when it will be known whether the proposed bill is to be put forward in Parliament, and what chances of success it has. At the invitation of Lord Carrington, the Minister of the Board of Agriculture, Lord Strathcona has consented to give evidence before a select committee of the butter trade, which is now sitting in the Commons. In a letter, which he recently addressed to the Times, the High Commissioner responded to the Chief of the Board of Agriculture's invitation to state the Canadian view of the matter. His view, it is well known, is that of all colonial butter exporters. He has pointed out that, amongst other things, the Canadian Act of 1903 prohibits the manufacture, importation or sale of butter containing over 16 per cent. of water. Sir T. Elliott, secretary to the Board of Agriculture, proposed that the Canadian Act should be followed by legislation prohibiting the sending out, from any registered factory, of butter containing more than 16 per cent. of water.

There are several firms in England who make a livelihood by instructing retailers in the art of adulteration by the addition of foreign fats to the butter.

Another trick of the trade, according to an inspector of the Board of Agriculture, is to send milk-blended butter, made in the west of England, to London, and thence to Limerick; and to bring as fresh butter from Holland, what had first been sent there from a factory in London.

The position of Canadian cheese remains without any outstanding features. A fair demand rules, and quotations are unaltered at 66s. to 67s. for "Choicest," "Finest" parcels making two shillings less. It is exceedingly difficult to get any of the September make now. Arrivals of Canada cheese have been on a somewhat larger scale recently than during the beginning of the month, supplies at the Surrey commercial docks now being 71,805 boxes.

There is being held at the present time in Manchester a huge groceries exhibition. Sweden has a very attractive produce stall, but Canada is conspicuous by her absence. This should not be, in view of the fact that Manchester is the best market for Canadian butter.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS — Smoked meats have been selling better than usual on account of the approach of Easter. Other lines are selling about the same as usual. The sales of provisions have not been very large as prices are considered on the high side, but in most quarters it is thought that owing to the scarcity of live hogs prices will advance before they decline.

EGGS—Receipts of eggs are heavy, but are not equal to the demand. Last week the market was thoroughly cleaned out, and now it is difficult to obtain a full order, egg dealers, as a rule, being able to supply only half the quantity desired. The ruling price is between 18c. and 19c.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—The local consumptive demand for pork products continues good, and deliveries of live hogs are light. Consequently the market maintains its firm tone. Long clear has hardened to last week's higher range, 11 1-2c. Yearling lamb is a shade firmer. Otherwise quotations continue unchanged.

NEW GROCERY IN CARDINAL.

F. F. Adams, general grocer, of Cardinal, has taken into partnership J. C. Rogers, of Lisbon, N.Y. The new firm, which will be known as Adams & Rogers, have cut an arch into the adjoining store, thus throwing the building into a modern and up-to-date grocery establishment. This expansion speaks well for business in Cardinal.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The general outlook is certainly more promising. There appears to be a general movement all along the line; in the N. W. districts, whilst trade is not so active as it might be, still the improvement which was recently reported has been well maintained especially on the flour market. At Montreal a good deal of contrary reports are afloat, yet the general opinion is that thingss are improving, and that good trade is in sight. At Toronto, business has shown decided activity, and this in a measure is true of all important Ontario points.

There is a better inquiry, especially for Winter wheat flours from Great Britain, due presumably to the limited quantity of Winter wheat flours which has been offered of late. As the British flour dealers' bids for Winter wheat flours have for some time been below cost of production, they have only been able to secure very limited supplies from Ontario. An advance of threepence in their bids, combined with the very low rates of freight now ruling in Glasgow and similar points, has resulted in orders being effected during the week.

Export demand for Manitoba wheat has been variable, but exporters report fairly good sales, mostly for June and July shipment. The demand for spot Manitoba wheat for export has cleaned out all the round lots of No. 1 northern east of the lakes on the Grand Trunk railway and Canadian Pacific railway so that only tail ends or odd cars are now available for millers' use.

Seeding of wheat has begun in some of the earlier parts of Western Canada. The principal wheat sections are, of course, untouched as yet, but the very fine weather which prevails throughout March has made it likely that a good start will be made in the more important parts this week. Rosthern, in the new province of Saskatchewan, is one of the places where seeding has already begun.

The outlook would be much better if more plowing had been done last Fall. The percentage of Fall plowing was very light. Some place it at 35 per cent. of the acreage under cultivation last year. This means that there is an unusual amount of work for the farmers to do this Spring. If they should get on the land at once in every part of the country, they would still not get much more than last year's area covered. This with the new breaking of last year will give an acreage of about 4,500,000 or less of wheat in the three provinces. So far this year there has been but little rain and as the snowfall during the Winter was light, the warm weather of the last few days in March uncovered the land and dried it sufficiently for plowing. With a continuance of such weather, seeding will be general by the end of this week.

A VAST INDUSTRY.

The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. have issued a statement showing their vast milling and storage capacity. It is a notable record of a great Canadian industry.

Their Montreal wheat mills have a daily capacity of 8,000 barrels; Winnipeg, 3,000 barrels; Fort William, 3,000 barrels; corn products mill, Montreal, 1,500 barrels; oatmeal mill, Winnipeg, 300 barrels; total capacity of all mills, 15,800 barrels per day.

Their Montreal elevators have 150,000 bushels; Winnipeg, 550,000 bushels; Fort William, 600,000 bushels; 95 small elevators in Manitoba and the West, 3,035,000 bushels. Total elevator capacity, terminal and interior storage, 5,335,000.

Their flour storage capacity in Montreal is 150,000 barrels; Winnipeg, 47,000 barrels: Fort William, 100,000 barrels; total flour storage capacity, 302,000 barrels.

The company own their offices in Montreal, Winnipeg, and St. John, N.B., besides other premises in Montreal; also stables and machine shops in Montreal and Winnipeg.

The Montreal mills are all operated by water power and are fitted up with auxiliary electric power as well. The Fort William mill will be run by electric power, generated from the famous Kakabeka Falls, located eighteen miles from Fort William. The Winnipeg mill (at present run by a 1,200 horse-power steam engine) will be operated by electric power from the 1st of May next.

The Royal mill, Montreal, having a daily capacity of 6,000 barrels of flour, is by far the largest flour mill in the British Empire.

The mills in Montreal have unexcelled water and rail connection with all points, domestic and foreign, with sidings on the Grand Trunk, Canadian Pacific and Intercolonial Railways.

The Fort William mill is situated at the chief port of the Great Lakes, and on the main lines of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways, while the Winnipeg mill is also on the main lines of these roads.

The most of the wheat for the Montreal mills is loaded from the company's own elevator at Fort William and shipped through to Montreal without breaking bulk—many millions of bushels being brought down annually.

The company also maintain their own office in New York for the West India trade, as well as offices and warehouses at Toronto, London, Sarnia, Ottawa, Ont.; Vancouver, B.C.; and Quebec, Que.

A BANNER WHEAT PROVINCE.

The final report of last year's grain crop of Saskatchewan has been issued. What has been described as the banner wheat province of the Dominion, Saskatchewan, produced last year no less than 27,107,286 bushels of wheat, as against a little more than 15,000,000 in the previous year. The total yield is the highest and the acreage the greatest ever known in the West, and the average yield is higher than that of any other year except 1901.

In oats the yield went above 19,000,000, as against 10,000,000 in 1904, and the average per acre this year was 42.70, as against 31.04 last year.

Barley, flax and speltz each showed large yields, though the latter shows a slight falling off from the previous year.

The crop of the three western provinces in 1906 shows a wheat production in Manitoba of 44,761,416 bushels, as against 26,107,285 in Saskatchewan and 2,306,523 in Alberta.

Manitoba produced 45,484,025 bushels of oats, as against 19,215,055 produced by Saskatchewan and 9,514,180 by Alberta.

The barley yield of Manitoba was 14,064,175 bushels, while that of Saskatchewan was the smallest of the three, being only 893,396 bushels, as against Alberta's 1,775,914.

Saskatchewan heads the list in yield of flax, with 398,399 bushels; Manitoba had 326,964 and Alberta 8,337 bushels.

The report shows that the total area of the province in square miles is 251,887, and that of this there is 244,960 square miles of land surface and the balance under water.

The total area of districts under settlement is 73,048,960 acres, and of this there were 1,639,563 acres under crop in 1905.

The number of threshers who reported during the year was 1,194, and the number of grain farms in operation is 18,102. The average area under crop at each farm is 90.57 acres.

A HARD DIET.

An Englishman has discovered that common wood "is a valuable food, if cut small and eaten." Fancy a breakfast menu that should include chilled quartered oak, shredded birch with cream, followed by a sliver of broiled beech, some hashed white pine and black walnut balls, or even some hamburged mahogany. Rather give us the hemlock!

J. J. McCabe, of the firm of W. B. Stringer & Co., Toronto, spent the past week in Montreal calling upon the wholesale fruit trade.

"MADE IN CANADA"

The Best Cereal Food to Eat, and the Best Cereal Food to Sell is

Shredded Whole Wheat

It is made in two forms, Shredded Wheat BISCUIT and TRISCUIT.

TRISCUIT is a CRACKER, not a "breakfast food." It is used as toast in place of ordinary bread toast, and for all purposes for which the common white cracker of commerce is used.

Shredded Wheat BISCUIT is the standard wheat food of the world, delicious for breakfast, or for every meal for every day in the year. It contains all the nutriment in the whole wheat in digestible form. A good seller all the year round.

CANADA FLAKES,

Apart from undoubted superiority, is recommended to the grocer as being a pure Canadian food—made from good Canadian grain, by experienced Canadians in a strictly Canadian company.

When you know that Canada Flakes excel in quality any other cereal food ever sold in Canada, and besides gives one-third more for the money, you naturally feel like helping your customers to see as you do.

Although a secondary matter, the fact that this food is all-Canadian is worthy of a thought. The Yankee flavor is not necessary.

If Canadians produce a superior article it is only a form of patriotism to choose the Canadian product—

MONTREAL MARKETS.

FLOUR—Contradictory reports are afloat in flour circles. While many reliable millers claim business is constantly improving, others, equally reliable, claim that there is a very poor demand and that a quiet reigns which they do not like. However, with the opening of navigation business is sure to pick up considerably, even if it is at a low ebb at present. Most of the large milling companies have large orders booked for shipment at the opening of navigation.

GRAIN—Corn is up another cent. It now commands 56c. It is hard to tell the cause of the recent advances in corn. Some lay it to the farmer who does not make deliveries quickly enough, others blame some one, or something else. There is nothing new to report in oats, which are still quoted at the same price.

TORONTO MARKETS.

FLOUR—There has been considerable improvement in business since our last review. Local trade demand must be attributed to actual need improvement, as no disposition is shown to lay in stocks. Export trade, however, has shown decided activity, and prices are reaching a more even basis.

RETAIL MERCHANTS MEET.

The grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Inc., held a meeting in their rooms, 88 St. Denis street, Montreal, on Thursday evening, April 5. P. Daoust, the president of the Retail Grocers' Association, occupied the chair. Two new members were taken in, A. Paquette and A. Ashkanase. The one price was once more the subject of a great deal of discussion. This is a burning question among retailers at present, and is exciting much interest. The association strongly endorsed the move on foot towards establishing a one price system. The association will hold its annual picnic this year on July 4. To what place the excursion will be run has not yet been decided, but a committee consisting of P. Daoust, J. A. Labonte, J. A. Menard and N. Chartrand, was appointed to select a suitable location. A motion endorsing the petition of the Fruit Growers' Association to have an inspector appointed, was moved and carried. J. A. Beaudry, the secretary, spoke at some length on the pure food show to be held in Victoria Rink under the auspices of the association, and urged that the members do all in their power to make the show a success.

ANCIENT COLONY NOTES.

St. John's, Newfoundland.

New Barbadoes molasses is selling at 24c. Old molasses at any price.

C. Williams, representing Ralston & Co., Hamilton, Ont., spices, baking powder, etc., has been here for some days. His many friends will be sorry to hear that he has had a serious attack of la grippe while here.

The seal fishery is about over, and will aggregate the largest catch in the history of the country. Prices are good. What other country can equal this?—in less than three weeks bringing in over a million dollars worth of goods.

There is some talk of the Government putting on a commercial travelers' tax, the same as Prince Edward Island. It is hard to get an opinion on it by the members of the House of Assembly, still, if the Government wants it passed it will go through.

Pork and beef have again advanced.

There have been quite a number of tea men around lately, and all report the largest business ever done.

J. H. Roberts, manager for Newfoundland of Vim Tea Co., has sold quite a little canned chicken put up by the Maritime Canning Co. He also is quite an expert fur handler, and is considered one of the best judges of furs and such goods in the colony.

T. O. Apps, the general representative of Red Rose Tea, is again here, and reports trade as away up.

Several cargoes of new molasses have arrived, consequently prices are going down. Everyone expects to see them move up again.

Cod liver oil is a drug on the market. No price offering.

The staple of the country, cod fish, is dropping in price, and the knowing ones predict a big loss on stocks held.

The large new steamer, the "Adventure," has proved herself a big success. Capt. H. Dawe, her commander, is to be congratulated on his success. May he always return with a bumper cargo.

A. Miller, M.H.A., one of the best posted men in the general business of the colony, has been engaged as general representative of that progressive firm, Marshall Bros. This is one of our most up-to-date firms, and they are meeting with the success they deserve.

Hugh M. Ross has severed his connection with the Thos. Smyth Co., Limited. Mr. Ross is ane of the best-known men in the colony, and for any firm wanting a hustler to represent them in this colony he cannot be beaten.

We hear that our friend T. T. Cartwright, of the Thos. Smyth Co., will shortly make a trip to the Pacific Coast on business.

The Customs Department have had two chartered accountants from England at work for some time on the books, going back five years. The report around town is that some of the tea houses in St. John will shortly be called upon to show cause, etc.

T. & M. Winter, agents for Five Roses flour, are receiving large quantities for their Spring business. This is one of the largest firms in the country. Mr. Winter, being the best supporter of our local industries, not like some others in the colony, he made his money here, and is now investing it in local industries. No firm in the colony has more staunch customers than this reliable firm. Their motto must be "Reliability."

H. McConbrey, manager of the Standard Soap Mfg. Co., has returned from an extended trip to the States and Canada. This is one of the best managed companies in the colony, and pays a good dividend.

Frank Bradshaw, one of our largest manufacturers' agents, is back again at his desk, after a trip to Boston, New York and Chicago. Mr. Bradshaw has some of the best agencies in the colony, and he's the right man in the right place, popular with all with whom he comes in contact.

Since the return of the sealing fleet business has commenced to pick up. That starts a lot of money in circulation.

Harvey & Co. report their tea sales as away above this time last year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Cochenour, Martin & Co. have opened out a general store in the premises lately occupied by Danford, Roche & Co., Newmarket.

Michael Lynch and Edward McGinty have formed a partnership and opened a grocery in Cook's old stand, Bridge street, Belleville.

J. Perks & Sons, of Parry Harbor, have recently purchased the grocery business of the late James W. Craig, of Parry Sound, Ont.

L. McPherson, of Norwich, will open out a general store business in Oakwood on May 1st, occupying a store that has been vacant some years.

R. W. Springgay, late of Galt, has purchased the grocery business of J. Huston, Milton. Mr. Huston contemplates a trip to the west.

C. Denne, Newmarket, has enlarged his store to about twice its former size and added crockery to his grocery stock. He now has one of the finest stores in the town.

J. J. Bain has sold his grocery at Euclid avenue and London street, Toronto, to Frank Walton, a milkman. Mr. Bain is going to Georgetown to start hotel on May 1st.

Babcock Bros., Bowmanville, have moved into a fine new store. It is finely fitted, and the firm will be in better position than ever to look after their increasing business.

A small fire occurred in the grocery store of H. Hughes, 50 Alexander street, Montreal, on March 28. The fire, which started in the cellar, was quickly extinguished.

The Bain & Wilson and Buttimer-Lawson salmon canneries at Rivers Inlet, B.C., will be completed and ready for operation by the time the sockeyes appear in northern waters.

At a meeting of directors of the Montreal Warehousing Company the following officers were elected: President, Chas. M. Hays; vice-president, W. M. Ramsay; managing-secretary, Geo. H. Hanna.

T. H. Edwards & Co. have succeeded J. G. Glover, grocer and confectioner, Beaverton. Mr. Edwards has been clerking in Toronto, but his home is in Beaverton, and he has many friends there to wish him success.

Clarence Gross, accountant in the wholesale establishment of F. P. Reid & Co., Moncton, N.B., will leave shortly for the Canadian west. Mr. Gross will probably locate at Calgary and go into the wholesale grocery business.

C. G. Armstrong, Orono, has refitted his store and taken in the second floor for the departments of clothing and boots and shoes. His increasing business made expansion necessary, and when about it he is doing it in first rate style.

Pearlman & Co., Magnetawan, are adding a grocery department to their business, and will cater to the tourist trade, which in the warm months is large, and growing larger, in that district. They have achieved success as dry goods and furnishing people, and will make the grocery end of their business hum.

A. A. Perry has been appointed Montreal agent for the Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls. Mr. Perry is an experienced grocer, having for many years been established at Greene avenue and St. Catherine street, Montreal. "Shredded wheat and triscuit are going well," said Mr. Perry to the Canadian Grocer yesterday, "and we look for a big trade during the coming season."

"The lumbering interests in the north have been a success in every sense of the word this season," said a traveler from the upper reaches this week. "The renewal of Winter for March was the means of placing millions of feet of logs on the river banks. All that remains now is the drive, which, if a success, will mean the largest cut of pine in many years." Coupled with the ruling high prices of lumber, this makes the north a good business proposition for the traveling man this Summer.

The large building running from 66 to 78 St. Peter street, Montreal, and occupied by Laporte, Martin & Company, Limited, has been sold at sherriff's sale to A. C. Flummerfelt, of Victoria, B.C., the price paid being $66,000. The building was owned by a Mrs. Carter, but was mortgaged to the Caverhill estate. The rental paid by the tenants, $4,000 a year, was too small to enable Mrs. Carter to keep up the payments to the estate, and to meet other necessary expenses, such as taxes on the building, and the result was that the Caverhill estate insisted on the property being sold. The lease of Laporte, Martin & Company, Limited. has still two years to run. They have not decided what they will do yet.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Easter time has always had its run of trade, and the present season is no exception. Dealers from all points report good trade, with arrivals in plenty, although at the same time stocks are only equal to current demand. Prices are generally reported firm, and although this is the case at Ontario points, still there is in the main a decided weakening in most lines except apples.

Oranges appear to be still in very active demand. The fruit itself is giving excellent satisfaction. New York market reports: Twenty-nine cars of oranges were offered and met with an active demand. While there was no further rise in prices, the previous advance was fully maintained, the tone of the market throughout being firm.

There was very little grape fruit offered and the demand for it was active. The market was strong, especially on large fancy fruit, which sold up to $5.62½.

Arrivals of California lemons continue light, there being but one car at recent auction. There was a good demand for the fruit and the tone of the market was strong, the range being from $1.75 to $3.05, as to quality, condition and size.

The situation of the U. S. tomato market is very interesting at the present moment as regards canned tomatoes. A prominent brokerage firm which has been selling a good deal of stock on orders for one or two carload lots for shipment from packing points stated that their principals were entirely cleaned out and that they had no goods to offer from outside sources. Other brokers reported that they were offered very few goods from southern holders and that with the exception of one lot of not strictly three-pounds, which was offered at $1.05 net cash f.o.b., they knew of nothing obtainable below $1.10 f.o.b. for standard goods.

In regard to fresh tomatoes the situation is equally interesting, and a report from the same source says:

"While there is a steady demand for future tomatoes on the basis of 75c. factory from buyers, who look upon the goods as a safe purchase at that price, there is no pronounced activity in the buying. Neither do the packers seem anxious to make contracts for futures on that basis and the reason for the reluctance is furnished in a statement made yesterday in the course of an interview with a prominent packer:

" 'We generally contract each season for 500 to 600 acres, but so far this year we have been able to secure only about 200 acres, and there is a string to that. Last year we got 600 acres at $7 a ton. This year the 200 acres we have secured were contracted for nominally at the rate of $8 a ton, but the farmers with whom we contracted insisted upon the insertion of a clause in the contracts which, in the event of any one coming after us and paying a higher price, will compel us to pay the maximum rate. Thus if the farmers are offered $10, $12 or more per ton for their fruit later on we will have to pay the same price on our contracts. There seems to be no help for it, as there is absolutely no way to make the average farmer respect his contract when the market is going his way.' "

From this it will be seen that prospects for the coming season are distinctly in favor of higher prices, and this no doubt will be a large feature in controlling the Canadian market.

POTATOES FROM ENGLAND.

United States Consul Hamm, of Hull, England, states in the Daily Consular Reports that the potatoes shipped from that port, mostly to the States, between Nov 11 last and Jan. 18, a little over two months, totalled 152,000 bushels worth $64,600, or about 42 cents a bushel. They came from Yorkshire and Lincolnshire, where the land is brought to the highest stage of cultivation and drainage and the best of fertilizers are used. The consul adds that it seems strange that England, with its crowded population, can export thousands of bushels of potatoes to a country like the United States, with an abundance of cheap arable land. The American duty, too, is 25 cents per bushel.

TUBERS TAKE A LONG JOURNEY.

A prominent St. Catharines firm have recently shipped a large quantity of very choice seed potatoes to Vancouver, B.C., for experimental purposes. The consignment is believed to be the largest ever sent so great a distance. There is an idea current that a great business can be done out west in the Niagara peninsula potatoes.

FISH CULTURE IN CANADA.

Hon Mr. Brodeur made his first public appearance in Ottawa as minister of marine and fisheries at the exceedingly interesting lecture delivered by Professor Prince before the Ottawa Field Naturalists' Club in the Normal School Hall recently.

There was a large audience present, who found Professor Prince's address on fish culture in Canada most fascinating. The lecturer traced the history of fish-hatching in Canada and the United States from the first attempt in 1856, when salmon were first hatched under the direction of the late Mr. Nettle, who recently died in Ottawa, and who had a small hatchery in Quebec nearly fifty years ago.

The pioneer work of Dr. Garlick, Mr. S. Wilmot, and others were dealt with and Professor Prince then gave a detailed account of fish hatcheries under the Dominion Government, stating that in 1858 and five following years about one million young fish were planted, while in 1886 over 100 millions were planted from eight hatcheries, but last year the amazing number of 628 millions were distributed from the thirty Dominion hatcheries now in existence.

A large series of the lime-light views were shown, depicting fishes' eggs, young fish, hatchery building, etc. It was an unusually valuable address. At the close Hon. Mr. Brodeur proposed a vote of thanks to Professor Prince and referred to the professor's eminent services to the country during the last fifteen years as Canada's principal fishery official, the fisheries being, Mr. Brodeur said, amongst Canada's greatest national resources, and he hoped to do much for their expansion and improvement. Dr. S. B. Sinclair, president of the club, occupied the chair.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS.—No change is reported in green fruits. Business has braced up considerably on account of the nearness of Easter. The demand in all lines has been rather good on this account. Navels are selling well at the old figures. Other lines are meeting with good sale.

New strawberries are already beginning to arrive, although at present they are selling at prohibitory prices. Very soon, however, they will be obtainable at prices which will be likely to curtail the demand for canned fruits.

VEGETABLES—The market is very fair, everything considered. This being Easter week, the demand is better than it has been for some time. Potatoes are a little "stiffer," as one dealer summed up the situation, and are selling still from 70c. to 80c. They are reported scarce in the west. Lettuce is selling very well at slightly advanced prices. Spring vegetables are reaching a more reasonable figure, and sales are becoming more frequent in consequence. It will be noted that asparagus is quoted hereunder from $7 to $9, but sales at these prices will be few and far between.

Are You on Safe Ground?

It doesn't do to sell all the Jams and Jellies that are on the market.

If you sell a certain line of "compound" goods, not so labelled, you can be arrested even though your customer asked for that particular brand.

What you should do is simply tell your customers that it is dangerous for them to eat Jams, Jellies, etc., not labelled Pure; and also that it is dangerous for you to sell them.

You will find your customers will take the E.D.S. Brand every time.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS — The wholesale fruiters are appealing for extra Easter business this week, and probably they got it. Prices were somewhat easier. Top prices for oranges are 25c. under last week. Somewhat wider latitude in regard to price was evident in bananas. The trade shows a tendency towards mid-season quietness. Valencia oranges, it is predicted, will be higher next week.

VEGETABLES—Southern stuff continues very slow. Prices are still high enough to dam back consumption. Beets are the only new arrival during the week. Stocks of Canadian onions and cabbage are in very small compass, and the prices have advanced considerably. BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

LOOKING AHEAD.

Customs change very slowly, and perhaps in no case more slowly than in that of the grocer, yet, there are signs that even he is moving surely from his lethargy. In winding his weary way around The Canadian Grocer's eyes were brightened to see that very many of the grocers who had hitherto apparently held back from adding to their staple lines, have at last awakened to the opportunity, and some are making quite gay displays of Easter novelties.

This is particularly gratifying to The Canadian Grocer, who has persistently advocated that the grocer pay more attention to these seasonable novelties. They come just at the very time when the grocer's staple lines are "holding fire," and can and should be part and parcel of the grocer's trade.

With Easter past, there should be every inducement for the still further extension of the confectionery lines. Summer will be upon us and with it the going forth of the world at large; after Easter everything changes its attitude; even the spirit of man seems to be let loose, and youth and age alike turn their thoughts to the light side of nature, and therein lies the grocer's opportunity.

The wide-awake grocer will lay in all the latest novelties for the coming season, of which there are a great many. He will not let his neighbor get in advance of him. There is no trader who can claim a better right to these goods than the grocer, and he would do well to at once lay in a full line of candies and confections for the coming season.

CONTRACT CAUSED TROUBLE.

Alphonse Masson, of Montreal, recently sued the Dussault Co., Limited, of Joliette, Que., for $175, the price of a machine he sold them for the manufacture of candy. There was no written agreement, the contract being made over long-distance telephone. Masson, it is said, could not obtain payment and sued the Dussault Co. The latter in defending the case, pleaded that the bargain made at Joliette was not within the jurisdiction of the Montreal court. The reverse was maintained by the court.

BISCUIT FACTORY DESTROYED BY FIRE.

The three-storey brick factory of the Montreal Biscuit Company was recently destroyed by fire. The cause of the fire has not yet been discovered. The building is situated at 16, 18 and 20 St. Monique street, Montreal, opposite the J. & T. Bell shoe factory. Mr. Farquharson, the managing director of the Montreal Biscuit Company, when interviewed, stated that the company carried $30,000 worth of stock, and the machinery and plant were valued at $25,000. This will bring the loss up to the neighborhood of $55,000. The firm, it is understood, is insured to the extent of $33,000. This is the third time this factory has been attacked by flames. The first fire was in 1885, when the building was occupied by the Stinson Biscuit Mfg. Company. The Lang Mfg. Company occupied it in 1891, when the second fire occurred, and the Montreal Biscuit Company is the third firm to lose.

A NEW SYRUP FACTORY.

The establishment of a thoroughly modern syrup factory in Winnipeg at an early date is now assured.

Mr. Ramsey, of Ramsey Bros. & Co., who have a large factory at Vancouver, in an interview with a reporter, stated that his company are consolidating with the Imperial Syrup Co., of Montreal and Quebec, in a limited liability concern. They find that their trade in Winnipeg and vicinity is developing at such a rapid rate that they will be compelled to open a factory here, employing 20 to 25 men, as soon as a suitable site can be purchased.

The Winnipeg factory will put up maple syrup, cane syrup and molasses. The maple syrup will come in bulk from Quebec, the cane syrup from the British Columbia sugar refinery at Vancouver, and the molasses direct from New Orleans. The three lines will be put up in tins, which will be manufactured in Winnipeg, as well as in jars and barrels.

Mr. Ramsey has just returned from an extended tour in the United States, during which he visited the most up-to-date refining plants in Chicago, New York and Philadelphia, and as a result of this trip the Winnipeg factory will be fitted with strictly modern machinery and labor saving devices.

BIG POLICIES IN NEW YORK.

New York naturally has more heavily insured men than any other city. Among those with large policies are: James C. Colgate, $1,500,000; George W. Vanderbilt, $1,000,000; August Belmont, $600,000; Richard A. McCurdy, $300,000; General Francis V. Greene, $500,000; John D. Crimmins, $300,000; Pliny Fisk, $400,000 (the total on the Fisk family is $2,000,000); Chauncey M. Depew, $500,000; P. F. Collier, $350,000; Edward Lauterbach, $300,000; George W. Perkins, $300,000; Gage E. Tarbell, $500,000; E. E. Smathers, $335,000.

BETTER PRICE LISTS.

It has been said that the price list is a much neglected article in the average hardware store, and to a great extent the saying is true. he usual piece of cardboard with soiled surface, battered edges and worn corners is found in many a store which is exceedingly modern in other respects. Experienced clerks refer to the list more from force of habit than because of any information to be deciphered therefrom, and the new employee is often more confused after reference to the card than he would be were he to trust to memory alone.

Marking directly upon merchandise and upon shelf boxes and original packages is to a large extent replacing the list system of our predecessors, yet there are many lines which even now can best be priced by using lists. Such lists always should be clean and legible. A little attention and the application of system will insure these things.

The old cardboard list is gradually being replaced by neatly framed and glass covered paper lists. Good, durable holders of various sizes can be made by bending the side and bottom edges of a strip of tin to form grooves which will hold the glass and list in place. These can be slid out from the top whenever an alteration or a new list is necessary. A hole punched through the upper end makes it possible to hang the list in a convenient place for reference.

A variation of this plan is to have made a number of frames of the proper size to hold a sheet of legal paper. These frames can be made of plain molding, and are inexpensive. The list and glass are placed in position by removing the back. Then the lists, whether short or long, are written or typewritten upon paper of this uniform size. These frames are hung in place by means of small screw eyes placed in the tops.

Either of these plans is a vast improvement over the cardboard idea, and while the first cost is somewhat more the ultimate value is much greater.—Observer.

CANADA'S TRADE WITH GERMANY.

By H. W. D.

Taking it for granted that Canada is chiefly an agricultural country, who is likely to become the best customer for our produce? No doubt, first, at present, is Great Britain, but after that there seems to be a difference of opinion as to which country it should be.

A good salesman must know where to offer his wares to the best advantage. Let us therefore see what we can hope for in trade to other countries. The United States and all American countries, as well as the British colonies, can grow everything that we can produce as cheaply as we can do it, and France, Spain, Russia, and Austria are in a similar position. We cannot, therefore, hope to have any steady export trade to any of these countries, and shall have to look for more thickly settled states which cannot grow enough agrirultural products to satisfy their own demands.

Germany, with its sixty millions of a population, is the most attractive; also Belgium, and perhaps Norway and Sweden. A trade with these countries would also give us an influx of the best possible settlers besides the British, and at the same time a class of immigrants which quickly assimilate with the British.

All other countries are more or less opponents to Canada in agricultural products, or grow sufficient for their own needs so as not to require our exports. It is, therefore, to the best interest of Canada to send representatives to Germany to offer our products to the best advantage. If there are tariff obstructions we must try to have them removed by the Governments in order to assist the natural flow of trade.

The manufacturers of Great Britain, Germany and the United States send their representatives to all countries where there is an opportunity for trade, and it is necessary for our Canadian producers to do likewise in order to get and hold a steady trade.

It is not wise to be satisfied with what we are doing to-day, but we must look to the future and prepare and build up a steady trade which has chances of continued improvement and development. A trade with Great Britain and Germany will give us steady customers for our produce, and on the other hand, these countries can supply most of our demands in manufactured goods which cannot be made here. It would give us freight both ways, and the exchange would be fairly ideal.

CANNING FACTORY FOR TILBURY.

Tilbury village has voted a $5,000 bonus for a canning factory. The by-law was passed, 153 for and only 24 against. It will thus be seen that the scheme was an easy winner, the law requiring a two-third majority. The factory, which will be operated by local capitalists, will start this year.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

THE AFTERMATH.

As soon as Easter is over a grocer should size up his stock and see what lines are selling slow.

Then he should figure out that a clean slate is best for the new season and proceed to manoeuvre his advertising to that end.

It is just possible that a number of grocers may have stocked too heavy for the Easter season, consequently they must sell at a certain sacrifice. The degree of the sacrifice will be gauged by the watchfulness of the grocer.

In cases of this kind the special sale is the best remedy, and it is also more judicious to use good window cards and liberal newspaper space than to merely send circulars to regular patrons.

There is no use trying to make the people believe anything other than the fact that you have goods you don't want. If they take them they get their money's worth, because the prices are reduced.

* * *

So the newspaper statements should be candid and absolutely clear. The ads should be shorn of all "gigantic bargain" talk, and the "profits-all-go-to-you" reasoning.

ADVERTISING RESULTS.

A certain grocer whose trade is "neighborhood" trade—that is, whose store is away from the business centre, and depends on the patronage of families within a radius of half a dozen squares—has three competitors within a block of his store. None of the other fellows does any advertising except in the windows. Our grocer (we'll call him that to distinguish him)—keeps himself and three assistants in the store, and one delivery waggon and driver. One of the assistants puts in each forenoon soliciting orders. All the other stores send out solicitors also. Our grocer was minded to advertise, but couldn't decide how to go about it. One of his customers is a printer who is also an advertising "crank." As a result of conversation on the subject, and perhaps in a sort of a bluffing spirit, the printer proposed to advertise the store for three months in his own way, and to increase the business to a given amount, or no pay, the grocer agreeing to have his boy distribute the advertising matter. The plan was put into operation the latter part of November, and one piece of printing has been gotten out and distributed each week. Five hundred copies are used, and the distribution is carefully done.

At the end of the eighth week, the writer said to the delivery boy, "George, are you selling lots of groceries now-a-days?"

George replied: "Say! my goodness! We've got to put on another waggon! I've made three full trips over this route this afternoon. Used to get it done in one trip. We always did have a good trade down there, but it's been getting awful here lately. And so many of the orders are from new customers that live further away than our old ones, and their orders are bigger. I'm about rushed to death, and there aint no let-up to it."

Now I have seen every piece of the advertising matter this store has put out, and while it is good stuff, it isn't anything wonderful. Any bright man could write it—any fair printer could print it. Then why does it pay?

Simply because this grocer has a good store, and carries a nice stock, and treats customers courteously, and tells people about it. No other grocery in the territory tells them anything of the kind. If the other fellows woke up and got into the game, then the reward would go to the one who did the best advertising. Now it goes to the one who does the only advertising.—A. C. S.

GROCERS' BULLETINS.

Some grocers in an attempt to do good store advertising display a number of "home-made" signs in the store and window.

There is no need to waste time and lose the effect of artistic work when bulletins can be purchased at fractional cost.

There are one or two concerns who supply as many as 200 different kinds, say, 21 by 23 in size, and separate sheets of price figures to be attached to the bulletin. The ink is usually colored and the paper heavy. One sheet and one poster costs two cents.

If you cannot locate any printed bulletins in your city, or town, write the editor of "Good Advertising," and he will hunt up some names.

TRANSPARENT ENVELOPES.

Never use transparent envelopes in sending out circular matter or bills as far as that goes.

On account of the difficulty in deciphering addresses at the post office a great deal of time is lost and many "mis-sents" occur.

In fact so much trouble has been experienced by the authorities that it is said the postal administrators of Great Britain, Canada and the United States have declined to deliver anything enclosed in transparent or semi-transparent envelopes.

AN ETCHING FROM LIFE.

Here is a little etching taken from life: A 'bus-load of traveling salesmen arrived from the station. They bustled up to the desk in their usual business-like and breezy manner and one after the other signed the register. One and all shook hands with the hotel clerk, a quaint, fatherly old fellow, who had been there a good many years, and one of the knights of the road said, "Well, Uncle Dave, it's a good thing you're not dead yet. I don't think the house could run without you." "Oh, yes, it could," said the old clerk, "you fellows would come in here, and if there was a strange clerk on watch, you'd say, 'Where's Uncle Dave?' 'Why, didn't you hear about him? He died last month.' Then you'd say, 'Well, I'll be darned! That's too bad — Say! what time'll dinner be ready?'"

THE SQUARE DEAL

To the man who is ready to avail himself of splendid opportunities, such opportunities come. Grocers here, grocers there, grocers everywhere, have read the Payne Logic, re-read it, thought over it, spoken about it, written about it, and—to-day they sell "Pebble" and "Pharaoh" Cigars.

That is what I call meeting opportunity face to face, seizing it, and profiting thereby.

That is what I call progressive business.

Pebble and Pharaoh opportunities are perpetual—for no particular grocer exclusively—for all grocers. Pebble and Pharaoh prices are always the same.

I do not expect you to jump at the first Payne announcement you see and to exclaim, "It's settled!" I expect you to be critical. I expect you to "hold off." But in the end I expect to win you.

No grocer can get away from The Square Deal once he has got the symptoms of desire in his bones. He knows that it makes business satisfactory. He knows that it gives a zest to activities.

The Square Deal is exemplified in the Pebble and Pharaoh Method of sale. I sell you these Cigars, and should such a thing as your not selling them happen, I take back at end of three months, at invoice price, all of your stock unsold.

J. BRUCE PAYNE, LIMITED, Mnfrs., - Granby, Que.

Many Tobaccos, yet ONLY ONE

It is not paradoxical to say there are many tobaccos, yet only one.

There are many countries, but most of us think there is only one.

Sentiment, not numerical knowledge, rules the opinions.

Grocers Sell It.

T. & B.

Grocers Sell It.

Go into a home where the father's pipe is full of T. & B. (and it would be a life task to go into all such homes) and ask him how many tobaccos there are. He will say "I have the only tobacco in my pipe."

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

CIGARS.

Have you given any attention to this feature of your tobacco department? Many grocers seem quite satisfied to handle a few lines of tobaccos and perhaps very few of those, altogether indifferent to the fact that the smoking of a good cigar is a habit which is fast gaining in popularity.

Have a smoke? is perhaps the most popular greeting when friend meets friend, and forthwith comes forth the handy cigar case with its inviting specimens of the "best thing" in smoke. Every grocer knows this is so. What is it the familiar traveler friend does on his regular weekly calls—the very first thing? Why, offers a good cigar, as sure as Christmas; it wouldn't be him if he didn't.

Have you, then, given this matter a little thought? There was a time—not so very long since—when cigars were considered too expensive, too much of a luxury, for the average general smoker, but now things are different, a cigar is getting to be considered the ordinary smoke, and a good opening lies therein for the progressive grocer.

Calling on a few wholesale merchants the other day The Canadian Grocer noticed with one of them some good lines of cigars ready for shipment, and on inquiry found they were bound for some good country grocers, men who had gone ahead with the times, and were handling quite a full line of good cigars and accessories.

This is a feature which every grocer should cultivate. The public are moving, constantly moving, in their demand and requirements, and the mark of a progressive grocer is, that he moves with the times, and changes and adds to his store as opportunity opens up. The cigar trade is a present opportunity, push it for all it is worth.

AN OBJECTIONABLE PRACTICE.

The proposal to impose a license fee on cigar and tobacco stores has directed attention to a grievance of the proprietors of these stores, particularly those in the factory district, owing to the practice which prevails in many factories of giving some employe the privilege of retailing cigars and tobacco to his comrades. This practice has grown until it has made a serious inroad into the business of the men who pay rent and taxes on stores where these articles are sold. In one factory the man who has the privilege sells $60 to $70 worth every two weeks. It is a convenience to the workmen, but a decided detriment to the dealers, who would like to see a license fee imposed, that would put a stop to it.

ESSEX TOBACCO EXCEPTIONALLY FINE.

A shipment of tobacco leaf, grown in Essex County, was made from St. Thomas on a recent day, the dimensions of which show to what importance the growing of tobacco has attained in the Ontario counties of Essex and Kent. A special train of thirty-five cars, all laden with the fragrant leaf, was made up in St. Thomas, Ont., for shipment to Granby, Que. The weight of the tobacco contained in these cars reached 1,211,351 pounds, about 31,000 bales, all Canadian leaf, from the counties named above. The quality is pronounced exceptionally fine by lovers of the weed.

HAVANA CIGAR DEALER VISITS THE WEST.

A representative of the independent cigar manufacturers of Havana is visiting Manitoba with the object of placing the Havana brands of cigars on the markets of Western Canada. Charles Landan, the gentleman referred to, was recently in Winnipeg, where he spent several weeks interviewing and negotiating with the various dealers.

Little Ethel was learning to sew, and one day, after vainly trying to thread a needle, she asked:

"Mamma, don't they call the hole in the needle an eye?"

"Yes, dear," replied her mother.

"Well," continued the little miss, "I'll bet this old needle is cross-eyed."

PROGRESSIVE RETAILING.

PUSH THE BEST GOODS AND CLEAN UP.

"The ambition of the average grocer is all wrong," said a successful merchant the other day, himself a grocer in all stages of the game, boy, clerk, retailer and now wholesaler. "The aim of his life," he went on, "seems to be to undersell his neighbor. Smith has tomatoes he can sell at 10c., Jones must have something he can sell for eight. Then he's happy. It's the bane of the business. If Jones would only make it his aim to sell better goods than Smith! Why, it would make over his business and himself a new man. A grocer can easily get his customers into the habit of looking for the best goods instead of the cheapest. There's more profit on the better goods and once the people get them they want them.

"I've spent a lot of money in years gone by trying to educate the trade along these lines. I buy my supplies for the house from a customer of mine near me and I have quite a time with him. Some fellow nearby cuts prices and my man immediately gets nervous and thinks that unless he cuts too all the trade is going by. I try to stiffen his backbone and show him the thing will soon right itself. I tell him to hold his customers with good goods. It'll draw them every time.

"Then there's the keeping of the store clean. There's only a grocer here and there who does it. Most groceries have a bad smell about them—just because they're not kept clean."

The Spirit of Decay.

The head clerk in a big grocery talked to me about that very thing the other day.

"We keep one man cleaning," he said. "The entire stock is gone over once a month. The result—well, you can smell, can't you? Come in Monday morning after the store has been shut up a day and it smells just as clean and sweet as it does now.

"I can't understand why grocers as a rule are not more particular, We had a man with us for three years. He started for himself and has a fine business in a good residential district. His store stinks. Wouldn't you think he would have learned something of cleanliness here?

"What's the cause of the bad smells? Why, dirt. A piece of fruit or a vegetable rolls behind a box out of sight and so out of mind. But there's a swift resurrection and the spirit of that orange, or apple, or potato rises to proclaim the grocer a sloven.

"Another common mistake of the grocer is to pile canned stuff from the tops of the shelving to the ceiling or near it. That's the warmest place in the shop. Here and there a can will spoil and burst and the assistance it lends to the spirit of the rotting potato is great. A store should be comfortable, but not hot, and canned goods should be kept somewhere else than at the ceiling."

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE.

By W W.

Salesmen who desire to emulate the success of others who have won honorable positions for themselves in the commercial world, cannot afford to neglect the slightest detail. Each day should find them performing better and more valuable services than the preceding day, the aim ever being to make each day and year mark an advance in the hour glass of their lives.

Two habits which should be acquired early in life are those of promptness in performing services and care in maintaining a good personal appearance. These two habits acquired, the qualities of honesty and industry should be cultivated, all of these elements being essential to the building of a character capable of forcing recognition in the strenuous competition of modern civilization.

Look around you and you will see young fellows who, when they left their homes and started out in the world were as clean in mind and act as could be desired. Evil companionship, however, has transferred them into the "slightly soiled" class and like goods on the bargain counter they are "marked down" and their future is blighted. It does not require much soiling to transfer either merchandise or young men onto the marked down counter—in fact, the young man does his own marking, and has not as good an estimate of himself as if he had devoted his energies to building a character for himself in the future rather than having a "good time" in the present.

Whether a man is a retail clerk or a traveling salesman, he should take a thorough interest in his customers, being cordial and polite to them and ever willing to go out of his way to please and make permanent friends of the buyer. Endeavor to look at every matter from the customer's standpoint as well as your own and the result will be that you will be looked for when next the customer has a purchase to make, and your value to your employer will be much greater than if a lot of goods had been unloaded on the customer and a feeling of soreness created between him and the house you represent.

Little things count. It may be hard to put heart into work for an unappreciative employer, but no salesman loses anything by doing his duty to the letter. By so doing he is honest to himself and is burying his troubles by the pleasure of doing right and building up his own character. Never wait to be told to do a thing if common sense dictates that it requires to be done. A saleman who can think for himself is worth twice as much to an employer as one who has no initiative.

A young man employed in a responsible position by a great corporation was recently discharged to make room for another. Surprised and mortified, he sought an explanation from the manager of his department. "Will you kindly tell me why you do not want me any longer?"

"Certainly," was the reply; "it is because you always said 'you' instead of 'we.'"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean just that! You never said 'We' should do so and so; or 'We' ought to follow out such and such a policy. It was always 'You' in referring to this company, of which you were a part. In speaking to a fellow employe about our business, you would say 'They' instead of 'We.' I should advise you to seek employment with some company to which you can refer as 'We.'"

A common criticism of an ambitious young man is: "He acts as if he owns the concern, and he's only a clerk." It is the young man who works as if he did own the concern who often becomes the owner in time.

"We're going to pay a dividend of ten million dollars next month," proudly remarked an office boy to a waiting visitor in the reception room of a railway president. He is on the right track.

But it is necessary to think We and act We every hour of every day, as well as to say We. We means Us, union, solidity, co-operative enthusiasm. YOU means the other fellow. It's the WE that wins!

TO OCCUPY NEW QUARTERS.

On May 1 the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association will move from their present premises, 88 St. Denis street, Montreal, to larger and more convenient quarters in the Hochelaga Bank building, 1726 St. Catherine street.

WALL PAPER

SUCH is the excellence of the new lines of Spring wall papers of domestic manufacture that many merchants are drawing attention to the fact by ticketing their window displays with the familiar motto, "Made in Canada." Indeed, the T. Eaton Company went one better in their Toronto windows last week and boldly challenged comparison by showing Canadian-made and imported goods side by side, each ticketed as such.

You often hear the remark, "There is no sentiment in business," and when choice lies between a superior and inferior article sentiment will not go for much. When values are equal I believe that the average customer will only be too glad to give preference to Canadian-made goods.

The Salt that Saves Money and Time for You

"Time is money"—save time then, and you save money too. Waste no time and you waste no money. Is it really worth while to spend useless energy in an endeavor to push inferior articles of trade? We think not.

Windsor Salt is the standard because so often used for comparison—you hear "as pure as Windsor Salt" used everywhere to-day. You don't have to argue with a customer over its merits—its quality is too well known. It's pure white, dry, crystalline. It is nothing but salt.

You lose more than we do by not stocking up with it—lose time, lose money, lose trade.

LARGE ADVERTISING

Goods with merit have a claim upon the progressive grocer's attention, but when that merit is exploited by the manufacturer with such liberal methods of advertising as we pursue with our well known and deservingly popular RISING SUN Stove Polish in cakes and SUN PASTE Stove Polish in tins the real live dealer must recognize the help we give him in selling the right Stove Polish. Largely increased sales support our policy of merit backed by extensive advertising.

DISSOLUTION OF THE CANADA GROCERS, LIMITED

For personal, rather than business, reasons the Canada Grocers, Limited, will, on May 1, dissolve into its ten constituent wholesale grocery houses, taking as a basis of dissolution the company's position according to the annual statement of January 1. That this action would be taken was known some months ago, but the public announcement of it was not made until last week's issue of The Grocer.

"The company is disbanding," said its vice-president, Lieut.-Col. Davidson, of Davidson & Hay, "not because it has not been successful, but on account of the desire of some of the members to dissociate themselves from an unpleasant association."

On another occasion he assigned as the reason for the move Amos III, 3, which runs: "How can two walk together except they be agreed?"

Paid Seven Per Cent.

The company's success is evidenced by the fact that it has paid 7 per cent. half yearly on its preferred stock since its organization two and a half years ago, and one half year the dividend was at the rate of 9 per cent. In addition to that a reserve of $100,000 was accumulated and $50,000 was expended in improvements and alterations to offices and warehouses.

The firms included in the company were Lucas, Steel & Bristol, Hamilton; John Sloan & Co., Toronto; Balfour & Co., Hamilton; Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto; James Turner & Co., Hamilton; the Davidson & Hay, Limited, Toronto; W. H. Gillard & Co., Hamilton; Edward Adams & Co., London; J. F. Smyth & Co., Windsor; W. H. Gillard & Co., Sault Ste. Marie; James Turner & Co., Calgary, N.W.T.; W. Somerville & Co., fruit exporters, Hamilton; W. Somerville & Co., coffee and spice mills, Hamilton; John Sloan & Co., Belleville, Ont.; the Red Feather Tea Co., Toronto.

How it was Organized.

The Canada Grocers, Limited, was organized in 1903, by Mr. Lets, an American, who had previously organized the National Grocers, Limited, of Chicago, and since committed suicide. The capitalization was $5,000,000, half preferred stock and half common. The amount actually issued was $1,000,000 of each. Each firm that entered the organization sold its business to the company, receiving payment in cash for their properties and stocks, and common stock for good will. Then each member of the company purchased what amount of preferred stock he desired. Some, in this way, put back into the company all they got for their business, others only part. Each business then became a branch of the Canada Grocers, Limited, and the former owner became manager.

What it was to Do.

The organization was expected to prove an economical advantage in two directions, buying and management. It is claimed by the officers that the expectations in regard to combined buying were fully realized, and that the expected economies of combined management, while of necessity slower of realization, were maturing. This latter, however, even some of the members of the company doubt. For instance, one stockholder said:

"The largest saving was expected in travelers' salaries, but there are just as many travelers on the road now as when the company started. Two of the largest Ontario houses did not come in and every branch had to keep all its men on to hold its own."

The Jealous Eye.

A shrewd observer on the street said: "Instead of minimizing competition the organization fostered it. Each branch was anxious to make a better showing than the others, and it didn't hurt as much to see business go to a rank outsider as to another member of the combination."

But that's not how an officer of the corporation states the case in regard to travelers. The intention, he said, was that instead of having half a score of travelers all representing various branches of the Canada Grocers calling on the trade in one town the same day, to have one man call each day. Of course at first each traveler would represent his own branch, but gradually the trade would be educated up to regard the Canada Grocers as one concern, and so the number of travelers would eventually be greatly reduced.

Two Wrong Ideas.

Two very erroneous ideas are abroad with regard to the Canada Grocers. One is that the company is in some way connected with the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and the other is that the dissolution is in consequence of the proceedings taken against the officers of the guild, on a charge of conspiracy, at Hamilton. The Canada Grocers, Limited, has no direct or indirect relation with the Guild, and the decision to dissolve was arrived at before the proceedings at Hamilton were thought of.

While each of the firms comprising the company will take back its business, the company will be continued in order that advantage may still be taken of benefits not incompatible with individual management. All the present members of the company will remain in. It may be assumed that when each business is operating independently the personal idiosyncracies which made combined management distasteful to some will not be obtrusively apparent. Just sufficient capital will be retained to do the business required.

Officers of the Company.

The present officers of the company are: President, Geo. Bristol; vice-president, Lieut.-Col. Jno. I. Davidson; directors, Alex. Turner, John Sloan, Warren Kitson, William Logan, H. C. Beckett, Jas. Somerville, R. T. Steele, R. A. Lucas, F. Smye, S. Screaton, T. Turnbull, J. F. Smyth, Lloyd Newburn, S. Vila, Wm. Somerville.

Effect on the Trade.

To the statement that all the firms in the corporation will take their businesses back there is one possible exception. One of the men in the trade in Toronto desires to devote his energies in another direction, and may not buy back his business. In that case the company will wind it up, it is said, rather than try to find another buyer.

"What effect will the dissolution have on the trade?" the manager of a prominent house was asked.

"None at all," he replied. "It had no effect going in; it'll have none going out."

This very aptly presents the view of the trade generally.

There is much scepticism outside the corporation as to the advantages of combined buying. "I could underbuy them every day in the week," said the head of one firm. There was also a tendency on the part of the importing brokers to hold aloof from such a co-operative effort, and the brokers have an organization of their own.

BARBADOES MOLASSES HIGHER.

A recent cable received stated that the market had advanced 1c. at the islands owing to active buying for Newfoundland, and the fact that the crop was about three-quarters sold. This advance at the islands is equal to practically 1.30 per imperial gallon landed, and would make the laid-down cost about 25½c. Owing to short quantity of molasses from the other islands it is quite probable that higher prices will yet be paid for the balance of the crop.

Since writing above other cables have been received advising that planters were unwilling to sell, and as there were several buyers, high prices were expected shortly.

C. M. A. MEETING.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association held its monthly meeting on April 10. Although several matters were discussed, nothing, however, was done, the matters being carried over to the next meeting. J. H. Sherrard, of the Ideal Bedding Company, was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of W. P. Coleman, of the Canada Car Company, whose resignation was accepted.

PROGRESSIVE RETAILING

HOW TO CONDUCT A BARGAIN DEPARTMENT.

(By E. J. Hale.)

If a bargain department is worth instituting at all, it is worth instituting right. Then it is necessary for you to give it enough of your time and personal attention to keep it going right. I assume, if you should open up a bargain department, it is primarily to help your business in general, and that direct profit is to be incidental rather than primary.

Have it well Placed.

And the first thing necessary for you in the institution of a bargain department is its location. By having it properly placed in your store, you score one of the points that assures success.

The very best place for it is down through the centre of your store where all who enter may see it, and be coaxed from a shopping into a buying mood. What is use of offering real bargains unless you put them where they can be seen by the largest possible crowd.

Your bargain department should and will always draw people to your store simply to see what you have on sale for the day. Put the bargains out where customers can see them and they will buy in other lines.

No Expensive Fixtures.

The fixtures for your bargain department need not be expensive, although I would advise you to have them as substantial and attractive as your own better judgment and ability dictates. You can make these fixtures yourself, and all that will be required will be some single, some double and some triple tables. You can even use goods boxes to good advantage. And where they are used, it would be well enough to procure some nice and attractive wall paper and paper them. Your customers then will never know the difference, and if they do, what does that matter?

First Loss the Best.

The main object of a bargain department is to close out "stale" goods. However, in offering these stale or shelf-worn goods, you should mix in some bright, catchy and up-to-date goods, also, in order to make a nice showing. You can hardly expect to get regular prices for these "stickers." Better sell them at some price and put the money back in other goods which you can turn over, and on which you can make a profit.

A bargain department provides an easy avenue of escape for broken lots and slow sellers from all over the store, provided you keep the counter spiced up with a few good, cracking values at all times, so that people will always look there with the expectation of finding real bargains. Of course, commonplace goods offered in a commonplace way will not do the work.

Keep it Alive.

Whatever you do, don't let your bargain department get stale. Always show something new. Shift your goods frequently. This week have glassware in the front and next week in the rear. Change the show cards. Give things a "different" look. Accustom people, your people, to expect something new and good every time they pass by your bargain counter. If you don't, it will soon get like any other department in your house—to be visited only when particular goods are needed.

The purpose of your bargain department is to interest people—to remind them of things they need—to get them started in buying—to sell them something that is a real bargain so that it will bring them back to your store when they need anything in your line.

Have a Reserve Line.

When you receive a shipment, don't display everything at once! But hold back some for to-morrow and the next day. Above all, change your leaders often! Transfer a 10c. item to a 5c. counter and mark it "special for to-day." To-morrow have it back on the 10c. counter. Then put something else on the 5c. counter equally as good.

SECURING MORE BUSINESS FOR THE RETAIL STORE.

By R. E Taylor.

Retail dealers have been complaining a great deal lately of department store competition, and some have even gone out of business on this account. I have found, however, by pushing my business and giving careful attention to the smallest details that the department store is not the bugaboo it is held to be by many in the trade. This competition can be successfully met by retail dealers, but it cannot be done with the tactics used 20 years ago. They must adopt some of the methods used by the managers of the larger class of stores. And these will also be found advantageous by dealers throughout the country, even where department store competition is not felt.

I have given more attention to arranging my show window displays and to getting out printed matter, which I take care to have carefully distributed throughout the neighborhood served by my store. This printed matter has brought results that are very gratifying, and I think that as time passes it will prove more and more profitable and pay larger returns for the time and trouble taken to put it out. I have arranged a book containing lists of kitchen outfits for city homes and country cottages. This is a small book of about 30 pages, and contains price lists of five different housekeeping outfits, arranged for kitchen use and general housekeeping work. These vary in price from $1.50 to $16. It will be well for all dealers to make such a list for their own personal use, if for nothing else, showing what a variety of furnishing goods may be bought for $16. Copies of these goods are wrapped up with articles of merchandise that are sent out, and I can testify that the results coming from people who have received them are very pronounced. People call to see my 73-cent aluminum covered saucepan, or they mention a specific article with the price given in the catalogue. This enables me to trace very readily the work done by the printed matter. By having a printed list the housewife realizes the things she is out of and can find the price of any article desired.

My show windows are carefully filled with seasonable goods appealing to the housewife, and care is taken to change the display frequently. One week agate ware is used entirely, while the next week nickel plated copper ware is presented. Kitchen utensils made of aluminum are now becoming cheaper in price and people are beginning to realize the many advantages of this ware, and take to it readily. I have had more profit resulting from the sale of aluminum ware during the past year than from any other line of kitchen utensils carried. Then, too, there is another advantage in handling it, for it is not liable to be cracked while on the shelves, as is enameled ware.

FAILURE.

What is failure? It's only a spur
To a man who receives it right,
And it makes the spirit within him stir
To go in once more and fight.
If you never have failed, it's an even guess
You never have won a high success.

What is a miss? It's a practice-shot
Which we often must make to enter
The list of those who can hit the spot
Of the bull's-eye in the centre.
If you never have sent your bullet wide,
You never have put a mark inside.

What is a knock-down? A count of ten
Which a man may take for a rest.
It will give him a chance to come up again
And do his particular best.
If you've never been bumped in a rattling go,
You never have come to the scratch, I know!

IDEAS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

SUCCESS IS POWER.

"Strength is success. Strength to be, strength to do, strength to love, strength to live. It is not happiness, it is not amusement, it is not content. These will come, but they are not the object."

That is Dr. Edward Everett Hale's definition of success. Success, he continues, is the real object in life. All the other definitions fail. When people say that men live to be happy, they do not express what they mean. A man's real motive should be the use of every power he has to the best he can achieve with it. And we shall gain a great deal in the management of life if we can keep this motive and this object in mind. "I mean to train my hand and my eye to the best they can do. I will make the best of my body." And so again, "I mean to train my mind for the best it can do, to reason, to remember, to plan." And that he may keep body and mind up to the mark in this way, a man resolves to keep his soul, which ought to be master of mind and body, to the very best. "Here am I," the man says. "The body and the mind are my two tools. They shall be the very best I can make them, and shall meekly obey me, who am their master."

Master of the Business.

In endeavoring to solve the great problem, it is well to keep Doctor Hale's wisdom in mind. Success is power. Deep in the human mind is the desire for power. All wish to attain to some measure of it. The soldier who fights a good battle and is victorious is powerful. The mechanic who is the master of his trade is powerful and is a success. Every man who has developed his faculties to the best of his possibilities must be, and is, successful. There is no need for any man to envy another because that other has achieved greater fame, made more money or stands more prominently before the public in a political capacity.

Education a Great Factor.

Every young man should determine to be practical—even poets can be that. Every young man should learn to concentrate. The better his education, the farther along life's highway he will get in the span of years allotted to him, be they few or many. The education is the foundation. He should know himself. He should study his capacity and his limitations. A man undersized cannot be a soldier, nor a man with a crippled leg a sprinter. So there are limitations to the range of mental capacity. Knowing himself, he should strive to utilize whatever ability he possesses to the utmost. Concentrate upon a purpose and stick to it in the face of all obstacles. Hold to the theory that every man has a right to succeed—to use all his powers to the best advantage. Happiness and content will be met with at many a turn along the way.

THE MAN WHO FALLS OVERBOARD

A big business is a steamboat bound for a port called Success. It takes a large force of men to operate this boat. Eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty, but is the price of every other good thing, including steamboating.

To keep this steamship moving, the captain requires the assistance of hundreds of people who have a singleness of aim—one purpose—a desire to do the right thing and the best thing in order that the ship shall move steadily, surely and safely on her course.

Curiously enough, there are men constantly falling overboard. These folks who fall overboard are always cautioned to keep away from dangerous places, still there are those who delight in taking risks. These individuals who fall off and cling to floating spars, or are picked up by passing craft, usually declare that they were "discharged." They say the captain or mate or their comrades had it in for them.

I am inclined to think that no man was ever "discharged" from a successful concern—he discharges himself.

When a man quits his work, say, oiling the engine or scrubbing the deck, and leans over the side, calling to outsiders, explaining what a bum boat he is aboard of, how bad the food is, and what a fool there is for a captain, he gradually loosens his hold until he falls into the yeasty deep. There is no one to blame but himself, yet probably you will have hard work to make him understand this little point.

When a man is told to do a certain thing and there leaps to his lips or even his heart the formula, "I wasn't hired to do that," he is standing upon a greased plank that inclines toward the sea. When the plank is tilted to a proper angle, he goes to Davy Jones' locker, and nobody tilts the fatal plank but the man himself.

And the way this plank is tilted is this: The man takes more interest in passing craft and what is going on on land, than in doing his work on board ship.

So I repeat: no man employed by a successful concern was ever discharged. Those who fall overboard get on the greased plank and then give it a tilt to starboard.

If you are on the greased plank you had better get off from it, and quickly, too.

Loyalty is the thing—faith. — Elbert Hubbard.

MARK TWAIN'S SERVANT.

Mark Twain has just lost a servant who has been in his employ since the day of his marriage; and, while attending his funeral, the philosopher-humorist uttered a tribute to the dead man which could not have been higher. "In all the time he was with Mrs. Clemens and myself he never ran out. I have had other servants who would say, 'Mr. Clemens, I forgot, and there isn't a cigar in the house,' but that never happened with Patrick McAleer, for he never forgot anything, and I never had to give him an order."

Think of that! "I never had to give him an order." What would the average employer give for a man like that? There are lots of men who can do a thing after they are told with exactness what they are wanted to do. But the man who can divine what is wanted and have it done and ready before the need is felt—that man is beyond price!

It is no wonder that Mark Twain said that "his life ought to rank with that of great soldiers, statesmen and chief justices, for they were no more proficient in their professions than he was in his." "He was with me last summer in Dublin, N.H.," Mr. Clemens proceeded. "I did not give him an order during the summer; and he did not need one."

Of course, one man must learn a great deal about another man's mind before he can fit into it like that; but how many men can learn this lesson in a million years? Ah! but, you say, every man does not want to be a servant. Doesn't he? What man is not a servant in his need to please other people? The successful departmental store king—isn't he a servant? Must he not know what his customers want and get it for them before they ask for it, if he is to succeed? Must he not serve the public through the whole summer and the whole winter "without an order?" The merchant who waits to do things until he is "ordered," is soon ordered off the premises.

It is this ability to catch in advance the mind of another which makes the invaluable servant, the successful merchant, the great politician. An employer who can find such a man has added immensely to his own productiveness; for when he must explain in detail everything he wants done, he almost might as well do it himself. Mark Twain did not put the value of his old servant too high. He was fit to "rank with statesmen and chief justices." His epitaph might well be—"He never ran out."—Montreal Star.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT

By Howard R. Wellington.

AFTER making the opening journal entries showing the net investment in the business and of what such investment consists, it is necessary to open ledger accounts for the various titles represented in the opening entry.

Below will be found the accounts necessary in the business of Mr. J. M. Russell, and simple rules for the guidance of the merchant in debiting or crediting these accounts, as transactions arise in the ordinary course of business :

This set of accounts will be used later on in the series showing transactions for a period posted up and the books closed, showing trading account, profit and loss account, and balance sheet.

The following rules may be used as a guide in charging or crediting the various accounts, numbered 1, 2, 3, etc.:

Account No. 1.—It is not necessary to make any further entries in this account until the close of the year, when the net profit is transferred from profit and loss account.

The balance in the account at present shows the present worth of Mr. J. M. Russell.

Account No. 2.—The cash account is usually carried in a separate book, although the principles involved are exactly the same. Debit cash for all cash on hand or in bank at commencement. Debit cash for all currency, money orders, cheques, drafts received. Credit cash for all cash paid out or cheques issued. (Specimen cash books will be taken up later).

Account No. 3.—Debit merchandise account at commencement of business for amount of merchandise on hand, as shown on stock sheets.

Debit this account for all merchandise purchased and also for goods returned by our customers.

Credit this account for all goods sold and also for all goods returned to other parties on account of defect or damage.

(The best methods of recording sales will be described later).

Account No. 4.—Debit equipment account at commencement for value of rigs, horses, harness, office and store fittings.

Charge this account from time to time as additions are made which increase the value of the equipment.

Account No. 5.—(Same as No. 4).

Account No. 6.—Charge this account with such items as salaries, light, taxes, rent, insurance, postage, stationery and sundry current expenses.

Account No. 7.—Debit at commencement for all notes and acceptances on hand.

Charge this account as drafts are made or notes received, crediting the customer. When the notes are paid, credit "bills receivable" account in the cash book.

This account may be kept in the general ledger or in a separate book, as desired. (A design for each will be given later).

Accounts Nos. 8, 9, 10, 11.—These are ordinary accounts with customers, showing balances owing, to which is added purchases from time to time.

Account No. 12.—The "bank," or "bank discount" account is credited with the amount borrowed, showing as a liability to the business.

Account No. 13.—Credit bills payable account with acceptances of drafts or notes issued by us, charging the party to whom note is given.

When note becomes due and is paid, bills payable account is debited and cash is credited.

Accounts Nos. 14, 15, 16.—These are ordinary creditor's accounts showing balances due to others, to which is added amount of subsequent purchases.

CALIFORNIA FRUIT PROSPECTS.

The following early estimate of the conditions of the prospective California crops has been received at the office of The Canadian Grocer :

Although too early to give positively or definitely the size of the crops of fruit of the different varieties we will have in the state this year, we can give an outline with a good degree of accuracy, and barring unusual occurrences, general conditions, considering all districts as a whole, will be about as below indicated.

CHERRIES—The very early varieties will be light, while black Tartarians are fair to good crop. It is too early to declare firmly on Royal Anns, but they promise a very good crop indeed. The first express refrigerator carload will go forward about May 1.

APRICOTS—Very light crop, in fact in some places in the shipping districts a complete failure.

PEACHES—Very early varieties such as Alexanders, Hales, Triumph, Imperial and St. John, good crop. Crawfords, Fosters, Susquehannas, Elbertas, etc., fair to good. Late Crawfords, Picquets and Salways, fair. Clings, light to fair. There will be the usual quantity of peaches for shipping purposes.

PLUMS AND PRUNES — Excepting Clymans, the very early varieties such as Abundance, Botan and Red June are light. Burbank, Tragedy, Climax, etc., fair to good. Wickson, Satsuma and Kelseys, very light, while Purple Duanes, Gros, Egg, German, Fellenburg, Giant, etc., are very good.

BARTLETT PEARS promise good crop. The percentage of damage by blight in the heavy producing districts is small, so that we should have a good output this year.

GRAPES—Prospects in all districts splendid. No damage reports whatsoever.

RAINFALL—We have had plenty of rain to mature all crops even if no more should fall.

DATE OF RIPENING—The rain and cool weather have retarded growth somewhat and the season, comparatively, now appears to be about ten to fourteen days later than last. In other words, instead of being quite early it will be about normal or a little earlier.

"There will be no change whatever in resources or management, and our aim will be to merit a continuance of the confidence and support accorded to the late firm since the establishment of the business in 1844.

"WINN & HOLLAND, LIMITED."

EXHIBITION IN AUSTRALIA.

The exhibition branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa is collecting exhibits for the exhibition which is to be held in Christchurch, New Zealand, opening on November 1. Already some fifty Canadian manufacturers have signified their intention of making an exhibit. As the Government pays all costs in connection with the exhibition, it is expected that this number will be greatly augmented. The exhibits will be taken from central points and forwarded in carloads to Vancouver, whence they will be shipped to New Zealand via the Allan Line Steamship Company, which is under contract to give quick direct service between Vancouver and New Zealand every sixty days. Manufacturers may obtain full information by applying to the exhibition branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Applications for space will close July 1, provided the space contracted for by the Government is used up by that time.

PERU A NEW SUGAR COUNTRY.

Reporting upon the sugar industry in Peru, T. F. Sedgwick says:

"The progress of Peru's sugar industry with the last decade has been marked. The exportations of sugar have increased in that time from about 72,000 to 132,000 metric tons, as will be seen by the export list:

	Metric tons.
1896	71,735
1897	105,463
1898	105,713
1899	103,706
1900	112,222
1901	114,637
1902	117,361
1903	127,673
1904	131,957

"The production of sugar at the present time is probably in the neighborhood of 150,000 tons.

"Judging from the results at Cartavio and what has been learned of other estates, it would be conservative to estimate that the output of commercial sugar from the acreage of cane now annually cut could be increased fully fifty per cent. by intensive cultivation and the introduction of the most efficient machinery, particularly milling machinery.

"In addition to the sugar lands, cultivated and uncultivated, now under the water system, many thousands of acres could be put into cultivation if the mountain water supplies were made available. It ought not to be a very difficult problem to control and conserve the super-abundant waters of the flood season.

"Satisfactory flowing wells have been sunk near Lima, and it is quite probable that other flowing wells could be successfully sunk on estates that care to increase their water supply.

"The cost of producing sugar should be less than in many other countries. As the lands are level or gently sloping, all kinds of labor-saving machinery can be utilized. Since grinding can be continued throughout the year, proportionately smaller factories are sufficient, and labor can be better regulated both in field and factory. The labor system is good and the price of labor is reasonable. As yet it has not been possible to get full or satisfactory figures leading up to the cost of the production of sugar, but the managers of several of the best estates have placed the cost at about 1.2 cents (gold) per lb.

"Peru is essentially a sugar-growing country, possessing the conditions that should, under systematic development, make it rank high among cane sugar countries."

OTTAWA'S STEADY PROGRESS.

C. H. Crysdale, of Oshawa, Ont., was in Toronto this week on one of his periodical business trips. He says that the outlook for business in Oshawa is unusually bright. Several of the factories there are enlarging their buildings and plant on account of the growing business which they are experiencing, and there have been several sales of real estate at figures in some instances double those asked a few years ago. The building trade is in consequence very busy. The water works system promises to be of great advantage to the people of the town. The county fair, which has heretofore been held at Whitby, will hereafter be held in Oshawa. A board of trade was recently organized there and the leading business men of the town are taking an active interest in it.

A CONSTANT REMINDER.

A handy ash tray—one of those little items useful for a hundred and one things, and without which the constant smoker cannot rest content—such is a souvenir article which has found its way into The Canadian Grocer office. Its form is that of the Canadian flag floating in the air, and it is gotten up brass polished and blue. Neatly emblazoned on its surface are the words "Empire Brand," which is a reminder that it has emanated from the enterprising firm of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, who are the pushers of that line of groceries and canned goods.

A NEW PRODUCE COMPANY.

A report is current of the formation of a new produce company in Western Ontario, composed of many of the old and well known houses of that district. The company will have cold storage warehouses at Montreal and Toronto, with main offices at the latter place. The idea appears to be that of a purely commercial company to handle the products of the various firms incorporated.

AMAZING GROWTH OF RICE EXPORTATION IN AMERICA.

In 1886 the production of rice in southwest Louisiana amounted to a little over two hundred carloads, and six years later, in 1892, it had reached 7,000 carloads; while in the season of 1904, according to the official reports of the Rice Association of America and the Rice Millers and Distributors' Association, the crop of Louisiana and Texas aggregated 5,127,451 bags of rice, and during that season American rice was exported to almost every country of Europe, besides Cuba, Porto Rico, the Hawaiian Islands and Central American states.—J. L. Wright in Sunset Magazine.

AMHERSTBURG FIRE.

The grain warehouse of Barron, Bailey & Bailey, grain buyers, Amherstburg, Ont., was totally destroyed by fire recently. Loss about $5,000 on grain and building; insurance $2,200. Origin of the fire is supposed to be the stove in the office while all were at dinner.

AGENTS WANTED.

A firm of mushroom catsup manufacturers in Great Britain are desirous of appointing Canadian agents for their goods. Particulars can be had by applying care of Editor Canadian Grocer, Toronto.

THE NEW CANNING FACTORY AT NIAGARA.

The new enterprise in the canning industry to which attention was called in a recent issue of the Canadian Grocer, is making substantial headway. The two prominent men in the enterprise are E. D. Smith, of Wentworth, and T. E. Owens, of Picton, both of whom are men of great experience in all branches of the trade. Both gentlemen have already extensive interests in canning industries, Mr. Smith being well known as the canner of the E.D.S. brand of goods, and Mr. Owens in connection with the Quaker brand.

Mr. Owens arrived from New York on Monday, where he has been for the last ten days on business in connection with the new factory being built in the Niagara district.

It is intended to make this the largest and most up-to-date canning factory east of the Rocky Mountains. Four lines of machinery will be installed, which will make the plant capable of packing two hundred thousand cans in ten hours. Plans are being drawn by New York architects, who make a specialty of building canning factories, and one of the best known men in New York State in the canning business has been engaged as superintendent. It is intended to look after export as well as home business. Mr. Smith has some four hundred acres of fruit orchards in the Niagara district, as well as extensive nurseries, and is one of the largest growers and shippers of deciduous fruits in the Dominion. All this tends to make a combination that should make for a successful business from the start.

A "SURPRISE" PAMPHLET.

Premiums are at the present moment the order of the day in Canada, and are by many considered a good method by which to encourage trade and to create interest. It is really surprising the great care and expense to which firms go in maintaining these systems. The Canadian Grocer is in receipt of a handsomely gotten up premium pamphlet bearing on the front page the familiar pictures of the dainty dairy maid peculiar to "Surprise Soap" fame, and which marks it out as emanating from that firm. The pamphlet in itself is a veritable picture book, illustrated from cover to cover with pictures of their multitude of premiums given for Surprise soap wrappers. There is no doubt a copy of this handy booklet would be forwarded on application to the St. Croix Soap Mfg. Co., St. Stephen, N. B.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Elzear Huot, manufacturer of wines, Quebec, has assigned and V. E. Paradis has been appointed provisional guardian.

The creditors of the estate of D. Sabourin, general merchant, St. Isidore, Ont., have been notified to file their claims with the administrator of the estate.

D. W. Clark, grocer Bellevue avenue, Toronto, is building himself a new store at 248 Avenue road, and expects to remove to it about July. The new store is to be modern and handsome in its appointments, befitting a trade in what is coming to be one of the choice residential sections of the city.

Canada has 29 cold storage plants for bait in operation and a number of others in course of construction—21 in Nova Scotia, 5 in P.E.I., 1 in New Brunswick, and 2 in Quebec. The Canso plant has a capacity of 10,000 barrels of bait. It has had a good effect on the fishing of the provinces, and has been quite profitable for all concerned.

An important meeting of the town council of Richmond, Que., was held to decide whether or no grocery licenses should be issued. Three applications came up for consideration, but opposition was manifested by the local clergy. Unless new applications are filed, there will be no grocery licenses for the ensuing fiscal year.

RICE GROWING IN AMERICA.

There are raised in America only two varieties or "styles" of rice—the Honduras, having an oblong grain, and the Japan, having a short oval grain.

In the Carolinas and Georgia and the Mississippi River territory, only the Honduras is raised, while in south-west Louisiana and Texas honors are about equally divided between the two mentioned.

Prior to 1893 only the Honduras varieties had been planted in America. Several cargoes of imported Japan rice had been received in New Orleans and milled there, and upon finding that it met with favor, Gustave A. Jahn, now of Beaumont, one of the pioneer rice men, sent a few hundred pounds of this Japan rice to the Crowley district for experimental planting.

Notwithstanding the doubts and unfavorable opinions of the more sceptical rice men, the Japan rice grew as satisfactorily in Louisiana as upon its native soil in the land of Nippon; and as a result of Mr. Jahn's little experiment twelve years ago, thousands and thousands of acres of land are now planted in Japan rice, about forty per cent. of the Louisiana and Texas plantings being of this variety, which gives us still another example of the marvelous progress of the rice industry.

During the past few years the imports of Japan rice have fallen off from 27,996 tons in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, to a few insignificant consignments received for seed rice purposes during the past year.—J. L. Wright in Sunset Magazine.

MILLING COMPANY'S PLANS.

The Lake of the Woods Milling Company is planning to build an oatmeal mill of large capacity, and some thirty new elevators in different parts of the west. This was decided at a meeting of the directors of the company which was held last week to ratify the purchase of the Keewatin mills. The new Keewatin mills, which have been taken over, will make it necessary to have these buildings to properly handle the grain. The grinding of oats is something new for the Lake of the Woods Milling Company. The new oatmeal mill, which will be most modern, will be situated at or near Portage la Prairie.

A USEFUL SOAP DEVICE.

A comparatively new article which is rapidly coming into general use in America, and one which everywhere recommends itself to the public, is a new type of apparatus for providing small quantities of soap in public lavatories to each individual user. Numerous contrivances of this class have been on the market for several years, but as is customary with all new ideas, the first articles to appear were more or less crude and unsatisfactory.

The purpose of the system is to do away with the indiscriminate use of ordinary soap by all users of a public washstand. This end is accomplished by attaching to the wash bowl, or to the wall near by, a compact little device, called a granulator, which gives out any quantity desired of finely granulated soap in response to the operation of a small handle on the top of the granulator.

The need for a new and better way of using toilet soap has been common talk among physicians for years, as it was well known that the promiscuous use of the same cake of soap by numerous people has been a frequent means of spreading disease-laden germs. Some startling discoveries in this line were recently made as a result of tests of cakes of soap taken from certain hotels in New York city, including one or two of the very best, and at least one from a section whose residents and visitors are rarely suspected of special attention to the subject of cleanliness.

It was found that the big hotels had little ground for sneering at the more humble hostelries. Nearly all the samples examined bore unmistakable evidences that the hands which had used them were sadly in need of soap, and, still worse, that the soap itself constituted an attractive depository for the substances which are usually supposed to take their departure through the wash basin.

It is claimed that the granulators, in addition to their great hygienic advantages, are a source of economy. In the first place they thwart the purpose of that part of the general public which derives its entire soap supply from public buildings, and in the second place they discourage the tendency of many people to use too liberally something that costs them nothing. The average user of the granulator will extract from the apparatus only as much soap as he needs, whereas if he has unrestricted opportunity to use the article in cake form he is never too careful to practice the gentle art of economy which he knows in his own home.

Few New York hotels and office buildings are now without the granulators or similar devices, which have so many advantages that there is every reason to anticipate their universal introduction in the near future.

Think no evil and you will say nothing wrong, and do no wrong.

THE PURE FOOD SHOW.

The Toronto Pure Food Show has been a success. It has already considerably more than paid expenses, and it will return to the four gentlemen who promoted and financed it a handsome profit. They have earned it. Since early in December they have been at work on the undertaking, and they have backed their energy with their cash Three of them are grocers, each with a large business of his own—M. Moyer, G. Good and F. C. Higgins—and the time they put into the show was overtime. It cost over $6,000 to finance the undertaking, but on Tuesday last the expenses had been more than paid. Half Wednesday's receipts was donated to the Japanese relief fund. That, this year, was the only beneficiary beyond the promoters.

"There aren't three other grocers in the city who would venture on the enterprise," said one of the managers. "There's a good deal of work in getting 70 manufacturers to exhibit, and then arrange for the attractions to draw the people. The advertising is a big thing, too. You have to keep at it."

"When are you going to make it in fact, as well as in name, a pure food show, by requiring each exhibitor to furnish a certificate by a qualified chemist that his goods are pure?" he was asked.

"We'll come to that," he replied, but he thought that for the present the undertaking could not make good on that basis.

"Do you find that the people come out of an interest in pure food?"

"No, but the demonstrations in the booths give it to them when they get here."

It was intended to give daily lectures on food subjects, and half a dozen were given, three by Mr. A. McGill, analyst to the pure food branch of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, but it was found expedient to discontinue them. They did not attract in opposition to the more sprightly form of entertainment of the show itself. Mr. McGill came at the instance of the Minister to try and disseminate knowledge about the working of the adulteration act. The attendance at his lectures was not sufficient to make that part of his mission a success. Even when all the grocers in the city were notified by post card of the lecture on cream tartar tests, a mere handful responded.

Mr. McGill, however, got into touch with the trade in a way that will prove useful to himself and the department, and he learned a lot about the pure food show which also was worth his while.

TIN PLATE COMPANY'S PROGRESS

Stories that the Canada Tin Plate & Sheet Steel Company are ordering machinery for their new plant at Morrisburg, and that the plant will soon be in operation, have been investigated by Hardware and Metal, but all that appears to be under way as yet is a small order for shafting and pulleys being filled by the Polson Iron Works, Toronto. A large order for special machinery is said to be promised later on.

The buildings being erected at Morrisburg are not in any shape for the installation of machinery, the floors not yet being concreted. The steel building, about 600 x 60 feet, is roofed with matched spruce, to be covered later with roofing paper, and a stone building, about 160 x 60, is in a similar condition, and work is proceeding very slowly, not a man being working when our representative visited the plant. While it is claimed that from $100,000 to $200,000 has been expended, not over $25,000 or $30,000 appears to have been outlaid so far.

The Morrisburg Town Council, however, is going on with the power scheme, having let the contract for the plant complete, to include the power lines to the factory, all excavations, machinery, etc., for $73,600, the plant to develop 1,100 horse-power. Mr. Birmingham, of Ottawa, is the contractor, and Mr. Shipman the engineer, the latter being the fourth engineer employed by the municipality up to the present time.

Mr. Allison, who is to get $2,250 cash for a site for the factory from the municipality, has deeded to the Tin Plate Company eight acres of the 240 acre farm he purchased for $15,000. He has also laid out 300 building lots, and should he succeed in selling them for $200 each he will net $62,250, and still have over 100 acres of land left.

The company has been very dilatory in making its returns to the Provincial Secretary, and although the Incorporated Companies Act provides that all companies failing to make returns by February 8 of each year shall be liable to a fine of $20 per day, the Tin Plate Company did not make returns until March 23, no fine being imposed, however. The returns show that of the $1,500,000 share capital $565,400 has been paid up, and $5,450 remains subscribed for and unpaid, shares not yet allotted amounting to $934,600. Of the stock subscribed for $548,300 has been allotted to various shareholders free from call, only $17,100 being subject to call, of this $8,249 having been paid in answer to the two calls already made. What consideration was received for the shares issued free from call has not been learned, but the returns show that 5,654 shares, equalling the paid-up capital of $565,400, have been allotted for property concessions.

The largest shareholder is J. Wesley Allison, he holding $321,500 worth; G. H. Meldrum, the president of the company, holding for himself and in trust three amounts of $41,000, $28,700, and $55,500, totalling to $125,200. The directors and their holdings are: W. P. Bull, barrister, Toronto, $10,500; Arch. Campbell, M.P., $1,000; Hon. Richard Harcourt, $3,500; J. J. Main, manufacturer, Toronto, $10,500; E. P. Pearson, insurance agent, Toronto, $10,500, and A. C. Pratt, M.P.P., who holds stock worth $500. Other well-known shareholders are Hugh Graham, proprietor of the Montreal Star, $1,000; F. B. Polson, manufacturer, Toronto, $3,000; S. Nordheimer, manufacturer, Toronto, $2,500; Premier Whitnet, $500, and E. C. Whitney, Ottawa, $10,000. Altogether there are nearly fifty shareholders, a large number of these being in England and Ireland.

It is currently reported that the company's tin plate expert, Mr. Lewis, will leave shortly for England, his mission being to engage Welsh laborers experienced in tin plate making. There is some doubt expressed, however, regarding this, some saying that Mr. Lewis may not return to Canada if he makes the trip.

CANADIAN FISH INDUSTRY.

The increase in the consumption in canned fish in Canada is rather remarkable, and has resulted in the establishment of a number of small factories about the Nova Scotia Coast.

We have not the statistics at our hands at the moment as to the total number that are now operating, but at present there seems to be more than enough to supply the present wants of Eastern Canada, while the industry is springing up on the western coast in British Columbia.

A few years ago lobsters were the only article that were canned to any extent. The price on these, however, is now so high that they are beyond the reach of buyers. Later on canning finnan haddies was begun at Digby, N.S., and is now carried on at a number of points. Subsequently kippered herring and herring in tomato, after the Scotch style, became an important industry, while small herring put up as sardines is one of the largest lines at present existing.

The canners of Canadian fish appear to suffer very much, like many of the farmers do when selling their apples, considering that anything will do for the Canadian market, the natural consequence has followed to discredit largely the use of canned fish.

There are a few high-class canners whose goods are fit for any market in the world, but they complain bitterly of the utter want of support by the distributing trade of high-class goods, and for years past have canned fish, not only without profit, but frequently at a loss, hoping the tide would turn. The craze for cheap goods, however, continues, and we learn from different canners that they will abandon the Canadian market altogether rather than continue. This certainly is to be deprecated, as we want the best of goods in Canada, nothing being too good for Canadians.

During the last few years the supply of haddock has been decreasing, and unscrupulous canners have substituted other fish for them under the same name. The consequence has naturally mitigated against the trade, as it is impossible to find any fish to take the place of the haddock.

Herring also were very poor during 1905, and canners who had sold early in the season found themselves badly put about to fill orders. The same equally applied to Scotch canners.

BETER APPLE PACKING.

The latest news to hand speaks of greater care being taken in the methods of packing apples for the export market. One authority gives it as his opinion that since the recent activity of the fruit inspectors quite ninety per cent. of the packing has been straight packing, equal in every way to Government requirements.

This is highly satisfactory, and it is to be hoped that the coming season will see inaugurated those reforms which have been clearly demonstrated as necessary for the substantial development of the industry.

In turning to one of the most recent reports from Commercial Agent W. A. MacKinnon, the matter is put in a most serious light and should speak as a warning to both packer and broker. He says :

"I have also had complaints of 'overfacing,' and some of the smallest and meanest apples I ever saw have been sent to this office as a fair sample of what was found beneath an ordinary 'No. 2' face. I am aware that the packers of some of these lots have been prosecuted and heavily fined for similar misdoings which were discovered by the inspectors in Canada, but unfortunately the evil effects of business methods of this kind on the reputation of Canadian fruit are not counteracted by any prosecutions, or by the imposition of any penalty. The trade here see the fraud, and most of them never dream that any punishment has been meted out to the wrong-doers. They simply conclude not infrequently that Canadian shippers are untrustworthy."

The serious import of such an impression as this on the minds of foreign buyers will be manifest when it is pointed out that in one comparatively small district the amount involved in its apple trade during the past season was no less a sum than $100,000.

This is an industry which cannot be allowed to suffer at the hands of a few unscrupulous and often irresponsible men. And it is this class of packers which are mainly to blame.

We are far from believing all that has been written and said on this subject. There are men who are foremost in the ranks, and stand high in the estimation of all sections of the trade, and we refuse to believe them capable of jeopardizing a name and trade which has only been built up by years of industry.

It is rather the man who, acting merely as an agent, and has no name to lose, and may be here to-day and gone to-morrow, that stoops to these nefarious methods, and upon these the law should be brought to bear. It is of the first importance to secure the confidence of the buyer abroad, and any and every means to that end should be employed.

THE GRADING AND MARKING OF BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The advisability of marking and dating the several lines of export produce has often been discussed, and has been recently again brought to the front by advices coming to hand from England. The particular complaint appears to run on the butter and cheese exports.

The subject is no doubt one of first importance. It is imperative in commerce that the buyer knows all that is to be known concerning the article for which he is negotiating, and the need of some sound principle upon which to go is nowhere more manifest than in the purchase of such lines as butter and cheese on the British market. Often the most a buyer can do on that side is to pass along the warehouse and draw his samples from a few likely looking tubs or boxes, as the case may be, and upon this he must bargain for perhaps a few hundreds of goods. If after his purchase it is found that the bulk consists of a variety, instead of uniformity of quality, the result of his deal may be to him a disastrous undertaking financially, and not less so to Canadian trade. The reading of the following small paragraph of six lines from Commercial Agent W. A. MacKinnon is therefore pregnant with meaning :

"There continues to be a strong impression of opinion to the effect that Canadian cheese will not hold as good a place in the market which it might win, unless and until every cheese is dated to show the month in which it is made."

The suggestion is no doubt a good one, and carries on the face of it an idea of what would meet the case. In some reports a further suggestion has been made, particularly in the case of butter, that the name and address of the actual producer be clearly marked on the package. There are difficulties in both these suggestions, but which, however, may meet with solution whilst fully following the spirit of what is desired. For instance, many of these goods are collected from small dairies, in very small quantities, and often at a variety of dates for one and the same consignment, so that the multiplicity of the marking would probably only add a further feature of difficulty, as buyers would naturally insist upon same dates being sold in one lot and each dairy being classified and separately sampled; indeed, unless this were so it is difficult to see that the desired good would result.

After looking at all the interests at stake in this proposition it would seem as though by far the most rational way to deal with this question would be to have sufficient qualified men at the points of export embarkation, whose special duties would be to examine and grade all packages placed for export, the special grade, date, and name to be forthwith clearly marked on package. It would really serve very little purpose for the foreign buyer to know the exact locality as long as the mark were absolutely reliable. As regards the dealer on this side, he is always in a position to trace his package by reason of the usual number of the dairy.

By adopting a scheme on such lines as these the foreign market would be served most effectually by establishing a consistent system of grading at the right moment, and fixing the date, place and owner at the time of grading. Furthermore, the service to Canadian trade would be immense, as it would insure that nothing passed out except under honest commercial grading.

THE MUCK RAKE.

President Roosevelt stirred a Washington audience the other day with some remarks on the man with the muck rake, applying Bunyan's conception to the individual who can see nothing but graft or crookedness in the conduct of public and financial affairs. He recognized the necessity for removing filth when it existed and applauded that kind of public service. "But," he concluded, "the man who never does anything else, who never thinks or speaks or writes, save of his feats with the muck rake, speedily becomes, not a help, but one of the most potent forces for evil."

A newspaper guided on the muck rake plan is a greater evil than the individual in the ratio of its circulation to one. It is worse than Samson's forty foxes with the blazing tails. There are men and there are newspapers that allow themselves to be stampeded to grasping the muck rake by a revelation of evil in one place or a dozen places. That indicates merely lack of mental balance and too little faith in human nature. But there is a newspaper that goes deliberately into the muck rake business for commercial purposes. Without regard to individual or financial consequences they grovel with the muck rake, bending their energies to enflame the public mind and create sensations by distortion and misrepresentation of fact or the presentation of partial truths.

In the eyes of such papers every business organization becomes a combine or a trust and every financial institution is regarded with suspicion. This attitude on the part of a newspaper does infinite harm.

IS THE PROSECUTION OFF?

The Hamilton prosecution of the officers of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild on a charge of conspiracy in restraint of trade was adjourned four weeks ago until next Tuesday, April 24. But it will not go on on Tuesday, nor for sometime to come. At least if it does there will be a disappointed lot of wholesale grocers in Ontario.

"It won't go on on Tuesday," said a prominent member of the guild this week. "Why should it? If there's been any offence it has been merely a technical one, because the profits in the wholesale grocery business are less than in any other line I know of. Why, we don't average two per cent. over running expenses. If there has been any infringement of the law we want to know it. All we can get now is a legal opinion, and even judges are not always agreed, to say nothing of lawyers.

Going to the Government.

"We're going to the Government at Ottawa on Friday, wholesalers, retailers and manufacturers, and we're going to ask that the meaning and intent of the code be made plain. Then we're going to ask also for the appointment of a permanent commission of business men who will constitute a tribunal for the hearing of issues involving trade questions and conditions. So until the Government at Ottawa deals with our requests, it would be folly and a useless waste of time and money to go on with the case at Hamilton."

"Would you have the proposed commission an itinerant body like the Railway Commission?" he was asked.

"Oh, my, no," was the reply. "Why, it might not have to meet once a year."

Attorney-General More Captious.

Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General, was asked about it by a Grocer reporter and he was not at all positive about the suspension of the conspiracy proceedings at Hamilton. The reporter saw the provincial law lord and master of all Crown attorneys as he sat at his desk in the Legislative Chamber after the House adjourned on Wednesday evening.

"Well, if he knew and was an honest man I suppose he was right," replied Mr. Foy after hearing what the grocer had told the reporter, "but I don't know. They came to me about the matter and I asked them to send me some more papers and those I got only today. Then I must see Crown Attorney Washington to find out what he has to say, and I haven't even written to him yet. It wouldn't do to act on a one-sided statement, you know."

Deputation Saw Him.

A deputation of the guild members from Toronto and Hamilton waited on the Crown Attorney ten days ago, represented to him the action they purposed taking at Ottawa, and submitted the advice of their lawyers that the prosecution at Hamilton had at best no better basis than a merely technical offence.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Guild was held in Montreal Thursday, and to-day a large deputation including most of the members of the guild in attendance at the annual meeting, representatives of the provincial committee of the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association, and a number of leading manufacturers will wait on the Government to urge the clarifying of the law and the constitution of a business commission.

SALT WAR IN THE STATES.

The salt interests of the Eastern and Middle States are at war and the result is cheap salt. It was started by the Ohio Salt Company, an independent concern, because the trust, the International Salt Company, had invaded its territory, secured to it by agreement with the trust. Other independent companies with similar agreements as to territory also complain of invasion and are breaking away.

The trust's answer to the Ohio Company was a deeper cut of 15 cents a barrel below the Ohio level. Here are the trust's old and new prices:

	New basis.	Old basis.
Bulk, dairy, 320-lb. bbls.	1.32	1.64
Sacks, 224 lbs.	.85
200 lbs.	.76
Barrels, 100 3-lb. pockets	2.06	2.36
70 4-lb. pockets	1.87	2.15
40 7-lb. pockets	1.74	2.02
28 10-lb. pockets	1.70	2.00
20 14-lb. pockets	1.65	1.90

MR. MARSHALL'S PLANS.

The resignation of David Marshall from the management of the Canadian Canners came as a surprise to the trade. Mr. Marshall by his long connection with the canning industry is very widely known, and is regarded for his amiable personality as he is respected for his business ability.

Although giving up the management of the great canning consolidation he was so large a factor in organizing and placing on its present basis, Mr. Marshall still retains his connection as a member of the firm and a stock-holder.

As to his future plans Mr. Marshall is not in a position to make an announcement just at present.

CUT RATE WAR.

Import commodity rates have been greatly cut recently by American trunk lines. These rates come into force from Philadelphia and Baltimore. The reason given for the cutting of the rates by some in authority is that the trunk lines wish to put a stop to the ever-increasing inroads of the Canadian and Gulf routes on import traffic.

The C.P.R. state their intention of meeting the rates of the trunk lines on goods from England to the States.

GRAIN EXPORTERS RETIRING.

It is stated that a Chicago firm, Harris, Scotten Co., who, for the past two seasons have been the largest grain exporters through the port of Montreal, are retiring, and that a new firm, Norris & Co., will continue the business.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Quebec Markets.

FLUCTUATIONS.
Beans—Advanced.
Sugar—Declined 10c.
Molasses—Slight decline.
Fish—Revised throughout.

Montreal, April 19, 1906.

The wholesale trade, as well as the retail merchants, report having transacted an excellent Easter business. The demand for all lines of groceries was first-class. During this week, however, there has been an after effect, as it were, which is felt more by the wholesalers than by the retailers. There has been a falling off in the demand for different lines, the public seemingly having not yet used up their Easter purchases. The orders coming in from country points are still small, but now that local navigation has opened up it is expected that an increased business will be noticed. Collections have been fairly good, and are expected to show much improvement after the first dairy money gets circulated. It will be noticed that there has been a decline of ten cents all along the line in sugar this week. At these prices the sales ought to pick up a little. Business in tea generally is quiet. Ceylon greens seem to be moving about as well as any other lines. Canned goods are very quiet, even tomatoes having fallen off in demand. Beans are not coming forward very rapidly. Prices have again advanced. Foreign dried fruits do not present any interesting features.

CANNED GOODS—There is nothing new in canned goods this week. There is no extra demand for any line in particular. Even tomatoes are quieter than usual. It is probable that the demand will experience a still further falling off when the new fruit and vegetables begin to arrive.

SUGAR—There has been a decline of ten cents all along the line in sugar. This took place on Tuesday morning. The raw sugar market is lower, and the market in New York recently went down ten cents also. The demand locally is not very brisk at present, the orders reported by jobbers being of the hand-to-mouth character. At the lower prices sales ought to pick up a little in the near future.

TEA—In tea circles business is not as brisk as it might be, yet some lines are moving quite freely. Ceylon greens are very firm and selling well. Inquiries for Ceylon blacks are good. Indians are meeting with their usual sale. Japans are moving slowly, and it is said that stocks are not large. Congous are not going very fast. Prices remain about the same.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — Trade locally is on the quiet side. There has been some little demand for Valencia raisins. Taragona almonds are reported firmer. Shelled almonds are also higher, the market abroad having advanced three shillings. There is no change in currants and little business doing. In other lines business is about the same as usual.

MAPLE PRODUCTS—The new maple syrup continues to come in in good quantities. Orders which manufacturers have had on file for some time are gradually being filled. Prices are unchanged with the exception of pure Townships sugar, which is now selling from 7c. to 8c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—There in little change in evaporated apples. They are selling all the way from 10c. to 12½c., according to quality. Supplies at hand are very limited.

FISH—Now that the Lenten season has come to a close, the demand for all lines of fish has fallen off considerably. No improvement is looked for now before the opening of navigation. The close season for pickerel or dore, which began April 15, will continue until May 15, so that this fish will be off the market during that time. Fresh lake trout and white fish will not begin to arrive until after May 1. In smoked fish dealers expect a continued demand for haddies and other lines until the warm weather sets in. There is a fair demand for skinless cod and pickled salmon in salt fish, but other lines are neglected.

GROCERIES.

GROCERIES.—Business is progressing smoothly at this centre with little to distinguish one day from another. The general tone is cheerful, while there is no excitement or hilarity in regard to volume. The decline in sugar which took effect Tuesday was the only price variation of moment during the week, though of course there are changes and rumors of changes in the primary markets. Sugar is the only weak spot.

CANNED GOODS—The demand continues good in all lines and prices are holding firm.

The Spring supply of canned pineapples has arrived and from all quarters the demand is reported good. The price for Summer shipment from Singapore is 10c. to 20c. a dozen higher than Spring importations cost. The sale of canned pineapples in Canada is increasing very rapidly since ruling prices have enabled a 1½-lb. can to be sold profitably at 15c., while 2½-lb. cans can be sold with good profit to the grocer at 25c.

SUGAR—A cut of ten cents a hundred pounds in refined was made by the Canadian refiners on Tuesday.

Extreme weakness seems to be the prevailing feature in the raw sugar market at the moment. Sales abroad are reported at a further decline. Small parcels of centrifugals have changed hands in New York at 2⅛c. c.i.f., which is 28c. a hundred pounds below the highest point reached this year thus far; but still 10c. per 100 lbs. above the lowest point of the year. This quotation is 1⅜c. per pound less than the ruling figure at this time last year and from present indications it would seem as if lower prices would yet be reached. Weather indications in Cuba are favorable at the moment and it appears probable that the crop out there would be fully as large as last year, say about 1,170,000 tons as a minimum with a possibility of going to 1,250,000 tons. The world's visible supply is now 4,128,332 tons against 2,971,477 tons at the same uneven dates last year, an increase of 1,156,855 tons.

Weather reports from Europe are favorable for field work in regard to beets and it would seem as if the out-turn would be fully up to Mr. Licht's estimate of 6,970,000 tons.

Certain disturbing elements have adversely affected the New York refined sugar market, among which the increased production of the Federal refinery is a leading factor and competition at Missouri River points between the product of the eastern refiners and that of the New Crockett Refining Company of San Francisco has tended to break prices. The tone throughout the week has been one of extreme dullness and following a cut in prices of 10c. a hundred made by the Federal, the other New York refiners reduced their quotations on the 16th inst. 10c. a hundred lbs., the last making the New York basis now $4.40 and leaving the margin between raw and refined .916c. as compared with a difference last year of 1.09c.

The weakness in New York was reflected in the similar decline here on Tuesday and our quotations are accordingly revised. The declines have had the effect of restricting the demand and at the moment the consumption is on the bare hand-to-mouth basis.

The Acadia Sugar Refining Co. have started up their Woodside refinery again and are once more soliciting orders for shipment after being out of the market for six weeks.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES — The market continues firm, but without quotable change. The importations from the British West Indies last fiscal year were 3,464,805 gallons; $705,383 in value out of a total importation of over 8,000,000 gallons valued at $1,080,000.

TEA—The tea trade locally is a little slow at present and practically featureless.

London mail advices indicate a small home demand, but some export business and considerable irregularity in prices, especially for commoner sorts. An expected reduction of the duty was keeping traders out of the market pending an announcement by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Speaking this week of the tea situation in Canada, J. L. Watt, of J. L. Watt, Scott & Co., Toronto, said:

"The outlook for Japan teas so far as known appears to be for productions of about the same extent as last year, and probably the same range of prices. The sale for Japan teas has been declining in Canada, but this can have little material influence upon the market as long as the teas retain favor in the United States, where the whole production can be easily absorbed at normal values.

"The falling off in the consumption of Japan tea in Canada has two main causes. First, black teas are steadily becoming the drink of Canadians, and the reduced consumption of Japans has not been in any more marked degree than the reduced consumption of China greens, and secondly, the production of green tea in India and Ceylon showing fine leaf and liquor for medium prices has been a strong competitor with Japan for the business that does exist for green tea.

"Ceylons—The market has been an advancing one in Colombo for the past two months, but it has been a steady hardening without quotable change in price from sale to sale, but in the aggregate the advance now amounts to ½d a pound on good Orange Pekoes, and 1d a pound on fine flavoring teas, while good common sorts have not shown more than a farthing advance from the lowest point."

COFFEE—The market in the United States has shown a slightly weaker tendency, but in Europe it is steady. Willett & Gray, New York, say: "The European deliveries continue very large, even although the interior follows a strictly hand-to-mouth policy, the deliveries during March having established a record for that month. It is generally conceded that the interior of Europe is at present more exhausted than ever. The deliveries in Europe are regarded by the coffee dealers there as actual consumption, on which basis the European consumption should be figured at fully 10,000,000 bags of all grades, the deliveries in the United States being nearly 7,000,000 bags. It can therefore be stated that the actual consumption for the coming year will be a minimum of 17,000,000 bags, and in view of the small stocks existing in the interior of Europe, may reach 17½ to 18,000,000 bags. Against these figures, it is very improbable that the production under favorable circumstances will reach any such figures, but on the contrary it is more likely that the consumption which during two years has been so much in excess of production will remain so for a long time to come.

"The interior is holding aloof in making purchases, the large centres like Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans, having sufficient stocks to allow them to wait, while the hundreds of thousands of small grocers all over the country are buying strictly from hand to mouth, and are carrying as little stock as possible."

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — The market in currants maintains considerable strength, and all offers below actual quotations are refused, while in some cases slight advances are demanded. The demand is good locally and a fair amount of business has been done for importation.

The local demand for Valencia raisins is improving, and some sales have been made from first hands during the week, which cleaned up the few thousand boxes so held, and now practically all stocks are in the hands of the dealers and the position is decidedly firmer. "There is only one course for the price of Valencias," said a prominent broker this week, "unless the demand should prove to be below the local supply, but on the contrary everyone looks for a large demand, the price being abnormally low and all competing fruits being abnormally high."

Prunes are in active consumptive demand locally, and without quotable change in price as yet, despite a very strong situation in California. Apricots also are in good demand and very firm.

NUTS—Business in nuts, shelled and unshelled, is active at recent advances, but the price here has not gone up to the extent of the advance in the primary markets. But as stocks are not heavy local prices are slowly but steadily creeping up to the equivalent of importation cost, and as high prices usually stop importation it would not be surprising if an acute shortage should manifest itself during the next few months.

RICE AND TAPIOCA — The lower price on tapioca of two weeks ago led importers to suppose that the market was about to tumble from the high price recently established, but those having best information, brokers, to wit, advised taking advantage of the temporary dulness, and now the market has again advanced 2s., or a little over ½c. on the duty paid price, and Singapore firms say that the prices are fully warranted by the actual position of the article.

HIDES — The supply continues abnormally light, partly due to the excessively bad roads which, combined with a hope for still better prices, keeps the country butchers from marketing their stock. There may be a further slight upward movement, but large buyers think the limit has been reached. For days Chicago holders and tanners have been ¼c. apart, and nothing doing, but the feeling is that that can't last, and that the holders will give way.

White & Co., Limited, are into the pineapple business very largely this season. Their first full car of the Godinez brand arrived this week.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, April, 1906.

Business is more active. The outlook for the Summer is good. Nothing so affects the situation in this province as the results obtained from the lumber operations; it is said the cut has been large and that the river driving is likely to be successful. This with the full prices ruling points to good times. With money for lumber coming freely into the province all branches of business are favorably affected. The break in the past week and bad weather have somewhat hurt immediate business.

In markets there is nothing of particular interest, prices generally firmly held. Molasses is higher. Pork products continue to advance. Lard making record prices. In spice, ginger has advanced quite rapidly. Cloves are again higher. Pepper is rather easier, particularly in the New York markets. Nutmegs are rather higher; they have for a long time been low. Cream of tartar little changed.

SALT.—This is the busy season. Arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt are very heavy. Of late years the Manchester steamers have brought perhaps the larger quantities, usually giving a better rate of freight. Demand is good; prices rather easier. Fine salt, with the opening of the dairy season, is in more active demand; prices unchanged.

CANNED GOODS. — Tomatoes are very firm at full prices. Corn, while firmer, is still sometimes quoted at close figures. Peas are low. In fruits, gallon apples are higher; all fruits are firmer. In salmon, prices unchanged. Meats are low; while American meats are being pushed, the dumping clause is acting as a barrier. Oysters firmer. In domestic fish, sardines about the only line held.

GREEN FRUIT.—Apples about out of the market, high prices for good stock. Bananas begin to sell freely, prices about as usual. Valencia oranges are higher; Californias are firm. Lemons, fair sale at about even prices. Fine rhubarb now seen, prices high. New cucumbers offered.

DRIED FRUIT.—Prunes are quite interesting; prices are higher, stock scarce. In raisins, seeded are quite low, prices rather firmer. Apricots and peaches are held at full prices. Malaga loose Muscatels have a steady sale, being lower than California stock. Valencias rather dull. Currants are very firm, a fair business. Peels, particularly citron, will be high; this is the first new dried fruit to be bought. Dates are firm. Evaporated apples sell but slowly at the high prices. Onions quite firmly held; Egyptians were rather higher last week; Valencias, American and Canadian are also in the market.

MOLASSES. — Barbadoes, of which both in choice and fancy a fair stock is held, with considerable bought to arrive, is higher and firmly held. No New Porto Rico yet offered; old sells slowly, prices quite high compared with Barbadoes.

FISH.—Just a fair supply of fresh fish. Gaspereaux come to hand slowly. Nice halibut offered. In dry fish, prices rather lower but still quite high. Smoked herring are lower. Pickled herring still very scarce and high. Just fair sale for finnan haddies.

B. C. Markets

Vancouver, April 18, 1906.

The laying of rails on the Great Northern Railway's Similkameen branch is to begin at once, and the line will then be opened for traffic as far as Princeton. In addition to giving rail connection into the district it will give the opportunity for shipment from the many productive fruit growing sections in the district which have hitherto been unable to dispose of the fruit. The range of fruit growing in the Similkameen is as great as in the Okanagan valley, and some say even greater. The peaches, apricots, etc., are, it is confidently asserted, as readily grown as are apples and other fruits.

Large areas of fruit lands have been subdivided and sold in anticipation of the coming of the railway. Last year in the Keremeos section alone over 25,000 trees were set out. This year there will be many more.

In the Kootenay valley close to the city of Nelson and for miles along the shores of both lake and river, the lands are being taken up rapidly and cleared for orchards. There has been no cessation to the movement since the attention of enterprising people has been turned to the favorable conditions for fruit-raising and the profitable returns from the industry. This district as well as the Similkameen will give the Okanagan valley a hard race for supremacy in the field so long held undisputed by the latter. The quantity of fruit produced, when all orchards now being reared in the three interior districts are in bearing, will go a long way to supplying the great market of the Northwest.

The purchase by the C.P.R. of the charter for an electric railway up the Fraser valley on the south side of that stream to the Chilliwack district gives promise of the line being built soon. The plans of the company since purchasing the charter have not been announced, but seeing that at least one other road, the Great Northern, is aiming to build in the same direction, it is supposed that the line will be built this year. While no positive announcement has been given, the statement has been made on good authority that the British Columbia Electric Railway Company will electrify and operate the new line as it does the C.P.R.'s Lulu Island line, using part of the power now generated at Lake Beautiful.

The building of this road would not only give rail access to the Chilliwack district, an old and wealthy settlement, but it would open up and bring into favorable condition for settlement a large acreage from the Fraser River to the international boundary line.

Northern shipments are beginning to move in anticipation of the opening of the season on the Yukon. The steamer Amur took north a good cargo and the other vessels in the northern trade are carrying large shipments every trip. Advices from the north indicate that the Winter trail is about to break up. Then ensues for a time a break in the line of communication so for as carrying passengers goes. The opening of the river, which usually occurs some time in May, is looked for earlier than usual this Spring. In preparation for the open season the White Pass Railway Co. has greatly improved its fleet of river steamers.

Market conditions while healthy show no great activity for this season of the year. Staples are firm and well stocked, produce is in fair supply in most lines, fruit is limited to the citrus varieties, while the range of vegetables increases.

The arrival of the steamer Moana of the Canadian-Australian line brought a consignment of New Zealand butter, which is likely to be the last this season, though there may be one more shipment by way of San Francisco, direct from New Zealand. The other butter stocks arriving are some held stock from the east, and of course the weekly output of the local creameries, which is increasing every week now. Prices for the New Zealand butter and for local fresh creamery to the trade are 30c. and 31c. Eastern held goods bring 27c. and 28c.

Eggs are in plentiful supply locally, and despite the Easter demand brought about the same price as a week ago, 25c. per dozen to the trade. An indication of local production is found in the market report from New Westminster's weekly farm market, in which it is stated that about 100 cases of eggs were bought for Vancouver trade in the one day. This is, however, a record, and perhaps due to the expected Easter demand.

Fruits are not showing many new varieties at present. There are strawberries to be obtained from California, but the price prohibits importation yet. Oranges are in good supply and fine quality, but the price remains firm. The range is from $3 to $3.75. Lemons are now in active demand and the price was quoted up to $4 this week. Grape fruit is regularly on the market, but demand is limited. Apples will soon be out altogether. Few are in the market and are selling at $2.50 per box. The S.S. Moana brought in some pineapples from Honolulu, which are selling at about $6 per dozen. Bananas are in regular weekly supply by rail and bring $3.50 to $3.75 per bunch.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, April 18, 1906.

The retail grocery business this Easter was unusually good. Many of the dealers report that they were taxed to their limit to fill the orders. The wholesale trade is also good, not only in the city but also at outside points. Some of the principal articles called for at Easter time were high and scarce this season, this applying particularly to hams, bacon and eggs.

The scarcity of hogs all season has caused a shortage of both hams and bacon, and at the last moment the egg supply slackened up, and thus an advance in price followed. The choicest local cured hams are quoted at 18 cents retail, and bacon 20 cents. The local product is preferred to the imported.

CANNED GOODS—Are cheap and in good supply the demand being good for all lines. More canned goods are being used on this market than ever before. The quality generally seems to have improved, and people who heretofore were prejudiced against their use are now getting the habit.

FRUITS—Some good apples were marketed during the week, and they were readily bought up. The Northern Spys sold for $5 per barrel, and the retailer disposed of them for 25 and 30 cents per dozen. Even at these figures there was very little money in handling them. Nonpariels are offering at $4.50 per barrel. The demand for all green fruit is good. Jamaica oranges are about cleaned up; the stocks now held here are small both in quantity and quality. They are quoted at $7 per barrel. Valencias are selling from $4.50 to $6. Bananas are coming in more freely as the season advances. The quality as yet is very poor. Strawberries are quoted at 40 to 45 cents. Lemons are the same as last week. It is expected that the new crop of Jamacia onions will soon be marketed here.

VEGETABLES — Some fine quality vegetables were exposed for sale at the green market on Saturday, including beets, carrots, parsnips and turnips. Most of these were kept in the ground during the Winter, and they were in fine condition. They sold readily. Potatoes are becoming a little scarce, the Island stock all requiring to be picked over. Some New Brunswick potatoes of good quality are now being marketed. The commission houses are quoting turnips at 90 cents per barrel, carrots and beets at about $1.50, and parsnips at $1.75. The latter are becoming scarce. Cabbage are unusually scarce and hard to obtain at any price. They are quoted at from $1 to $1.25.

MEATS AND POULTRY—Good poultry was out of the question this Easter. Nothing of first quality was offered. Some fowls and a few old turkeys were exposed for sale. The former were quoted at from $1.25 to $1.50 per pair. The turkeys were 22 cents. Not a good young turkey could be had at any price. Those offered were only fit to boil. Spring lamp was worth from 30 to 35 cents per pound by the quarter; mutton from 7 to 9c., and veal about 8c. All the beef offered was of first quality, it being raised principally in Nova Scotia. For some of the choicest the dealers paid as high as 10c. per pound.

BUTTER AND EGGS — There was but a slight improvement in the receipts of butter during the week. A little more fresh dairy butter was marketed, but the quantity was not sufficient to have any influence on the price. The quality of this butter is of the best, and in consequence the farmer wants all that he can get for it. Quotations are: Creamery, 25 to 26c.; solids, 24 to 25c.; dairy tubs, 23 to 24c., and rolls, 22 to 23c. The expected slump in the egg market at Easter did not materialize. Prices advanced instead of decreasing, as forecasted. Usually at Easter on this market eggs are in abundance and the price is low. Not so this season. To use a stock market term, "eggs are fluctuating." The Nova Scotia supply fell off very suddenly, and had not the Island eggs come to the rescue the market would have gone short. From 17 to 18c. were the prices quoted, and they were retailed at 20 to 22c.

Several of these local sections have been formed during the last three weeks by the secretary and others are to be organized immediately. These local organizations are in position to deal effectively this season with the handling of farm produce and it is confidently hoped that in some districts they will remedy the evil that has been the most pressing.

On the night of the 11th inst. an important organization meeting of the Kirkella section was held in Lemberg. Secretary Coulson made a special trip from Winnipeg to attend the meeting and there was a large attendance of dealers from all parts of the section. Officers were elected, as noted above.

There has been some unfortunate and foolish competition in Killarney that has been attracting the attention of the trade in neighboring towns. A few days ago the climax was reached when a big "special sale" was announced in one of the stores to be in charge of a Winnipeg firm who make a specialty of the conduct of clearing sales. The other dealers met and agreed to conduct an auction sale in premises specially secured for the occasion. Each store contributed its share of goods and the proceeds were kept separate. As an effective counterblast to the special sale, the auctioneering method was a success, but it is unfortunate that such things should occur.

There is an erroneous impression abroad among the trade that the General Merchants' Association and the Hardware Merchants' Association have amalgamated; some dealers imagining that the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada has absorbed the Western Retail Hardware Association and some imagining that the latter has absorbed the former. This is a great mistake. The two associations have affiliated for certain purposes but they have not amalgamated. There are still two separate associations, there being a world of difference between affiliation and amalgamation. Briefly the situation is this: The two associations have, in joint session, elected a "Western Board" whose main duty it is to look after any legislation in the common interest of all retailers. That is the extent of the affiliation that has been effected. Each association has its own executive, its own secretary and its own particular aims and objects.

ASSOCIATED BOARDS OF TRADE OF WESTERN CANADA.

The following communications have been received at the office of The Canadian Grocer, having reference to the Western Canada Convention of the Associated Boards of Trade, to be held in Edmonton on June 13th and 14th next.

Edmonton Board of Trade.

"The Editor Canadian Grocer.

"Dear Sir,—Attached is a circular notice in regard to the annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada. This will probably be of interest to many of your readers, and I will be glad if you will make mention of the convention. These notices have been sent in to all boards of trade interested, so far as I have information as to their existence.

"Development is very rapid in the west at present, and it is hard to get informed of all that goes on, and some recently formed boards of trade may have been overlooked. If there are any such it would be taken as a favor if they would advise the secretary of the Edmonton Board of Trade, and the notice referred to will be sent to them.

"Special arrangements have been made with the Canadian Northern and Canadian Pacific Railways for transportation of delegates at greatly reduced rates.

"F. T. FISHER, Secretary."

The following is a copy of the notice issued from Edmonton to the various boards of trade secretaries, and to which early response is requested:

Edmonton Board of Trade.

Edmonton, Alberta.

"The Secretary, Board of Trade,—

"Dear Sir,—At the second annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of the Northwest Territories, held at Regina on June 29 and 30 last, it was decided that the 3rd annual convention should be held at Edmonton in 1906, under the title of 'The Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada.'

"I now have the honor to advise you that Wednesday and Thursday, 13th and 14th of June next, have been fixed as the dates of that convention, and your board is invited to send the full number of delegates permitted under the constitution.

"Under separate cover I am sending you a copy of the report of the second annual convention. Beginning on page 34 will be found the constitution and by-laws of the association. If you will be good enough to refer to section 9 of the constitution, you will learn the representation to which your board is entitled at the convention. A list of membership, certified by your secretary, should be furnished.

"I would also draw attention to section 14, which makes provision for a fund to cover the expenses incidental to

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The situation on both cheese and butter remains unchanged, especially as far as last season's make is concerned. Stocks are now well concentrated in British importers' hands ; they are light and barely enough to last until the new season's make can reach the markets in sufficient quantities to affect prices.

There is, however, a good deal of activity at country points regarding the opening of the new season. Country boards are being organized and factories opened for business. Quantities produced at present are naturally very limited yet, but the very fact that some new cheese are being made is already having some effect on the market. Most conflicting reports regarding prices asked by factories and those bid by merchants are at present the order of the day ; this is misleading and irregular.

Butter is in good local demand and prices are a long way above the export basis ; this should be a note of warning to the creameries not to force production. The season in European dairy countries is much earlier than our own, and Irish and continental butter will rule the British markets well into June. It does not seem probable, from present view, that we will get any demand from the United Kingdom until we get to full grass quality, and if the early make of fodder butter is larger than our home consumption, prices will decline very rapidly, which would entail severe losses. As the season advances the flow of milk increases and so does the production of cheese and butter.

Colored cheese is very scarce at present in the British markets, and the demand for it is likely to be good for some time to come. It should, however, be borne in mind that white cheese will also be wanted and it would be a decided mistake if the great majority of our factories were to rush in to make only colored cheese, as any over-supply would be followed by lower prices.

On the whole, even the near future of market values of either cheese or butter is very uncertain, and it is most difficult to make any predictions in this respect at the present moment. No doubt supply and demand will regulate prices in time, but at present it seems safer for farmers to make more cheese and less butter, as British markets will need cheese, and, as before stated, they will have plenty supplies of butter from other sources.

It is encouraging to read reports from many sections, both in Ontario and Quebec, that the question of individual cow-testing has been taken up in earnest and some interesting results have already been published. We certainly recommend the general adoption of this system throughout all the dairy sections of the Dominion ; it is in the interests of the farmers, and as the Government officials are ready to aid the farmers in assuming the greater part of the expenses, it is only right that our farmers, interested in dairy herds, should avail themselves of this opportunity. The cost of keeping a poor cow is as great as that of keeping a good cow ; the latter will pay for her keep, while the former will not, and by weeding out non-paying stock the farmers will be the gainers.

Once more we wish to mention the importance of using better cheese boxes. Complaints about broken boxes continue to come in from British importers. A new box, made and exhibited by Mr. D. M. McPherson, of Lancaster, was generally approved by the merchants of Montreal. This box certainly seems an improvement on the boxes now in use. It has been tried in shipments both from country points to Montreal and from Montreal to Great Britain. It may not be absolutely perfect, but as the cost of this box is not more than that of the ordinary box, it is certainly worth trying on a larger scale.

A most interesting and satisfactory test was recently made with a large line of paraffined cheese. These were made during last September and kept at the Government cool curing room in St. Hyacinthe until about April 1. The Montreal weighmaster was sent there and his averages proved that not one pound was lost in weight during all this time, when it is conceded that an average loss in weight during this time would have been at least 3 lbs. per box, it is the strongest possible argument in favor of the paraffining of cheese. The shrinkage in weight of cheese held in storage is a very material item, and while it benefits nobody; it means a serious loss to the holder of the cheese. Now, if the paraffining will prevent this enormous loss, by all means let us have every cheese paraffined.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The provision outlook shows little change since our last review. Packers report moderate supplies of hogs—at eastern points barely sufficient to keep demand going ; at Ontario points arrivals have been more regular but of inferior growth and quality.

Usually at this season farmers rush supplies along, so as to reduce as far as possible their pens of live stock in view of coming out door work. If the present season is being dealt with in the same way, the natural conclusion is that packers will have to go sadly short of supplies in the near future. It is expected, however, by those who are in touch with the farmers, that more stock will be reserved for service, so that gradually increasing supplies will be continued.

The Cincinnati Price Current has the following interesting note, which gives a fair idea of the conditions abroad and against which the Canadian exporter has to compete :

"There is usually a tendency to reduce marketing of hogs at this time in the year, and this condition is reflected in the past week. Total western packing 380,000 hogs, compared with 485,000 the preceding week, and 360,000 two weeks ago. For corresponding time last year the number was 390,000, and two years ago 435,000.

"The quality of current marketings is good. Prices at the close are a little higher, prominent places indicating an average of about $6.40 per 100 pounds, compared with $6.35 a week ago, $6.35 two weeks ago, $5.40 a year ago, $5.20 two years ago.

"Foreign markets were firm and domestic markets were quiet and steady. The export clearances for product were moderate and show a decrease as compared with the preceding week and a falling off compared with the corresponding week last year."

It will thus be seen that the American market is a very strong one, with supplies scarcely equal to last year at similar dates, and considerably below that of two years ago.

American exports to Europe were also below similar averages, so that the total result should be considerable strengthening of the English market in favor of Canadian bacon.

SALES OF PURE BRED HOGS.

According to the report issued by the Government on the Government sales of pure bred hogs in the Province of Quebec, some hundred and six animals were sold. The report advises farmers to give more attention to the proper raising of swine of the bacon type, and goes on to say that instead of allowing the animals to run to three or four hundred pounds the farmers should allow them to reach a marketable condition at from seven to eight months of age when weighing from 180 to 220 pounds. The report continues that if farmers devote the proper attention to the raising of the bacon class of hogs they will participate in the many millions of dollars annually distributed in Canada from Great Britain, where Canadian bacon has gained such as enviable place.

PROVISIONS—The Easter trade in provisions has been excellent; just at present, however, trade is rather quiet. The demand for bacon is improving. Stocks are light and prices have gone up in consequence. Hams are in better demand now also.

BUTTER—The market is rather quiet at present. The new milk creamery is down ½c. Other lines are changed a little also. Old stock is nearly cleaned up. The English market is in a very unsatisfactory condition and the range of values is low. The prospects are at present that Canadian butter will have to come down before the opening of the export trade in order to do business with the Old Country.

CHEESE—The old cheese is off the market entirely, and the new fodder stock is coming in in increasing quantities. Prices range from 12c. to 12¼c. for white, and about 12½c. for colored. These prices will ease off as the receipts increase.

EGGS—The market is easy in tone at present. Prices vary but the average seems to be about 16c. Stocks are fairly plentiful.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS — Pork products still have an upward tendency and though the packers cut the price on live hogs 10c. on Monday no immediate decline in the finished article is looked for. Supplies, the dealers say, are not increasing and the consumptive demand is very good. There is a higher range of prices for long clear hams and short cut. Lard, too, is very strong, partly, perhaps, in sympathy with the American market. At any rate dealers are quoting ¼c. to ½c. higher. Street lots of hogs are slightly higher than last week but are expected to return to about that level.

BUTTER—The market is taking its seasonable downward. The only questions are how fast and how far. It is just a case of increasing supplies owing to fresh cows and larger yield of milk. The quality is improving a little but the marked change will not come till the kine get out to grass.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS.

This year eleven associations have been organized in Ontario and Quebec by the dairy division of the department of agriculture. About three thousand cows are now regularly under test, their owners having agreed to weigh the milk six times a month, the department doing the testing for a year. It is expected in this way that several unprofitable cows will be detected and disposed of, while an incentive will be given to keep better stock and feed them better.

A table has been issued giving the result of the first thirty day period of testing at St. Armand, Que., showing the average yield of each herd, and the contrast between the highest and lowest yield of butterfat from the best and poorest cow in each herd.

LARGE NEW MONTREAL COMPANY.

The formation is under way at present of a stock company capitalized at $150,000 to carry on a general business in Montreal in grocers' sundries, coffee roasting, spice manufacturing, etc. The new company, which is to be composed of Edouard D. Marceau, D. Masson, L. J. Francois, Edmond N. Marceau and N. Prudhomme, all of Montreal, will be known as the Compagnie E. D. Marceau (Limitee).

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The Montreal office of "Salada" report an exceptionally good week's business, notwithstanding the holiday intervening.

A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, have still a number of very fine large white and colored cheese, September and October make, on which they are quoting interesting prices. A post card will bring particulars and quotations.

RETURNED FROM ENGLAND.

I. Hibbert, Canadian manager for Willer & Riley, of England, has just returned from the Old Country. Mr. Hibbert is still suffering from the sprained ankle he sustained before he left Montreal, but is able to get around much better now. He reported business in England as being very good. The prospects are bright for a good trade in cheese and butter when the season opens. At present, however, the English butter market is in anything but a satisfactory condition. Mr. Hibbert states that business generally in the Old Country is very good.

NEW AGENCIES APPOINTED.

W. H. Millman & Sons, brokers, Toronto, have just been appointed Canadian agents for Bertenshaw & Turner, Manchester, one of the largest peel manufacturers in England. They manufacture very large quantities for large exporters in England, but have never attempted selling direct in Canada until now. No doubt their prices will be very interesting to Canadian buyers. W. H. Millman & Sons report they expect samples immediately, when they will be able to show them to the trade.

W. H. Millman & Sons have also just been appointed agents for a large packer and exporter of Camadra figs, and will have some interesting prices for the coming Summer for direct shipment.

ALBERTA'S SUGAR REFINERY

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Knight Sugar Co., of Raymond, Alberta, was held in Salt Lake City, Utah, it being a Mormon undertaking, on April 2. A dividend of 8 per cent. was declared on the company's capital stock, $1,000,000. The profits during the past season from the company's cattle land and merchandise business was reported as especially gratifying. The only change made in the board of directors was the election of C. A. Magaath, Lethbridge, in place of J. Wm. Knight.

ROCKEFELLER AND THE GROCER.

John D. Rockefeller is reported to have had quite an argument with his grocer in Lakewood, N.J., recently. John did not want to pay fourteen cents a gallon for his kerosene oil and the grocer thought he should do so, since the Standard Oil Company charged him thirteen cents. The grocer contended that he could not do business if he did not make anything out of his sales. The report does not state who won out in the end.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The outlook is certainly improving, and a better feeling is evident among dealers. The domestic trade has little to report; demand continues good but of a distinctly hand to mouth character.

There was a decidedly better inquiry for Winter wheat from the millers during the past week and prices are slightly higher on account of the light offerings.

The exhaustion of stocks of Manitoba wheat at ports east of the lakes is being felt by millers, especially west of Toronto, as they are compelled in some instances to pay the high rate of freight from Midland in order to secure enough to carry them over until the opening of navigation. It is reported that there are only a few thousand bushels of No. 1 northern and No. 2 northern available at Midland and only six or eight thousand bushels No. 1 northern left at Owen Sound, so with very light offerings from North Bay, it looks as though some millers who depend on the lake port elevators for their supplies may find themselves in an awkward position before shipments arrive across the lakes.

Exporters report that while the demand for Manitoba wheat has been spasmodic, that they have been able to put through a number of good sales. The superior quality of the Manitoba wheat causes the demand for it, notwithstanding that the price of Duluth wheat is now so nearly on a level with Manitoba prices.

The Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways have agreed to the following arrangements in reference to Montreal terminals and storage on grain shipments:

Shipments of oats will be way-billed at the domestic rate and reduced to the export rate on proof of exportation, and the Montreal terminal charge, which will include elevation, 20 days' storage or part thereof and floating in Montreal harbor, but exclusive of insurance will be 3c. per 100 lbs. in addition to the freight rate.

This arrangement will be applicable on all traffic originating at points in the Province of Ontario and Quebec west of Montreal, including traffic originating on connecting lines as well as at stations on the lines of the Grand Trunk Railway system in the provinces mentioned.

The above arrangements will also apply on export oats going into the elevator on and after March 31, and additional storage will be given until May 15, 1906, without extra charge.

On export grain, other than oats, a charge of ⅞c. per bush. will be made, same to include elevation, twenty days' storage or part thereof, but will not include insurance or any portion of the cost of floating or lighterage.

The Winnipeg market for wheat was the strongest in America during the week. A gain of ¾c. to 1½c. was made. There was a good demand from export buyers and local trade was also better. At the close of the week cash No. 1 northern was selling at 76c., No. 2 northern 74c., and No. 3 northern 73½c. At the same time the May option was worth 77c., and July 78½c., all in store Fort William and Port Arthur.

SHOULD WHEAT GRADING CHANGE.

The present agitation in the Northwest for changing the grading of wheat is assuming definite shape, and has called forth some very opportune remarks, among which is a communication from the Scotch Co-operative Wholesale Society, and one which should have special weight, seeing that the company are very largely buyers of Canadian wheat, consuming several millions of bushels yearly. The letter is as follows:

"Mr. R. McKenzie, Secretary Manitoba Grain Growers' Association, Brandon, Manitoba, Canada:

"Dear Sir,—Yours of Jan. 21 duly received. Kindly excuse delay in replying to same, as I have not had an opportunity of doing so till the present.

"With regard to No. 1 northern Duluth and No. 1 northern Manitoba: If we had samples of each at present we would be better able to judge as to which is relatively better value but, as a general rule, No. 1 northern Duluth is, in our opinion, a stronger wheat than No. 1 northern Manitoba, and we have generally given a shade more for No. 1 northern Duluth. I think if you will compare the standard samples of each you will find that I am about right.

"With regard to the demand for Duluth, as compared with Manitoba. You must bear in mind that America has a much larger population than Canada, and that the milling capacity is accordingly very much larger also, apart altogether from the export trade, and this to a certain extent accounts for any apparent difference in price which takes place. So far as I know, there has been very little Duluth wheat coming over to this side, American millers being able to absorb the whole of the crop themselves. The same applies to Kansas or hard Winter. No. 2 red Winter, however, has been shipped to this side in moderate quantities.

"Your people should not think about lowering your grades of wheat. If you do so, buyers on this side will be compelled to turn their attention to Russian and wheats from the United States. By keeping up the standard, you have a better chance of having the preference. Personally I am more in favor of using the Canadian than any other, and I think that, taking everything into account, the growers on your side are getting fair prices for their product. Just now wheat is on the down grade, and those who have it stored in elevators will, I fear, lose money, in addition to having elevator charges to pay and loss of interest as well.

"My advice, therefore, is: Don't alter your grading, and don't let your people run away with the idea that No. 2 northern Manitoba is as good as No. 1 northern Duluth. If it is, I should be very much surprised to know it. I will make it my endeavor to get standard samples of the Duluth wheats, but, of course, cannot possibly have them for some time. I will be glad to hear from you later on, if you have anything to communicate. Yours truly.

"(Signed), W. F. STEWART."

Michaud Bros. & Co., grain merchants, occupying a building on East Notre Dame street, near Desery, Montreal, were burned out last week. Their loss will be about $7,000. Loss on the building will be in the neighborhood of $4,000. There is $10,000 insurance on the building and stock.

TORONTO MARKETS.

FLOUR — Local trade continues attractive on account of a steadily increasing demand. The greater run has been on the No. 1 qualities, and in consequence prices of that grade have advanced some 10c. One prominent dealer expressed himself that they were full up with orders for No. 1's, and were not anxious to see any more just now. Export trade is also good. Some very fair inquiries have been in evidence at inviting prices.

AUSTRALIAN NEWS.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

The Commerce Act is one of the most commercial measures which has ever passed the Australian Legislature, and a brief explanation of the scope of the measure ought to be interesting to Canadian merchants and politicians. It comes into operation as from 8th June next. The most interesting portions of the act—the main part of which is but a transcript of the British Merchandise Marks Act—relate to the description of goods, both imports and exports. While under the present provisions there is no obligation to place any trade descriptions upon goods, still if one be placed on either imports or exports it must be absolutely true in every particular. Regulations which may be made hereafter can go further than this by requiring as to certain classes of goods, and those only, that a trade description of the kind set out in such regulations shall be affixed to all imports and exports. Among the classes of goods which shall so be affected, will be articles used for food or drink by man or used in the manufacture or preparation of articles for internal or external use. With such regulations in force, it will, of course, be impossisble to export any goods unless they are up to the proper standard, and equally impossible for similarly low quality imports to find a market, or if so, then only on condition that the full extent of weighting or adulteration be properly set out on the labels or packages.

Another political measure which has just passed successfully through our Parliament, of great interest to tradesmen, is an act relating to secret commissions, rebates, and profits. The provisions of this act are far-reaching, and the penalties for breaches are severe. It is made to apply to trade and commerce with all countries and among the states of the Commonwealth of Australia, and the interpretations clause includes under the term "agent" any person acting on behalf of any corporation, firm or person whether as "agent, partner, factor, broker, servant, trustee, director, or in any other capacity." It is a brief statute of only eleven clauses, of which the fourth and fifth are the most important, being as follows:

"Any person who, without the full knowledge and consent of the principal, directly or indirectly— (a) being an agent of the principal accepts or obtains or agrees or offers to accept or obtain from any person for himself or for any person other than the principal; or (b) gives or agrees to give or offers to an agent of the principal or to any person at the request of an agent of the principal; any gift or consideration as an inducement or reward—(1) for any act done or to be done, or any forbearance observed or to be observed, or any favor or disfavor shown or to be shown, in relation to the principal's affairs or business, or on the principal's behalf; or, (II) for obtaining or having obtained or aiding or having aided to obtain for any person an agency or contract for or with the principal, shall be guilty of an indictable offence.

"Penalty: In the case of a corporation, one thousand pounds; in the case of any other person, two years' imprisonment or five hundred pounds, or both.

"Any person who—(a) gives to an agent; or (b) being an agent receives or uses, with intent to deceive the principal, any receipt, account. or document in respect of which the principal is interested, or in relation to a dealing, transaction, or matter in which the principal is interested, the receipt, account, or document being false, erroneous, or defective in any material particular, or likely in any way to mislead the principal, shall be guilty of an indictable offence. :

"Penalty: In the case of a corporation, one thousand pounds; in the case of any other person, two years' imprisonment or five hundred pounds, or both."

The sacrificing of profits by the relentless "cutter" is being successfully dealt with by the P.A.T.A. of Victoria, equivalent to the similar association in England and the N.A.R.D. of America. Eight months ago the grocers of the state came into the movement, which until then had been conducted by druggists with proprietary medicines alone. Now the periodical lists published by the association contain many well-known grocery lines, many of world-wide fame. Under the system adopted by the association the manufacturer or agent lists his goods, stipulating minimum prices, wholesale and retail. If these prices be cut, the cutter is forced to sign a hard and fast agreement, forcing him to observe the proprietor's prices or to do without the goods. The association conducts the necessary detective work to prove cases, trace sources of supply, and the like. Manufacturers were at first pessimistic and inclined to ridicule, but so rapidly has the movement grown among the grocers, that the great wholesale grocery houses are now coming into the movement, because it has been recognized that the retail grocer is bound to accord preference to protected over unprotected lines. That is where the manufacturer gets his quid pro quo. If a new line come on the market, the grocer who is a member of the P.A.T.A. will have nothing to do with it until the proprietor place it upon the P.A.T.A. list, and similarly old lines are being treated where possible. The result is a movement essentially based upon mutual help and advantage, and the grocers are taking advantage of its successful machinery more and more.

BUSINESS NOTES.

J. W. Merner, Zurich. Ont., is opening a general store at Elmira.

A. Yule, of Listowell, Ont., has started a bakery and confectionery store at Harriston.

F. L. Wagner has removed to Aylmer, Ont., from a nearby village, and has opened a very nice grocery.

Harry Fisher, Cookstown, Ont., has sold his general store business to Powell & Goodfellow, Toronto, who will continue it.

Wm. Bone, flour and feed merchant, Wingham, Ont., has opened a first-class grocery. Mr. Bone is very well known and no one doubts his success.

Parr Bros., Blackstock, Ont., have refitted their store, and have now one of the finest places of business east of Toronto, and one of the best general stores in the province.

Fred Dutton, Ingersoll, Ont., has sold his grocery business to Jacques & McQueen, and has opened a very nice restaurant, with bakery and confectionery business attached.

The Newfoundland Government has decided to adopt the drift net fishery and pay one dollar per barrel on all herring exported, the object being to undersell the American market.

J. H. Schinbien, general merchant, Listowell, Ont., has gone into his new store. It is very handsomely fitted and modernly equipped, and besides increasing Mr. Schinbien's facilities for business is a credit to the town.

W. H. Duncan, Cornwall, Ont., who has one of the finest groceries in Eastern Ontario, has arranged his difficulties and is going on. Poor collections on a heavy asset of book accounts occasioned his temporary embarrassment.

J. Lindsay, Orangeville, has retired from the active management of his general store business, placing his nephew, E. C. Clark, in charge, and will continue in the grain business. Mr. Clark is "making good" with his end of the work.

Halliday & Stinson, the "Mammoth," Chesley, Ont., have refitted and decorated their store in anticipation of a big Spring and Summer trade. They have now a store that will hold its own in comparison with anything north of Toronto.

John Ham & Son, grocers, Coboconk, Ont., will shortly reopen their creamery for the season. It is one of the best equipped in the province, and such care is taken and skill applied that Ham & Son's product is greatly sought after.

"One of the finest stores west of Toronto is Wm. Stoneman's, Mitchell, Ont.," said an old traveler in the city for the last week end. Mr. Stoneman's is a grocery and crockery business, and in season he operates an ice cream parlor that is handsomely quartered.

Mr. Berwick, of E. Berwick & Co., Shelbourne, Ont., who has one of the finest general stores in the north country, and is one of the oldest merchants of the district, "told me," said a grocery traveler Saturday, "that business was good, notwithstanding the bad roads."

The Quebec Board of Trade has received a letter from Mr. J. S. Larke, Canadian agent at Sydney, N.S.W., in which he states that Sir William Lyne, Minister of Customs, has decided to accede to the request that all goods shipped from Eastern Canada via Vancouver shall have to pay no higher duty than if they had been shipped by way of New York.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The general situation continues good, trade is active all along the line, the main features centering in oranges and apples. It is somewhat of a surprise to some that the quality of oranges now arriving has been so well maintained. This no doubt has been the principal reason why prices have so well maintained themselves.

Advices from Southern California say that: "Estimates compiled by the Fruit Exchange and independent shippers place the number of cars of navel oranges left in Southern California at 4,000. Of this amount Riverside has 1,000 cars. Aside from the navels small shipments of bloods are being made. This is necessary from the fact that from now on the color fades in the bloods. Practically no shipments of seedlings have been made from Southern California. It is estimated that the eastern market can take 150 cars of navels a day from now on and no demoralization result. Fruit is now going out iced."

The N. Y. Packer publishes the following interesting information from the correspondent at Los Angeles:

"The citrus fruit situation in California never looked so promising for the grower, shipper and broker as it does at this writing. Oranges are of excellent quality and flavor; prices are good, and deliveries to eastern markets seem to be well timed and the fruit is reaching the auction and sales markets in just the condition that is necessary to get the highest prices.

"The outlook for lemons promises to be unusually bright on account of the reports of the shortness of the Sicily crop. This will create a demand for California lemons that bids fair to equal the demand of last season, which was the greatest known for some ten years.

* * *

"Growers are shipping their fruit just as fast as it can be picked, as already some evidence of rot has set in, caused by the recent heavy rains. This means that the fruit now going forward is good, but that the prospects for the later pickings may not be so good. It simply depends upon the staying quality of the fruit which has been subjected to the heavy rains. With even this condition in sight the growers are feeling good, for prices are better than they anticipated and their total profits will bring them to the good."

MARKET FOR AMERICAN FRUITS.

U. S. Consul Culver, of London, Ont., reports to his Government successful refrigeration shipments of tender fruits from Ontario Province to Winnipeg, and believes that fruit growers in the United States would also find it profitable to ship their products into the Canadian Northwest. The barrel is reported best for Winter apples; the bushel box, 10x11x20 inches, for early Fall apples and Winter pears, and the half bushel, 5x11x20 inches, for peaches and early pears. The basket carries grapes and plums well, but for safety it should be closed, as in the Georgia six-basket carrier, or the two-basket carrier.

APPLES IN ENGLAND.

The U. S. Consular and Trade Report has the following interesting remarks under the heading "Apples in England."

"Consul Stephens writes from Plymouth that England is importing on an average a little over 150,000 bushels of apples per week. They come from the United States and Canada. Those from Oregon bring the highest prices. The best qualities bring $3.65 a box; ordinary samples, $2.90. These are good prices, considering that a box contains only a bushel. The California apples are selling at $2.45 a box for best and $1.95 for ordinary grade. The United States fruit is put up in barrels of about 140 pounds. The best range in value is from $5.30 to $6.78 a barrel; ordinary, from $4.35 to $4.86. Nova Scotian apples sell from $6.08 to $6.78 a barrel. Ordinary Canadian apples, from various sources, bring from $4.60 to $5.82 a barrel. In these lines the Wagners are the cheapest and the russets the dearest. Some of the latter sell for $6.78 a barrel.

Competition from Australia.

"Consul Worman, of Three Rivers, Que., writes, on the strength of the report of the Canadian agent at Melbourne, that the rapid development of the orchards in Australasia, especially those in Tasmania, has brought to the English fruit markets a strong competitor to American and Canadian apples. It was assumed by the English trade that some 700,000 cases would be exported from Hobart during March and April, but cold weather and very heavy rains have turned a promising into a failing crop, so that not half a crop will be harvested. The Canadian agent at Melbourne reports that the export will not exceed 380,000 to 400,000 cases as a maximum. The export of apples from the States of Victoria and South Australia have never yet assumed anything like the formidable proportions of Tasmania. The same weather conditions have prevailed throughout these states, and the fruit crop is at least a month late. It is now almost a certainty, writes the agent, that the limited production of apples this season from Australia will not have the slightest influence in the lowering of prices in England, and then adds that late Nova Scotian and other Canadian apples should obtain somewhat higher prices in England during April and May next, owing to the curtailment of shipments usually placed upon the British market at that season of the year. When it is generally known in London that the imports from Tasmania will be about 50 per cent. less than usual, the immediate effect will be to harden prices."

PERIODICITY IN GROWTH OF FISH

Temperature has everything to do with the growth of piscatorial life, says the English Fish Trades Gazette. In a fish the body heat varies with the heat of the surrounding water. In cold water a fish becomes cold, in hot water it becomes hot, and a certain amount of heat is required for the chemical processes in the body, one result of which is growth. Thus digestion of food is arrested when the temperature of the water sinks near the freezing point, and the fish gives up eating. It follows that in Winter when the temperature of the water falls—and it is especially marked in fresh water, as streams and lakes — growth ceases, and the fish may in some cases bury themselves and hibernate. All animals, it may be said, except birds and mammals, are influenced in the same way by temperature, and their growth is thus subject to the variation of the seasons and is periodic. In the sea the growth of all living things except the mammals —cetaceans and seals—depends on the temperature of the water. In regions subjected to the influence of the seasons, as near the coast, growth goes on in Summer and is retarded or ceases in Winter, and one may see the marks of the periodicity elsewhere than in the skeleton of fishes—for example, in an oyster shell. A female plaice about 15 inches in length, that is to say at the size when she first spawns, is 5 years old. Growth after this is slower, so that a plaice at 25 inches or 26 inches is 20 years old or more. Herring, which spawn when 3 years of age, are about 7 years old when 12 inches in length. A flounder of 16 inches is 8 or 9 years old. A cod of 30 inches is at least 7 years of age, and one of about 40 inches from 9 to 11 years. Among fresh water fishes which have been kept under more or less close observation some very old fellows are recorded, but their age was not demonstrated by any scientific method.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS — Fruit merchants report an excellent business having been transacted during the week preceding Easter. This week the demand has fallen off considerably, but business has been good nevertheless. There have been few changes in the prices quoted last week. Oranges are in good demand at current prices. VEGETABLES — Splendid Easter business was transacted in all lines of vegetables, but this week merchants are suffering the after effect, as there is practically nothing doing. Supplies purchased for Easter seem not to have been all sold as yet, and consequently merchants are not in a hurry to buy. Florida cabbage is down a little, as are also Florida tomatoes. There is

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—Business is reported good and prices have varied little. Oranges are a shade firmer, about last week's upper range. Some complain that because of the wet season in California the navels are not keeping well, but it has reached perfection in the matter of sweetness and flavor. Bananas continue at about the same figure, with quality improving as the season advances. Strawberries are very much cheaper, and pines are coming on more freely, though not in carload lots as yet.

VEGETABLES — The Southern stuff is still a little slow for a very active demand, though here and there prices are sagging a little as for new carrots and beets. Asparagus, too, is easier. Artechokes are offering at 60c. to 90c., and parsnips at 50 to 75c. Potatoes are the strong feature. American buyers have invaded New Brunswick and the price here is now $1. BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

NO NEED FOR WASTE IN CANDY MAKING.

There is this similarity between the candy business and the iron business — the scrap is not allowed to go to waste. An observer who had an idea that candy manufacturers must have to stand a lot of loss because candies get stale took the trouble to investigate and learned that his idea was wrong.

The big candy makers ship to their agents throughout the country at stated intervals, usually of a week, their standard confections, and all not sold at the expiration of the interval are returned to the factory as scrap. As the candy is mostly sugar, and sugar is as indestructible as iron, it is only a question far the candy maker of getting the sugar value out of the scrap.

It is impossible to work over the candy into its original form, but it can be used in many ways. For example, the chief use to which stale chocolates are put is in making carmels and other chewy confections.

It's a mistaken idea that candy must be fresh to be good. One manufacturer who makes only for the trade and confines himself chiefly to high-class chocolates and bonbons, said that candy wasn't fit to eat until it had been seasoned for at least ten days. For his own use—and he is a great lover of candy, despite the general belief that no cook cares for his own messes—he keeps chocolates about a month before eating them.

This man has no patience with those who assert that colored candy is poisonous. His argument is simple. As he puts it :

"What's the use of putting poison in candy when natural and harmless coloring matter costs less? Who'd put opium in cigarettes when tobacco is cheaper than opium?

"It's the same way in my business. I can turn out bonbons in any shade you want—from the greenest of God's green grass to the pinkest pink of a hunting coat, and do it all without the aid of any ingredients but pure vegetable colorings.

"I have no patience with these pure food advocates when they come nosing around the candy business. Few of them know what they are talking about and the others have taken a few sporadic cases of children poisoned or merely made ill by overindulgence in cheap candies and condemn the lot of us.

"The candy business demands an artist these days, when you have to make displays of form and coloring to keep in the forefront of the business."

NEW MACARONI FACTORY.

C. H. Catelli, manufacturer of macaroni and vermicelli, speaking to The Canadian Grocer the other day, said that it was possible that Montreal would have a large new factory for the manufacture of these products in the near future.

Mr. Catelli is reported to be one of the largest manufacturers of macaroni and vermicelli in the Dominion, and says that the business is ever increasing so that it is necessary for him to have a larger plant to cope with the growing trade.

The building of a new factory is made all the more a necessity because Mr. Catelli will have to move from his present premises next year, as he has sold out to the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. He is thinking of forming a joint stock company with a capital of $250,000 Should the factory be built from the plans he is at present considering, it will be about 500 feet long and 50 or 60 feet wide. The building will be only one storey high and will have no windows, being lighted from the top. The raw material for manufacture will thus go in at one end, passing through the different departments and reach the shipping room at the other end ready to be delivered. The new factory would be capable of putting out 6,000,000 lbs. annually. This is two million pounds more than the present consumption in Canada, but Mr. Catelli is looking forward to the increase in business sure to come.

Nothing definite has yet been decided, but it is to be hoped that this new enterprise will go through as it will certainly be a splendid industry for Canada.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.

I. D. Bradshaw & Co., chewing gum and waxed paper manufacturers, Toronto, have certainly a very enviable position among the wholesale manufacturing confectioners and jobbing houses in this country. Starting from small beginnings, they are to-day one of the leading chewing gum and waxed paper concerns of the country. Their success has been mainly in "not how cheap, but how good," they can produce their goods. They have installed the latest German and American machinery, and are in a position to-day to fill orders on the shortest notice.

CLERKS AND THEIR OFFICERS.

The Toronto Retail Grocery Clerks' Association have elected the following officers for the present year : W. Turpin, president ; E. Broad, vice-president ; R. Feaster, recording secretary ; Manley Anderson, corresponding secretary ; R. A. Hudson, treasurer.

At the monthly meeting in the Temple Building Tuesday night, the year's picnic was discussed. Barrie, Orillia and Lorne Park were in favor as objective points, but a decision was not reached and it was left to the executive.

THE MAN BEHIND THE COUNTER

By Frank Carrington.

We've been putting plate glass windows in our store this week. I say "we," but I mean the boss and the carpenters. They say it's a good sign if a new clerk calls the firm "we" the first day he works for them. I'm not a new clerk, but I'm a "we" clerk just the same. I'm just as much a part of the concern as if I got a slice of the dividends every year.

The old windows were pretty fair. They were big and let in a good deal of light and we kept them clean and full of good goods with the prices on them and they made money for us, but plate glass of course is the thing and we had to have it. All the neighbors and our competitors were ahead of us getting it, but we had been so busy getting the business that we hadn't found any time to tear the front of the store all to pieces until last week. We didn't really have time then. We took it.

When it came to putting in the new windows, the boss wanted to know what I thought of running them clear down to the floor. Lots of the windows nowadays, you know, are right on the ground. People used to have their windows up high. You had to stand on your tiptoes to see in. Then they all got an attack of the notion that low windows were the thing and most of the later built windows represent that notion gone to seed. Window panes that rest right on the sidewalk. You have to get down on your knees to see what the goods really look like if they are small things.

The boss said he was going to put in one of those get-down-on-your-knees windows. I told him to think it over a while first. He wanted to know what my objections were. He said that nobody put their windows up high nowadays, not even up as high as your knees.

I told him that if I were in his place it wouldn't make a bit of difference to me what nobody or everybody was doing because I would want windows the way I wanted them and that would be the way I would have them.

I said that my idea of the right height for a window was, without regard to the inside appearance or arrangement, to choose a height that would let every one outside see the goods with the least effort. That meant that the bottom and floor of the window must be low enough for the smallest person to see in and yet high enough so that no one would have to bend down to examine the goods or to read the price cards.

About nine people in ten are more or less off in their eyesight and have to get rather close to things to see them well. Make the bottom of the window about two feet from the ground and you will suit every one.

Of course I would not raise a window at all if it were to be used for showing goods like furniture or stoves or anything large, and on the other hand I would put the window up to three feet if I were going to use it solely for displaying jewelry and such very small wares. But for anything in the way of ordinary goods, such as are sold in the average dry goods store for instance, two feet is my recommendation. That's what I told the boss.

Well, he heard my story and thought it over a few days and ordered the windows up to twenty-four inches and now that they are in we are all stuck on the height. It's just right. The windows dress up to the best possible advantage with any kind of small goods and the larger goods I make look lower by putting them well back.

We had our windows made very deep. The man who cuts down the depth of his windows to make room inside the store is making a great mistake. Windows gain everything by being deep. You can make them look a hundred per cent. better if they are deep and they'll hold lots more goods too. You can make a deep window look shallow if you want to, but you can't make a shallow window look deep by any possible scheme.

Hundreds of fine show windows are spoiled be being lighted wrong at night and in the daytime too. Some merchants seem to think that the idea is at night to get all the light they can to shine out of the windows on the street so that every one going by will say, "My, what a bright light!"

That's all right if you want people to remember your store simply as the store with the bright light, but if you are out to sell the goods, the goods are what you want to show. The small stores can't afford to patronize the amalgamated order of professional window gazers to draw the crowd. The goods themselves have to be the attraction.

If that is the case, the goods must be lighted whether the pavement outside is or not. Arrange your lighting scheme so that the light will fall on the goods.

During the day I let our curtains down about a quarter of the way and at night we have the lights arranged where they won't be too prominent themselves but will throw their strength on the goods and not dazzle the eyes of the people who look in.

What kind of a theatre would you call it where the footlights were turned so that all the light was reflected right in the faces of the audience? You'd probably have a good deal to say about the theatre and its management, and they would be town talk, but nobody would know what play they had tried to put on.

Another thing the boss was going to do when he had an opening with his new windows, after they were handsomely dressed with the prettiest goods in the ranch, was to stick pasters with catchy phrases on them all over the glass.

I must have looked kind o' funny when he told me to do that, because he wanted to know if I didn't think it was a good scheme. I said, "What did you put in those new windows for? Wouldn't the old ones have done just about as well to hang advertisements on?" He said he guessed that was right. He'd put these in so he could show up the goods better and he reckoned he hadn't better go and hide all the goods he had in them.

It makes me tired to see the way some storekeepers who think they are great advertisers, paste signs on their windows. Why, no one will look through a window when there is something on it to catch their eye. If you want folks to see the goods, don't hide them with window strips on the glass.

The trouble with the man who never makes mistakes is that he doesn't know a mistake when he makes one. He who never makes a mistake never makes anything. The only crime in making a mistake is making the same one twice. Wise men make mistakes; fools continue to make mistakes. A thought of one's own mistakes will soften criticism of others' mistakes.

THE DEACON LEADS THE PROCESSION.

"I'll just bet you a dollar," shouted the woodenware traveler, breaking into the Deacon's store about ten one morning.

"I'll take you, what is it?" roared the Deacon.

"You clear out that corner," the woodenman continued, "and make a woodenware section of it and I'll bet you a dollar you'll give me an order the next time I come."

He had seen the Deacon the night before and couldn't sell him anything because he had all he wanted. That was some months ago. The woodenware section was made, and the traveller didn't win the bet, because the Deacon to make two dollars gave the order to another house, but he wanted the goods, and if you ask him he will tell you a woodenware section is all right. He happened to have a clerk that knew a muss from a melon patch, and he arranged that woodenware so that every one who came in went over and had a look. Some bought things they hadn't come for, and all had a good word to say about the display.

"Jocks-a-mighty, but that woodenware show's all right," said the Deacon to the clerk one day. "Suppose we put some in the window."

The clerk knew what the Deacon's "suppose" meant, so he cleaned out one window and dressed it with woodenware. A night or two after the Deacon was "just kind o' goin' over things," as he said, and remarked to himself:

"By gum, I've got to have some more woodenware right sharp. I guess I owe Bass, Wood & Hoop's man a dollar. Lordy but I do."

He mailed the order to the traveler.

It happened to be the right time of the year, and the Deacon began to think his customers must have burnt all their old stuff the way they bought pails, tubs, brooms, stepladders and the rest. But the clerk wasn't satisfied. He says:

"Say, Deacon, why not go the whole figure with this wood stuff and advertise it some?"

The Deacon had a "standing" ad in the local papers, so they sent in a woodenware "change" and the Deacon did the woodenware business of the town till the other fellows caught on and got up behind his buckboard.

THE VIRTUES OF OLIVE OIL.

A remarkable item of news appears in a recent issue of the New York Sun on the virtue and utility of olive oil, both as a food and a beautifier of woman's complexion. It says:

"According to the well known journal, Family Doctor, fagged out society beauties may find salvation in olive oil. The Family Doctor relates how a reigning London beauty went to the king's physician during the season and said: 'What shall I take for my complexion? I am a sight!' The reply was: 'Take olive oil; live on it; live in it, live with it, drink it, dress your food with it, lubricate yourself with it.'

"As a result of following this advice the young woman achieved a complexion of rosy blond, pink damask and Gloire de Dijon roses, and began to give beauty luncheons. These luncheons have since become very popular."

Elderly Miss—"The toilet soap I bought from you has made my face all spotty, and your master told me it would not harm the most beautiful complexion in the world."

Youthful shopman—"Yes, mum; but yours ain't the most beautiful complexion in the world, not by a long chalk!

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

LIVED ON CIGARETTES AND WATER.

A good argument against the anti-cigarette cranks might be furnished from the case of Sacco, the Hungarian fasting man, who has just beaten the record in London by fasting forty-five days. During this period Sacco abstained from everything except water and cigarettes, and of the latter he consumed 952. At the close of the ordeal the man's health was said to be reasonably good.

A SELF-LIGHTER.

A cigar lighter that lights itself is a novelty being placed on the Canadian market by McGraw & Russell, Front street, Toronto. The lighter is in the shape of a small nickle-plated tube the size of your little finger. You take the cap off and it bursts into flame. Blow it out and it immediately blazes up again until the cap is replaced. The lighter is a great curiosity as well as a very handy pocket piece.

NOVEL CIGAR COVER.

News has come to hand from Spokane, Washington, of a new kind of cigar cover which, according to the manufacturer who utilizes it in his cigars, "will preserve the cigar and keep its high flavor for a considerable length of time."

This cover, which is intended to take the place of the ordinary tin foil affair, consists of a cheap grade of tobacco wrapped loosely around the cigar, in such a way that it can be removed by "a slight twist of the finger and thumb." The tobacco used for the cover is described as so cheap that "it can be put on at as low a price as tin foil or other substances."

It is further stated that the tobacco is of rather tough character, "which makes it a protection to the cigar when carried in the pocket or otherwise."

The idea sounds ingenious but we would like to know of any kind of tobacco these days that is as cheap as tin foil. Of course torn or hail cut tobacco might be used, but how a cover all full of holes could preserve the flavor of a cigar it is hard to see.

Again, how about the mixture of the aromas? Few substances catch outside smells like tobacco, and the flavor of a good cigar could hardly be improved by contact with a weed that was as cheap as tin foil.

TOBACCO MERCHANT DEAD.

Charles Gratton, at one time a well-known figure in the wholesale tobacco trade, died at his home in Montreal on March 28. The deceased was for 21 years the proprietor and manager of the wholesale tobacco firm of Charles Gratton & Co., 269 St. Paul street, Montreal. He retired from active business life nine years ago.

PROPOSED CIGAR FACTORY.

A report is current that J. E. Williams, who has a large connection in Western Canada as manufacturer's agent for an eastern cigar house, is looking for a vacant building in Sarnia to manufacture cigars. Mr. Williams states that the business will commence with about a dozen hands, and will be extended as trade increases. After comparing conditions in Winnipeg and in Ontario points, Mr. Williams decided that Sarnia was the most advantageous point for reaching the western trade, and will commence business there as soon as premises can be secured.

TO IMPROVE TOBACCO.

The Ontario Government, it is understood, are arranging for the establishment of an experimental station in the county of Essex for the purpose of advancing the tobacco industry. The idea is to deal with tobacco in the same manner as grain is dealt with in the Guelph Agricultural College. The tobacco industry is looked upon as one of the most important, and under better conditions it is thought the quality of the Canadian leaf can be materially improved.

Boy—"Because I've got another rabbit of my own at home."

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

STILL ANOTHER LINE.

In the Good Advertising department of April 6, attention was called to the meagreness of confectionery advertising.

The same might be said of cigars and tobacco. It is very seldom that a retail cigar and tobacco announcement in a town paper greets the eye.

The reason is simple, yet, paradoxical as the case may seem, there is a certain perplexity.

The average grocer feels that, as far as his part is concerned, the smoking business is in its infancy.

Now, even if this were the case, the grocer who reasons thus doesn't see that it is his policy to advertise, not that trade which is built up, but that trade which needs building up.

* * *

The truth of the matter is, in the towns and small cities the grocer has an excellent chance to do a tobacco business. There are practically no "straight" cigar stores and barber shops are few and far between.

The point is, if a grocer can keep a neat case for cigars, tobaccos and accessories, he can catch lots of trade.

It stands to reason that a smoker is not going to buy slovenly stock nor from a grocer who doesn't know what lines he has without five or ten minutes' unnecessary hunting.

It also stands to reason that if a smoker is leaving a grocery order with you he is not going to tramp down to the barber's merely to get the "smoke" if he can get as good goods from you, and what is to prevent you from "being ready" ?

Let no grocer get into the rut of continually booming tea, butter, etc., through the newspapers. Let him give due aid to his side lines, specialties, and so "complete" his advertising.

The ad herewith presented is a specimen of what might be run by a town grocer.

Regarding window display for cigars, etc., a western merchant recently had a striking arrangement.

An immense map of the world was used as a background and in front of it were arranged cigars, pipes, tobaccos, cigarettes.

From each article a narrow ribbon led to that part of the map which represented the country or city from which the article came. For instance, he had cigars from Havana, meerschaum pipes from Germany, cigarettes from Egypt, etc.

OUTSIDERS.

What should be the attitude of local retailers toward their home newspaper, in regard to the advertising of big retail concerns in neighboring large cities? There are a good many papers which have this sort of business offered them, and a good many feel justified in accepting it. Shall the local man then withdraw his own advertising, and thus leave a clear field for the city man ? Or shall he labor with the publisher to persuade him that he ought to support his home merchants ? Suppose the local grocer carries four inches of space in every issue of the paper, and expects the publisher to "trade it out." Along comes the city grocer with a fine big special sale ad—maybe half a page—that will be paid for in real money. What shall the publisher do ? Turn it down ? If so, to what extent will his home merchants make up to him for the loss ? Experience shows that if the publisher takes the city ad the local dealers get pretty mad about it, and instead of turning in and using more space, which not only helps the publisher to stiffen his backbone for future contests with the city advertiser, but largely neutralizes the effect of the city ad, they protest illnaturedly that the publisher is ungrateful and doesn't deserve any consideration. If, on the other hand, the city ad is declined, the local merchants do not know of its tender, and of the paper's sacrifice, unless the publisher himself tells them ; and no good deed can be told of by the doer without giving the impression of either boasting or begging, both of which are most uncongenial to the newspaperman.

The local newspaper which is patronized as it should be by the home merchants has no space to sell to the city advertiser. If it is good enough for the city man to use, it is infinitely better for the local man. The city man can hope to bring to his store only a very small portion of the people of the town, while every person in the town is a possible customer of the local merchant. And if it pays the city man to spend money in the attempt to bring to his store a part of the people who go to the city, how much more should it pay the local man to attempt to induce them to stop as they pass his door ?

The newspaperman needs money, most always. The city man's check looks good to him. But if his townsmen support him with half the loyalty with which he "boosts" the town, he will have not only the courage but the backing to turn down the outsider who wants to draw trade away from the local stores.—Advertising World.

"WEDDING" ORDERS.

My plan was intended to get business from newly married couples or couples about to be married, and naturally it will work better in cities and large towns than in the small country places.

I made it my business to accumulate all the information I could about young people about to be married. This I got in all sorts of ways, very often from the newspapers. For a while I offered a little premium to children to inform me of any engagements which came under their notice, together with the date when the wedding was to occur.

This information secured, I sent to the various names, when the proper day arrived, a nicely printed letter, saying in substance that, being newly married, they must realize that they would need groceries and kitchen supplies, and that I had made it my business to prepare various-sized lists of goods, even the smallest of which contained everything that a bride would need in her first days of housekeeping.

Paraffin oil, 1 quart	.10
Sal-soda, 3 pounds	.06
Matches, one-half dozen boxes	.25
	$9.75

This, as seen, was a low-priced list, and seemed to take better than any of the others. There were a number of assortments of specialties, not so standard as the above list, which I also included.

As to the results of this plan, I never kept any special record, but the results were very good. I used to get a great many orders for these bridal assortments. The business is waiting, for these young people must have the goods, and the first man who gets in will probably get the order.—R. O. M.

CLEANSING REFRIGERATORS A NECESSITY.

Some very useful and instructive information regarding the treatment of refrigerators in the Spring and Summer has been given out by Prof. Ruddick, the Canadian dairy commissioner, and should prove instructive not alone to dairymen, but to all users of refrigerators throughout the Dominion. He says:

"Every Spring, before a refrigerator is used, it is well to go over the whole interior with some kind of disinfectant to destroy the germs and spores of mould that may be there. Last Spring I asked Dr. Connell's advice regarding the disinfection of refrigerators, and he suggested bi-chloride of mercury (corrosive sublimate). This should be used in the proportion of 1 part to 1,000 parts of water. It is a very deadly poison as everybody knows. The solution is safe to use, so far as touching the hands is concerned. We washed the whole interior with that solution, and found it evry effective. I believe that a solution of that kind, or a solution, of formalin used in the refrigerators in the Spring, before they are used, would be helpful in keeping them pure and sweet during the Summer months. We will get more exact information on this point from the scientific men later on. The point I make is that we should have these places thoroughly disinfected every Spring, and oftener, if necessary."

Hamilton, Ont., April 24th, 1906.

Dear Sir:—

RE THE FOOD VALUE OF PEAS

It is estimated that food for the average man should contain 125 grams proteids, 500 grams carbohydrates and 50 grams of fat, representing over 3,000 calorics of heat energy.

It will be seen that the carbohydrates are the largest in bodily demand.

Peas are especially rich in carbohydrates. In fact, so much so is this the case that Peas have been called the poor man's beef. It is claimed that 1½ lbs. of dried Peas would supply the daily requirements of proteid for the average man, and the energy liberated, weight for weight, is greater than in beef, eggs or milk.

Canned Peas are without doubt the cheapest and the best food on the market at the present time. Taking the standard amount of energy liberated the cost of Peas is less than half the cost of Meats, etc., and many of your customers are spending too much money on Meats, Eggs, etc.

By calling your customers' attention to the facts as stated above, you will largely increase your sales, and especially so if you only sell Peas packed by the Canadian Canners, Limited, under any of the following brands, viz.—"Canada First," "Little Chief," "Log Cabin," "Horse-shoe," "Auto," "Lynnvalley," "Maple Leaf," "Kent," "Lion," "Thistle," "Globe," "Grand River," "Jubilee," "White Rose," "Deer," etc.

The Peas of these brands are packed the same day as picked, and when best suited for table use. The process of packing them is such that the Peas travel from the field to the can without coming in contact with the human hand, and thus these brands of Peas are more wholesome and cleanly than if cooked in a private kitchen.

You may assure your customers that every tin of goods under our label is guaranteed as to quality.

Yours truly,

"CANADIAN CANNERS, Limited"

A satisfied customer is the grocer's best advertisement.

It is of the first importance, therefore, that the grocer sees to it that his every customer is pleased and satisfied.

Probably in no article does a customer exercise so particular a discrimination as in purchasing the refreshing cup-o'-tea. It must just suit the critical palate.

If the grocer is to capture and hold his customers, he can only do it on quality and uniformity—which means in tea,

Buy Only Ceylon Tea

(GREEN OR BLACK)

Canada's Favorite Beverage.

WILL PAY FOR YOUR ENERGY

It is a well-known fact that no tea ever placed on the Canadian market possesses as much intrinsic value as

Red Rose Tea

There are many ways to prove it

Try the tea yourself!
Ask other people who drink it!
Ask any disinterested tea man!

Put the energy into selling Red Rose Tea that you put into other brands, and you will sell more tea and make more money.

If you are not selling it, I think these facts will be proved by a single case. Is it not worth ordering one?

is the one we recognize. We want the co-operation of the retail clerks throughout the country in extending and increasing the sale of the great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

We are willing and anxious to acknowledge the service they can render us by rewarding them in direct proportion to the interest they display in pushing these goods. Our method of rewarding is "The Fairbank Plan," which is a system of couponing our specialties in such a manner that the coupons can be easily removed when the goods are sold, and giving for these coupons useful articles, the best that money can buy. Our whole aim is to give the clerks the best value we can secure.

The products embraced in "The Fairbank Plan" are easily sold because they are the best value and give the greatest satisfaction to the consumer. They increase the trade of the store and "The Fairbank Plan" rewards the dealer or his clerks for selling them.

Send for a copy of "The Fairbank Plan" illustrated premium list. It will pay you.

Goods with merit have a claim upon the progressive grocer's attention, but when that merit is exploited by the manufacturer with such liberal methods of advertising as we pursue with our well known and deservingly popular RISING SUN Stove Polish in cakes and SUN PASTE Stove Polish in tins the real live dealer must recognize the help we give him in selling the right Stove Polish. Largely increased sales support our policy of merit backed by extensive advertising.

DOMINION WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD

Annual Meeting in Montreal.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild was held in Montreal on Thursday, April 19. The sessions were held in the board room of the Board of Trade building, and while it can be said that many important sessions of commercial bodies have been held in that closely tyled chamber, it is doubtful if ever before it contained so large and representative a body of any particular section of trade and commerce as filled the chairs last Thursday. From the Garden Island of Prince Edward, the rock-bound coast of Nova Scotia, from beneath the frowning citadel at Quebec, the roaring Chaudiere, from the shores of placid Ontario, and the industrial hives of Western Ontario, the great throbbing Prairie City of Winnipeg and the embryonic mart of Lethbridge, came the purveyors "engros" to consult, to plan, to alleviate and to get closer one to another for the conservation of the vast and important interests entrusted to their care.

That the occasion was one of more than usual interest was evidenced by the great number of delegates that signed Dominion Secretary Cook's register; exactly forty-seven, the largest number that has ever attended the annual meeting of the guild.

There was an earnestness about the entire proceedings, a "get-your-coat-off-and-hustle" sort of an air that extended down from President Col. John I. Davidson to the youngest addition, Mr. Frank Sloan, and that the president kept the pot a-boiling was shown by the three sessions held—morning, afternoon, and away into the night, toward the uncanny hours "when churchyards yawn and graves give up their dead."

That the meetings were satisfactory in their conclusion and that everything under discussion was unanimously agreed to, is proven by the words of such tried veterans in guild matters as Messrs. Bristol, Davidson and Beckett: "Finest and most satisfactory meeting ever held."

The complete list of members present is as follows: Arch Miller, Whitehead & Turner; T. Le Droit, Le Droit & Frere; John Buchanan, J. Buchanan & Son, (Quebec); H. Laporte, Jos. Ethier, Laporte, Martin & Cie; N. J. Corner, Birks, Corner & Co.; L. O. Demers, Demers, Fletcher & Co.; Albert Hebert, Hudon, Hebert & Cie; Alex. Orsali, Hudon & Orsali; J. E. Quintal, N. Col. John I. Davidson

The Retiring President, Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—Albert Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie, Montreal.

Vice-president of the various provinces.—Quebec, Archibald Miller, of Whitehead & Turner, Quebec; New Brunswick, Geo. E. Barbour, St. John, N.B.; Nova Scotia, M. Dwyer, of John Tobin & Co., Halifax, N.S.; P. E. Island, N. Rattenburg, Charlottetown, P. E.I.; Manitoba, Kenneth MacKenzie, of Kenneth MacKenzie & Co., Winnipeg, Man.; British Columbia, C. H. Todd, of J. H. Todd & Sons, Vancouver, B.C.

Dominion Secretary—J. Stanley Cook.

To the retiring president, Col. John I. Davidson, was tendered a most hearty and unanimous vote of thanks to which a most suitable reply was made, that the duties rendered the guild by him were, aside from the matter of duty and business interests, an honor and a pleasure, his relations with his associates having been of the most pleasant.

The newly elected president, Albert Hebert, is well and aptly suited for the occupancy of the important post, being acknowledged one of the most progressive, keen-sighted and active business men that not only Montreal, but Canada can boast of, and "ce va sans dire" that during his incumbency of the chair the interests of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild will be closely and well looked after. The Canadian Grocer congratulates Mr. Hebert on his election and felicitates the members upon their choice.

Among the questions under discussion by the meeting may be mentioned:

1. The situation of the guild in relation to the recent legal proceedings at Hamilton.

2. Discussion as to terms and discounts on a uniform basis throughout the Dominion.

3. The canned goods and sugar situation.

4. Better feeling between the wholesale and retail grocery interests and the taking of measures for the maintainance of prices and the prevention of cutting.

5. The memorializing of the Minister of Justice for a modification of the Criminal Code as related to the restraint of trade, clause No. 520.

6. Reception of deputation from Retail Merchants' Association.

7. Proposition from manufacturers of Egg-o-See Company.

All of these questions were closely discussed, particularly the court proceedings at present pending against the guild in Hamilton, Ont. This matter was threshed out at every point and at its conclusion the unanimous decision proved that the members were a unit to protest against what is considered a misconception of facts on the part of the plaintiff and the trade.

The discussion as to terms and discounts brought out the fact that uniformity was still not observed by the various provinces, Ontario being the principal offender with its long terms. All the other provinces, and particularly Quebec, were having little or no trouble on the score of terms and discounts.

The question of working for better and more amicable business relations between the wholesale and retail grocers of Canada was freely discussed, and the presence of a committee of the Retail Merchants' Association in the persons of E. M. Trowern, general secretary, M. Moyer, Toronto, and J. E. Beaudry, secretary of the Quebec branch, lent interest to the discussion. If the mutual promises towards betterment of existing relations eventuate Canada will stand out among the nations of the earth as the commercial Utopia. The Canadian Grocer has felt all along that it is only a question of the two controlling bodies of the grocery trade getting together and discussing ways and means for the elimination of the grit in the wheels of commerce to have trade running along smoothly.

It was decided to memorialize the Minister of Justice in a body with a view of securing a modification of section 520 of the Criminal Code, which comprises the anti-combine legislation, and it was arranged by the committee to proceed to Ottawa on Friday, 20th inst., for the purpose of laying the case before Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick, Minister of Justice. The appointment of a Royal Commission by the Government for the purpose of investigating the rules, regulations and conduct of the grocers' guild in relation to the conspiracy and restraint of trade clause, was urged, moved and adopted.

B. F. Blakeslee, Canadian representative of the Egg-o-See Company, addressed the guild and matters satisfactory to all parties were arranged.

After the conclusion of the afternoon session at 6.30 an adjournment was made to the banqueting hall of the Canada Club in the fifth storey of the Board of Trade building, where the members sat down to a most sumptuous dinner tendered by the Montreal wholesale grocers' section to the visiting members.

Promptly at 9 o'clock business was resumed in the board room and it was midnight before the members separated, to meet in the morning at the C.P.R. station for the journey to Ottawa on Friday. A special car had been secured and the trip to the capital was made in comfort and pleasure. The Premier and the Minister of Justice met the deputation and their attention was called to the injustice of the application of clause 520 of the Criminal Code to the business arrangement made by the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild with manufacturers and among themselves for the protection of all parties, wholesaler, retailer and consumer.

THE DEPUTATION AT OTTAWA.

Representing the views of the wholesale and retail trade of the Dominion as expressed at the meeting in Ottawa with the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice on Friday, the 20th. Mr. Kittson said as follows :

"This delegation is composed of wholesale grocers, comprising practically the wholesale grocery trade of the Dominion, the wholesale druggists, comprising all the wholesale druggists of Canada, and the retail merchants of the association of Canada.

"It seems necessary to emphasize the fact that the wholesale grocery trade is one of the great staple businesses of the country—that the capital invested in it is very large, that the volume of the wholesale grocery trade is probably the largest in volume of any branch of trade in the Dominion, that it is an economic necessity in the interest of the consumer. Of like importance is the retail grocery trade, which is represented in every town, city and village and cross-road in the country, closely identified with the wholesale grocery trade, and having a common and mutual interest with it. It will be evident to you, gentlemen, that the interests which are represented here to-day are sufficiently important, have a sufficiently large stake in the country, to warrant the belief that the Government will be glad to remove any disabilities they are under by reason of the law as it now exists with regard to trade combinations.

Grocery Trade Keenest for Competition.

"The severe pressure of competition which characterizes almost every branch of business has borne with greater severity upon the grocery trade than upon any other branch of trade for the self-evident reason that the goods handled by them are mainly staples and necessaries, the value of which is easily ascertainable by the public. To aggravate this competition, department stores have exploited the grocery business by advertising and selling at cost prices and less than cost prices in order to promote the sale of other lines upon which they can make more profit.

"To meet these conditions and the competition of trade pirates who live by and who sell goods without reference to the fact that they should be paid for, it has been found necessary in self-preservation for the trade to make selling arrangements amongst themselves, to endeavor where possible to have uniform selling prices with regard to proprietary articles. It has been found necessary to systematize the selling of goods with certain restrictions as to price. It has been found necessary to make an effort to induce manufacturers to grant a differential in price between the price at which they sell to the wholesale merchant and to the retail merchant. It has been found necessary, in a word, to take collective action.

"Where there is undue and wasteful competition the wisest thing, the only thing, that those suffering from it can do, be they wholesalers or manufacturers, is to come to an agreement to remedy the evil. But there section 520 of the Criminal Code intervenes, and says that 'every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to a penalty of $4,000 or less or two years' imprisonment, who conspires, combines, agrees or arranges with any other person to unduly prevent, limit or lessen the manufacture or production or to unduly enhance the price thereof.'

Review of Legislation on Combines.

"The legislation on the subject of combinations may be shortly reviewed as follows : The original section simply imposed penalties in respect of conspiracy to commit some unlawful act unduly, and what was or might be unlawful was determined by the general law of the land on the subject, but the difficulty of applying the law led the Parliament to rectify this by striking out the word 'unduly,' but this made the enforcement of the law so difficult that in 1900 Parliament struck out the word 'unlawful' and restored the word 'unduly,' and as a result of this it became a conspiracy to do the things unduly referred to in this section.

"So under the law as it stands at present if it can be shown that any two or more merchants or manufacturers unite to secure a fair margin of profit they expose themselves to the risk of being dragged before the police court and charged as criminals with violating the criminal law. It may be claimed that the word 'unduly' provides reasonable protection to the public against prosecution prompted by malice, or by Crown attorneys animated by excessive zeal, but as a matter of fact the proceedings in Toronto and Hamilton and elsewhere against mercantile associations and combinations are fostered and encouraged by the vagueness and indefiniteness implied by the word 'unduly.' The proceedings instituted against the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild is a striking case in point. Upon the information and complaint of a detective—absolutely ignorant of the condition of trade, absolutely ignorant of the alleged facts set forth in his complaint, unsupported by any corroborative evidence—a wholesale prosecution has been instituted against the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, an association which has been in existence for twenty years, comprising with a few exceptions the whole wholesale grocery trade of the Dominion—of men who have a reputation for honor and integrity, and enjoying the respect of the community in which they live, who are charged under this section, among other things, with the crime of selling sugar on a basis of 4 per cent. gross profit, and tobacco at a profit of 3¾ per cent., while

JAM AND CREAM OF TARTAR.

A. McGill, analyst of the pure food branch of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, delivered at the recent food show in Toronto two lectures on jam and cream of tartar, in addition to the one on the Canadian Adulteration Act already reported in The Canadian Grocer. Following are Mr. McGill's condensations of the addresses :

Jam and its Adulterants.

Jam is defined by the dictionaries as a conserve of whole fruit boiled with sugar and water. But it seems scarce necessary to go to a lexicon for the meaning of a word which has been in daily use for so many centuries. The only word in the above definition which can possibly permit of a double meaning is the word sugar. But although the chemist speaks of levulose, dextrose and other substances as "sugars," the word in ordinary use admits of no second meaning. Every grocer and every purchaser knows quite well what he wants when he asks for sugar.

Adulteration in jam consists in one or more of the following things :

1. The use of foreign vegetable or other tissues than those which are named on the label.
2. The substitution of glucose for sugar.
3. The employment of dyes to give color to the jam.
4. The use of chemical preservatives.

For a Filler.

Foreign tissue.—The only foreign tissue that has been detected in Canadian made jams is apple pulp. This has been found in raspberry and strawberry jams. Of 37 jams analyzed on 1904, 15 were found to contain apple tissues, although sold as raspberry or strawberry jams. Of course there is nothing harmful to health in this substitution, but it is nevertheless a fraud. Of course it necessitates the addition of dyes to the jam, as otherwise this would have a very pale color. It is evident that not only the consumer has a right to complain of the unacknowledged use of apple, but also the manufacturer of a high-grade jam, since he is subjected to unfair competition. The fruit grower has also a reasonable ground for complaint.

Sweet, But Not Sugar.

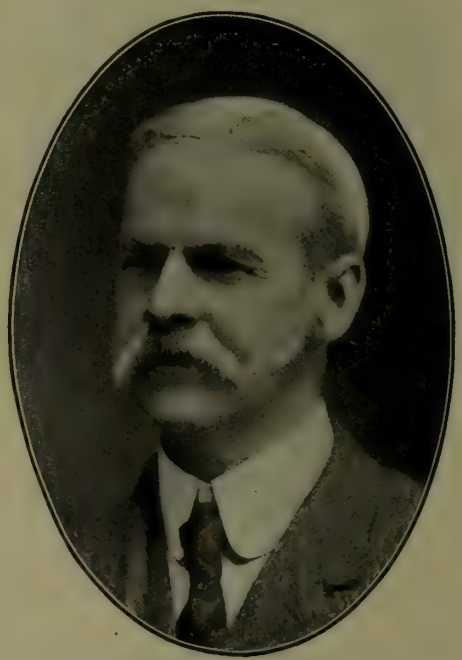
Use of glucose.—This article is much cheaper than sugar, and of course this is the main reason why it is used. But it is also less sweet than sugar, on which account some manufacturers add a small amount of a coal tar product, known as saccharin, which is about 300 times as sweet as sugar, and serves to bring up the sweetness of the jam.

Painting the Filler.

Use of dyes.—These are the same in kind as are used to color the cheap grades of candy. If they are carefully made and free from lead or arsenic, they may not be injurious to health in the minute quantities used. But whereas, in candy, they are employed by consent and knowledge of the purchaser, and for the purpose of giving attractiveness to the article, and not to cover up any deficiency in the nature of the material, it is quite otherwise in jams. A well made jam, from fresh and ripe fruit, needs no dye to make it attractive and palatable. It is only where unripe or decayed fruit is employed, or where apple or other colorless pulp is added, that a dye is needed.

Embalming of Fruit.

Preservatives.—Since the sugar added, and the sterilization produced by boiling, are sufficient to make a jam keep quite well, when properly packed, it is not likely that preservatives are added to the finished jam. They are more usually added to the fruit which is stored for a longer or shorter time, to suit the convenience of the manufacturer. We know that fresh, ripe fruit can only be obtained during a very short period of each year, and in order to prolong the period during which the manufacture of jam may be carried on, there is a temptation to preserve the fruit by addition of salicylic acid, or other chemical substance. We sometimes find that jams, otherwise genuine, contain preservatives.



Prof. A. McGill
Analyst of the Pure Food Section, Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa.

Mr. McGill presented to his audience some samples of glucose in the solid and liquid forms. The former much resembled white castile soap and the latter a thick, quite transparent syrup. He greatly interested the grocers by some experiments illustrating the methods of detecting glucose or dyestuffs in jam.

Cream of Tartar.

Cream of tartar is a white crystalline compound of tartaric acid and potassium. It is obtained from argol, which forms about the inside of casks or vats in which wine is undergoing fermentation, being white or red according to the color of the wine it comes from. The argol is dissolved in hot water and the solution decolorized by albumen or animal charcoal, the cream of tartar being then extracted by evaporation and crystalization and purified by recrystalization. The best baking powders consist of cream of tartar mixed with baking soda (bicarbonate of soda) in the proportion of the relative molecular weights of the two substances, about one to two. When this substance is wet and heated, carbondioxide gas is liberated and makes the dough porous or "light." Cream of tartar constitutes also the chief commercial source of tartaric acid and its compounds.

Its adulteration consists chiefly in the direct addition of flour or starch or terra alba, or in the substitution of burnt alum, or acid phosphate of lime, or bi-sulphate of potash. There is, however, a great range of value in the genuine article, depending upon whether the crude tartar (argols, etc.) has been ground in its natural state, or has been subjected to a process of refining. In this last case the article may reach a degree of almost absolute purity and strength, while much of the genuine, but unpurified, cream of tartar on the market is not more than 80 per rent. or 85 per cent. pure. Of course it requires more of such a substance to obtain a given result in baking, than if the article had a purity of 99 per cent. In order to assist dealers in ascertaining for themselves the character of the article they handle, Mr. McGill has devised a simple apparatus, called the "McGill Tester," which anybody can use. It is made by a New York firm and supplied complete at $1.65.

Mr. McGill wishes it stated that he has no financial interest in this apparatus. He invented it solely for the benefit of dealers in and consumers of cream of tartar, and he hopes that it may be largely employed by grocers, druggists and others who wish to deal in honest goods, and to be able themselves to judge the quality of what they offer for sale.

The apparatus referred to was employed by Mr. McGill in his lecture, and after the lecture several grocers who had brought with them samples of their own goods made tests under Mr. McGill's guidance, and the results were in some cases a great surprise to those who made them. Mr. McGill offered the manufacture of the apparatus to a firm in Montreal, but he found that it could be made cheaper in New York.

Using the Tester.

The McGill cream of tartar testing outfit consists of a specially made graduate tube, a glass stirrer, a pint of specially prepared test solution and an ounce of iodine solution.

To test whether or not cream of tartar has been adulterated with starch, put a small quantity in a plate, add a few drops of iodine and stir. If a deep blue color results starch is present.

Starch may be the only adulterant, but more probably it contains burnt alum or superphosphate of lime, or both. To further establish the composition of the sample proceed with the test. Weigh out a drachm (this can be done at a neighboring druggist's) and dissolve in a tumbler half full of very hot water. Fill the graduate tube with test solution and pour it slowly into the tumbler, stirring with the glass rod. When a red color appears in the glass stop pouring in the test solution and keep on stirring. The red color may disappear; if it does, continue stirring in the solution very gradually until the red color becomes permanent and cannot be stirred out. The point at which the test solution remaining in the tube stands indicates the percentage strength or purity of the cream of tartar. If the red liquid in the glass is quite clear the sample is genuine. If it is milky, alum or other substitute for cream of tartar is present.

If no permanent red is produced in the tumbler and the solution remains clear, free tartaric acid is probably present, or the sample may consist of bi-sulphate of potash. If no permanent red is produced and the solution is milky, burnt alum or superphosphate of lime or a mixture of these is present.

THE RED FEATHER.

This inquiry was addressed to the editor of The Grocer:

"Peterboro, April 17.

"Dear Sir:—Kindly inform me through your columns who is entitled to wear the red feather.

"Yours truly,

"A GROCER TRAVELER."

The most obvious answer is, whoever will not show a white feather.

But this anonymous inquisitor had an idea. The red feather that was tickling his fancy when he imbibed the inspiration to query The Grocer is displayed on cans and packages of food stuffs. The Red Feather Tea Co. is a member of the Canada Grocers, Limited, and the Red Feather brand of spices are put up by Somerville & Co., Hamilton, another member of the Canada Grocers. The vegetables bearing the red feather were put up for the company. Lieut.-Col. John I. Davidson stated to The Canadian Grocer that the brands would be continued. The tea company will become a separate undertaking and the other goods also would continue to be handled by the firms comprising the Canada Grocers, Limited. It had cost too much to put them on the market to allow of the brand being dropped.

PRODUCE MAN WEDS.

On Wednesday the 18th inst. at Holy Trinity church, Winnipeg, Geo. W. Prout, manager of the Dominion Produce Co., was married to Miss Alice Maud Cober, second daughter of J. N. Cober, Hespeler, Ont. The Canadian Grocer extends congratulations.

A FURTHER SUGAR DECLINE.

At moment of going to press notice has come to hand from Winnipeg of a further decline of 10c. on all sugars at western points, coming into effect at once. Also that evaporated apples are advancing sharply.

COCOA FOR SAN FRANCISCO.

Bensdorp & Co., proprietors of Royal Dutch cocoa, have cabled their agents to furnish the relief committee at San Francisco, as soon as possible, with 100 cases of their cocoa. Fifty cases were therefore at once dispatched from their depot at Los Angeles, and 50 cases from Boston, U.S., all consigned to the chief of the Red Cross Society at San Francisco.

BUSINESS NOTES.

T. S. Ford & Co., Mitchell, Ont., have received a big consignment of goods from the Old Country for the Spring and Summer trade, purchased during Mr. Ford's visit there last year. Their's is one of the finest general stores in the west, and Mr. Ford sees signs of a big trade this Spring.

Peter Dill, the Seaforth, Ont., merchant, who has established his fame as a poultry breeder and dealer, is busy getting his poultry plant into shape for this season's campaign. Mr. Dill is a first-prizer, and has many of the coveted awards on his poultry exhibits. He reports good business in the general store also.

W. R. Cole, Mitchell, Ont., has added to the equipment of his grocery business a fine span of bronchos he imported for the purpose. They make a dandy turnout, one of the finest in the grocery trade in Ontario, and their owner is justly proud of them. 'Tis said he dreams about them, but then the travelers will yarn.

A. C. Elliott, Brooklin, Ont., is again enlarging his store premises. It is only five or six years since he enlarged before, but his business has so increased that he finds it absolutely necessary to call in the builders again. Mr. Elliott started in Brooklin ten years or so ago, and has done remarkably well. He is one of those wholesouled men with a real smile for everybody, and what he promises to do he does.

COFFEE AND SPICE MILLS BURNED

The spice mill of J. M. Lowes & Co., coffee and spice manufacturers, occupying the lower floors of the building at 109 Front street east, Toronto, was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning. The loss is $5,000, fully covered by insurance. The upper floors were occupied by Ed. Hawkes & Co., dealers in stove polish, and C. C. Irish, candy manufacturer. Their stocks were slightly damaged by smoke and water. The origin of the fire is unknown.

LEAVES TORONTO FOR MONTREAL

H. R. Gray, for some years head bookkeeper for Gunns Limited, Toronto, has gone to Montreal to accept a responsible position with Gunn, Langlois & Co. Before his departure the staff of Gunns, Limited, expressed their sentiment in regard to Mr. Gray by presenting him with a very handsome gold locket and fob suitably engraved. Mr. Gray's sterling qualities of mind and heart have secured him an enviable position in the esteem of the commission and wholesale community in Toronto, and while his departure is regretted, his many friends are pleased at his progress and hope for him the success he merits.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

F. L. Dugan, of Minneapolis, is the latest addition to the traveling staff of R. A. Rogers & Co., Winnipeg.

Mr. Geo. Beach, Detroit, Michigan, of Bernard & Co., Japan, is calling on the trade in Toronto this week.

H. E. Ecklin, Limited, general merchant, Keewatin, Ont., have sold hardware stock to Keewatin Hardware Co.

James Nicholson, of Nicholson & Brock, the well known Toronto mince meat, bird seed and grocers' sundries manufacturers, paid a call at the Montreal offices of The Canadian Grocer this week. Mr. Nicholson reports trade as very good and looks forward to a good year's business.

Amedee Lesieur, for over nineteen years with Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, has received the appointment of representative of the Royal Distillery, Hamilton, Ont. His offices are at room 12, La Presse building, and his territory will be Montreal City and the Province of Quebec. During his long service with Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Mr. Lesieur has had an experience in the purveying line and a close connection with the grocery and wine and spirit trade of the province that his success with the Royal Distillery Company's goods must be satisfactory. The Canadian Grocer wishes him success.

EX-MAYOR LAPORTE HONORED.

On Wednesday afternoon, the 25th inst., H. Laporte, formerly mayor of Montreal, was presented with a magnificent cabinet of silver, said to be the finest ever seen in the city. The gift is from the citizens of Montreal and is in recognition of the services rendered the city during his regime not only as mayor but as alderman and chairman of the finance committee.

NEW WHOLESALE GROCERS.

The Riley-Ramsay Co. is the name of a new wholesale grocery firm about to begin operations in Port Arthur. W. P. Riley was this week visiting the trade in Toronto preparatory to stocking.

Frank R. Oliver is placing on the market a new salad oil under the name of Teca Salada Oil. It is put up in pint bottles, two dozen in a case, and will be sold through the regular channels of the trade. Mr. Oliver has been a manufacturers' agent in Toronto for some two years.

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

THE STORE WINDOW.

The art of window dressing should be carefully studied. It is of importance enough to warrant the expenditure of some time in arranging the windows and in making them up in striking or original forms. If the proprietor cannot do it himself perhaps he has a bright clerk who would be glad to begin practice. If he has the clerk should be put to work and supplied with a reasonable amount of decorative material. Then if he succeeds, keep him at it.

Never allow a window to stay in more than a week at the most and have the displays arranged toward the last of the week so as to catch the Saturday trade. In country districts this is particularly important, though in the city, where telephone connection is becoming universal, as it is in some cities, the character of a window doesn't perhaps carry so great weight with the prospective purchasers. This is no argument in favor of neglect because an attractively dressed window is sure to bring new customers, even if it doesn't increase the business of the old.

Here is a good display seen recently which can be easily made by any grocer: The display was arranged in the form of an embankment, beginning about a foot from the window front and at the bottom, and slanting backward to a height of about six feet. It was covered with a gauze matting in colors. Flanked on either side were iron columns entwined with oblong cracker and other pastry boxes, laid criss-cross. Occupying the space at the bottom and front of the window was a row of small baskets filled with a variety of articles; there were oranges, lemons, figs, dates, raisins, candies, etc. On the embankment set upon narrow shelves were a multitude of miscallaneous articles. The largest ones began at the bottom and were arranged in layers. They comprised all sorts of fancy canister, tubular, glassware and package goods, making a solid bank of bright labeled and handsomely prepared groceries most beautiful to behold, and forming an exhibit that was attractive in the extreme.

No particular design was followed, it being simply a commonplace display of samples, such as any ordinary grocer is able to make if he will. But it was effective, as the inquiries made fully attested.

A HAMILTON STORE.

The illustration shown herewith is one which shows the interior display of Gage & Berry, King street east, Hamilton. It is somewhat difficult to show the many points of advantage in this store in a small illustration by reason of the depth of the store itself. On entering, however, a very good impression is made; the neatness of the arrangement is particularly impressive, the shelving is so ordered as to suit the various articles and with a view of giving everything its particular place.

The Interior of Gage & Berry's Store, Hamilton, Ontario.

The arrangement behind the counter is particularly attractive. Behind the shelving there shown is a fair run of mirrors, the effect of which it is impossible to show in an illustration. It is, however, a wonderful addition to the store; besides giving an effect of added width to the interior, it also duplicates the goods shown on the shelves themselves.

A feature often overlooked in many stores has been given careful consideration in this store and that is the lighting arrangement. This has been perfected by an instalment of electric and arc lights, the reflection of which adds immensely to the impressiveness at night time. The window is also lighted in the same effective style.

One feature to which this store gives prominence is its fruit and flower display—lines often treated carelessly, but which greatly add to the superiority of the store and give it a particularly good character.

The provision counter and refrigerator are situated at the extreme rear of the store away from the delicate groceries. Messrs. Gage and Berry have both had many years' experience in the grocery, business, most of which has been in Hamilton.

TRIED TO CONCEAL HIS FEELINGS

The late President Samuel C. Bartlett of Dartmouth was a man who keenly appreciated repartee, whether turned upon himself or some one else. At a college gathering recently this story was told as an illustration of his temperament:

Barron Shirley, now a prominent lawyer in Franklin, N.H., was called before President Bartlett when a student at the college for remarks he had passed because of a ruling of the faculty. The matter was regarded as serious, and there was danger of young Shirley's expulsion.

"Sir," said President Bartlett, sternly, "I understand you have been expressing your contempt for the faculty."

"No, sir," replied Shirley, as quick as a flash, "I have always done my best to conceal it."

President Bartlett looked into the young student's eyes, then chuckled and said, "You may go, sir."

WHY THE CHANCE WAS LOST.

A young lady working in a stocking factory, fearing that her chances for matrimony were small, wrote the following and slipped it into the toe of a gentleman's sock: "A young lady, good looking and of some means, would like to correspond with the wearer of this sock, if he is single, with a view to matrimony." A young man bought the sock and said, "There's my chance." He wrote to the young lady, offering himself as a suitable party, and to his surprise got this reply: "I have been married eight years, and have a family of five children." The man from whom he bought the socks had never advertised, consequently they had lain on the shelves for eight years.

DOMINION WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

the cost of doing business is from 7 to 9 per cent. Their innocence or guilt in respect of such alleged crime cannot be ascertained in any other way than by the annoyance, the inconvenience, the enormous expense of a public trial. It may be advanced that the remedy is to prove the allegations untrue, but that is only an apparent remedy. The result of one suit will not procure immunity to the manufacturer or to the merchant from further prosecution.

"In the case of the King vs. Elliott, Justice Osler in giving judgment made use of these words: 'What is undue with reference to the acts which are the subject of a conspiracy, combination, agreement or arrangement, is now a question of fact upon the circumstances of each particular case.' Now, in the case of a wholesale merchant there might be 100 different rates of profit, and each particular case might be made the basis of a prosecution. In view of this judgment the manufacturer or the merchant does not know, cannot know, what trade agreements he may legally enter into.

Criminality Not Intended.

"We submit that it was not the intention of the Government to put the stigma of criminality upon any person or association who agrees with any person to endeavor to place his business upon a basis to enable him to pay his debts. Trade grievances or unhealthy trade conditions cannot be ameliorated by individual effort; collective effort is absolutely necessary to accomplish any practical result.

"Railway companies fix railway rates by collective action.

"Telegraph companies regulate rates by collective action.

"Life insurance companies fix their rates by collective action.

"Fire insurance companies fix their rates by collective action.

"Physicians arrange their fees by concerted action.

"Lawyers call the legislation to their aid to ensure to them reasonable remuneration for their work.

"Trade unions are authorized by law to combine to secure reasonable wages.

"Why should merchants and manufacturers be differentiated against and made liable to criminal prosecution for using methods to advance their interests, which are legally sanctioned and permitted with respect to other classes of the community?

"The result is that the manufacturing, wholesale and retail trades of Canada to-day do not know where they stand in connection with trade matters. Methods of business which have been in vogue for centuries are to-day being attacked as illegal. Up to the year 1900 if a person did not unduly limit the facilities for transportation, production, manufacture, supply, storing or dealing in any article, or if a person did not unduly prevent, limit or lessen the manufacture or production of the article or unreasonably enhance its price or unduly prevent or lessen competition in the production, manufacture, purchase, barter, sale, transportation or supply of an article, and did not create a monopoly so as to unlawfully restrain or injure trade and bring himself within what would be known to be the common law of England, he felt perfectly secure in the conduct of his business. To-day he may not unduly limit the facilities for transportation, he may not prevent, limit or lessen the manufacture or production of goods; he may not unduly prevent or lessen competition in the production, manufacture, etc., of goods; in fact, he may do the contrary of these things by combining with those in the same trade with himself, and may lessen the price of the articles in which he deals to the consumer, and yet he may be held liable under these circumstances to have infringed sub-section B in the absolute in which it stands to-day.

"It is most respectfully urged that section B of the Act should be at once restored to where it stood in 1900, by adding the word 'unlawfully;' that the word 'unduly,' where it appears in section should be given an interpretation which leaves no doubt as to the meaning of the law.

The Proposed Reform.

"That most careful inquiry and investigation should be made into the trade and commercial interests of the country so as to enable Canadian merchants and manufacturers and business men to know with some certainty the agreements which it should and may be lawful for them to enter into for the protection and existence of the various businesses in which they are respectively engaged, and that in making such inquiry and investigation due consideration should be given not only to the interests of the Canadian consumer, but also to the trade and commercial interests of the country generally, to the foreign competition to which our merchants and manufacturers are subjected, and to the trade conditions and laws which exist in England and the United States in respect to such matters."

H. N. Kittson, of W. H. Gillard & Co., of Hamilton, wholesale grocers; Hugh Blain, of the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, of Toronto; Albert Hebert, of the Hudon, Hebert Co., of Montreal, president of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and R. E. Geoffrion, of Chaput, Fils & Cie., president of the Quebec Wholesale Grocery Trade, spoke in behalf of the wholesale trade of the Dominion. Mr. Bole, member for Winnipeg, spoke on behalf of the wholesale and retail drug trade.

The deputation was introduced by Mr. Gervais, member for Montreal west. From Ottawa the members returned to their homes.

Picked up in the Corridor.

Secretary Cook was a busy man, but through all genial and polite. He was deservedly complimented on the manner in which he had given the facts to the examining council at the Hamilton trial.

Mr. Blakeslee's discount on Egg-O-See seemed to meet the approval of the members of the guild.

One of the most optimistic members of the guild is Kenneth Mackenzie, of Kenneth Mackenzie & Co., Winnipeg. In speaking to The Canadian Grocer of his city and its future, he stated that prosperous as was the city at present, it was nothing to what the next ten years would show. "Winnipeg is Canada's hub," and the future will show wonderful progress.

"Fine weather, fine work, and fine results," was the general comment of the members.

L. E. Geoffrion, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., was one of the busiest members and happy in making visitors welcome and at home.

The "Widow Clicquot" was noticed at the banquet, and her alluring charms royally honored.

Au revoir! Auf Wiedersehen! Next meeting at ——

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

WHAT ABOUT SOAP?

Soap is an everyday commodity. You get a portion of your customer's order, but usually the druggist gets the other portion.

If you give careful attention to soap matters in your store, keep a fresh and representative stock in an up-to-date case, and advertise, you ought to get all the business.

Why should a customer of yours leave your store and journey to the druggists simply to get a 5c. or 10c. cake of soap?

In the past there has been a tendency among a number of grocers to let the soap trade slide, and the trouble is it does slide.

At first the profit looks small, the prize not worth winning, but profits are made on general sales, not on particular sales, i.e., you cannot afford to put all your energy on No. 1 Seller and neglect No. 3 Seller.

* * *

No. 3 becomes No. 2 when you are willing to make it such.

Soap manufacturers will supply you with advertising matter and schemes that have proven successful.

Make your soap business worth something. Get the best lines obtainable. Don't give any customer the opportunity of saying "those cakes of soap are dusty."

Get on the war-path with the druggist. Take note of how he arranges his assortment. Keep an eye on any dodgers he issues, particularly the prices quoted.

Tell the clerks you want them to sell soap as well as handle it. Tell them to prod the memories of your patrons and now and then to lay stress on the value of using————soap.

Grocery Publicity. ———— ————

The grocer who doesn't advertise is not awake to his best interests.

How shall he do it?

Newspapers—first.

Catalogues—second.

Booklets and folders—third.

Letters—fourth.

1—NEWSPAPERS.

Contract for location in the papers on certain days. The location of your ad should always be the same.

You'll find that buyers get the habit of looking for your ad in a certain location on certain days, and the longer your ad appears there the more valuable that space becomes for you. Advertising is cumulative.

Change every time. Never run the same ad twice. Nobody reads an editorial or news item twice, much less an ad.

What to say? There's the rub.

Say in your ad just what you say to the customer over the counter. She asks if you have any mackerel and you reply: "We have some fine mackerel; this year's catch, off the coast of Norway, fat and tender as chicken, white meat; one's enough for the family breakfast; they're a rare treat; the price is thirty-five cents a pound."

She asks for maple syrup; and you tell her you have the real maple syrup from ——— the old time flavor—better buy a quantity for it's so good the whole family will like it. It's healthy, too—buckwheat cakes without maple syrup cause indigestion—the price, $1.75 a gallon.

The writer of ads for department stores knows how to play upon women's fancies—the grocery ad writer has as good an opportunity. He should describe the plum pudding in a way that the reader may see the steam rising and taste the richness of the delectable food as she anticipates it in her imagination.

Good grocery copy isn't learned dissertations culled from dictionary or encyclopedia, but it is as near the way an intelligent salesman describes his wares as space will permit.

DON'T GO to the druggist's for your soap!

We keep many varieties of

Toilet Soap

Scented Soap

Laundry Soap

Tar Soap

We have the exclusive agency here for the cheapest laundry soap made.

Brown's Big Bar

Tell your soap troubles to us.

Humphrey & Son

Saskatoon

Prices? Of course.

Prices are always bargain clinchers for women, and it is to women the grocer advertises.

There's always something new and intensely interesting in a grocery store. New foods for each season, fresh arrivals from factory or farm.

Tell your readers how to prepare and serve the foods you sell. For instance, prunes are usually ruined in the cooking. This would be of interest:

Prunes from —

Wash clean, place in a baking pan with half enough water to cover. Put in oven and bake until the skin is tender. Regularly 10c. lb. This week, 3 lbs..... ... .25c.

Mackerel—

Boil in water on top of stove; transfer to baking pan; cover with butter; put in oven and bake top brown; serve piping hot; nothing better. Fat bloaters, new catch, lb.....30c.

Tea—

Harvested all the year; always fresh; cured and handled entirely by machinery; clean, sanitary; delicate flavor; takes less; 100 cups in a pound... .... 50c.

The grocer who cuts and slashes at prices and lies in his ads goes to the wall sooner or later, and he will have no interest in this kind of advertising.

2—CATALOGUES.

Catalogues are adapted for out of town trade and are indispensable if orders are expected by mail. The greater the expense of the catalogue the fewer you send out. The houses making the greatest success with catalogues use common newspaper and plain cuts.

Grocery prices change frequently, necessitating the issuing of catalogues often.

The writer published and mailed ten thousand catalogues each month for twelve years for a grocer in San Francisco, and thereby built up a country business of vast proportions.

There should not be anything in a grocery catalogue but descriptions of the goods, illustrations and prices.

3—BOOKLETS AND FOLDERS.

These may be used in town to great advantage.

They should be neat and attractive, never expensive or gaudy. They should be short, pointed and serve a purpose.

4—LETTERS.

The facilities afforded by the multigraph and other excellent appliances for writing duplicate letters afford opportunity for calling attention in a personal way to important things your customers will be glad to know and have proved to be a most effective means of building trade.—The American Advertiser.

MAIL ORDER COMPETITION.

The retail and wholesale merchants in Canada do not realize to what extent their confreres in the United States suffer from competition with some of the large mail order houses, particularly such firms as Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery, Ward & Co. We have a good deal of competition in Canada, but it is not nearly so severe. The way in which a western retailer met this competition is being told throughout the trade in the States, and no doubt many of our readers will find it worth while publishing in their local papers. Recently a church congregation in a little town built a church. To pay for it they were obliged to call upon the merchants of the community for donations. The merchants responded liberally, and $300 was raised from this source. The last man to subscribe was John Smith, jeweler. "I will give you $5 if you will let me add something to your subscription list," he said. Permission was accorded him and he wrote at the bottom of the list:

John Smith, jeweler $5.00
Sears, Roebuck & Co..... 0
Montgomery, Ward & Co... 0

The church people saw the point when the minister read from the pulpit the list of donors to the building fund. Since the dedication of the church there have been no mail orders sent out from that little town.

ADOPT MODERN DISPLAY METHODS.

Time is money and space is money. The storekeeper who has not installed the most up-to-date system for displaying his goods is losing money every day. He is doing business under a handicap which his enterprising competitor will some day appreciate, and before he has awakened from his nineteenth century sleep his twentieth century competitor will have convinced the public that he is abreast of the times and carries the most complete stock.

How can you induce your customers to throw away an old, out-of-date article and buy a new one with latest improvements? How can you expect them to adopt the latest improvements when your own store is an advertisement for everything that is out-of-date?

No investment which improves the store and facilitates waiting on the trade is excessive. When you lose fifteen minutes looking for some articles which you know you have in stock, you not only lose a quarter of an hour yourself, but you annoy the customer.

Goods well displayed are half sold. For a hundred dollars or so you can put in the latest system of shelving on the market. It will be attractive and will often suggest to customers some article which they had not thought of buying.

Three millionaires exist in royal splendor in Los Angeles, California, in consequence of having transformed a sun-scorched, barren, desolate, lonely wind-swept desert island into a popular watering place. An island that was once exchanged for a saddle horse is today worth $70,000,000 because three men undertook to make it an attractive place for tourists. Make your store attractive and people will flock to it.

A veteran general merchant at a recent convention remarked that 80 per cent of the men who failed in business failed because they did not know how to display their goods to advantage and often made what should have been an attractive store look like a second-hand junk shop.

Don't be one of the 80 per cent., and don't run a junk shop instead of a twentieth century store.

ANOTHER RAILWAY.

If proof were wanting of the confidence which the shrewdest capitalists repose in the future of the Canadian West, it is afforded by the definite announcement by James J. Hill of his intention to extend the Great Northern to Canada and build from Winnipeg to the Pacific coast. It is even hinted that it is his intention to build a transcontinental, but however that may be, Western Canada is now assured of four trunk lines. The Great Northern lines in the west will be completed as soon as the Grand Trunk Pacific, and thus there will be two new arteries draining the rich transportation areas hitherto jointly and jealously conserved by the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern.

A few eastern papers hold to the view that the Hill invasion is unfortunate from the standpoint of Canada's national development as the Great Northern will divert to the south trade which should be retained in Canadian channels. But it is impossible to prevent communication with the south even if that were desirable, and the Canadian roads will be compelled in self-defence to allow rates from east to west that will permit Eastern Canada manufacturers to compete with the Americans.

The new road will be another important factor in the development of the Great West, and as such it should be welcomed by Cananians in every province.

OUR SPECIAL PRIZE OFFER

Now is the time to send in your competitions for the advertising prize. Before our next issue is out the competition will close.

A fountain pen for nothing is not to be despised. You are writing your advertisements weekly, perhaps daily; why not select your best achievement in this line and send it along? It may be the very one to win the prize.

A fountain pen is one of those useful, indispensable articles, ever ready for use, ever to hand, and you can win it so easily. You have but to send on to our office one of the papers in which your advertisement appeared, according to particulars which have been appearing in The Canadian Grocer and which again appear in this issue on page 39, and the writer of the best ad submitted will receive the fountain pen. The enterprising clerk must get the hustle on him.

TRADE ORGANIZATION.

At a gathering of newspapermen the other evening, one who had been a reporter and had left newspaper work to join his father in the manufacture of sewer pipe, stated that when about to make the change his managing editor had said to him, "Oh well, there isn't much difference between molding sewer pipe and molding public opinion." It was intended as a joke, certainly, but public opinion does often get very riley, chiefly because of the deleterious matter injected into it by some ignorant, ill-balanced newspaper writers who very imperfectly understand the situation they are dealing with.

This was never more evident than in regard to the subject of trade agreements that has been agitating the public mind for some months. As long as the plumbers' organization operated merely to insure a fair profit on the work done, there was no objection to it. The law officers of the Crown and the Minister of Customs said so. But when they plunged into "graft" and cold-bloodedly loaded tenders with rake-offs for men who had nothing to do with the work, why the law against theft was for them.

Then followed the prosecution of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild officers as conspirators in restraint of trade, and it was confidently heralded as a parallel case to the plumbers.' The Crown Attorney had the guild books and papers for weeks, and during several days' sittings of the court showed nothing the accused had not admitted at the start, and still it is asserted to be a case of the plumbers over again.

The arrangement in regard to sugar is the overwhelming sin. The arrangement enables a gross profit of 4 per cent. and the cost of doing business is from 7 to 9 per cent., leaving a net loss (and why should not sugar bear its share of the cost of carrying on business?) of 3 to 5 per cent.

Any sane person upon being informed of the facts immediately asks: "What's the matter with the law that enables such a prosecution?" The law provides that everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to a penalty not exceeding $4,000 or two years imprisonment, who conspires, combines, agrees or arranges with any other person, to restrain or injure trade in relation to any article or commodity, to unduly prevent, limit or lessen the manufacture thereof, or to unreasonably enhance the price thereof, or to unduly prevent or lessen competition in relation thereto.

Now, what does "unduly" and "unreasonably" mean?

Surely it was time the Government should be asked to classify the law and show what it means. The wholesale grocers handle the bulk of the foodstuffs of the people; their aggregate business is enormous. They are a reputable body of men highly esteemed in the community. Why should they, or the merchant class at large, for they all are in the same boat, be the only people in the country prohibited from forming associations for the betterment of trade conditions, while transportation companies, telegraph, telephone, and insurance companies each take concerted action in regard to rates, doctors fix their fees collectively, lawyers are assisted to fat remuneration by Act of Parliament, and trade unions exist to increase the remuneration of artisans and laborers?

Of course, the consumer must be protected. No class of men can be trusted with a monopoly of food products or with power to exclude others from the trade. We boast this a free country; then why shouldn't a merchant be free to say to his neighbor "You do business on a fair basis, an honest basis that will enable us to pay for the goods we sell, and so will I?"

In addition to the very necessary amendment of the law the deputation that waited on Premier Laurier and Mr. Fitzpatrick last Friday asked for a commission of business men to examine into trade questions. Of course the lawyers would object because a lot of legal buncome would be displaced by commonsense and knowledge of trade conditions, but such a commission would be a great boon to the business interests of the Dominion.

THE BILL TO AID CO-OPERATION.

Mr. Monk has introduced into the House of Commons a bill to facilitate co-operative banking and trading in Canada. Co-operation in production, marketing and the purchase of breeding stock, machinery and fertilizers, aided and in many cases made possible by co-operative banks, has effected the redemption of the agricultural industry in Europe. In England, where agricultural co-operation is just beginning, co-operative stores in towns and cities have aggregated an enormous trade and have very seriously affected the individual retail interests.

Three conditions here render unlikely any serious attempt at co-operative stores as they have them in England, the comparative thinness of population, the more prosperous condition and higher standard of living of the Canadian working classes, and the department stores.

Agricultural interests might, however, be greatly benefitted by the extension of the co-operative system in the production and marketing of commodities. Anything that benefits agriculture benefits trade. If, however, any retailer thinks the movement a menace to his interests, his business is to send a post card to his representative in the Commons and ask him to oppose the bill.

THE REPORTER AS DOCTOR.

Publicity would prevent a multitude of sins.

The Wholesale Grocers' Guild is an organization to better the conditions of the grocery trade. Every retailer is intimately interested in what the guild does. Everything that affects the making or marketing of food stuffs it is his business to know. Why, then, should the guild meeting be conducted with such overwhelming secrecy? It is that that has aroused suspicion against it and more than anything else precipitated the present criminal prosecution. The wholesaler cannot raise the grocery trade on his own shoulders, but with the help of the retailer he could do a great deal. If the wholesale trade gets off behind the door and mumbles away to itself the retailer naturally imagines there's something doing and he is going to get the worst of it. Suspicion and bad feeling are engendered.

Any movement that is not contrary to sound public policy will benefit by reasonable publicity. It disarms suspicion without and within prevents the class of action that leads to investigation and exposure.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL WILL WAIT AND SEE.

As anticipated last week, the prosecution at Hamilton of the Wholesale Grocers Guild officers has been postponed. Hon. J. J. Foy, Ontario's Attorney-General, told The Canadian Grocer representative on Monday that he had instructed Crown Attorney Washington to postpone the proceedings for a month in order to see what the Dominion Government would do about amending section 520 of the criminal code, under which the indictment for conspiracy in restraint of trade is laid.

"They came to me and said they wanted to obey the law, would obey it, if they knew what it was, but the word 'unduly' as used in the code had not been defined," said Hon. Mr. Foy. "They want the Dominion Government to amend the law. I think we should wait to see what will be done."

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Quebec Markets.

FLUCTUATIONS—

Sugar—Advanced 10c.

Fish—Thoroughly revised.

Dried fruits—Thoroughly revised.

Montreal, April 26, 1906.

The grocery business is showing improvement as the general trade conditions of the country improve. The opening of navigation has given a spur to all branches of the trade, groceries included. As yet only local boats are running, but even so, a very large increase in business is noticeable. Once the ocean vessels commence to arrive still better business will be transacted. The sugar market is very weak at present. A further decline of 10 cents took place Tuesday of this week. There is a disposition on the part of buyers to hold off until a better market prevails. As it is, the market is in an uncertain condition and therein lies the hesitation on the part of buyers. The tea situation is, if anything, a little better than it was last week, although things generally are on the quiet side. Japans are moving more freely. There is a better inquiry for Young Hysons, and for the better grades of Ceylons there is a good demand at firm prices. Reports from the Barbadoes state that the crop of molasses is just about cleared up, and that indications point to good business. Locally very good business is being transacted. Canned goods do not present any new features. Coffee is unchanged since last week, and spices are firm. Evaporated apples are in limited supply, but are not in great demand. Business in fish is very quiet. In dried fruits reports state that there is a likelihood of small crop of apricots. Currants are moving freely and raisins are firm. Shelled almonds are away up and Tarragona almonds have experienced quite an advance also.

CANNED GOODS—The market is a very featureless one at present. Business generally is very quiet. The demand for tomatoes still continues, although they are not so much demanded on the part of the retail merchants as they have been. Corn and peas are in good stock and orders for them are readily met. Other lines are also in good supply and the fair orders for them are quite easily filled. Canned fruits are obtainable in all lines at prices which have not changed for weeks. The arrival of new fruit is expected to curtail considerably the demand which at present prevails for these lines. Canned salmon is reported as opening up at higher price than for some years past on account of the short estimated pack this season.

Quotations in last week's issue remain unchanged.

SUGAR—A further decline of 10c. has taken place in sugar. The New York market declined earlier on same day. Very little business has been done in sugar lately. All branches of the trade show an inclination to hold off buying until the market is in a better state than it is at present. As yet it is difficult to say when an improvement will take place, but until something does turn up to produce a better situation there will be practically no large business transacted.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—Latest reports from the Barbadoes say that the crop there is about cleaned up. The total advance is 2 cents over opening price. Indications point to good business now that the market at the islands is not influenced by crop rumors. Locally the demand is fairly good at prices quoted. Corn syrups are fair, being put on the side, as it were, by the new maple syrup.

TEA—The situation generally is still on the quiet side. Japans are moving a little more freely this week than they did last. The advance of ½c. on the freight on Japans will, no doubt, have some effect on the price asked for the new crop tea when it arrives. A better inquiry is reported for Young Hysons. There is a good demand for the fine grades of Ceylons at firm prices. These are very hard to obtain, and are apparently becoming cleared up. Other lines are fair.

COFFEE—The situation is practically unchanged since last week. Prices are unaltered. Business, according to reports from wholesale houses, is about the same as it usually is this time of year; grocers are inclined to order only for immediate use. Watt, Scott & Goodacre, in their report of April 23, say: "The general opinion is that the next Rio crop will turn out 3,000,000 bags, and the next Santos crop, 9,000,000 bags. The trees which I have seen are vigorous and well fruited, in fact all vegetation is much more luxuriant than I have found it in recent years. The success of the valorization scheme is believed to be doubtful, and its results are expected in the event of enactment to be only temporary."

Brazilian Exchange has recovered from the lowest point, £14 3s. 4d., to £15, 7s. 16d.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Prunes are strong and supplies are small. Apricots are about done. The outlook for prunes is fairly good. Raisins, which are now in an unsettled condition, promise to be very good also. It is expected, however, that there will be an exceedingly small crop of apricots. These conditions may be changed by rains in the fruit growing district.

Shelled almonds are away up, the last report received quoting them at 26½c. Taragona almonds have also advanced very considerably. Currants are moving freely in Canada, principally cleaned stock, but they are reported as being "stiff" in England. Valencias are firm.

SPICES—The continued advance in gingers is about the only feature of interest in the spice market. This applies especially to Jamaica gingers, which are not in the best supply in the large markets of the world. Prices of all spices are firming up. EVAPORATED APPLES—Owing to the very high prices demanded for evaporated apples the sales of them have been very small, indeed inquiries have been very limited, prunes and other dried fruits obtainable at more reasonable prices seemingly having taken the place of this line. Quotations range from 10c. to 12½c.

FISH—The market is rather quiet and has been so since Lent. Fresh fish are arriving in larger quantities every day and prices are becoming lower in consequence. Lake trout and whitefish are now arriving in small quantities and larger shipments are expected after May 1. Other fresh lines expected include shad, mackerel and alewives.

Salt fish are not very much in demand and sales of smoked lines are falling off. Oysters are quiet also.

GROCERIES—Trade is light this week with markets firm in all lines but sugar. The further decline of 10c. on Tuesday came as a surprise to some wholesalers, others think the situation might justify a further decline in the near future, but no one has any pronounced views upon it.

CANNED GOODS—All lines are going pretty steadily into consumption at last week's quotations. Tomatoes are still the interesting feature. All class distinction is wiped out. Some houses continue at $1.25, though it is alleged the guild members agreed upon a price of $1.30. Some of them are quoting the lower price. It is stated a retailer who was fortunate enough to have a large stock, sold 50 cases to a wholesaler at $1.27 1-2. A further upward movement is expected within a week or two.

Quotations in last week's issue remain unchanged.

SUGAR—A decline of 10c. was announced by the Canadian refiners Tuesday. The raw sugar situation continues weak and unsettled. In New York large receipts, small demand and limited sales under increased offerings reduced quotations to 2 1-16c. c.i.f. for 96 degrees test centrifugals. This is 34c. per 100 lbs. below the parity of beet sugar, and all the advantage of the Cuban reciprocity is wiped out. At the end of last week Willett & Gray expected the next important business would be on a basis of 2c. There would be purchasers at that price, but some commission houses have been instructed to store rather than accept that price.

The Cuban crop continues to fulfil expectations, with the full quota of centrals grinding, and receipts for the week 45,000 tons, against 27,000 tons for the corresponding week last year. The total stocks in the United States and Cuba last week were 20,536 tons less than in last year's corresponding week, but the week before the difference was 32,145 tons, so that the gap is rapidly closing. Visible supplies of the world are given at 3,926,725, against 4,128,332 a month ago, and the reduction is interpreted as a favorable sign, but the total visible is still 1,102,364 tons ahead of last year.

In European markets beet was quoted Monday 1d. lower at 8s. 4d., a shade below 3.74c. duty paid New York for centrifugals 96 degrees test and a trifle under 2.39c. c.i.f. for Cuban centrifugals 96 degrees test for shipment to New York. It is not yet known what effect the earthquake had on the California refineries.

TEA—The tea market is generally steady with teas of fine flavor becoming scarcer and commanding better prices. Locally dealers report business lagging this week.

COFFEE—"I told our men not to push sales at present prices," said the coffee expert of one of the largest wholesale houses this week. He has been oloking some time for an advance and this expresses his present view of the situation. Willett & Gray say the only information available from reliable sources regarding crop prospects is that the next Santos crop promises to be larger than the present one and the next Rio crop is likely to be smaller than the present one. But it is asserted it will be very difficult for Brazil to raise a crop equal to the consumption of 12 1-2 million bags of Santos and Rio coffees. Willett & Gray say: "The buyers in the interior, both here and in Europe, have been holding back hoping that the May liquidation may bring about a lower market, the same as they have been hoping for lower prices for some time past. If in the face of largely reduced supplies prices have stood still, it affords all the greater safety to present prices when the buying comes from the necessities of consumption instead of coming from speculative quarters."

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — Since last week's report some further business has been done in currants for importation at a further advance of 6d. An order for valencia raisins was cabled to London at prices which have been current for some time and the reply came that sound uncandied fruit could not now be had under 2s. 6d. more. This fruit has been quite cleaned up on spot from first hands and all stocks are now in the hands of wholesale grocers. Prunes are very firm, in line with other dried fruits. Quotations, however, remain unchanged, though a merchant just in receipt of a car of prunes exjust in receipt of a can of prunes expressed the view that the margin in the present prices was not large enough.

SPICES—The spice market is a strong one generally. The price of Jamaica ginger is now about 100 per cent. higher than three months ago and about the same level as three years ago. Ginger got so slow that producers stopped harvesting it and when supplies ran out the market rapidly improved.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, April 25, 1906.

The volume of business in the local grocery markets continues good, and now that Spring appears to have opened up in earnest there is every prospect that trade will show even greater advances. Collections, generally, are good. The jobbers say that so far trade is much in advance of the same period last year. Some changes have occurred in prices, perhaps the most notable being a decline of 10c. per hundred pounds in the price of sugar. This drop affects all but bag sugars. The provision market is very strong, with a further tendency to advance. During this season the advances in American clear pork have totalled $2. It is now quoted at $16.50 per barrel, to import. This does not include duty or other charges. Beef is very firm, but it has not increased in the same proportion as pork. Lard is also scarce and high in the local market. American firms are quoting lard at 10c. per pound in bond, which is equal to 12½c. per pound duty paid. The nominal price here in pails is about 12½c. per pound. Rice is very firm, but there is no scarcity of it on this market.

FRUITS—Jamaica oranges continue scarce. The steamer Beta on her last trip brought quite a large shipment, but the fruit is only fair quality. They are quoted at $7, and then they have to be picked over, as they are in poor shape. Valencias, large, 420's, are $5.75; ordinary, $5, and 714's, $6.25. California navels range from $4 to $4.50, and California blood oranges from $2.50 to $2.75. Lemons are quoted at $3 to $3.25. The arrival of the Beta with a lot of bananas relieved the market. The fruit is of a much better quality, but the bunches as yet are small. They are quoted from $1.75 to $3. Good pines are selling from 25 to 30c. each. They are of good quality. Strawberries are 35c., and tomatoes $4.50 per crate of half bushel. The first shipment of Egyptian onions has arrived, and they are quoted at 2¼c. per pound. The quality is only fair. Very few good apples are to be had on the market, the best Nonpareils selling at $4 to $5. Very few evaporated apples are held here. The stocks on hand are quoted at 12c., and it is expected that they will advance still further. Canned apples are now finding good sale.

VEGETABLES—The choicest Prince Edward Island potatoes are selling at 45 to 50c. per bushel. Some recent shipments from the Island have improved the market, the quality being much better than the potatoes from vessels lying at the wharves. The potatoes on the Island Winter well. All stocks of vegetables held here now Wintered well. Carrots, parsnips and turnips are of unusual good quality. Carrots are worth $1.75, turnips 90c., and parsnips $1.50.

BUTTER AND EGGS — The butter market has not undergone any change as regards prices. The receipts are somewhat disappointing, new-made butter coming on the market much slower than was expected. Pasture is improving very rapidly, and the receipts should be better than they are. Creamery prints are quoted at 25 to 26c., and some retail dealers are even asking 30c. for the very choicest. The average price of small tubs is about 25c. The receipts of eggs improved slightly, both from points in the province and Prince Edward Island. The former are quoted at 15c. and the latter 17c. On the Island they are selling at 15½c.

CHEESE—Is quoted at 14c. for large.

FISH—The receipts of fresh fish are very heavy, especially halibut, and in consequence the price has dropped and the demand has fallen off since Lent. Last week halibut retailed at two pounds for 25c. Now three pounds can be had for the same money. Fresh cod and haddock have each dropped half a cent per pound. The first fresh shad and also a few salmon are on the market. The price of both are beyond the reach of the ordinary consumer. Prince Edward Island oysters are becoming very scarce. They are quoted at $7 and $7.50 per barrel. Trout are coming in quite freely, and are selling at one dollar per dozen. Lobsters of medium size are quoted at one dollar per dozen. Good grocery herring are very scarce. From points along the shore come reports of large catches of lobsters, better than for some years. The live lobster trade with the United States has grown to great proportions, and hundreds of cases are sent from here every week to the American markets. Not only are large shipments made from this port, but from Yarmouth, the steamers sailing from there direct to Boston carrying even greater quantities than from Halifax. Sometimes these crates have sold as high as $27.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, April 25, 1906.

In common with all, a gloom has been cast over St. John because of the awful calamity which has overtaken San Francisco. Anxious hours were spent by many because of having near relatives and friends there. It brings back our own trying times of 1877, though in many ways there is no comparison. There has been a generous response to the subscription list which was at once voluntarily offered.

Business in general is good. Navigation is practically open. Winter port business is about closed. It has been a record year, far and beyond any previous season. With the increased facilities which will be ready for the opening of the Fall shipments, great things are expected next year.

MARKETS show little change. Sugar is again lower. Molasses is held firm. Pork products continue to advance. Cheese, evaporated apples and prunes are very scarce. In spice, pepper rather easier; ginger, high; nutmegs, after an advance are again easier; cloves are still high. Some rather lower prices are quoted on hops. Rice, which has been bought quite freely, is higher.

OIL—In burning oil there is just steady business; prices have remained unchanged for some time; values are low. At this season there is large business in lubricating oils. Paint oils also sell freely; values, particularly in turpentine, are high. In gasoline, prices hold firm at the advance; sales are large. In cod oil, stocks are light and full prices asked.

SALT—Arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt continue large, and there is free movement. This is the active season; prices quite low. In fine salt, prices unchanged.

CANNED GOODS— Sales are quite active. Tomatoes are the firm line: our trade are carrying fair stocks. Corn, while firm, is still being sold at quite close figures. Peas are lower. In fruits, gallon apples higher and firmly held. Strawberries are somewhat a line of interest. Salmon is firm; the outlook for the future, particularly in sockeye fish, is said to be higher prices. Oysters firmer. In domestic fish there is little stock except sardines.

GREEN FRUIT—The banana season is open and for the Summer this is the big line; quality and prices are now satisfactory. In oranges, nice messinas, in both bloods and regulars, now offered. Valencias are rather higher. Californias held at full figures. Lemons, a fair sale; prices continue quite low. Apples are about out of the market.

DRIED FRUIT— In raisins, seeded, which have been ruling lower, are firmer. Valencias and Malaga loose unchanged; just fair business. Prunes are scarce and higher. It is practically impossible to replace the smaller sizes. Peaches and apricots are held firm. Dates rather higher. In peels, prices will rule high, particularly citron. Evaporated apples are getting scarce; the high price affects the demand. In onions Egyptians are quoted at rather lower figures; quality this year is good. Some Americans continue to arrive. Some Bermudas here; quality but fair; many are not expected.

SUGAR—Price is again lower; coming after the rather firmer figures, market is somewhat unsettled. There have been quite large arrivals of Scotch granulated.

MOLASSES—The last West India steamer landed over twelve hundred packages of Barbadoes molasses. The importation of Barbadoes is the largest for years. A large quantity of fancy is coming; prices higher. The first cargo of new Porto Rico has arrived.

FISH—In fresh fish, a good variety. Halibut is quite plenty. Gaspereaux are being freely caught and prices are lower. Dry fish, while rather easier, are still high. Pickled herring continue high and scarce. Smoked herring are rather lower; it is getting late for large business in haddies.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL — In flour a good steady business at even prices. Feed is quite high. Cornmeal is firmer. While oatmeal is unchanged, rather higher prices expected. Beans somewhat dull; prices, particularly Yellow Eyes, low. Barley very quiet. There is some demand for blue peas if at a low price.

In the Retail Merchants' Journal of Canada for March appears a belated account of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada held in Winnipeg last February. The first copies to reach Winnipeg arrived here last Saturday and the account created some interest among those members of the trade whose attention was drawn to it.

Under the heading "The Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada" and the sub-heading "Amalgamation with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada'" appears the following:

"The great feature of this meeting was the affiliation of the association with the Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association of Western Canada, and the amalgamation of the two associations with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, and the formation of a western board of the parent association."

As this statement of the proceedings was in the nature of strange news to The Canadian Grocer, a representative of this paper called on Secretary W. A. Coulson to learn his views on the matter.

"Have you seen the March number of the Retail Merchants' Journal of Canada?" Mr. Coulson was asked.

"Yes, it has just come in this morning," was the reply.

"I suppose then that you have noticed the heading 'Amalgamation with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada.' Might I ask if this is a correct statement of what occurred in the meeting last February?"

"No, most decidedly it is not a correct statement," was the prompt response. "Our Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada has not 'amalgamated' with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada; we retain our complete independence, our own separate organization and our own separate executive. In no respect whatever do we recognize the authority of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada and we do not consider ourselves in any way an integral part of that association. As the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada we have no relationship with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, except through the affiliation of the western board with that association as per the report of the affiliation committee.

"I have here the minutes of the meeting last February which state that at the afternoon session on February 14 President T. J. Lawlor brought in the following report of the committee of the general merchants appointed to meet a committee of the Western Retail Hardware Association:

"The Western Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association and the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada have decided to affiliate and the following are the terms of affiliation:

"The two associations are to elect jointly a western board which, for certain common objects will affiliate with the Dominion board, whose head offices are in Toronto. The Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada and the Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association of Western Canada each retain their own identity and control their own affairs. A per capita tax of ten cents per member is to be paid to the treasurer of the western board from each association and the treasurer of the western board will pay the same to the Dominion association. It is further agreed that a special assessment not to exceed 50 cents per member is to be at the call of the western board executive and is to be used for legislative purposes only. These amounts are to be paid out of the present membership fee of each association."

"The situation is just this," continued Mr. Coulson, "and I hope you will make it clear to the western trade through the Canadian Grocer: the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada have affiliated with the Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association of Western Canada for certain well defined, well-understood and clearly specified purposes. We recognize that we have some interests in common and that we require to watch legislation that affects the whole retail trade. So, in order that we may work together effectively in watching such legislation as affects our common interests, the two western associations in joint session elected an executive known as the western board. The main duty of this western board is to watch and promote legislation; it has no authority over the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada and no authority over our friends in the Western Hardware Association; each of these bodies retains its own identity and its own independence. In fact, the two bodies may not always agree, as there are questions on which our interests may not exactly coincide. We are two separate organizations and we have a right to differ if we want to. The western board does not control us in any way."

"What is the relation of the western board to the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada? Is it subordinate to that organization?" asked The Canadian Grocer.

No., most decidedly it is not a subordinate body," was the reply. "We recognize that there are many matters in which the retailers in all parts of Canada have the same interests, and that there are times when it is advisable that the merchants of the Dominion should be able to speak to the Dominion Parliament as one body. For legislative purposes, and other common objects, our western board has affiliated with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. We are prepared to act with the organization in Toronto along legislative lines and to that end we have affiliated, but we have not amalgamated. There is a great difference between the two terms as any one can see, and the Retail Merchants' Journal of Canada has no authority for its statement that we have amalgamated."

"One word more, Mr. Coulson. This account says that there was formed a western board of the 'parent association.' Do you consider the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada the preent of the western associations?"

"No, I don't. The eastern organization had absolutely nothing whatever to do with the formation of the western associations."

President J. F. Hunter, of Boissevain, was in Winnipeg on Friday of last week, and, in conversation with The Canadian Grocer, expressed his satisfaction with the progress the association is making. He is anxious to see the association given as much publicity as possible in The Canadian Grocer, as the only sure way to keep the trade interested is to keep them informed as to its work. The most effective way to do this is through the trade press.

During the Winter months association members in many sections made a determined effort to grapple with the credit problem, it being mutually agreed among the dealers that they would refuse all credit between November 1 and April 1. From reports received at this office during the Winter, it would seem that the plan met with fair success. This paper will welcome communications from association members, telling of the measure of success that attended their efforts. Adress the Winnipeg office.

WSTERN BROKERS DINE.

On Saturday night, the 21st inst., a jolly party of Winnipeg wholesale grocery brokers assembled around the festive board in the grotto of "the Mariaggi," the occasion being the first annual banquet of the Western Wholesale Brokers' Association. This flourishing body was organized one year ago, its chief object being to bring business competitors into closer relationship, thus softening the asperities of business warfare. And the association has not only accomplished this object, but is opening up new fields of usefulness which were not thought of at the time of its organization. Certain it is that the gathering in the Mariaggi last week brought together men who are friends as well as competitors.

Those Present.

President E. Nicholson, of Nicholson & Bain, presided, and there were present twelve other brokers. But lest it be thought by the superstitious that the gathering of thirteen brokers had an inauspicious aspect, let it be added that the presence of a representative of The Canadian Grocer swelled the number to fourteen. Those present besides President Nicholson were: A. E. Scott, of Scott, Bathgate & Co.; G. B. Thompson, Geo. Adam, Stuart Watson, J. M. Scott, Jos. Carman, Jos. E. Huxley, John A. Cheyne, E. W. Ashley, R. B. Wiseman, Charles Duncan, G. J. Cameron, of W. L. Mackenzie & Co., and F. R. Munro, of The Canadian Grocer.

The Toast List.

A substantial menu occupied the close attention of the gathering for some time, and when it was disposed of President Nicholson rose amid applause to call the gathering to order. He had been out of town at the time of the annual meeting, and he wished first to thank his fellow members for the honor done him in electing him to the presidency. The association had prospered in its first year, and he believed its future was bright.

When the toast to "The King" had been honored in the usual loyal fashion the president proposed the health of and called on Geo. Adam and A. E. Scott to tell what they thought of their customers.

Mr. Adam in a brief speech expressed the opinion that, taking them all in all, the Winnipeg wholesale grocers are jolly good fellows.

Mr. Scott followed with a strong tribute to the many good qualities of Winnipeg's wholesale grocers. It was always a pleasure to do business with Winnipeg's wholesale grocers for the reason that they are men of their word, always reasonable, and prepared to give and take. They are men who carry out their contracts to the letter, men who are prepared to put the best construction possible on a broker's actions. He would be sorry if business should ever call him to another city.

Western Wholesale Brokers' Association

The next toast was that to the association, responded to by Jos. Carman, G. B. Thompson, Chas. Duncan, E. W. Ashley, Stuart Watson, and Jos. E. Huxley.

Mr. Carman expressed his pleasure at meeting his fellow brokers, and was only sorry that it had not been possible for every member to attend. He believed the association could be made a real benefit to its members if they would meet and discuss their problems. He thought the visits of outside brokers selling to the retail trade as well as the wholesale demanded some attention.

G. B. Thompson said that from the first he had had faith in the association. It was a good thing to make the acquaintance of one's business rivals. There had been a time when he was suspicious of them; now he knew them one and all to be good fellows.

Chas. Duncan spoke briefly to the toast, and was followed by E. W. Ashley, who, in a speech full of dry humor, demonstrated that his faith in the association was greater than he had ever acknowledged. Banquets were hard on the digestion, but he would endure even a banquet to meet his broker friends. He had never had any confidence in the association, of course, but perhaps he was getting over that lack of confidence. His view had been that the brokerage business was a cut-throat business anyway, and what could you do to better it? But business rivals need not be bad friends, and he hoped there would be many similar meetings.

Stuart Watson vowed that speech making wasn't in his line, and he gave way to Jos. Huxley. Mr. Huxley was sorry that the association usually meets on Saturday nights, because he found that an inconvenient night. He was like Tom. Johnson, of Cleveland, who, it is said, goes to church once in seven years. He remarked to his wife on the occasion of his last visit that if the church didn't get a better preacher he would stop going so regularly.

The Ladies.

G. K. Cameron, a happy benedict, and John A. Cheyne, an envious looking bachelor, were asked to defend the ladies. Mr. Cameron was of opinion that they needed no defence, and he didn't think a speech was necessary to prove their good qualities. Mr. Cheyne confessed that he had learned to envy the married man since he came west. His friends were rendered hopeful by the announcement that he had advanced one stage on the road to domestic happiness, but they were saddened when they learned that he had merely moved to new lodgings.

The Press.

The concluding toast on the programme was that to "The Press," by which in this case was meant the trade press. President Nicholson was ungallant enough to say that this toast ranked second only to "The Western Wholesale Brokers' Association," which caused Messrs. Cameron and Cheyne, the champions of "the ladies," to look to their weapons.

F. R. Munro, of The Canadian Grocer, responded briefly to this toast, thanking the association for their courtesy, and assuring them of the hearty sympathy of The Canadian Grocer with their aims and objects.

Toasts not on Programme.

The gathering did not disperse until the popular chairman, vice-president and secretary had been honored in enthusiastic fashion. Retiring President Jas. Tees was also toasted, and the secretary was instructed to convey to him the regret of the association that ill health prevented him from attending. A vote of thanks to Messrs. Cameron, Chevne and Watson, the banquet committee, was passed, and it was also voted that the association contribute $5 per member to the relief of the San Francisco sufferers.

"Auld Lang Syne" brought to a close a most successful and thoroughly enjoyable function.

Manitoba Markets

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, April 26, 1906.)

FLUCTUATIONS—
Sugars—Reduced 10c.
Prunes—Advanced ½c. per lb.
California Dried Fruits—Advancing.
Lard—Advanced ½c. per lb.

As was expected, sugar has declined 10c. per cwt., owing to the decline of the New York market and the opening of lake navigation, with the consequent reduced lake and rail rates from the east. The great disaster in California is having a marked effect on the foreign dried fruit market. Owing to the unfavorable outlook for the new crop prices were already on the advance, but it is now believed that large stocks held in San Francisco have been destroyed, and local prices are advancing in consequence. Prunes were immediately advanced ½c. per lb., and other advances in other lines are considered probable.

CANNED GOODS—Tomatoes continue very scarce on the local market, and it is difficult to obtain any fresh supplies.

Quotations in last issue remain unchanged.

SUGAR—The expected decline in all grades of sugar has brought quotations down to a basis of $4.85 per cent., f.o.b. Winnipeg, for Montreal granulated.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—All California dried fruits are advancing sharply, and are a "good buy" at present prices. Quotations have been very firm for several weeks, and there have been a number of advances because of the unfavorable crop reports, which indicate a greatly reduced yield this year. It is now believed that large stocks held in San Francisco were totally destroyed in the terrible disaster last week, and that in many lines it will be practically impossible to secure new supplies until the new crop is on the market. Accordingly higher prices are inevitable. Prunes have already been advanced ½c. per lb., and further advances in other lines may be expected at any time.

TRADE CONDITIONS AT KENTVILLE.

Kentville, N.S., April 17, 1906.

Once more Easter has passed and the up-to-date grocer has found that trade can be made at this season equal to the Christmas festival. Good Friday dawned bright and clear after a week of rain, snow and chill. The grocery stores kept open until noon only. All other places of business did not open that day. Easter Saturday was a lovely day, and although the country roads were in very bad condition the town was thronged with people up to midnight and trade was extra good.

Each year sees more interest taken in this Spring festival, and the railways never carried more passengers at this time. So many visitors in town added to the demands on the grocers, and no doubt helped out the other lines.

Those stores that read The Grocer and profit by the advice given from week to week, did the largest trade. The ideas you set forth about the grocers making a display at Easter had their effect, and they found that seasonable novelties help out the staple lines. More attention was paid to window display, and we noticed that the firm of DeWolfe & Lamont devoted one of their large display windows to potted plants, and they had them all sold by noon. It is just such little things as this at the right time that tells and also adds to the profits. The grocer is too prone to let someone else benefit by such lines, and as a rule pays too little attention to novelties and to the confectionery end of the business.

I think your remarks are opening the eyes of many to the importance of the biscuit and confectionery department. The Kentville merchants report the best Easter trade they ever had and a good cash trade at that. Although the apples were of poor quality this season, they sold at high rates and brought a lot of money into the country. The potato crop realized good prices.

Prospects for the future are good and merchants seem to be in good shape. Wages in all lines are at high-water mark.

HINTS TO BUYERS

The firm of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., of Montreal, have a good stock of Valencia raisins. These raisins, it is understood, were bought at the lowest price, and there being a good demand just now buyers will do well to get prices and samples before placing their orders.

A car of Egyptian onions in sacks arrived to White & Co., Toronto, Wednesday last.

Three carloads of white wine vinegar, "Owl" brand, are on the way to Montreal for L. Chaput, Fils & Cie. The firm state that prices and strength are guaranteed the best. A trial order will convince you.

White & Co., Limited, have their first car strawberries for the season arriving this Friday morning, followed by cars almost daily for the balance of the season.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Montreal, April 26, 1906.

There is practically little change to report this week over the conditions prevailing in the cheese and butter trade last week. The cheese market, which had maintained a firm tone even in the face of the new fodder makes, has shown a tendency to sag. The increase in the make of fodder goods has increased very materially. Farmers are well supplied with excellent hay and until the new grass made is available the quality and quantity is likely to be good and plentiful. Old Canadian cheese is weaker, due to the increased supply of English cheese through the shipments of fodder stock that had gone abroad, and the increasing supplies of fodder goods in this market. Dealers anticipate lower prices in consequence on held stocks.

The trade look forward to an interesting season and in some quarters it is hinted that there will be "wigs on the green" when the newly formed Anglo-Canadian combination bucks up against the old-time home firms of exporters.

The past season on the whole has not been so satisfactory a one as to profits by dealers as to make anything but straight competition between dealers themselves a wise or desirable policy to pursue; of course, unwise actions will only leave profits for the banks and the farmers—the latter will be sure of a good price while the security of the former is always a safe one. It is to be hoped that shippers will fare better this year than last.

The feeling as to butter is of an azure hue, and from reports from the United Kingdom, English importers are also looking for lower prices during the next few months. The local trade, however, base their hopes of permanency or advance on the local demand continuing equal to the supply. This hope is unfortunately built upon slight framework as the supply is constantly increasing. When the receipts from the creameries exceed the local requirements, which can only be a short time away, the shipments will go forward freely, and a weakening follow. Reports from the the Eastern Townships are that the cows have wintered well and are in splendid condition, as also have the western cows, and butter should continue plentiful. In the meantime farmers' hay stocks are good and sufficient to guarantee good make and supplies until the grass make is available. The export basis this week is given as 18c. to 18½c. here. At country points fine quality was sold early part of present week at 19c. f.o.b. Buyers are none too keen to venture in to any extent at these values and are looking for lower prices. The weak position of the English market at present, and the good supplies of Siberian reported available there, leaves little hope at present of anything but lower prices.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The present condition of the provision industries increases in difficulties as the season advances. A fear was expressed in our last review that the last rush of hogs was in view of farmers concentrating their attention to seeding, and that a short supply was again in sight. This fear has been realized; from all points latest reports denote considerable shrinkage in arrivals at the factory. Competition has in consequence opened up sharp and keen amongst buyers, resulting in prices soaring away up.

On the top of this it has become clearly evident that the English market is disposed to "set the upper lip" against the continual advancing prices on account of short supplies, and the standing fear is that some other field of supply may secure the place which Canada now has on the British market.

We hear of one factory which has already partly closed down for want of hogs, and two other large factories are preparing for short time working, unless greater supplies of hogs arrive during the current week.

The situation in the States appears to be but a repetition of our own, with the difference that the shortage is not of so serious a nature to them; it would simply mean a curtailing of the home demand in favor of export or vice versa.

The National Provisioner has the following summary in its latest review, which is a fair idea of the situation in the United States:

"The average price of hogs for the week is a little more than one dollar per hundred pounds higher than at the corresponding time in the previous year, and the shippers still stand in in competition with the packers for the daily arrivals of the hogs at the packing points, on account of which it is seldom that more than small concessions are had in the prices of hogs.

"The hog receipts at the packing points have been, latterly, less than they were at the corresponding time last year, while the demands for the products are greater than then.

"On the whole, we look to see meat packing taken up close enough to prevent more than moderate holdings of supplies at the packing points this side of June at least, and perhaps July, but as to the later month the probability that way depending more upon the results from the coal labor troubles, with any possibility of its disturbing labor more particularly in the manufacturing interests.

"The general exports of hog products keep abreast of those made at this time last year, and the home consumption is larger than then. For that matter the consumption upon the continental and United Kingdom markets is larger of the American products than it was in the previous year at this time, but it is met in part from accumulated stocks abroad on the steady before larger buying through a number of weeks, than ever before.

"That the supplies are taken up as freely as they are at present by the European markets, either from consignments or upon direct demands, implies the urgency of the needs upon them."

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—The market is in very good condition. Business has been fairly active for the time of year. The opening of navigation has given business a spurt and once ocean vessels begin to arrive still better results are expected. Hams are in good demand at prices quoted and bacon is meeting with very good sale. Lard, while it might be doing better, is in rather good demand.

BUTTER—The market is easier this week, and lower, on account of the increased production. Still lower prices are expected as the make exceeds the home consumption. Prices will have to decline considerably to get down to an export basis, and as this is the only outlet for extra production, lower prices are bound to come sooner or later. The English market is in better condition this week than it has been for some time past.

CHEESE—The market is quiet and prices are lower. All the cheese arriving are being rushed over to England, as prices are declining week by week. The make is mostly from Ontario so far, but now Quebec is commencing to make a few. Prices will have to decline as English importers do not show much eagerness in buying fodders at current figures.

The English market has declined about ¼c. during the week on old cheese.

EGGS—Stocks are coming in from the country in good quantities. Pickling will soon begin, and as the demand on the part of grocers is not as large as it has been, the eggs are beginning to accumulate. Prices range from 15c. to 15½c., but are expected to decline still further shortly.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—Every week for some time now has seen an advance in one or more lines, and the movement continues. This week it is small hams, shoulder hams, heavy mess and lard. Of course but one reason is given, short hog supply and consequent limited operations of packing houses.

EGGS—The market has a little more than held its ground, contrary to expectations. Bad rural roads may have impeded the supply, but the commission men are anxious to commence pickling and storing, and that may have been a factor in sustaining prices. Lower levels are looked for next week, however.

BUSINESS NOTES.

J. A. E. Beaupre, general merchant, Gleichen, Alta., loss by fire.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce has opened branches at Canora, Sask., Vonda, Sask.

W. B. Strachan, Huntsville, Ont., is selling out his business and going to Cobalt, to start store there.

W. H. Harrison, Brockville, is putting a new plate glass front in his store, which will very greatly improve it.

G. Reeves, furniture dealer, of Orillia, Ont., has purchased the Preston & Reed bankrupt grocery stock at Midland.

E. G. Andrews, general merchant, Maple, Ont., has sold out and has gone to the Northwest. Edmonton is his objective point.

R. Smith, Seaforth, Ont., has purchased the business of his former employer, A. Young, recently deceased, and will continue it.

Geo. McNab, who sold out his grocery business in Barrie, Ont., a year ago, has gone back to his old stand with a fine stock.

James S. Martin, Cameron, Ont., has sold his general store business to Langford & Co., a new firm from Toronto. Mr. Martin is off for the Cobalt.

R. S. Thomson, Maple, Ont., has sold out to H. C. Bailey, of the same place. Both are general merchants. Mr. Thomson is drawn by Cobalt's silver lodestone.

D. R. Dewolf, of Harrington, has opened a grocery business in Westport. He is an old resident and well known there, but removed to Harrington four years ago.

The firm of A. A. Osborne & Co., Limited, Midland, Ont., has been dissolved, and the business has been taken over by Osborne & Ferrier, two members of the company.

"Just you say that Wm. Hay, of Kincardine, Ont., the noted tea man," said a traveler to the Canadian Grocer this week, "still defies competition in his own special line."

J. W. Irwin, Clinton, Ont., tells the travelers that trade is good. Mr. Irwin has two sons in the west, one a dentist, the other a grocer, and both send home rosy reports.

Red Rose tea demonstrators operated in Stanley Mills & Co.'s fine store, in Hamilton last week, and stirred up so much business that manager Campbell told them to keep at it another week.

Firman Cross, Lansdowne, Ont., general merchant, has sold out to H. S. Merrill who until three years ago was in the hardware business in Lansdowne, when he disposed of his interests to E. E. Johnston.

W. Howell, grocer, at Beach avenue and Queen street east, Toronto, has enlarged and refitted his store to meet the requirements of his rapidly increasing business. He has put in some silent salesmen and other modern fixtures.

B. B. Gunn, M.P., is now at Ottawa, ably representing the south riding of Huron in the Commons. Business goes on satisfactorily, for he has a fine staff of clerks who look after things very closely and they report business good.

W. J. Snell, grocer, East Toronto, will build him a branch store to accommodate his city trade at the Beach. It will be on Queen street, near Lee avenue. The undertaking is another evidence of the rapid growth of that section of Toronto.

Walsh Bros., Stratford, Ont., retail grocers and jobbers, have enlarged their grocery premises, put in a new front, and refitted in anticipation of an increasing Spring trade. Ed. Walsh, of the firm, told a traveler indications were good for big business.

Isaac Hord, of Isaac Hord & Co., general merchants, Mitchell, Ont., is contemplating a pleasure trip for the coming Summer, as usual, the travelers say, and is encouraged thereto by a good trade during the past few months and prospects of a better during the months to come.

P. Whitelock, grocer, 1926 Queen street east, Toronto, has removed to the new store he built at Kippandavie avenue and Queen street. Mr. Whitelock is a pioneer trader in the Beach section of the city and his new store does credit to himself and this popular residential section.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The general condition has shown little change; domestic demand continues steady for requirements. The Chicago wheat market has made some remarkable fluctuations during the week under review, but at the finish markets closed fairly strong.

In sympathy with the continued strength of wheat and the steady advance in prices during the week, a much better feeling has developed in the flour market and the undertone to the market is firmer. The export demand for both Spring and Winter wheat grades has improved considerably. The latter have been worked at an advance of threepence per sack for May shipment.

There has been a fair amount of business done on local and country account and now that navigation has opened, the prospects are encouraging for the future. Cables from London on Saturday reported the market for Canadian flour stronger, and noted an advance in prices of threepence per sack.

The past week has seen an improved demand for flour from the Maritime Provinces, some of the mills, finding orders coming in faster than they can secure Winter wheat to cover, have advanced their prices 10c. per bbl, making 85 per cent. Winter blends $4.40 St. John, N.B., freights.

There is also a better export demand and flour brokers report 22s. freely bid, but they find it impossible to buy Winter wheat flours to fill the orders, although they are willing to pay $3.10 per bbl., in their sacks, for 90 per cent. Winter wheat patents, and possibly a little more.

There is no No. 1 northern wheat left in store at elevator ports east of the lakes on the Grand Trunk Railway, and only a few cars of No. 2 northern unsold. On the Canadian Pacific Railway at Owen Sound there are about three or four thousand bushels of No. 1 northern, but no No. 2 northern unsold.

A good deal of Manitoba wheat was sold for export during the early part of the week, but at the close exporters claimed the price was about a cent a bushel out of line.

Millers are particularly gratified at the number of cable orders they are receiving. These are not confined to any one market but are coming from Great Britain, Europe, South Africa, the West Indies, and from Japan. The opening of navigation seems to be the factor which has started export business moving.

W. W. Hutchison, of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, is holidaying in New York at present.

NEW WHEAT COMPANY.

The Western Cereal Co. is a new concern which has just been organized at Winnipeg for the purpose of putting a new wheat product upon the market. The company is to be managed by Mr. S. Groff, who is already well known to the trade of the west as a wholesale merchant. It will have premises in the new Leadley block on Ross avenue.

The wheat product which the company is to sell will be known as meat of wheat. This is simply the gluten and phosphates separated from the rest of the grain and left in a granular form. It is as the cream to the milk, the richest and best part of it.

It will be put up in packages under attractive labels and sold through the regular channels of trade. Meat of wheat is not exactly a new idea, as similar goods have been coming into Canada from the United States for some time, and have now quite a large sale. It is, however, a new Canadian product, and being made from No. 1 hard wheat may safely be said to greatly excel in quality many of the other lines in this market. It can be produced, too, at such a relatively low cost, so it is stated, as to sell at fully one-third less than any rival line.

PRIZES FOR WHEAT.

As due recognition of wheat-growing as the leading industry of Western Canada, the Winnipeg Industrial Fair board will hang up prizes for that cereal this year aggregating $500.

The first prize will be $200, which is believed to be the largest award for exhibit of grain made at any fair on the continent. This will be for red fife only.

Prizes will range down to $35 for fifth place. Provision will also be made for Alberta red Winter wheat, but all white varieties are excluded from honor.

IN LIQUIDATION.

Dawson & Co., St. Lawrence street, Montreal, have made an assignment at the request of Walter Marshall & Son. Dawson & Co. had been carrying on a flour and feed business. The assets consist of the stock in trade and rolling stock. An effort is being made to have the matter arranged outside of court.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

FEED—The market presents very little that is new. Bran and shorts are as scarce as ever, and the demand for them shows no sign of becoming less active. Manitoba shorts are now quoted from $20 to $21, but otherwise there are no changes in the prices.

HAY—The hay market is at present much stronger than it has been for some time past. Prices have advanced considerably for No. 1 and No. 2. It is stated in authoritative quarters that this advance has been caused by a rumor to the effect that stocks are not large. American buyers have been in Canada for some little time now, and this is said to have something to do with it also.

In the U.K. stocks are only large enough to meet the demand. Quotations, according to latest cables, are unchanged.

WAS FORTY YEARS IN BUSINESS.

W. M. Wightman, for many years a general merchant in Prince Albert, Ontario County, Ont., died in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, on Saturday, the 21st. After 40 years in trade Mr. Wightman was widely known and his death at the age of 68 will be regretted by a great many business associates as well as a large circle of personal friends.

In the early days he had charge of a branch store established at Prince Albert by J. & W. Cowan, then in the dry goods business in Toronto, now respectively president of the Standard and Western banks. Mr. Wightman eventually succeeded to the business. Mr. Wightman gave up business in 1897, and since then lived retired. Although he had been ailing for some time, death came rather suddenly at . He was unmarried and leaves two brothers and two sisters.

HONORED OF IRISHMEN.

John Sloan, of John Sloan & Co., wholesale grocers, was last week honored with the presidency of the Toronto Irish Protestant Benevolent Society. The society includes nearly all the prominent Irish Protestants in the city, and to be elected president is regarded as no small distinction.

The society's annual meeting was held on Friday, and it was that prevented Mr. Sloan attending the annual meeting of the Dominion Guild in Montreal last week. The firm was represented by his son, Mr. Frank Sloan.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Trade has continued good at all leading points, in fact from all accounts to hand it would appear as though the slight abatement of trade which is usually manifest after Easter has been conspicuously absent this year. Reports from the fruit districts of Ontario all denote excellent prospects for the coming season. At Niagara this is particularly so, and reports state unanimously that there will probably be a bumper crop of fruit in that district this year. Everything has wintered exceedingly well, and there is every prospect for a large crop of peaches, cherries, plums and pears. There are not an over-abundant number of apple trees left in the Niagara district, owing to the ravages of the San Jose scale, but what trees are standing show excellent indications. The crop of apples this year will be much better than last, which was an off year for apples. Very few peach trees died this past Winter owing to the mild weather, and this was the case with other fruit trees.

Whilst generally speaking the demand for oranges is slowing down, still prices on this side are well maintained. At New York recently a slight drop was in evidence, but later sales recovered the loss and left the market firm and strong. Conditions in the orange market of Southern California are somewhat changed. As was expected, the heavy shipments being rushed to the eastern markets just after the late heavy rains have caused prices to fall, and they will continue to fall gradually until the market gets under better control. There is a noticeable decay in oranges being shipped since the heavy rains of March, which will run from 5 to 20 per cent. While the fruit has kept up very well, indeed, the necessity for heavy icing is evidenced forcibly where proper icing has been overlooked. It is estimated that there are at this time about 2,000 cars of navel oranges left and growers are advised to hold them just as long as possible before shipping them, then ice properly, if they wish their fruit to reach the eastern markets in good shape. Good fruit means better prices.

The lemon market looks very unsatisfactory at this writing, prices being weak and demand poor, but the growers are living in anticipation that there may be a repetition of last year's phenomenal record, and that good times will prevail as the season advances. The report that the Sicily lemon crop is short has added to the hopes of the California growers, and then, too, the news from foreign markets that the California lemons are growing in popularity over the foreign grown product causes their buoyant feeling to remain with them.

LARGE SHIPMENT EXPECTED.

The S.S. Bellona is expected to arrive in Montreal any day now. She is reported as being laden with 40,000 cases from Messina, chiefly lemons, and 10,000 cases from Sorrento, all oranges. Lemons are expected to bring a good price, and dealers anticipate high prices for oranges.

GOOD PROSPECTS AT NIAGARA.

Judging from what the fruit growers around St. Catharines say, there will probably be a bumper fruit crop in Niagara district this year. Everything has wintered exceedingly well, the growers declare, and there is every prospect for a large crop of peaches, cherries, plums and pears. There are not a very great number of apple trees left in the Niagara district owing to the ravages of the San Jose scale, but what trees remain show excellent indications. Crab-apples this year will be very much better than last, which was an off year for apples. Very few peach trees died this past Winter, owing to the mild weather, and this was the case with other fruit trees. The strawberry plants wintered well. Other crops in the district also look well.

SALMON FACTORY REMOVES.

The Dawson-Buttimer Co. at Fraser River, B.C., are removing the whole of their plant and equipment to the Rivers Inlet district. The Fraser River cannery has therefore been dismantled and the whole machinery, retorts, can fillers, can-making machinery, everything that goes to equip a cannery, was recently shipped on board the Otter. Besides this large outfit, the steamer also took a crew of men to set up the machinery in the Rivers Inlet building, which is now in course of construction, and also the Chinamen to work in the cannery for the season.

VEGETABLE GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

Branches of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association have been recently formed at Ottawa, Kingston and Napanee. The organization, which was only instituted last year, now has nine branches and over 400 members.

A GOVERNMENT REPORT.

The Fruit Division, Ottawa, reports the following prosecutions under the Fruit Marks Act:

Geo. Vipond, of Montreal, P.Q., was convicted, April 10, of violating section 6 of the Fruit Marks Act, and was fined 25c. per package.

Geo. A. Aulseybrook, of Burford, Ontario, was convicted, April 14, of marking inferior fruit "No. 1," and for this offence was fined $1 per barrel. These apples were examined by J. J. Philp, Dominion fruit inspector, in Sault Ste. Marie. The Fruit Division has a large number of complaints of violations of the Fruit Marks Act in that town. It is insinuated that the absence of a fruit inspector in that district accounts for the fact that a poorer sample of apples has been sent there apparently than to places likely to be visited by an inspector.—A. McNeill, chief, Fruit Division.

LARGE PRICES FOR CHERRIES.

Probably the highest price ever paid for California cherries was realized recently at a commission merchant's establishment, when a box of fruit was sold at auction for $2,440. The money was added to the relief fund for the earthquake sufferers. The cherries were the first received this season from California, and a box of them was sold at auction, each cherry being offered for sale singly. About five hundred commission merchants and others attended the sale. The first cherry sold for $105, and the others sold for amounts ranging from $100 down to 50 cents.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—There is a fair demand for green fruits. Cranberries are off the market, as the season for them is over. Pineapples are selling now from $4.25 to $5, which is a decline. Still lower prices are expected as stocks increase. Navels are steady at figures quoted. New strawberries are still very high, selling from 35c. to 45c.

VEGETABLES—On the whole, the vegetable market is on the quiet side. It has not yet recovered the after effect of Easter. Business shows signs of improvement in the near future, however. Navigation having opened, will give trade in all lines a lift towards better things. There have been considerable changes in the prices since last week, all reductions. New vegetables are constantly appearing in the market and gradually prices are becoming reasonable. They are still, however, much too high to suit the bulk of the trade. It will be noticed that we are quoting this week new turnips and cucumbers by the basket.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—The fruit trade is very brisk, and all lines are moving freely. Oranges are losing their supremacy, and in about a week the great army of housewives will be marching to the capture of their supplies for the annual replenishing of fruit cellars. Already the luscious fruit is arriving in carload lots. The price is down half a dollar, and it is expected that next week will see them $3.75 to $4.25. Strawberries are cheaper, and the North Carolinas are in. The banana trade is getting into Summer form but prices are unchanged from last week.

VEGETABLES — Southern stuff is coming on more freely now, but the demand is increasing, too, and supplies are kept well cleaned up. Prices vary almost from day to day, but the tendency naturally is downward. The new things in since last week are wax and green beans and green peas. PUZZLE

FIND BETTER CHOCOLATE than

TOBLER'S

Grocers, as well as their customers, have tried this, but always with the same result—Failure.

It would be easy to find "better" chocolate if it was made. But the making—"there's the rub."

TOBLER & CO. have a scientific process exclusively their own. The machinery used is nickel-plated, thus preserving purity of materials, and the milk is obtained from their own cattle—rich Swiss milk, not milk from "other" cows for convenience sake called "Swiss."

Much of the chocolate on the market is half sugar and chemicals. With this class of chocolate, instead of it being "Once used, always used," it is "once used, always shunned."

CANDIED FRAGRANT FLOWERS.

One of the latest developments of luxury is said to be the candying of fragrant flowers. The notion is not altogether new, for violets have been made into confections for the palate, as well as into bouquets for the olfactory organs, from time to time for a long period.

At any rate, it seems that the fashion has got a new impetus of late, and a candied violet is coming to be regarded as an acceptable "bonne bouche" to be presented to a lady.

There is also, we are told, a demand for sugared rose petals, which is being catered for by some enterprising artists in sugar. It can hardly be pretended that nowers made into "sweets" are of any medicinal efficacy, though damask rose leaves have long held a recognized place in the materia medica.

Whether the violet has any therapeutic qualities does not appear, though the leaves (not the flower) have just now some reputation—outside the medical faculty—as a cure for cancer.

The best that can be hoped for, if flowers are to be eaten as well as to be seen and smelled, is that they may in all cases prove to be innocuous. It is a nice question whether the perfume is always a safe guide.

Perhaps the modern craze is, after all, only a form of luxury. A candied violet or a dish of rose leaves cunningly prepared for the tea table could not possibly enter into the category of cheap sweet for the million.—London Globe.

PURE MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Canada supplies over three-sevenths of the world's output of maple syrup and sugar. There are enough maple trees to increase the quantity now made five or six times. According to the census of 1901 the average annual output approximates 17,804,825 pounds, the money value of which is placed at $1,780,482.

There has been an increased demand during the last few years for the pure maple syrup and sugar, and there is at the present time every assurance that an enhanced price would be paid for the genuine article.

During the past year the Minister of Inland Revenue has been taking active steps in the enforcement of Foods Adulteration Act. Instructions were given on February 1, 1905, to have sample syrups and sugars obtained and analyzed. It was decided that two collections of these should be made ; one previous to the maple sugar season, in the Spring of the year, and another after the product of the season had been placed on the market.

In the first collection only 24.3 per cent. of the samples were found to be genuine, whereas in the second collection there were a great improvement, 63.4 per cent. being found to be genuine.

What the trade in sugar and syrup demands is an article that can be placed on the market, giving the name and address of the producer who made and put up these goods, and also on this same label conspicuously lettered in large type, the words, "Pure maple syrup," or "Pure maple sugar."

BISCUIT FACTORY FOR CALGARY.

Biscuit factories seem to be the crying need of the Calgary district. There are applications and inquiries pouring in from every quarter concerning the city and the prospects for the establishment of such an enterprise.

The board of trade recently received application from a Minneapolis firm asking the city to make no arrangements with any other form of industry until such time as their representatives should reach the city.

They claim to be backed by any amount of capital, and to have all that is necessary to start an enterprise of that kind. Representatives of the company are expected to be in Calgary in a few days.

THE BEET ROOT.

Berlin's beet contracts are 778 acres more than last year on this date, the contracts to date numbering 1,927, involving an acreage of 4,250. Waterloo county alone has given 717 contracts of 1,769¾ acres, while some seventeen other counties contribute to make the above total acreage. On the 602 renewed Waterloo county contracts there is an increase in the acreage over that of the same contracts last year amounting to 71¾ acres. The 642 renewed contracts of the outside counties give an increased acreage of 198¾ over the same contracts last year. 683 new men begin beet growing this year. There are, therefore, increases all along the line in sugar beet cultivation which confirm the conclusion that farmers are making a success of beet cultivation. Between 200 and 300 acres are being added weekly to the acreage list, which is now nearly as large as the factory can accept.

GETTING THERE WITH THE HAMMER.

The traveling representative who follows also the innocent avocation of "clout plugging," a polite term for nailing up small advertising signs, will be interested in the following "warning" sent by J. F. Davis, of Tweed, some time ago to Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, St. John, N.B., proprietor of Red Rose tea. There may be some grocers throughout the Dominion who have a fellow feeling for Mr. Davis's protest. Here is what he said :

"Dear Sir,—I don't mind waiting for tea now under order, but I do mind and object to your man nailing placards on the front and most conspicuous part of my building ; placards that soon fade, look scabby very soon, and which people never notice, being too common now. I object to building a nice house and have some one or more making a bill-board of it. I wish you could see the front of our store, and could count the big holes, 7 or 8, left after removing just one of your cards, and there were several strung along under both windows, leaving moldy and discolored spots which paint only can efface. Your man, and the Cow Brand soda man, especially, are due to have my most assiduous regards hereafter, and you and those clout pluggers, if they would avoid trouble, will please regard warning from

"Yours truly,
"J. F. DAVIS."

There's a short sequel to the story. The next time the Red Rose tea man called Mr. Davis extended him a warm though far from cordial reception, but before he left peace prevailed and he had pocketed another order for the flowery beverage.

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

CIGAR CUTTERS—STYLES AND PRICES.

While some men might be content with a cigar cutter that cost a dime, there are other men that like something a little finer, and for such smokers there are provided good cigar cutters, which are made in great variety.

In gold cigar cutters of one familiar type, made in the form of an elongated bell, and with a little ring at the top by which the cutter can be carried on the watch chain, there are fifty or more styles, alike in their general proportions, and yet varying more or less in shape, finish and ornamentation. Some of these cutters are plain and with a polished surface, while others have a dull finish.

Among them are some beautifully etched, while still others are set with diamonds and with other jewels. A simple cigar cutter of this type could be bought for $16, from which price they range upward in cost to as much as $125.

But there are cheaper gold cigar cutters. One of the disk type, of about the size of a twenty-five cent silver coin, but much thinner, made to be carried in the waistcoat pocket—$9.50 for this.

Another thin pocket cutter is oblong in outline, with a finger hole in either end. With the fingers through these holes the cutter can be closed together to cut off the tip of a cigar placed through a little opening at the centre. This style of cutter costs the same as the simplest of the bell type, $16.

Still another style of good cigar cutter is one designed for use on a smoking table, this cutter having a gracefully modelled handle, large enough to be conveniently grasped, something in a general way like the handle on a child's skipping rope in shape, only not so big. This style of gold cigar cutter costs $48.

While cigar cutters of some sort are more generally used, there are smokers who do not fancy cutting off the tip of a cigar, but who prefer to pierce it, and for such there are provided gold cigar piercers.

The cigar piercer is in appearance very similar to a short gold pencil, but pressure on its upper end causes to project from the other not a pencil tip, but a suitably shaped piercer with which the tip of the cigar may be pierced. Like the bell cutter, the cigar piercer is equipped with a ring by which it can be carried on the watch guard. Gold cigar piercers, according to style of finish, sell at $24 to $28.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CROP SERIOUS.

"Should the next domestic tobacco crop fail, then most assuredly the cigar manufacturing industry would find itself in a very desperate position," is how a man well versed in the affairs of the leaf market expressed himself yesterday. Continuing he said: "There is as yet, however, no call for worry: the supplies of both domestic and foreign tobaccos now in hand are sufficient to last the year, and in addition Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin and New York hope this year for the biggest crops on record. Prices are high and will certainly remain so for another year at least.

Very High Prices.

"Better grades of domestic tobacco are at least 40 per cent. above the values ruling in normal times, while lower grades run all the way from 100 to 200 per cent. above quotations of average years. This condition is due to the partial failure of the last crop, caused by excessive rains all through the northern tobacco belt, and to 'pole sweat' injuries, the latter reducing the supply in some sections by fully 30 per cent.

Due to Increased Demand.

"The reports that have been circulated regarding a corner in tobacco are all moonshine; there is nothing whatever in it. The present situation is due to natural causes alone—chief among which is the ever-increasing production of cigars and tobacco. The growth in the latter branch of the industry has been a veritable godsend alike to the farmer, the leaf dealer and the cigar manufacturer; it has caused a demand for the refuse, scraps and waste products of raw tobacco. Such stuff in past years was either thrown away as waste or was sold for a cent or so per pound; to-day it brings as high as 23c. This stuff, it is said, goes mainly into the manufacture of cheap smoking and chewing tobaccos."—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Sense and Cents

Common sense or dollars and cents—which counts for most in making a trade?

Common sense says plainly "buy standard goods"; dollars and cents (your pocketbook) tempts you to buy cheap, nameless articles of trade that will grow dim, dusty, dirty on your shelves. Common sense counts for most in making a trade.

A satisfied customer is the grocer's best advertisement.

It is of the first importance, therefore, that the grocer sees to it that his every customer is pleased and satisfied.

Probably in no article does a customer exercise so particular a discrimination as in purchasing the refreshing cup-o'-tea. It must just suit the critical palate.

If the grocer is to capture and hold his customers, he can only do it on quality and uniformity—which means in tea,

"It Will If You Use Red Rose."

The following is an extract received a few days ago from one of the best known firms in Nova Scotia. They have handled Red Rose Tea nearly ever since it was first put on the market, and I appreciate their friendly interest in writing me quite as much as I do the remarks which were made by their customers. Nothing but genuine merit will bring forth such remarks from the consumer or inspire such a friendly interest in the merchant.

Port Maitland, N.S., April 20, '06.

T. H. ESTABROOKS, ESQ.,
St. John, N.B.

DEAR SIR :—

A conversation which took place between two of our customers this morning will, we believe, be pleasing to you and perhaps of some value as an advertisement.

The writer had just sold one of them a pound of 40c. Red Rose. After taking the tea he said, "Well, 40c. should buy a good pound of tea," to which the other one answered, "It will, if you buy Red Rose." Then the first replied that he had been using it a number of years and it had always given him satisfaction. He had tried other brands several times but was always glad to get back to Red Rose.

Yours respectfully,

The Salt that Saves Money and Time for You

"Time is money"—save time then, and you save money too. Waste no time and you waste no money. Is it really worth while to spend useless energy in an endeavor to push inferior articles of trade? We think not.

Windsor Salt is the standard because so often used for comparison—you hear "as pure as Windsor Salt" used everywhere to-day. You don't have to argue with a customer over its merits—its quality is too well known. It's pure white, dry, crystalline. It is nothing but salt.

You lose more than we do by not stocking up with it—lose time, lose money, lose trade.

"A Piquancy and Flavor Sweet, Perry's Sauce Gives to all Meat."

Yes, and a piquancy and flavor as much its own as "Perry" custom will be yours after you get in a stock of the Sauce.

Perry's Worcestershire Sauce is nicely put up. It looks well. It has an English reputation back of it—the highest sauce reputation obtainable.

Are you going to get in line to-day or when your grocer-neighbor has gathered in the custom?

Goods with merit have a claim upon the progressive grocer's attention, but when that merit is exploited by the manufacturer with such liberal methods of advertising as we pursue with our well known and deservingly popular RISING SUN Stove Polish in cakes and SUN PASTE Stove Polish in tins the real live dealer must recognize the help we give him in selling the right Stove Polish. Largely increased sales support our policy of merit backed by extensive advertising.

Merchants of Canada!

This Concerns You!

In many cases you are transacting business in premises whose interiors prejudice certain people against you.

You look at your ceiling and exclaim: "It's getting pretty black; I guess I'll give it another coat of whitewash!" The whitewash is applied and in a year's time there is the same "looking up," the same exclamation and—some more whitewashing.

When twelve more months have elapsed you decide to paper the ceiling. In seven or eight months you notice the paper is beginning to discolor, particularly in those parts directly over the lighting apparatus. The old question again crops up, but in a new form—"What shall I try?"

Now, it is because you have never come our way for relief that we come your way with the relief. At half the expense it cost to originally put the plaster ceiling up, repair it, whitewash it, paper it, we will supply you with used and endorsed by merchants in all parts of the country. This ceiling goes in sections and can be nailed to stripping placed over the plaster, or, if the building is in course of erection, can be nailed to stripping over the joists. By giving it a coat of paint when erected it will simply look "rich" and attract customers to your store.

When Classical Metal Ceiling is up it never comes down—till the building comes down. It needs no repairing and in the event of fire will prevent its spreading; the ceiling will not be ruined, neither will the water come through and destroy your goods—many a fine stock has been saved from fire and water by our ceilings.

Should you also put in Metal Walls and Galvanized Steel Fronts your insurance will shrink about one-third.

If you would like to say farewell to the whitewash bills, the black ceiling scenery, the rainy day wet spots and have something in their place that will, for all time, settle the ceiling question we can make you a proposition that will appeal with particular force.

Send us your name and address, the size of your store, what you are prepared to spend, and we shall send you designs of Ceiling suitable for your special case with prices and full particulars.

Don't Delay. Write To-day.

A Two Cent Mistake

Don't amount to much in any business, but the striking point is that a clerk is just as liable to make a mistake of $2.00 as he is of two cents, and a few mistakes like this would pay for enough of Allison's Coupon Books to last a year or more. With these books mistakes are impossible.

PROSPECTS OF TRADE WITH JAPAN

By Alex. MacLean, Canadian Commercial Agent

In proportion to its population Japan does not offer much of a bacon market. That product is on sale, however, and conspicuously displayed on the counters and in the windows of leading Japanese as well as foreign provision dealers. The brands thus offered are from Kansas City, Chicago and England. There may be some Danish. Reference here is to bacon and hams cured and in canvas. There is some in tins, as there is of almost every tinned product, but in that form it is scarcely of importance. Imported bacon is retailed here at 65 yen (32 1-2 cents); and ham at 60 yen (30 cents) per pound. The Canadian Grocer on the subject of bacon production, says that the Canadian bacon hog under general conditions costs five dollars per hundred pounds on an average. The question then is suggested: Is the margin sufficient to put the Canadian article here in competition?

Imports Fall Off.

In 1903 and 1904 the importation of ham and bacon was as follows:

1903...150,756 lbs., value $26,912
1904...112,829 lbs., value $18,887

To this invoice value add a cent per pound for duty, and the cost to the importer will appear to be about 18 cents, to which must be added the cost of transportation. The cause of the falling off in 1904 compared with 1903 is said to be Japanese production, which has made its appearance within the last two or three years. In the matter of these products of pork the Japanese are imitating, as they cleverly do in so many lines of production and manufacture. They appreciate the advancing taste for pork in its various forms, and would not be attracted by the industry unless increasing consumption promised them a fair prospect of returns.

During the nine years beginning with 1896, the highest importation was 186,868 pounds, at the invoiced value of $29,700; and the average value for the nine years, with the duty added, without transportation, would be about 17 1-2 cents.

The Bacon Industry.

The centre of the pork curing industry in Japan is at Kamakura, near Yokohama. There are five so-called factories, two of which are extensive. These five concerns supply the greater part of the home demand. Well known provision dealers say that the native product in ham and bacon is of a very fair quality, and that more than ten pounds of native to one of foreign are sold. The demand is a growing one amongst the Japanese; and foreign residents buy the native article because of its cheapness, and being fairly good. It goes too amongst ship supplies for merchant and navy vessels. It is almost incredible that this bacon and ham should be sold for half the price of the imported article; but that is the case according to prices asked.

By the time Alberta and British Columbia are in a position to export bacon there will doubtless be some inducement to exploit the Japanese market.

Canned Salmon.

Canned salmon was imported and in demand during the war with Russia, but since the declaration of peace there is practically none imported, for the reason of unsuitable price for this market, and strong competition by the domestic canneries, although the quality of the imported canned goods is higher. Canned fish of any kind is not very commonly used in Japan, unless by the people of the interior who find it more convenient than transporting the fresh fish.

Since the close of the war, the price of canned fish has fallen as low as 8.50 yen per case of 48 one-pound tins for the red cohoe (which is considered here to be better quality than sockeye); and yet the domestic production outbids it. The prominent dealers here say that no more canned salmon will be imported at any price for the present, because of over-importation for army and navy supply consequent upon the sudden closing of the war.

Salted Salmon.

The demand for salted salmon is almost unceasing in this country, and the trade is extending into Korea and Manchuria. The business last year in salted salmon alone of one firm reached the bulk of 8,000 tons, which, however, was to some extent on war supply account. Twenty-five per cent. of this was bought of the commission merchants in Yokohama. This would be from Canada and the States mostly. Thirty per cent. came from Hokkaido or Northern Japan, and the remainder was the production of Alaska and the Russian Coast.

The firms in this line of business are unanimous in assenting that dog-salmon (not dog-fish) as an article of food for the people of Japan has "come to stay." Being acceptable from the standpoint of taste or palatableness, it has the merit of comparative cheapness; it is therefore assured to continue to have the most important place in the imports of fish. The cohoe comes next, then the silver, and next the pink—that is, of the salmon family.

Japanese Industries.

An estimate of manufacturing industries in this country may be made from the change that has taken place in the classes of goods for export during the last ten years. During 1904 the value of manufactured goods exported, amounted to $35,700,000; that of commodities manufactured in part to $72,350,000; and that of raw products to $19,750,000. Compared with the conditions ten years ago, the value of raw products shows an increase of 92 per cent., while the increase in the value of manufactured goods is 216 per cent. and of articles partially manufactured 172 per cent.

The total number of factories in operation last year was 8,274, of which 3,741 were using motor power. Compared with the preceding year, the number of factories using motor power showed an increase of 38 per cent. Factories using steam power numbered 2,205; those using water power, 1,004; those using both, 107; electric power, 86; those using gas, 123; those using oil engines, 165.

The total number of operatives employed in the factories throughout the country was 483,839 at the end of 1904. Of this number, 182,404 were males and 302,435 females. Of the male operatives, 173,820 were above 14 years of age, and 8,584 under 14 years; and of the female operatives, 269,051 were above 14 years. The majority of the females are employed in spinning and weaving, which are among the principal Japanese industries.

VLADIVOSTOK MARKED FOR CANNED GOODS.

The American commercial agent at Vladivostok, Roger S. Greene, writes that there is a very fair market there for canned fruits and vegetables and for dried fruits, as well as for canned meats, crackers, etc. The amount of coffee used is not large. A great deal of tea is consumed, but it is bought direct from China.

At present there is no duty on goods of any kind entering that port, except a charge per gross weight, amounting to one-half cent per 36 pounds, on canned goods, etc. There are excise taxes, but they are levied only on spirits, malt liquors, honey, yeast, tobacco, matches, sugar and kerosene. It is possible, perhaps probable, that a customs tariff will be imposed at Vladivostok before long, but it is impossible to say now when the question will be settled. The final decision will be made by the new Parliament of the Empire. The principal difficulty is to get into relations with a house at Vladivostok, as most of the prominent merchants have their connections already established.

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

THE IMPORTANCE OF WINDOW DRESSING.

Like almost all other things, window dressing is not as difficult as it looks. Frequently one takes it up for some special day and continues it because of the excellent results it brings. Trade is fickle to a certain extent, and all sorts of plans must be devised to secure the attention of buyers, but an enterprising dealer will bring buyers in plenty by adopting devices which will appeal to purchasers everywhere the same.

Catching an Idea.

Perhaps there is going to be some special celebration in your town this Summer, or in your vicinity. If there is, never fail to make use of such an opportunity. It will add to your prestige and will assist materially in advertising your business. Make your window decorations suitable for these special occasions and you will establish a reputation for enterprise which cannot be beaten.

Making a Beginning.

Get busy and there will be many things which will be used with a good deal of profit by every dealer who begins the work in earnest. It is not so difficult as it looks, and the dealer who undertakes to do as well as he can will end with doing much better than he expected and his business will improve accordingly.

What the customers want is a good, clean store, fair prices, good service and good quality. That is the kind of competition which is really hard to meet.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO SPEND MONEY FOR FIXTURES.

There are a lot of prosperous grocers who owe their success to the fact that they never allow themselves to get into a rut. There are a lot of others who are satisfied to do business with the same facilities that they enjoyed since they went into business, and while they may continue to make money, they do not, as a rule, forge to the front and reap the big returns that frequently come to the one who is willing to risk some of what he has in order to broaden out and handle more trade than he is now doing.

If you are not doing as much business as you think you ought to, or as you know you would like to do, think it over and see if you cannot get this increased trade by expending a little money on your store and especially on your store fixtures.

AN EXTREME NOVELTY.

Dealers in search of some unusually striking means of attracting attention to a special window display might try the device here described, which was recently utilized with success by a dealer in a large American city.

A four-foot, 2x8, plank has been taken and a triangular piece sawed from one end, so that when the square end was propped inside the window and the plank inclined against the plate glass at an upward slope of 45 degrees, the sawed end rested plumb against the inside surface. The triangular piece that was sawed off was then glued upon the outside of the glass in such a manner that it appeared as if the end of the plank had been shoved clear through the window.

The apparent break was then made more real by gluing numerous slender pointed strips of really broken glass, in the shape of an irregular, many-pointed star, on the inner surface of the pane, the centre of this star being, of course, the apparent hole.

The result was realistic in the extreme. When a person caught sight of the window they began to wonder how the plank happened to have dropped against the glass. Then they switched to wondering if the plank had been left as it fell to save the shattered window from completely capsizing.

Many persons crossed the street for a nearer inspection. Even after they reached the window it was half a minute before the truth dawned upon them. Then, when they saw that the whole thing was a scheme to draw their attention they couldn't refrain from taking a look at the goods in the window. It certainly was a good idea for attracting attention.—Ex.

A STORE WITH AND WITHOUT FIXTURES.

Comparison is an excellent way to determine the merit of an article. Are store fixtures a paying investment? To determine this, conceive, if you can, a store without fixtures.

As the store is approached it is observed that there are windows, but these windows are apparently for light only, as nothing is displayed in them, and therefore no interest is excited for the store in the mind of the customer while he is upon the walk in front of the store. Entrance into the store becomes necessary before there is any interest in the stock. And unless the customer enters the store the stock inside does not arouse any interest.

The store with show windows, well trimmed, has an immediate and distinct advantage over the store without them. A store to-day without show windows is similar to a roadman without samples. A store without fixtures is difficult to conceive of.

Nearly every merchant makes some attempt to supply something in store fixtures. But think of one, if you can, absolutely without them. The windows are uninviting. Entering the store, shelving and counters are the only method of showing the stock. No showcases are in sight, either counter or floor. No stock is shown upon the ledge because there are no fixtures upon which to display them. Piece goods are in the shelves, notions in the boxes, everything out of sight. Such a store has a restful appearance, but it is the rest of the dead—dead stock. Everything must be asked for. The customer desires a paper of pins. She must ask for a clerk before the stock can be shown. So in regard to every notion article and indeed in regard to every article in the store. You do not observe the customer walking through the store looking into showcases and examining merchandise shown in display with show cards attached. Think of a 10-cent store in which nothing was displayed! It is impossible to do so.

Contrast the store without fixtures with the store with fixtures. The latter has its windows attractive with displays of interesting merchandise. The fixtures lend attractiveness to the merchandise. A nickel display arm showing an inch or two beyond a piece of goods increases the value of the goods. Within the store with fixtures has a lively appearance. In contrast to the store without fixtures are floor showcases, immediately in front of the customer as she enters. These are filled with fancy goods and notions, merchandise is displayed upon the counters, fixtures being liberally used. Also upon the ledges, on tables, and everywhere some article or piece of goods is displayed or draped in an attractive manner. The public enjoys trading in a store that is lively. Goods displayed contribute to this effect. For displays fixtures are necessary.

WHO SHOULD BE BOSS?

Once upon a time a youth who had commenced to navigate the sea of matrimony, went to his father and said, "Father, who should be boss, I or my wife?"

Then the old man smiled and said, "Here are 100 chickens and a team of horses. Hitch up the horses, load the chickens into the wagon, and wherever you can find a man and his wife dwelling stop and make inquiry as to who is the boss. Wherever you find a woman running things leave a chicken. If you come to a place where the man is in control, give him one of the horses."

After seventy-nine chickens had been disposed of he came to a house and made the usual inquiry.

"I'm boss of this ranch," said the man.

"Got to show me."

So the wife was called and she affirmed her husband's assertion.

"Take whichever horse you want," was the boy's reply.

So the husband said: "I'll take the bay." But the wife didn't like the bay horse, and she called her husband aside and talked to him. He returned and said, "I believe I'll take the gray horse."

"Not much," said Missouri. "You'll take a chicken."—San Francisco Chronicle.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

A POTATO AD.

It is seldom one gets the privilege of reading an advertisement on potatoes. But, as is the case with soap, cigars and tobacco, and confectionery, there is need for a stimulus in the average grocery store along this particular line.

The Maple Leaf Grocery is situated in Fort William and their ads in the Times-Journal, as a rule, make good reading.

This ad on potatoes calls up a fact well worth noting here—the western grocer excels in specialty advertising.

Going over Winnipeg, Vancouver and Calgary papers, a grocer's ad is seen here and there on the subject of flour, tea, butter, etc.

In Ontario papers the single-theme small ad is on the increase, but in the Maritime Provinces there is almost a complete dearth.

* * *

Size up the lines in your store that really need advertising and be sure to advertise them—by themselves.

"OFF SIDE."

It is a peculiarity of merchandizing that one side of a street is often more lucky than the other in getting its share of profitable pedestrianism.

A grocer in one of our middle-sized cities was convinced that his trade was suffering from an attack of the "off side." He spoke to grocers farther up the street and most of them admitted that the other side had the people.

Grocer No. 1 advised concerted action and as a result of discussion they evolved this scheme :

* * *

All the grocers on the north side at a given time placed in their windows a large bulletin with the words, "This is the bargain side." Then on a certain day they all cut a cent or two.

* * *

This scheme proving very successful, they hired a man to parade the north side of the street and give away coupons entitling recipients to a rebate.

As long as the "north" grocers had an attraction they more than held their own. In time they equalized things. Which side of the street are you on ?

THE POSTAL CARD.

Few grocers use the postal card as a business getter. Yet it affords an inexpensive and effective mode of keeping in touch with the people.

Being first-class mail it is sorted with the letters and therefore goes on its journey without much delay.

While the postal is small, there is sufficient room on it to give seasonable notes and hints.

About the price ; a thousand circulars in envelopes cannot be turned out much under $15. One thousand post cards would cost about $12.

* * *

In towns where there are no newspapers the post card especially recommends itself.

CATCH LINES.

Have good catch lines on your ads. They play an important part in securing the reader's attention.

Catch lines should be thought out, though sometimes excellent ones are obtained through a flash of the mind.

Humorous catch lines, as a rule, have proven to be a failure. The same can be said about enigmatical lines.

* * *

A catch line to be a success should be strong and suggestive, complete in itself and yet be merely the forerunner to a talk. It should seldom be long and never bourgeois.

WHAT ONE GROCER DID.

One of the cleverest ways of meeting retail catalogue competition and holding home trade is to advertise three or four articles, delivered from your store or at your store, and side by side, using the "deadly parallel" with telling effect, the same articles priced from the retail catalogue, says the Commercial Bulletin.

It is not a hard proposition to do. The retail cataloguer does not carry everything advertised. Large as their stores are, they would be glutted to the roof with goods.

When orders for a certain line are received the city buyer starts out to buy the goods. The quality is nothing compared with the average purchase of your jobbing house and the price that is made is also higher than your jobber pays.

Now to this price must be added freight, some profit, for the retail cataloguer always makes a profit, and boxing charges. You have the goods in your store and you can beat the price and in all probability knock the spots off on quality.

Of course you are in business for the profit that you make, else you would better join the police force. But when the time comes that you can drive a nail square into the head of the retail catalogue merchant, you are missing your calling if you fail to take advantage of the opportunity. And you can do this not once, but every few days, until the people of your town and the farmers round about will be talking about it.

Take down the catalogues, wrap them up and take them home with you tonight. After supper put on your slippers and sit down for a thorough examination of the catalogues. You will be surprised to find that there are so many vulnerable points, so many places where you can get in a swipe at the catalogue man, to your advantage and the credit of the town.

Buy advertising space and tell about your discovery—side by side. Make prices to beat the catalogue — if you cannot, put it up to your jobber to help you out.

CANNED GOODS FOR MEXICO.

Consul Worman, of Three Rivers, advises that the Canadian agent in Mexico reports a fair opening there for canned goods, and comments on the canned corn lately sent to Mexico from Canada. This leads Mr. Worman to make the following suggestions:

"As the United States is a notable producer of sweet corn, and among the wealthiest Canadians, American canned goods are preferred, it would seem as if the Mexican market should be carefully watched by American canners. Many mining and construction camps depend almost altogether on imported canned goods, and with the vast growth of such enterprises in Mexico this next door neighbor's wants should be supplied ere the Canadians take the market from us with their growing canning industry and a new Canadian steamship line direct to Mexico."

LOSS OF WINE IN CALIFORNIA.

In a letter from California to White & Co., Toronto, it is stated that little damage was done to the fruit crop, but the earthquake and fire caused the loss of large quantities of wine, which will be replenished from the present season's crop of grapes, also prunes, from which wine is largely made. Apricots are extremely short again. Peaches, plums and prunes are doing well, also pears and grapes promise a bountiful crop of superior quality.

BUILDING IN CANADA.

Building operations in Canada last year are treated of in the April number of the Labor Gazette, and the statistics collectable for twenty-nine cities and towns are submitted, showing on the whole considerably more building activity in 1905 than in 1904.

One very noticeable feature is the lack of uniformity in the municipal reports. If the municipalities throughout Canada would take concerted action to provide for uniformity in the preparation of reports their statistics would be of some value. As things are now figures submitted by municipalities are of very little use for the purposes of comparison. In many towns in Canada building permits are not issued, in others no record of values is kept. Then where the records are kept, in one place a single permit may represent 40 houses, and in another a permit may be required for every dwelling.

The following figures show as far as possible the extent of building operations in 1904 and 1905:

NEW SALMON PACK PRICES.

The Columbia River Packers' Association and other packers on the river have announced their opening prices on the 1906 pack of Columbia River chinook salmon, at an advance of 5c. on talls and flats and 10c. on half-pounds over last year's initial figures. The quotations f.o.b. coast are, on fancy, talls $1.50, flats $1.60; half-pounds $1 and $2.20 on ovals, with 5 cents a dozen added for key-opening cans. On standard $1.15 is quoted for talls, $1.25 for flats and 85c. for half-pounds. In view of the probability of a small pack on the Columbia River, and considering the strong situation in salmon generally the trade seemed to look upon the new prices as being moderate, and many were agreeably surprised.

PROGRESSIVE RETAILING

WHERE TO GET THE PROFITS.

One of the secrets of success in the storekeeping business is in knowing where to put the profits.

Marking a level per cent. of profits on all kinds of goods will not work out right, as many merchants who have tried will testify. The merchant who succeeds has his "leads" and "drives" which he sells possibly at cost and possibly at less. Staple lines, too, are usually sold on a close margin. It is on those goods which are not exactly like his competitors, and on those the value of which it is most difficult to judge that the shrewd trader makes his money.

A Good Reputation.

The problem which is constantly before the merchant is how to get a reputation for selling cheap, at the least expense. It is not so very hard to get the reputation, but where some men make money is in knowing how to get the reputation without making the cost too high. They do this by knowing how to adjust their profits. The cheapest way to get a reputation for selling cheap is by buying for leaders well known articles not usually bought in large quantities. Such, for instance, are wide sheetings, table oil cloth, standard baking powders, carpet warp, rubbers, overalls, etc. Bargain prices on coffee, sugar, prints, etc., will bring the business all right, but they make very expensive leaders. They make up such a large portion of the sales in most general stores that it chops out a big hole in the profits to break the price of them.

Small Notions.

Staple lines in small notions sold uniformly at very low prices is one of the best advertisements a store can have. Women, especially, are quick to notice a cut price in such things as pins, needles, pencils, thread, combs, toilet soap, pearl buttons and curling irons.

Give Prominence to Leaders.

A merchant should buy goods especially for leaders, and these should be of a kind not easily duplicated from his competitor's stocks. A drive in 10 cent goods is always effective. Most merchants find that the medium grades of merchandise will stand a better per cent. of profit than the highest or lowest qualities.

LIVE AND LET LIVE.

It is not always good policy to pay too much attention to your competitor, but it is always wise to pay strict attention to your own business. You cannot give your business too much of your personal attention, unless you have clerks who are better posted, more agreeable, and better salesmen than you.

Looking Ahead.

Every merchant should build for tomorrow and the day after, rather than for to-day alone.

Satisfy your trade. There is nothing like it, and when you have accomplished it you will have made strides toward success.

Study to Oblige.

Give your customers what they ask for if you have it; if not, tender something else, but not invariably with the assurance that "it is just as good." Better yet, if the demand is not immediate and urgent, and a few days later will do just as well, promise to send for the goods or article wanted. And then send for it post haste. You cannot strive to please too much.

Cutting Dangerous.

When you have built up a trade on this basis you will be less liable to lose it to a newcomer, and losing a trade that you have worked and slaved for is exasperating and discouraging. It is your trade and you should be able to hold it. Do not cut your own throat in trying to meet competition if the competitor is selling goods at a loss. The only gainer in this kind of a fight is the third party, the general public, that is, for the time being, but in the end the competitors will sacrifice themselves on the altar of competition for the benefit of a newcomer who will grab the trade after the receiver has disposed of the warring merchants and their stocks.

Think Well First.

The homely old saw, "Live and let live," older than the hills, is yet worthy, now and then, of consideration. Think it over when you have about decided that it is time to rip things "wide open."

Boomerangs are nasty things. "Push trade," said the prophet, but, he added, "do not push it at the expense of your pocketbook, your bank account or your family."

A PERCENTAGE SYSTEM OF DOING BUSINESS.

A percentage system of doing business offers advantages to a business man, whether manufacturer or retailer, for it gives him a track on which to run his business, and a time schedule with which he must keep up. It fixes the mark at which he is striving, a certain reward for his work, or profits at the end of the year, and it guides him in buying and selling his goods during the year. Percentages in various enterprises differ, and for a general illustration a theoretical case may be taken, and business men may adapt it to their own conditions.

Figuring it Out.

In a retail store let the total volume of business be 100 per cent. Let it be divided into profit at 10 per cent., cost of operating, or selling goods, at 20 per cent., and 70 per cent., the cost of stock. Profit is the vital point to the retailer. He must earn enough money from his business to secure for him a reasonable living. If he wishes $2,000 a year in profits, and estimates his profits at 10 per cent. of his volume of business, he must do a business of $20,000 per year. His 20 per cent. for operating, or selling his goods, will allow him $4,000 a year for that purpose upon a basis of a business of $20,000 a year, and then allowing 70 per cent. for stock, he will have $14,000 with which to buy goods. This divides his annual business as follows: $14,000 cost of stock, $4,000 cost of selling goods, $2,000 profit.

Basis for Reckoning.

The percentages may differ, according to the nature of the business, but the system will apply to any business. A retailer or manufacturer must secure his own percentages and fix them according to his own judgment. He may secure a basis for reckoning by taking the total volume of his business for the previous year, and then figuring the percentages of profit, operating expenses and cost of stock. Naturally he looks upon his percentage of profits as the most important item.

Keeping up to Standard.

Having made up this table of percentages, he has a guide for buying and selling, and running his store. He has a mark at which he is striving, a certain profit at the end of the year, and he regulates his business accordingly. He does not worry and guess what profits his books will show at the end of the year. He has in mind a certain profit which his business must bring if managed rightly, and he devotes his energies to managing it rightly. He allows a certain percentage for new goods and a certain percentage for expenses, and he fixes them so that he will get a certain profit, of which he is ambitious.

An Illustration.

An ingenious illustration of this percentage system in minute detail may be worked out on paper. Consider an article that retails at $2—a hat, shoes, gloves, a razor or any other article. Let its cost be estimated at 70 per cent., or $1.40; the cost of selling it at 20 per cent., or 40 cents, and the profit on it at 10 per cent., or 20 cents. This brings the seling price to $2.00. To get a profit of $2,000 a year a retailer must sell 10,000 of these $2 articles, or $20,000 worth.—F. A. Gannon in Ad Sense.

BOWSER SAFETY PUMPS.

The illustrations on this page are all from photographs of the store of G. W. Spaulding a well-known grocer of Lexington, Mass. Mr. Spaulding is a merchant who, in the course of a year, handles a great deal of kerosene and gasoline. He kept these oils in metal faucet tanks and considered these tanks good enough for the purpose, and they did seem to answer very well until one day, late last Fall, a fire visited his store. Just when the firemen had it well under control, there was an explosion, the fire broke out with renewed vigor and the ruin was complete. One of the oil tanks had become too hot and blown the end out, and the oil was scattered all over the burning building. How complete the ruin really was is shown in the first picture.

When Mr. Spaulding rebuilt, he naturally paid considerable attention to the question of oil storage.

The second picture shows the Bowser pumps he then purchased and installed. He now has what might well be considered a model arrangement for handling the several oils. Briefly stated, this equipment is as follows :

The entire outfit was manufactured by S. F. Bowser & Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. There are two five-barrel, heavy galvanized steel tanks, buried under ground, one for gasoline and the other for benzine. These are connected by means of 1¼-in. galvanized iron pipe to the Bowser self-measuring long distance pumps, which pumps are located just outside of the building, in Bowser fireproof cabinets.

In the cellar of the store will be found one fifteen-barrel tank for kerosene, and a two-barrel tank for astral oil. On the store floor, almost directly above the tanks, are the pumps for these two oils. The two cellar tanks are constructed of galvanized steel, double seamed and soldered, and are then encased in strongly built, handsomely grained wood cabinets. They are furnished with lead bottoms and are guaranteed to remain in perfect working order for fifteen years.

All of the pumps are of the self-measuring type, are adjusted to measure at one stroke, gallons, half gallons or quarts, as desired by the operator.

S. F. Bowser & Co. manufacture oil tanks of any capacity, in any style, for all kinds of oils. They present an economical, clean, safe arrangement for handling the oils; they pump and measure the oils at the one operation in the least amount of time and with the minimum labor. They automatically compute the money value of the fractional parts of a gallon drawn, or enable the operator to determine at a glance the amount of oil to be drawn for a certain price.

The outfits, it is understood, are guaranteed proof against loss from evaporation, leakage or waste, are guaranteed safe under all conditions, are highly endorsed by fire boards, and meet every requirement of the insurance companies.

FISHERY AMALGAMATION.

At Gloucester the consolidation has taken place of four large fishing concerns under one name. The firms are Slade Gorton & Co., John Pew & Son, David B. Smith & Co., and Reed & Gamage, and will in future be known to the business world as the Gorton Pew Fisheries Co. John Pew & Son is the oldest in the fish business with a record of over a century in the fish producing and packing; David B. Smith & Co. are the biggest wholesale producers of fish on the coast and the owners of the largest fleet of vessels from any port on the Atlantic coast; and Slade Gorton & Co. and Reed & Gamage, as packers of fish, are equally well known.

The consolidation will enable the new concern to greatly increase its business, and the combined capitalization is estimated at $1,500,000, if not more. Each firm will continue its business as heretofore at its own address, while the general manager will have an office in the centre of the city.

The new concern will have a fleet of 39 vessels, 24 now going from the firm of David B. Smith & Co. and 15 from John Pew & Son, making the largest fleet of fishing vessels operated by any concern on the Atlantic coast. Combined with this are the two large fish packing concerns on the coast, so it can be seen at once that the consolidation of four such concerns is an event of importance not only to themselves, but to the city of Gloucester and the fishing interests of the world in general.

The consolidation of this quartette of big concerns means much. What effect this will have upon the prosecution of the herring fishery in Bay of Islands remains to be seen. Three of the above named firms have prosecuted herring fishery with success, and it is more than likely that the new concern will go into the business on a larger scale than it was possible by the individual firms.

A COMPREHENSIVE BOOKLET.

Swift & Company, packers, of Chicago, have issued a very comprehensive little booklet illustrated with excellent pictures of their plant and the different offices in the building from the ground up to the fifth floor. The reading matter is concise, such as will appeal to the busy merchant, and altogether the booklet is a credit to this enterprising company.

LOBSTER PROSPECTS.

The lobster catch on ports of the eastern shore promises well this season. The Plant liner Aranmore, which sailed recently for Boston, took 316 crates of live lobsters, which is nearly as large as any shipment last season. Last week she took only a small number of crates. Of the 316 crates shipped about 150 crates came in the steamer Dufferin from eastern shore ports.

THE UNIVERSITY ACT.

In the provisions of the University Act, which is now being considered by the Legislature of the Province of Ontario, it is gratifying to note an honest attempt to solve a question which has for too long a period been neglected or minimized. It has now been undertaken aggressively, and the present bill follows with fair exactness the recommendations made in the report of the University Commission recently issued.

The main features of the new legislation are the arrangements which have been made to guarantee the harmonious government of the university's business and academic interests, and to provide sufficient revenue for current expenses.

For the government of the institution it would, at first sight, seem that a multiplicity of bodies have been created, whose powers and privileges might in practice overlap. But in reality there is a distinct division of duties, the business management being quite separate from the academic.

The most important body is the board, to be known as "The Governors of the University of Toronto." They are to be the successors of the present trustees, but with enlarged rights, powers and privileges, including the government, conduct, management and control of the university, and of its property, revenues, business and affairs. Among the powers of the board may be mentioned the appointment of the president of the university, the principal of University College, and the deans of the various faculties; the erection of necessary buildings, and the alteration (if it should be deemed expedient) of any other body except the senate. The board will consist of the chancellor and president of the university, and thirteen persons appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. These latter will hold office for six years.

The senate will manage the academic affairs of the university, and among its members will be a generous representation of the graduates, with four representatives of the high school and collegiate institute teachers of the province. Both appointed and elected members will hold office for four years.

Convocation will be a body consisting of all graduates of the University of Toronto and federated universities. It may meet at the call of the chancellor to consider questions affecting the well-being of the university, and make representations to the board and senate.

The council of the faculty of arts is a body which, practically speaking, advises the senate upon the conduct of academic affairs within its own sphere. Although really managing the examinations for the faculty of arts, it looks to the senate for final approval. There is a similar council for all the other faculties and also for University College.

Perhaps the most radical change proposed is the new body to be known as the caput, which will consist of the president, principal of University College, heads of the federated colleges and universities, and deans of the faculties. The caput is to exercise powers as to discipline, and to deal with all such matters as may be assigned to it by the board or senate. It may also advise the president.

The ornamental head of the university is, as now, to be the chancellor, who will be elected by the graduates. He is to hold office for four years.

Finally, there is the president, who is to be, in fact as well as in name, the chief executive officer of the university. He will have general supervision over academic work, will be a member of all faculty councils, and chairman of the senate. It will, moreover, be his duty to confer degrees, in the absence of the chancellor, to suspend, if necessary, any member of the teaching staff of the university or University College, to make recommendations to the board as to all appointments, promotions and removals, and to report annually upon progress and efficiency of academic work.

Another aspect of the new bill which will meet with commendation is the encouragement that is being given the newly federated Trinity College to take up quarters in Queen's Park. It is to be hoped that this will soon be accomplished.

All these provisions are of great interest to the students, graduates and intending students of the university. But the entire province will be concerned, and, it is hoped, gratified by the financial arrangements proposed, by which the university will be placed on a much more secure basis than before. A certain number of acres (as yet undetermined) of public lands will be set aside as a permanent endowment, and a certain proportion of the average yearly gross revenue from succession dues, to provide for the maintenance and support of the university and University College.

For their effort to meet squarely the problem of higher education, and to improve the status of the provincial university, academically and financially, the Ontario Government are to be congratulated.

DUST AND BUSINESS.

Toronto is struggling with the dust problem. On many of the side streets running to the main thoroughfares the old-fashioned macadam is still in vogue. With the disappearance of Winter and the advent of Spring much mud abounded which in turn became dust. Much of this was naturally blown into the main thoroughfares, many of which are business streets. The evil arising from this dust does not lie with the side streets alone. The asphalt roads have been allowed to become badly out of repair and have in themselves become the sources of much dust and dirt.

The people generally, and business men in particular, for the latter are sufferers in a double sense, are naturally up in arms against this state of affairs.

The condition of the streets is a disgrace to a city of the importance and resources of Toronto; but it is only what might be expected, for in civic administration, as well as in business management, incompetence is bound to bring evil in its train. In other words you get what you pay for. If you appoint incompetent managers there is bound to be bad management and if you elect to public offices chiefly men who are drawn from the army of professional wardheelers, you cannot expect good civic government.

It is to be hoped that the Board of Trade of Toronto will take this matter up. If the business men do not move in the matter, who will? The board of trade has recently shown evidence of more aggressiveness and it is to be hoped this aggressiveness will spread to municipal matters.

If Toronto had a business like council who saw that certain things should be done and did them, the dust problem that is now bothering the Queen City would not have an existence.

PORK PACKERS' PROBLEMS.

The recent receipt of cable advices from England of a drop of three shillings per cwt. on Canadian bacon is somewhat disconcerting at the present juncture.

To most dealers, even those who are closely in touch with foreign markets, this must have been something of a surprise. It has been realized for some time that ruling prices were high, too high for healthy markets, still, in face of that, considering the world's short supply of hogs, a drop such as the one mentioned was not expected.

At the commencement of the recent agitation in the packing industries, it was pointed out in The Canadian Grocer that there was a margin of values on the foreign markets beyond which it would be impossible to force things. It would appear as though that point has been reached. Some of the wholesale dealers, particularly at Manchester, England, have for some time been stoutly advocating some movement in order to meet the situation on that side, the favored plan being an advance to the public on the part of the retailer.

It has been stated by the English press that the retail grocer is selling his bacon at the same price as that ruling in 1904, when the wholesale price was some five to six shillings per cwt. below present prices, so that he has been merely selling bacon for the convenience of his customer at no profit, and probably at distinct loss.

The endeavor to make concerted movement on the part of retailers seems to have fallen through, hence the only other course was to bring down wholesale values. The British consumer is conservative to a fine point. He would rather do with less breakfast bacon than give what he would consider a fabulous price.

The arrival on the market at such a critical juncture of increased supplies of Danish bacon, which is in direct competition with Canadian, was probably the final factor in bringing down prices. Danish farmers are probably ahead of Canadian in seeding operations, and on that account in a position to give renewed attention to the marketing of hogs. It was not expected that any material change would have occurred for several months, not at least until the Canadian supply had materially increased.

There are already signs which indicate that packers are disposed to give more serious attention to the Domestic trade, and let the export trade severely alone whilst present unremunerative conditions prevail. Such a course would be of serious moment to the farmers of this country. A trade once let go is not so easy of recovery, and after all it is the export trade upon which the farmer must rely if hog raising is to become a paying venture.

WHO PAYS THE SHOT?

Toronto's post office fire has raised the question of responsibility for losses incurred by the destruction of registered letters. Fortunately no registered mail fed this blaze, but there remains the omnipresent If. The Government has always disclaimed responsibility for lost, destroyed or stolen registered mail; the issue, therefore, is between the addressor and the addressee.

It is a postal regulation that as soon as a letter or any postal matter is mailed it becomes the property of the person to whom it is addressed. So if you vent a hasty spleen on paper and mail it, then think better of it, you cannot get it back, unless, perchance, you misdirect it and it comes to you in time through the medium of the postal graveyard.

Two prominent wholesalers, a grocer and a draper, gave the daily press interviews on the subject and both left the loss at the door of the wholesale house, presuming the destruction of a registered letter by which a customer had remitted money. J. W. Woods, of the Gordon, Mackay Co., said that in view of the postal regulation he thought the wholesaler would be responsible for letters mailed to him because once mailed they became his property. Hugh Blain, of the Eby, Blain Co., said: "In case the letter was registered we could hardly ask the customer to pay twice even had we the right to do so."

The wholesalers are not at all unanimous in that view and there are two very obvious reasons against it. It would open up a large field for fraud, and the sender has absolutely safe methods of transmitting money if he chooses to avail himself of them.

After the fire a postal official said: "The post office is not responsible for the delivery of money sent by registered letter. If it were, a large field for fraud would be opened up." The same would be true if anyone other than the sender was to be held responsible, because only the sender knows how much or if any money at all is in a letter. When a letter is registered the post office gives a receipt for it, but it doesn't know or care how much money there is in it. If the addressee is to be held responsible, then the addressor should be required to bring the money to the post office and place it in the letter in the presence of the official, getting a receipt not only for the letter but for the amount.

But why send money by registered letter at all? There are three absolutely safe means of remitting, by check, by postal money order or postal note, and by express order. If a dealer has a bank account, why, of course, that is the easiest avenue of liquidation and has the pleasant advantage of leaving the wholesaler to pay the exchange, an eighth, a tenth or a sixteenth of one per cent., according to the amount and the intimacy of one's relations with the bank. But the minimum is 15 cents, and for small amounts that is dearer than by money order or express order. The express and money order rates are the same. With these safe methods to choose from, where neither fire nor quake can destroy nor thieves break in and steal, why should anyone else be responsible if a man chooses to send his money by registered letter?

The moral of it all is, adopt modern methods of business; keep up with the game; and it applies quite as aptly to buying goods and to selling goods as to paying for them.

THE EMERGENCY AT SAN FRANCISCO.

As our readers are well aware, for a few days following the great fire at San Francisco currency in that city was marked by almost its total absence, so much so in fact that firms there who had representatives in Canada telegraphed to send forward a supply of gold in order that they might carry on business.

Among the firms who did this was Griffin & Skelley, of San Francisco. Their representative here, Mr. W. G. A. Lambe, sent forward the necessary gold by express, but on Saturday last received a telegram from his principals which read, "Mint vaults open; coin plentiful; do not need currency now, contents of our vault saved."

ADVANCE IN WESTERN SUGAR.

At the moment of going to press we are advised of an advance of 10c. per 100 lbs. on all sugars at western points.

FLUCTUATIONS—

Fish—Revised.

Montreal, May 3, 1906.

During the week business generally has improved considerably in most lines. The changes in quoted prices of such lines as sugar and molasses resulted in putting more life into the trade in these and other lines. Ocean navigation has now set in in earnest and the canals are nearly all opened up for the season. These conditions have already shown their effect on the trade, which is very beneficial, resulting in increased business transactions between the larger centres and small points in different parts of the country which are not conveniently reached before navigation opens. An advance of ten cents has taken place in sugar. Since the rise a little more business has been done according to reports received from wholesale houses. Molasses has also gone up two cents, and now commands 30c. and up. At these figures, the same as prevailed two or three weeks ago, there is a steady demand. Another line in which an advance is noticed is tomatoes. These are now up to $1.30 per dozen, at which figure a fair consumptive demand prevails. Reports current indicate high prices for new stock salmon this Fall, owing to the poor season experienced at the coast. Tea is moving very well, and many orders booked for shipment May 1 have been sent out. Coffee and spices remain firm at unchanged prices. It is said that most of the leading dried fruit houses in California are very nearly cleaned out. Prospects for the new crops are good, however, with the exception of apricots. Manufacturers say of the maple syrup season just over that, although the syrup was scarce, the quality was really first-class. Collections are coming in better than they have been for some time past.

CANNED GOODS—There is a good steady consumptive demand for all canned goods, with no call for any line in particular. Tomatoes have advanced ten cents and now command $1.30 per dozen. Gallons have not changed. At this price there is a steady call for them. Higher figures are anticipated before the arrival of the new stock. From present indications the price of B.C. salmon will be very much advanced over last year's figures. Although a little early to speak of probable prices, it may be stated that it is very likely that grocers will have to pay from $1.70 to $1.75 per dozen for their new salmon. This is placing the price at a very reasonable figure. This has been an off year with the people on the coast and they have been compelled to advance the price fifty cents so far. What the ultimate price will be is yet to be seen.

SUGAR—The market has experienced an advance since last week. The rise amounts to ten cents all along the line. The new York market advanced ten cents, and prices here went up shortly afterwards. Since the advance there have been more inquiries on the part of grocers. Orders from country districts have been fairly large since the advance.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES — Quotations on molasses have advanced again, and the figure now asked is 30c, as it was a couple of weeks ago. At the present figures very good demand is reported, and wholesale houses report that, considering the season, very good business is being transacted. Latest cables from the Barbadoes report a very firm market at prices quoted. As was stated in last week's report, the crop at the Islands is just about finished.

TEA—Business generally is very fair this week. Orders coming in from points in the country have been of fair size, and what business has been transacted in large centres has been very good. Japans are moving very freely, and some good orders have been shipped. Ceylons and Indians are, perhaps, going as well, if not a little better, than other lines at present, and indications point to even better business shortly. In nearly all teas orders which have been booked for May 1 shipment were sent out during the week, and this fact was the cause of increased activity in tea houses.

COFFEE—The market remains firm at prices quoted. Latest advices from primary markets say that the tone is steady at present, and inclined towards firmness. Fair business is being done throughout the province, although orders are not so large as they might be.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Reports received from California state that nearly all the leading houses there are about cleaned up in most lines of dried fruits, and that there are only a few lots of seeded raisins left. The latter are very strong and prices are firm. The outlook is good for the coming crops with the exception of apricots. Very good business is being done in currants. The market in Greece continues firm. Valencia raisins are moving freely, and are getting cleaned up gradually.

RICE AND TAPIOCA — Although tapioca is still going up at the primary market, the prices here remain 6½c. It is only reasonable to expect, however, that shortly there will be an advance on this figure, since it will soon be impossible for importers to bring the article into the country under that price. Rice remains unchanged with a little better demand.

BEANS—The market remains unchanged almost, being a little firmer, if anything. Prices still range from $1.55 to $1.65, according to quality, although a few odd lots have been bought at lower figures.

MAPLE SYRUP—Prices in wood have advanced since last week's report, and it now sells from six to eight cents per pound. The season is just about over, and the manufacturers say although the crop was on the small side the quality was excellent. There is a possibility of higher prices owing to the scarcity.

EVAPORATED APPLES—There has been little change in the evaporated apple situation since last week. Owing to the high prices asked, there is practically no good business being put through. Dealers are still asking 12½c for the best.

FISH—The demand for all lines of fresh fish continues to improve as the new season approaches. The low prices of halibut and haddock are resulting in good business in these lines. The first lake trout and whitefish of the season have arrived, and are meeting with ready sale, although prices are a little high, as they always are at the beginning of the season. As shipments of these increase, however, the prices will decline to a more reasonable figure. There is very little doing in frozen fish, with the exception, perhaps, of salmon. This is sold because the fresh product is at present very high in price and many dealers prefer to take the frozen stock rather than the fresh at such a figure as it now sells. There is a good demand for haddies and kippers in smoked fish, and for salt and prepared fish there is a fair demand.

Toronto, May 3, 1906.

Business this week is holding its own and that's all need be said for it. What price changes there have been, have been upward, with the exception of fresh fish. Sugar, which declined 10c. on April 24, went up that much on the 28th. Such changes always stimulate some buying. Barbadoes molasses is advancing and on the primary market is costing 25 per cent. more than a month ago. Canned goods continue very firm with tomatoes still the feature, but an advancing tendency in corn also. Dried fruits are firm all along the line and evaporated apples are very scarce. Spices are firm. Tapioca is firmer again on the primary market. Fresh fish are easier, with increasing supplies.

CANNED GOODS—The pressure on tomatoes is still upward, but the ordinary quotation is still $1.30. Some firms will sell a single case at $1.25 to an old customer, but five-case lots would be $1.30. Some goods are going out at $1.35 and there is a feeling that before long that will be the lowest. Corn, too, is firmer. For fancy brands as high as $1.15 is being asked. These goods began the season at 95c. and most of the houses are still selling at that. On other kinds of corn prices have not changed. Other lines also remain at previous quotations. Canned pineapples are selling very freely.

SUGAR—The raw sugar market assumed a somewhat firmer tone at the close of last week and the Canadian refiners added 10 cents to the price of refined. It was only on the Tuesday previous that they lowered it 10c. The trade here are not looking for any decided advance. Some guess it will hold about the present level, others assert it should decline in view of large excess in the world's visible supply. Probably the refiners themselves don't know what it will do. Last week Willett & Gray heralded 2c. raw, New York, but it didn't get below 2 1-32c., and they explain the situation by saying the speculative element came in and bought to the extent of 50,000 bags. Towards the end of the week the American refiners were considerable buyers on a basis of 2 1-16c. c. and f. for centrifugals, 96 degrees test, equal to 3.42c. duty paid and 2⅛c. c. and f. for 96 degrees test centrifugals or 3.48½c. duty paid. This week sellers at New York are asking 2⅛c. cost and freight for centrifugals 96 degrees test, or 3.48½c. duty paid, and there was very little doing. Later buyers were found at that figure and sellers asked 2 3-16c. cost and freight, New York, for centrifugals 96 degrees test. The European market declined somewhat at this week's opening and remained steady. The quotation for April-May beet was 8s. 3½d. f.o.b. Hamburg, or about 3.72c. duty paid New York for centrifugals 96 degrees test.

Of the Cuban crop prospects Willett & Gray say: "The full number of 180 centrals continue grinding with the week's receipts at 48,000 tons, against 22,000 tons for corresponding week last year and stocks in the island added to stocks in the United States are 605,121 tons, against 633,830 tons last year. This continued showing of favorable grinding returns confirms the position that we have maintained throughout the present Cuba campaign that, under good weather conditions, the crop will finally considerably exceed that of last year. The visible production in the island to the present time is 854,907 tons."

The earthquake did practically no damage to California refineries.

The world's visible supply is 3,979,121 tons, against 2,891,830 tons last year, an increase of 1,087,291 tons.

TEA—Francis F. Street, by mail advice from Ceylon under date April 2, says: "Offerings during the past fortnight have been larger than for some time past and are likely to get still bigger, comprised principally of poor liquoring teas." Of prices at the beginning of April he said: "The market was dearer with the exception of fannings, which were irregular and in many cases cheaper. Brokens of all descriptions were a trifle firmer and tippy teas were decidedly dearer. Orange Pekoes from medium to finest were decidedly dearer. Pekoes were a strong market and 'tea for price' firm to a small advance."

COFFEE—The New York speculative market turned slightly easier at the beginning of the week, but dealers here are expecting higher prices in keeping with the statistical situation. Back to the question of crops, Willett & Gray say: "From most reliable sources the information is now given that the remainder of coffee from the present Santos crop is very light. As regards Rio, the information points out that the crop in the State of Rio is almost exhausted, but that some coffee remains in the State of Espirito Santo. The total of the current Rio crop is just about 3,000,000 bags, whereas the parties who had estimated it as high as 5,000,000 bags, now give as their justification the idea that the balance remains in the interior. It is very easy to estimate crops high, and when they do not materialize, to claim from year to year that the balance is held up country, and has not come forward. The outcome of the present Rio and Santos crops being some 2,000,000 bags below the generally accepted figures earlier in the season, renders it more and more necessary for the coffee world to be guided by the actual figures obtainable when the crop is coming in, rather than to listen to sensational estimates. The world's visible for May 1 again shows a substantial decrease, apart from the loss of a steamer cargo of about 45,000 bags that was destined for San Francisco, and not to speak of the loss of actual coffee held in private and public stores in San Francisco."

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — The week has been without feature except the decided firmness in California goods, which is not a new development. The stocks of prunes are pretty well cleaned up locally and quotations remain about the same. Evaporated apples are very scarce and several houses are quite out of them, and quotations are advanced.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, May 4, 1906.

In St. John, as everywhere, the first of May sees many changes. In the wholesale grocery business there have, however, been but few. We have one new firm. John M. Elmore, who has been doing business on Germain street, moves to the wharf and takes into partnership Mr. Mullen, who for a number of years has been bookkeeper for Thos. Gorman. They start in the same store in which Baird & Peters started, not so many years ago. Their friends cannot do better than wish them equal success. A. S. Bowman, one of our successful brokers, moves to Water street, needing increased room, as he intends carrying a stock of Libby's goods, whose agency he has taken over during the past year. One change, which is a matter of regret on the part of the trade, is the removal of James S. Harding from his old stand on the north wharf. Mr. Harding has for many years been a conspicuous figure among the wholesale grocery trade, for many years a partner in the firm of Harding & Hatheway, and of late years as the representative of the Ogilvie Milling Co.

OIL—In burning oil there is just a steady sale, and prices are low. Lubricating oils have much attention and a large business reported. Gasoline is high and sales much larger than ever before. Paint oils have a good demand, full prices asked. It is the off season in cod oil; prices firm.

SALT—Business in Liverpool coarse salt is very active; prices are rather firmer. Fine salt moves more freely, prices unchanged.

CANNED GOODS—There has been a large sale for corn this season. One firm report they are now working on their fourth car, which means large sales for St. John. Peas are still low. Tomatoes held firm at full prices, showing nice profit. In fruits there is improved interest. Gallon apples are higher and peaches and strawberries are both more firmly held. Lobsters are a small line, as they have been for some years owing to high prices. Salmon, a fair stock. Oysters tend higher. Meats are still quite low; they have improved interest. There is still a small stock of domestic sardines held.

GREEN FRUIT—Bananas are large sellers. Some very fine fruit is seen; prices unchanged. Valencia, Messina and California oranges offered, little change in prices. Valencias rather firmer. Lemons have just a fair sale, prices quite low. A few apples still offered. Some few cucumbers. Tomatoes and a little rhubarb seen, but prices are high.

DRIED FRUIT—This is not a line of particular interest at this season, though one or two features are of interest. Prunes are scarce, particularly small sizes; prices are higher and the stock cannot be replaced; while prices were quite low in the Fall the trade bought lightly. Evaporated apples are also high; the demand is not large. In raisins, seeded are firmer, loose Muscatels and Valencias just a fair sale at even prices. Currants are firm. Dates are firmly held, stock light. Peels will be high. Onions are rather lower, Egyptian chiefly sold, some few American offered. Peanuts are having a large sale prices keep quite low.

SUGAR—While during the past week there was a further decline of ten cents, there is an opinion that market is quite firm and dealers hope for higher figures.

MOLASSES—The first cargo of Porto Rico has been received. The sale is for Barbadoes, and fancy or syrup has good demand at rather higher figures.

FISH—There is a fair supply of fresh fish, though Gaspereaux are a light supply this week. Dry codfish are easier, though still quite high. Pollock but a limited sale. Smoked herring are easier, but still bring fair price; there is quite a sale for the prepared fish, that is skinned and boned. Pickled herring still very high. Haddies are quiet.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., May 2, 1906.

The Maritime grocery markets are in a healthy condition. From all quarters the volume of business continues good, in fact many of the jobbers say that trade is even better than it was at the same period last year, which means considerable. After the tie up on the railways and the bad condition of the roads last season, business came with a rush when the conditions improved. This year the conditions have been altogether different as regards transportation. Every point has been accessible both by land and water for weeks, and trade has been steady right along, the orders coming in from outside points in some cases being very heavy. The same report comes from all of the large distributing centres, and the trade is not alone confined to Halifax.

The opening up of the Halifax & South Western Railway has very greatly added to business. As the railway traverses through the western part of the shore of the province, many of the places touched are thickly populated, the conditions are active, and naturally much business has developed from this quarter, as the merchants can have their orders filled and delivered promptly. Collections are most satisfactory, in fact they could hardly be expected to be better.

FRUITS — The receipts of bananas have improved greatly, as well as the quality. The stock now on the market is very good for so early in the season. They are selling from $1.75 to $2.50 ; some good stock can be had at twenty cents per dozen retail. Some Jamaica oranges received the latter part of the week are very green, and small. They are quoted at $7 per barrel, repacked. The price is very high, but it is made so by the waste and general poor condition of the stock. Malaga grapes are about over, the stock held here being very poor. Good strawberries are selling at 35c. per box. Apples are becoming very scarce, Nonpareils and some Ben Davis being about the only varieties now on the market. Pineapples are from $2 to $2.50 per dozen.

VEGETABLES—Good potatoes are becoming very scarce; the best potatoes now on the market come from New Brunswick. The receipts from that district are very limited and the demand is good. They fetch about $1.50 per barrel. The quality of the Prince Edward Island potatoes reaching the market is only fair. Carrots, parsnips and turnips are of good quality. They have Wintered far better than was expected. American and Egyptian onions are worth 2½c. per pound. The new stock of Bermuda onions have not yet reached the market.

MOLASSES — There is considerable activity in the molasses market, the firmness in prices being most notable. Jobbers here say that the demand from the Upper Provinces is very good. Quotations here are as follows : Fancy Trinidad, 40c.; fancy porto Rico, 39c.; Porto Rico, extra choice, 35 to 37c.; Trinidad, choice, 35 to 36c.; Barbadoes, 33 to 35c.

SUGAR—The markets are very dull. There is not much doing at this season, the demand being light. According to reports received here there is lots of raw sugar in sight. Prices are: Granulated, XXX, $4.20; Austrian granulated, $3.90; bright yellow, $4; unbranded yellow, $3.55; No. 1. yellow, $3.70.

BUTTER AND EGGS — Butter is coming in fairly steady, but the receipts are not large enough to cause any drop in the price. Creamery is in small delivery. Prints are quoted at 25 to 26c, and solids at from 24 to 25c. Dairy tubs are selling from 22 to 24c., according to the quality. Eggs are in fairly good demand; the receipts are only fair, being somewhat below the average. Prices remain fairly steady. Some stock can be had for 16c., but the average is about 18c. These prices are higher than usual just at this season of the year.

During the last two months, in fact since the report of the annual meeting of the association last February, no additional lists of new members secured have been published in The Canadian Grocer. Lest any readers should imagine that the absence of these lists indicates that the association has ceased to grow, it may be stated that since the February meeting 180 new members have been added to the membership roll. It was found that the published lists were being used by those who had no right to them, and after consultation between Secretary Coulson and this paper it was decided to discontinue their publication. This explanation is due the readers of The Canadian Grocer who might otherwise imagine that their association had ceased to grow.

The very interesting interview with Mr. Coulson, published in these columns last week, in reply to the absurd claims of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, as published in the Retail Merchants' Journal, requires very little in the way of comment. Mr. Coulson's statements were illuminating and incisive, and left no doubt as to meaning. It is unfortunate that it should be necessary to discuss such a matter, but claims of the kind repudiated by Mr. Coulson could not be too quickly or too forcibly denied. It would be unfortunate indeed if the impression should get abroad among the trade that the Western Retail Association had become merged in another body and had lost its identity and its autonomy.

This whole subject of the relation of the Western Retail Association to the Western Retail Hardware Association, and of the indirect relationship of these two western associations through the "Western Board" with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, whose headquarters are in Toronto, is really very simple, but it is astonishing to find so much misapprehension among the trade.

In the first place it should be clearly understood that the two western associations have not been merged into one body. There are still two associations in the west with interests that are common and interests that may sometimes conflict, and they are free to quarrel and free to agree; as free as they were before the February meeting. Each has its own secretary and its own particular line of work.

But in order to accomplish some objects which they have in common the two associations have affiliated for those certain definite objects. They elected in joint session a western board to safeguard common interests, but there is a world of difference between affiliation for these specific purposes and complete amalgamation. The two associations pursue the even tenor of their way as before, but the western board watches legislation for them and is endeavoring to persuade manufacturers to agree to sell certain lines of goods on the contract price plan. The western board is authorized to make a levy not to exceed 50 cents per member on the two associations in order to meet expenses; this levy to be paid out of the regular membership fees.

But western retailers have many things in common with retailers in other parts of Canada, and it is desirable that, so far as possible, the retailers of the whole Dominion should sometimes be able to take united action. For this reason the western board has affiliated for certain purposes with the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, with headquarters in Toronto. A fee of 10 cents per member is to be paid the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada for their co-operation. This is, perhaps, an unnecessary expense, as it should be as much in the interests of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada to have the co-operation of the western merchants as for the western merchants to have the co-operation of their friends in the east. This ten-cent fee is hard to justify, but Mr. Trowern asked for it last February, and as it was a small matter no objection was raised. It might not have gone through so readily had it been known that it would be made the pretext for the absurd claims which Mr. Coulson so effectively disposed of in his interview in the last issue of this paper.

Dealers in large numbers are taking advantage of the association plan for the collection of bad debts. This plan has been fully outlined before in these columns, and need not be elaborated upon on this occasion. It is sufficient to say that the threat to list the deadbeat in the association offices is proving effective in most cases. Blank forms will be furnished members on application to the secretary.

A SCOTCH TEA HOUSE FOR WINNIPEG.

A branch of one of the largest tea-importing houses in Scotland, it is said, will be established in Winnipeg within a short time. Matheson & McLaren, of Edinburgh, have selected Winnipeg as the best suited for the location of their Canadian branch, and have already selected a site on McDermot avenue. The house will be a wholesale one entirely, and Winnipeg will be made the distributing point of the western territory. Mr. McLaren is in Winnipeg with Edward Catchpole, who will be the local manager of the house, and all arrangements for the establishment of the Canadian branch will be completed befor Mr. McLaren returns to Scotland.

Tea will be exported direct from Scotland to Winnipeg and distributed through the medium of agents throughout the west. The growth of Western Canada, commercially, attracted the attention of the Edinburgh importers, and an inspection of the Canadian business possibilities has confirmed the glowing reports of the rapid development of Canada as a commercial centre.

WINNIPEG BOARD OF TRADE.

At a well-attended meeting of the Winnipeg Board of Trade last week, delegates were appointed to represent that body at the sixth congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire to be held in London, Eng., during the week commencing July 10. The representatives appointed were: A. L. Johnson, Winnipeg, manager of the Ames, Holden Co., and president last year of the Winnipeg Board of Trade; Geo. D. Wood, of Geo. D. Wood & Co.; F. W. Stobart, of Stobart, Sons & Co., and C. N. Bell, secretary of the local board.

The following resolutions were passed at this meeting:

"Whereas, the Winnipeg Board of Trade has considered the resolution endorsing the principle of international arbitration adopted at the eleventh annual Lake Mohonk conference in 1905, and recognizing the supreme importance to the business communities of adopting the principles of arbitration as a method of peaceful adjustments of international disputes, this board resolves:

"First. The endorsement of the wisdom of the establishment at The Hague of the permanent court for the pacific settlement of all international disputes that may be submitted to it.

"Second. The appointment of committees to secure the advocacy of the principles of international arbitration.

"Third. The education of general public sentiment in favor of international arbitration.

Irregular Schedules.

"Whereas there has been and still is, great irregularity in the maintenance of their freight and passenger schedules by railways in the west, this irregularity causing great inconvenience and loss to the public generally, and especially to the commercial community, and

"Whereas the regulations of the railway companies in certain matters, such as the conditions upon which they accept freight for points at which they maintain no agents, and which are commonly known as flag stations, as also the conditions which they impose upon shippers of perishable goods, are arbitrary and unjust, and

"Whereas the railway companies have assumed a position in regard to their responsibility for the protection and safeguarding of freight at point of debarkation, which position is not only prejudicial to the rights and interests of shippers, but seems to be incompatible with the obligations of the companies as common carriers having a monopoly of public transportation,

"Be it resolved that this board appoint a committee of its members to collect all information bearing on these matters and take such steps as they deem necessary in the premises."

Manitoba Markets

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, May 3, 1906.)

FLUCTUATIONS—

Pineapples—Reduced.

Evaporated apples—Advanced.

Eggs—Reduced to 13½c. per dozen.

As noted last week in our telegraphic market corrections, sugar has declined 10 cents more, the basis now being $4.75 for Montreal granulated in barrels f.o.b. Winnipeg. The market seems to be weak and the future is uncertain. No definite information is yet to hand as to the extent of the damage to stocks of dried fruits in San Francisco, but the impression is gaining strength that the destruction was not so complete as at first supposed.

CANNED GOODS—New canned pineapples are in stock now and revised quotations will be noted below. Canned goods are in strong demand owing to the high price of dried fruits.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—It is impossible yet to estimate with any approach to accuracy the extent of the destruction of dried fruits by the San Francisco disaster. It is believed that shipments from California will soon be resumed, that there were considerable stocks in packing houses outside San Francisco, and that the situation is not as bad as it was at first thought. Some local agents are offering only the large and small sizes of prunes, refusing to quote on the medium sizes. At all events stocks are low and crop reports indicate that the new fruit will be scarce and of poor quality.

THE COMING CHEESE SEASON.

The high price of fodder goods has been a great stimulus to manufacturers to get busy unusually early this season and nearly every cheese factory throughout Brockville section is in full operation. Several have been running many weeks but the big proportion did not get under way until the first of the present month.

Conditions are exceedingly favorable for a large production of the early make. The cows are in splendid condition, having wintered well, and there is an abundance of fodder to help the milk supply along. Every pound of milk that can be had is being sent to the factory. The offerings on the Brockville market have been irregular and as the quantity increases the situation is causing more activity among the exporters.

Factories have been greatly improved during the Winter season and ample provision has been made for better curing which has been a long-standing source of complaint. The Government cool curing experimental station has already contracted the patronage of enough factories in the immediate vicinity to keep the officials in charge busy. This will probably be the last season of the existence of the stations and a strong effort will be made to demonstrate more clearly than ever before by results the inestimable benefits to be derived from the process of scientific cool curing.

The Brockville Cow Testing Association, though of recent birth, is proving an admirable method of showing the up-to-date farmer the paying and non-paying stock in his herd and the results already achieved by the two periodical tests conducted by a Government officer have been eye-openers. The association is endeavoring to extend its scope of usefulness.

Stuart Watson, of Winnipeg, has been appointed representative of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., and will handle their complete line, including Bensdorp's Royal Dutch cocoa, Snider's goods, and the products of Maconochie Bros., Limited, London, England.

Mr. Reid, of Bartley & Reid, tea merchants, Montreal, is in Ottawa at present.

ADVERTISING ADVICE.

An advertising campaign is like a journey. There is a certain stated distance to be covered. You may not go the whole way without pausing. Perhaps you go a few miles to-day, and a few more tomorrow, but you keep right on, towards the goal, always adding a little to the sum total of your miles. If you do not complete the distance, the whole is incomplete and a failure, but the rounded out, perfect journey of regulated stages symbolizes well the well balanced advertising campaign.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

As indicated in our report of last week, the cheese market sagged materially and the tendency is towards a further recession in prices. Fodder cheese, the quality of which has been extremely satisfactory, has had export attention and several lots have been forwarded to the United Kingdom. In the early part of the week colored brought around 11 1-2c. to 12c., and white 11c. to 11 1-4c., while to-day finest Ontario colored was sold at 11c. and white 10 3-4c. The demand during the week has been for white, while with light supplies, holders favor colored and are firm in spirit. Reports from the U.K. indicate good demand, with short stocks of colored and this undoubtedly has confirmed holders here in their attitude.

The butter market is on the downward grade and purchases have been made at lowest prices this season. Dealers generally look for a continued decline and are not overly keen to answer to present offerings very freely. Choicest creamery, for which 19c. was asked, was overlooked, the trade considering lower prices close at hand; in some quarters 18c. is talked of, but the quality obtainable is not considered desirable. Finest creamery changed hands at 18 3-4c. and this is considered high price and not likely to be maintained for long. The dealers generally think that very little business is likely to be transacted with Great Britain, as that market prefers grass to fodder. Locally, trade is satisfactory and supplies equal to requirements. When the new grass butter is available, which will be shortly as the country has had plenty of rain and favorable warm weather, the market may be expected to assume a steadier tone.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

There is little to report since our last review. Demand is well maintained; the domestic trade is much more interesting that at recent dates, and there is every indication that packers will cater for that market rather than the more expensive export one. The supply of hogs is notably insufficient, and the inducement of inflated prices has not moved things much in that regard. Cables from England at the moment of writing report a fall in prices on Canadian bacon of some three shillings per cwt., (about 62c. per 100 lbs.) This is without doubt a serious blow to Canadian export, as it will make trade practically unremunerative. The reason given is the influx of Danish bacon, which likely takes precedence to Canadian, a further factor probably being the fact that the present season is practically an off one on the English market, as a great bulk of the more wealthy population transfer their residence to more distant watering places, and the bulk of population take on to a lighter diet during the Summer season.

The Manchester Guardian (England) recently had an interesting article on the provision situation, in which it stated :

"The public has been buying its bacon, etc., for the last twelve months at a price which hardly leaves the seller any margin for profit; in fact, many retailers as the result of the year's hard work are no better off than when they started, if not actual losers. This state of affairs has been brought about by the long-continued run of high prices, occasioned, so far as bacon is concerned, by the continued shortage all the world over. The retailer lived through 1905 believing that prices were so high that they must soon come lower. The contrary is the case, and he is to-day paying 5s. to 6s. per cwt. more for his bacon than he was a year ago, whilst the price to the public remains the same.

"The supplies, too, have been falling off very considerably, and at the present time the price is more than 2d a pound above 1904, though the retailer has not increased his prices. Never in the history of the trade have retailers worked for so small a profit as they are doing at the present time, was the opinion expressed by the head of the firm of Willer & Riley. 'There is not the slightest doubt,' said Mr. Willer, 'that the retailers at the present moment are making no profit whatever on their provisions, and it is quite imperative they should increase the retail price immediately all round, if they wish to keep going. There is no prospect whatever that the situation will be relieved for at least four or five months.' "

The remarks give an idea of the conditions ruling in the British market, and make it evident that the very development pointed out in The Canadian Grocer a short time ago as likely to mature, has really come to pass. The point has been reached in prices where the British importer must seriously kick. When trade has ceased to be remunerative it has lost its attraction, and industries soon begin to feel the effects.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

Without any doubt the parliamentary proceedings of the past few days have been full of interest to exporters of Canadian cattle. On 6th inst., Mr. Cairns, who has been foremost in his efforts to have the embargo removed, moved the second reading of the Diseases of Animals Act (1896) amendment bill. He explained that the measure was intended to give to the Board of Agriculture authority to exempt Canadian store cattle from quarantine and from slaughter at the port of disembarkation. Of course, the Irish members strenuously opposed the amendment, as did some Liberal and two Unionist members, and eventually the bill was talked out. The debate lasted five hours, and it seems unlikely that any more will be heard of it during the present session. It was clear that the prime minister, who is said to be personally favorable to the amendment, still hesitated to express himself officially as favorable. Hamar Greenwood, a Canadian who now represents York in Parliament, made a powerful speech on behalf of the removal of the embargo.

There will be general rejoicing throughout Ireland that the bill has not, at any rate, yet, been adopted. As one of the daily papers remarks, it is not to-day the pig that makes the rent, but the store cattle that are shipped to England and Scotland. They are the mainstay of at least 95 per cent. of the farmers of the west, and probably more than half of the rest of the country. The fattening of Irish stores is almost all done in Great Britain, and the import of live Canadian stores would at once, it is claimed, cheapen the price for Irish shippers, and the English and Scottish markets for Irish stores would automatically come to an end.

But if the Government is going to exclude live Canadian cattle in order to protect Irish farmers, it will be a very long time before Britain will see the free importation of live stores from the Dominion, for the term of redemption allowed to Irish farmers for their farms extends over no less a period than 68 1-2 years, and it is claimed by Irish farmers that, if Canadian cattle are allowed to compete with their own, they will lose their trade, upon which they depend for the money wherewith to pay the instalments for the redemption of their farms.

The London market for colonial butter still remains without any notable feature. If anything, the position is somewhat in favor of buyers, owing, almost entirely, to the large supplies on hand. Supplies of "choicest" Australian alone are on a somewhat limited scale, and consequently prices are firmer, standing now at 92s. to 94s. 9d.

Commenting upon the fact that a certain provision man was recently fined £20 for adulteration of butter, a contemporary points out that Canadian butter, containing as it does so small a proportion of moisture, from 8 per cent. to 11 per cent., is more easily faked than most other makes, and that it offers great temptations to those who carry on adulteration of butter to any extent. This is quite true, and it is all the more reason why Canadians should do as much as they can to urge the British Government to adopt the proposed legislation, which, it is hoped, would prevent adulteration for the future.

The London cheese market remains without any practical change. The demand continues fair, and supplies, which are not as large as might be desired, go rapidly into consumption. At the time of writing there are only some 52,041 boxes in store at the commercial docks.

It appears that there is an excellent market for Canadian cheese at Manchester just now. In spite of the fact that at this season falling markets are generally expected, Manchester dealers report that they do not foresee any reducton in quotations either for butter or cheese. A very healthy condition of affairs prevails. It is certainly a fact that the mild Winter has resulted in plentiful pastures and cattle have the advantage of fine grazing herbage, but still trade is everywhere on the upward tendency; employment is more plentiful, and money freer. It must be remembered all the time, however, that quality is going to count for a great deal. It is only when money is scarce that the inferior qualities of dairy produce are fallen back upon.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—The demand for lard shows a steady increase these days, due partly no doubt to the opening of navigation. Inquiries from points not conveniently located have been more frequent than they have been for some time past and this is considered a good omen for trade. Hams and bacon are also moving much better. Provisions generally, in fact, are now selling better than they have sold for the past month or two.

BUTTER—The market has again declined, and the bottom of the market has apparently not yet been reached. The make is, of course, continually increasing, and as this overtakes the home consumption the balance must decline until an export basis is reached. Still lower prices are expected and as they decline the local consumption should increase somewhat.

CHEESE—The market has developed a much easier feeling since last week, prices being down a cent a pound owing to the action of English importers who refused to operate at last week's figures. Prices are now getting down to an export basis, but still lower figures must be looked for as the output increases.

EGGS—Stocks continue to arrive in good quantities, as the daily receipts registered show, but they are not disposed of as rapidly as they should be, as they are allowed to accumulate and consequently the market is in bad condition owing to the scarcity entailed in this manner. Sixteen cents seems to be the average price asked, although occasionally a shade higher is obtained. No lower prices are expected in the near future.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—The market is firm at last week's quotations with the exception that the price paid for street lots of hogs has advanced 15c. as an encouragement to the farmer to neglect seeding for a day and come to the market. The plan worked and supplies have been a little more liberal. The provision men do not anticipate a lower market for some time to come.

BUTTER—Commission men find it difficult to give satisfactory market quotations this week. Creamery butter is considerably weaker owing to increasing supplies and the fact that the consumptive demand does not absorb the stocks offering. Considerable supplies of good dairy are arriving and aided by a lower price appear to be going into consumption more readily than the dairy. First-class creamery sold in Montreal this week at 19c. Locally the quotations on creamery prints ranged from 20c. to 24c. The fodder butter cannot be stored successfully and consequently the arrivals must go on the market.

EGGS—The situation to-day is causing the commission men who pickle or store eggs some uneasiness because of the continued high prices. Putting them away at the present level looks like giving a considerable surety to fortune. Some say they are not packing, others that they are all tumbling over each other to get their supply for next Fall and Winter. This is alleged as the reason for the stability of the market, but some declare that the eggs are not coming in and are being eaten more because of the high price of meat. Several dealers quoted as high as 17c., but they want to stimulate consignments. About 15½c. to 16c. seems to be a reasonable average.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The general feeling certainly appears to be one of confidence as regards the immediate outlook of grain and flour. There has been no repetition of the fluctuations mentioned in our last report; prices have practically remained where they were at the close of last week. Manitoba wheat has held itself in a remarkable way against Chicago prices and stands at the present time within ¼c. of Chicago prices. The strength of this can be better realized when it is remembered that at no very distant date the difference has been known to be as much as 9c.

Stocks held at upper lake ports are considered very low, being only some five millions, the current week having to account for some three million reduction.

Export trade has not been so attractive since last review, although inquiries have been good and prices well maintained.

Under the impression that the United States will have a considerable quantity of wheat for export on the 1905 crop from this out, English buyers have been holding off as much as possible. Speculation, however, may defer its shipment for some time, although there is no doubt eventually it will have to go forward, unless of course there is a probability of a short crop during the coming season, of which there is no appearance at present.

The late strength in the market on this continent was due unquestionably to speculative influences. In other words shorts were showing anxiety to cover, although there was apparently nothing in the news to stimulate buying. On the contrary, practically all the news, both domestic and foreign, was seemingly favorable to the bear side.

Regarding the crop news, a New York report at the close of last week said: "The prospect for the growing crop was considered more brilliant, because the temperature throughout Winter wheat territory was high for the season, while there was an abundance of sunshine where too much moisture had been complained of. It was, consequently, fair to assume that the plant was making excellent progress. In Spring wheat territory, both in this country and over the border, it was clear and much warmer. Farmers were able to make rapid progress with ploughing and seeding. Telegrams from that quarter indicated that over 50 per cent. of the area had been seeded and that within ten days the seeding would be completed, barring a sudden return of bad weather. In view of the facts cited, it was the general impression that farmers' deliveries at country stations would speedily show a marked enlargement, it being assumed that there would be more willingness to sell freely after Spring work was completed and the roads in a more passable condition."

WELL-KNOWN GRAIN MERCHANT DEAD.

One of Montreal's oldest grain merchants died last week in the person of Robert Peddie.

Mr. Peddie was a native of Cathcart, Scotland, and came out to Canada in 1865. He went into business here with the wholesale grain firm of D. Butters & Co., at that time one of the largest grain houses in Montreal. He was later associated with John Magor & Co., and afterwards went in with Crane & Baird, where he stayed for a good many years.

He joined the Corn Exchange in the year 1879 and was on the committee of management of that association in 1892-3-6-7 and 8. He was president of the Corn Exchange for two years, 1894 and 1895, and was a member of the board of review in 1899 and 1900.

Mr. Peddie was a familiar figure at the Board of Trade, and will be greatly missed by his many business and social friends.

PUT DUTY ON FLOUR.

C. M. Kittson, Canada's commercial agent in South Africa, has reported to Ottawa that the colony of Natal has imposed a duty of two shillings a hundred pounds on flour, which until now has been free.

Canada sold flour largely to the South African colonies during the last fiscal year, the total being 181,899 barrels valued at $903,030, an increase over the previous year's shipments of nearly $300,000. The shipments to Natal alone are not shown in the Trade and Commerce Department's reports.

A NEW BREAKFAST FOOD.

The Western Cereal Co., of Winnipeg, are putting on the market a new breakfast food known as "Meat of Wheat," made from Manitoba No. 1 hard wheat. Their mill is located in the Qu'Appelle Valley and their warehouse and office at 310 Ross avenue, Winnipeg.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

FLOUR—Market at present is very firm. Business is excellent and improving every day. Since the opening of navigation there has been a perceptible increase in the volume of business transacted each day, and this, it is to be hoped, will continue. There is an excellent demand from outside points and the flour companies are kept busy filling export orders. The local requirements are no less large. From the orders coming in, flour merchants must believe that the consumption of flour is increasing. Prices remain the same as they were last week.

ROLLED OATS—The situation remains just about what it was last week. There is a fair demand in some quarters while other dealers report nothing doing in any line. Taken on the whole, however, business may be said to be rather quiet.

HAY — There is a good demand throughout the province for hay, but stocks are hardly large enough to meet the orders coming in. Arrivals by boat, however, are increasing and this, it is thought, will help the situation considerably.

TORONTO MARKETS.

FLOUR—The domestic trade continues to flourish. Demand is good and prices are well maintained. Some mills are partly or wholly closed down for repairs previous to the coming season, so that just at the present moment no great trade is being exploited. The very low values which have recently been ruling have rather encouraged the slowing down of actual milling.

The larger eggs, too long for the regular size of 30 doz. and 49 doz. Fillers, are almost invariably lost by cracking and crushing of the shell through being packed in Fillers that are not deep enough.

Save this breakage and make more money in eggs by using the deeper XL Fillers.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Mrs. H. McKenzie, grocer, Owen Sound, Ont., has been burnt out.

Chauncy W. Cole, general merchant, Keswick, Ont., has sustained loss by fire.

Geo. Vieth, of Vieth & Borland, general merchants, Keithley Creek, B.C., deceased.

The Bank of Toronto has opened branches at Yorkton, Sask., and Cartwright, Man.

The J. M. Lowes Co., of Toronto, manufacturers of spices, have sustained loss by fire and water; insured.

E. C. Clark, Orangeville, Ont., successor to J. Lindsay, was a visitor at the Toronto Horse Show last week.

B. B. Gunn, M.P., Seaforth, Ont., with his family spent the week end and Sunday in Toronto and was a visitor on the street.

The Harry Webb Co. of Toronto, Limited, bakers, confectioners and restaurant, Toronto, have sustained loss by fire; insured.

Harold Hill, of Hill Co., Orangeville, made a purchasing trip to Toronto last week and added to the crowd at the Horse Show, and to its well-dressedness, all right, all right.

J. V. A. Coon, Havelock, Ont., general merchant, has so increased his trade that he has found it necessary to enlarge his store. He is making extensive improvements and when they are completed he will have one of the nicest stores on the C.P.R. east of Peterboro.

F. Coon, who opened a grocery in the south section of Peterboro, Ont., about a year ago, is building for himself a fine new place of business beside the present stand. The new store will be handsome and thoroughly up-to-date with a fine basement for storage purposes. Mr. Coon is getting on.

A. F. Choate, of Warsaw, Ont., general merchant, and one of the leading business men of that part of the province, has found that his trade has outgrown his store and is enlarging. He is putting on an addition that will serve as a storeroom and as well increase considerably the selling space of the store.

Jas. Maylor & Son, Forest, Ont., general merchants, are at present carrying out extensive improvements to their large store. It was two stores originally and the first object of the present reconstruction is to make them more completely one. When the work is finished the store will be one of the finest in Western Ontario.

F. A. Scott & Sons' Wellington street store, Ottawa, has a good window display of household brushes. This is a very attractive window and one of the best that has been seen in the locality this season. Messrs. Scott have three big stores—Bank street, Rideau street, and Wellington street.

Welland, Ont., merchants say business in that town has markedly increased in volume. They attribute it largely to the building of the Plymouth Cordage Co.'s plant, on which 400 men are engaged. When the works are in operation the population of the town will, it is said, be increased by 2,000. Another considerable industry is about to locate there.

MONTREAL GROCERS' PICNIC.

The Montreal Retail Grocers' Association held a meeting in their hall on Thursday evening, April 26. There were about seventy-five members present, and Mr. Chartrand, ex-president, occupied the chair in the absence of Mr. Daoust. The special committee appointed to look into the matter of selecting a suitable spot for the holding of the annual picnic reported and suggested Ile St. Amour as the most suitable place. It was decided that island should be the spot. The picnic will be held on July 11. Committees were named to arrange for the refreshments, games and other details.

The pure food show to be held this month came in for a good deal of discussion. The association is pleased at the progress being made towards making the affair a success. It was decided to bring to the fair for the purpose of supplying music, the Kilties Band of Toronto. The grocers of the province will hold a convention during the first week of the fair. Good work is being done towards the carrying out of the contract plan.

MONTREAL CHAMBRE DE COMMERCE MEETING.

In their new quarters, 76 St. Gabriel street, Montreal, the council of the Chambre de Commerce held its meeting on April 25. The meeting was more in the line of a house-warming than a business gathering, and the official opening of the new rooms will take place shortly. C. H. Catelli, the president, occupied the chair and gave a very interesting resume of the progress of the association since its organization in 1887.

The question was brought up of the suit taken against the Wholesale Grocers' Association for alleged conspiracy to restrict trade. It was explained by L. E. Geoffrion that the association had decided to increase the price of sugar that they might obtain a profit of 4 per cent. Mr. Geoffrion's suggestion that the matter should be taken up with the Government was referred to a special committee. After the meeting the members rode out to Bout de l'Isle, where a very enjoyable repast was served.

THE AMERICAN TEA DUTY.

American tea merchants have taken up the matter of the ten per cent. duty levied upon American teas coming into Canada. They have made representations to the State Department at Washington asking them to take up the matter with the British Foreign Office. It is probable that the matter will be held over and brought to the attention of the British authorities with several other matters demanding attention. It is not generally believed that anything will be done by the Canadian Government towards removing the duty. The local tea trade has not been affected in the least by the agitation.

WOLFVILLE BOARD OF TRADE.

The Wolfville Board of Trade, after discussion, have resolved to ask the several boards of trade in the three counties of Kings, Annapolis and Hants to send delegates to Wolfville to confer with each other on the subject of the decrease of the population in these counties, its causes and remedies. The census shows that in twenty years the decrease has been ten per cent.

Woodstock Cereal Co., Ltd.,

WOODSTOCK, ONTARIO.

Hamilton, Ont., April 24th, 1906.

Dear Sir:—

RE THE FOOD VALUE OF PEAS

It is estimated that food for the average man should contain 125 grams proteids, 500 grams carbohydrates and 50 grams of fat, representing over 3,000 calorics of heat energy.

It will be seen that the carbohydrates are the largest in bodily demand.

Peas are especially rich in carbohydrates. In fact, so much so is this the case that Peas have been called the poor man's beef. It is claimed that 1½ lbs. of dried Peas would supply the daily requirements of proteid for the average man, and the energy liberated, weight for weight, is greater than in beef, eggs or milk.

Canned Peas are without doubt the cheapest and the best food on the market at the present time. Taking the standard amount of energy liberated the cost of Peas is less than half the cost of Meats, etc., and many of your customers are spending too much money on Meats, Eggs, etc.

By calling your customers' attention to the facts as stated above, you will largely increase your sales, and especially so if you only sell Peas packed by the Canadian Canners, Limited, under any of the following brands, viz.—"Canada First," "Little Chief," "Log Cabin," "Horse-shoe," "Auto," "Lynnvalley," "Maple Leaf," "Kent," "Lion," "Thistle," "Globe," "Grand River," "Jubilee," "White Rose," "Deer," etc.

The Peas of these brands are packed the same day as picked, and when best suited for table use. The process of packing them is such that the Peas travel from the field to the can without coming in contact with the human hand, and thus these brands of Peas are more wholesome and cleanly than if cooked in a private kitchen.

You may assure your customers that every tin of goods under our label is guaranteed as to quality.

Yours truly,

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The reports which are arriving from all points are most encouraging. Trade has been good for some time, and advices still denote advancing demand. The run has been steadily on Californian fruits, and the great calamity at that place appears to have made little or no difference in either demand or supply.

Pineapples, which have been in small supply, are now fairly upon the market and are of excellent quality. Reports from all primal points speak of the crop as promising to be excellent this season. The plants appear to be healthy and have advanced bloom. The fruit promises to be exceptionally fine as to the run of sizes, and a larger increase in the number of crates can be accounted for by the prospects for a larger-sized fruit. Indications are that the sizes will run heavy in 24s, 30s and 18s.

One fruit company is perfecting arrangements with several large growers of pines, for exporting 10,000 crates to the European markets, and detailed plans are now being worked out with every assurance of success.

Grape fruit has also held a prominent place on some markets, and has been coming forward in splendid condition. A New York account referring to the present season's fruit says: "No handsomer, silkier or heavier grape fruit, more perfect in conformation and color, has been seen here this season than some lines offered by the Orange Growers' Cash Association on the California dock last Monday."

* * *

The apple season is now slowing down and all concerned are feeling pretty good at the result of the season's trade. It seems hardly credible, yet it is nevertheless true, that apples have maintained such splendid prices throughout the season. From present indications there is no reason to believe that there will be any material change, as holdings are light, and barely enough fruit can be offered to meet requirements. A sudden rise in temperature might affect market conditions in a small way, but there is every reason to believe that the balance of Winter fruit will go out at prevailing prices. We have had good, bad and indifferent years in the apple business, but in no one year have prices ruled so high, both here and across the water, and markets continued so active and steady as during the season that is now nearing the close. Generally there is a break in the apple market at some period during the Fall or Winter months, and while the trade looked for it on several occasions there was no break of any consequence.

CALIFORNIA CROP CONDITIONS.

To the Editor Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir,—As we are having many letters of inquiry in regard to the recent earthquake, which was particularly heavy in San Francisco, thought best to send a few lines giving you conditions as they exist here, and at the same time answer many letters of general inquiry as to whether there was any damage to crops, etc.

The earthquake occurred on the morning of Wednesday, April 18, at 5.15 a.m. It was particularly heavy in San Francisco. Oakland just across the bay suffered but little, while San Jose, 50 miles to the south, and some of the towns between that place and San Francisco, were badly shaken. Santa Rosa, fifty miles to the north, was badly shaken also, while some of the towns between that place and San Francisco were uninjured. Although the earthquake was felt in Sacramento, not one chimney or piece of plaster was disturbed.

The property loss in San Francisco, and some of the nearby towns as above indicated, would have been heavy on account of damage by the earthquake to the older buildings built many years ago being shaken down, even if it had not been for the fire, but in San Francisco immediately after the shock, some two scores of fires broke out, and at the same time it was discovered that the water mains leading into the city were broken and that there was not a drop of water. Each fire spread rapidly and in a short time whole business blocks were a seething mass of flames. The fire continued until Thursday evening before it was even partially under control. In the meantime three-fourths of the city burned, including all the business section. As a consequence there are some two hundred thousand people there homeless and destitute. The transportation companies are taking them from the city without cost and distributing them around and thus greatly relieving the congestion there.

The immediate response of food, clothing and supplies from the nearby cities that were uninjured and of provisions and money from other places in the United States made it possible almost immediately to commence rendering succor and aid, and no one thus far has suffered or lacked for anything more than a few hours. The generous contributions still pouring in makes it positive that there will be no keen suffering in the future, particularly in view of the fact that Summer is just coming on and that all can be housed and cared for before Fall.

I am pleased to say that the modern constructed buildings in San Francisco were practically uninjured by the earthquake.

The crops of all kinds have been uninjured in any respect. This is true of everything else as well as of fruits. Rebuilding will be commenced at once and for skilled labor there will be a great demand, while for the unskilled there will be plenty of opportunities in caring for the crops and in the building of new railroads now in the course of construction in California.

Everyone here has been staggered by the blow, and to the writer hereof, who happened to be in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake, it almost seems like a horrible nightmare, but, with the helping hand, broad sympathy and generous assistance tendered to the people of the state from all over the Union, order will soon come out of chaos and with the exception of San Francisco, our great clearing house, business will go ahead in all lines as usual.

Legal holidays still continue to give San Francisco a chance to find out where they are at and to permit the courts there to again get in working order. We expect soon to adjust ourselves to the new conditions and by the time the crops begin to move it is expected that everything will be running along normal lines.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—Good business in all lines characterizes the green fruit market these days. As the weather becomes milder sales increase. VEGETABLES—Business has been rather good throughout the week, and from now on better sales are expected. The new vegetables are coming in in greater quantities every day and as the arrivals increase the prices become lower, with consequent increased business. As yet new stock is rather high for the average grocer, but in a few weeks there will be a perceptible change in most lines. Florida celery is quoted at $4.50 a crate and is selling fairly well at this figure.

GREEN FRUITS—While the fruit trade has been good for months, it opened out this week and took on a Summer air. Pines are the feature with a considerable lowering of the price, but one firm heads its bill, "Strawberry season is in full swing." So it is in Carolina and Alabama, and the fruit is now arriving here in car lots. Consequently the price is easier. Grape fruit is approaching the close of the Florida season and the Jamaica is now coming in. The price is somewhat higher.

VEGETABLES—Southern stuff continues to increase in quantity, but not faster than consumption. Tomatoes, cabbages and celery are arriving by carloads and "step lively" is the order all through the fruit and vegetable trade. Local products, on the other hand, are not keeping up their end. It is, of course, the hardest season of the year for the vegetable jobber to obtain supplies and keep his trade in hand. The supply of rhubarb has about run out locally but the garden-grown is arriving and next week it will be coming in quantity. For most of the imported vegetables prices have reached a lower level during the week. Florida celery is about over. The last car is expected to arrive this week.

Potatoes are advancing. American buyers have practically cleaned up the New Brunswick market. Quebec "silver dollars" are coming in pretty freely, and being a white variety, though with very deep eyes and therefore very wasty, command 90c.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

SEASONABLE CONFECTIONERY.

Now that Spring is here, and the warm weather, it would be well to look to the confectionery department, for it, too, in a small measure is affected by seasons. In a very short time picnics will be the go, and with them the attendant evil of preparing lunches. Often when one has in view the preparation of a picnic lunch, the pleasure is largely lost on account of the amount of work entailed. For this reason, if picnickers could supplement their lunch with some of the lighter edibles that are convenient and inexpensive, there is no doubt but that it would appeal to them.

Of course every day is not a picnic day, but there are many other reasons why the stock of confections should be brightened up and gone over, so to speak. The days are about here when household cooking becomes a hot and laborious task, and the good wife who has made it her wont to prepare tasty cakes and dishes during the Winter months will look to the grocer to see what can be had for the evening tea.

There are many things that would answer for this purpose if they were only suggested by a nice arrangement in the grocer's showcase. It is unnecessary to enumerate them here. We all know how, when the warm weather comes, our appetite for what was pleasing during the Winter months seems to turn away from the heavier food and turn to fruits and the lighter forms of breadstuffs and biscuits.

But while it is early for native fruits, it would be a most opportune time to bring to the front those nice, small mats of table figs, raisins, and grapes which are so enticing when nicely displayed in the window.

There are many other things that are quite as seasonable, and one has but to ask what are the things that most appeal to his taste at this time of year, to find enough and to spare that will keep this part of the stock fresh and seasonable.

MAPLE SUGAR.

The large amount of maple sugar that is sold at this time of year would seem to show that this distinctly Canadian production is becoming more popular as the years go by, and the flow of sap, from reason of the depletion of our maple forests, becomes smaller.

So much has been said, however, on the adulteration of maple sugar, that people are rather suspicious of what is shown, as to its being the genuine article. It has not been an infrequent thing for what was represented to be maple sugar, to be made wholly of cheap brown sugar, without even a particle of sap from the tree that we as Canadians love to refer to in our national anthem.

There is a satisfaction in knowing that when we pay for maple sugar, and want it, we are getting it, and unless a dealer is assured that it is the genuine article he should not recommend it as such. On the other hand, the real maple sugar is a temptation to us all and if the purity is made known to the public by a neat display card, the truth of which the grocer can vouch for, people will more readily buy it.

At the Pure Food Show in Toronto a few weeks ago, maple sugar done up in 10-cent packages sold more readily than the more expensive and richer confections, simply because the public was assured that it was pure.

The purity of all confections is, however, a thing that should be impressed upon the customer always. Few other lines have been so adulterated and so tabooed by physicians and health reformers as have bon-bons and other sweetmeats. This has been largely the fault of manufacturers in trying to cheapen their output by the introduction of injurious ingredients. But the day of adulteration now happily seems to be passing away, and in buying only from reputable houses a person may be assured that only the purest sugars and syrups are used.

A few display cards kept in the confection department with short sentences impressing the purity upon the purchaser will soon give a store an enviable reputation, if, also, the stock is kept up to the claims put forth.

There is always a distinction about a store that keeps up the confectionery display. It has a tone and style that is lacking in the store that lets this part of the stock go back. It is better not to carry confections at all than to have the mixture of inferior, faded stuff that is sometimes seen in what is otherwise an up-to-date grocery. A few dollars expended in keeping the stock fresh and good, and a little judgment given to proper arrangement, is well expended and will not be by any means lost.

SAGER & CAMPBELL DISSOLVE

Sager & Campbell, Brantford, Ont., who have been in the confectionery business for some years, have dissolved partnership and the business in future will be conducted by Mr. Campbell alone. The retirement of Mr. Sager is due to ill health. He intends to remain in Brantford for some time, but has not fixed any definite plans for the future. The change will come into effect at once.

LARGEST LOAVES IN THE WORLD.

The largest loaves of bread baked in the world are those of France and Italy. The "pipe" bread of Italy is baked in loaves 2 feet or 3 feet long, while in France the loaves are made in the shape of very long rolls 4 feet or 5 feet in length, and in many cases even 6 feet. The bread of Paris is distributed almost exclusively by women, who go to the various bake-houses at 5.30 a.m., and spend about an hour polishing up the loaves. After the loaves are thoroughly cleaned of dust and grit, the "bread porter" proceeds on the round of her customers. Those who live in apartments or flats find their loaves leaning against the door.

TOBACCOS, CIGARS AND ACCESSORIES

HISTORY OF TOBACCO.

Tobacco has had a very chequered history as far as its introduction into Europe is concerned. In America its use is lost in antiquity, although smoking dried tobacco leaves is spoken of as being in practice among the Indians of Hispaniola as early as 1526. If found its way into Europe in the year 1559; was introduced into England in the year 1565 by Sir J. Hawkins, and in 1573 it seems to have been pretty generally known there. During the year 1586 it was made famous by Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir James Drake. About this time its use was made the butt of the popular wits. The clergy strenuously denounced its popularity, and King James I. issued a pamphlet against its use.

Kings, popes and sultans are all found arrayed against it, and smokers of the soothing weed were condemned to cruel punishments. In the canton of Berne the prohibition of the use of tobacco was put among the ten commandments.

In Turkey smoking was made a capital offence. In spite of this category of denunciation and prohibition tobacco smoking has become the most extensively used luxury in the world, from peasant to king.

MONTREAL'S NEW FACTORY.

Plans for one of the largest tobacco factories in Canada are now being prepared for the American Tobacco Company, Montreal, and within a few weeks tenders will be called for a group of buildings occupying a lot of nearly 70,000 square feet of land.

This move was decided upon when the factory on Beaver Hall Hill was burned out a few weeks ago, and the company expects to spend nearly $250,000 on its new premises.

The new property will occupy the entire block facing on St. Antoine street between Bourget and Annie streets, Montreal, some 181 feet front, running back between the two streets about 370 feet.

The main building, 180x124 feet, with a 60-foot wing, will be five storeys high. On the ground floor will be the head offices of the company, with all accommodation for the general staff. The upper storeys will be devoted to the factory purposes.

The shipping department will occupy a two-storey building 106x60, and 25 feet high. In the rear of this will be the power house, a one-storey brick building.

A leaf storage warehouse for the heavy stock continually ripening will be built, one storey brick, 85x50 feet, and the group will be capped off with an up-to-date stable and wagon house.

THE WISE WOMAN.

Once there was a wise woman who permitted her husband to smoke wherever he chose in the house, and who did not object if he struck matches on the woodwork or dropped ashes on the floor. Eventually the man began going down town nights and otherwise absenting himself from home. Did the woman weep? Did she repine? Not any. She did not even go and tell her mother about it. She sat down and thought for a moment and decided upon a course of action.

Next time her husband struck a match on the woodwork she told him he mustn't do that any more—that she wasn't going to have her house looking like a barn, and when he dropped ashes on the floor she advised him not to do that as it was too much bother cleaning up after him, and she intended that her house should be neat and well kept. Then finally, she said he musn't smoke in the house, as it scented the curtains and vitiated the atmosphere, and she didn't want her house to smell like a tobacco shop.

So ever since then the man has staid at home continuously, except while at work, just to show her that he has as much to say about what shall be done in that house as she has.

TOBACCO NOTES.

The tobacco crop takes from the soil about 103 pounds of actual potash per acre, which must be replaced or else the yield will fall off in quantity and quality.

A good tobacco fertilizer should contain at least ten per cent. of pure potash, and the potash should be in the form of sulphate.

IDEAS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

SYSTEM GONE TO SEED.

"The old man" has just seized the telephone transmitter and called up his manager, this being the final step in a long "thinking spell" about the overloaded system in his business. He has come to the conclusion that he has no further use for a so-called "system" that so envelops employes in red tape that it ties up all energy and initiation and turns men into machines. These are the "sparks from the old man's wire" as caught on the fly and recorded by Frank B. Rae, Jr.:

Hello! That you, Lane? I want you to drop everything, take a good, sharp ax and go over this office cutting out superfluous system right away, now! We're getting all snarled up in a lot of pesky red tape. I want it thrown out.

System essential? I know that. I didn't build up this business by guesswork. But we've just got a thin core of real system running through our business—and around that a lot of deadwood has gathered that you think is system. But it isn't. It's red tape—system gone to seed. Fact is, Lane, the business has been growing so rapidly for the past three years that we've sort of lost track of first principles. We've been adding amendments and provisos to the old methods; we've adopted a lot of fads and temporary schemes and then made them permanent, until now our routine is half red tape. And red tape is just a bad habit—you don't know that you've got it till it's got you.

Can't handle your people without it? There's just the greatest danger of red tape—it over-regulates employes; too much machinery in the office makes them machines. And—

Men have no initiative? Not after you've got through with them—carding and numbering them like so much merchandise. Take my word for it, Lane, the force here is made up of human beings, not "help." I believe we can trace half our office troubles to the fact that red tape has almost wiped out individuality among the clerks. I don't believe we get the best there is in the boys when they're handled like so many adding machines or billing machines or phonographs. I've noticed this especially since I'm away a good deal. Everybody is at a standstill: nobody's getting promoted; and nobody's doing anything to make himself get promoted.

No—no—you're not right there, Lane. We need men in the business. You and I and one or two more can't provide all the brains and ideas and energy—and we won't always be here. The more gray matter that is convoluting for our interests, the bigger those interests will become. We want a system that will make men think—not one that takes all need or desire to think away from them; and—

Exactly. Now change things around so as to infuse a little cayenne and self-confidence into the boys. The automatic, double-checking, self-acting mistake-preventing system may look very sweet and tempting on paper, but if it gets a strangle-hold on personal ambition and kills initiative, it's a mighty expensive economy.

Take the case of Egan. He's a branch manager now, but he'd have been a clerk all his life if the tape hadn't broken down and given him a chance. He marked time for three years, going through routine. Then the chief clerk got sick and Egan had to take his desk. Had a few letters to write and a few orders to give. That touch of responsibility made Egan. In a week he was hustling around on his own hook, helping to run the business—and he's been helping ever since.

Exception? Not a bit of it. Anyway, if it was, I want you to find whether there are any more of those exceptions floating around in this office undiscovered. That's the sort of opportunity we ought to chuck under the nose of every clerk every day. I don't want a system that develops plodders—I want one that develops men.

Sure. You know these things as well as I do. The trouble is, the telegraph poles of routine are passing by you so fast that you can't see the significance of an isolated pole. You're looking at the force as so much "help" as it appears on paper in the auditor's report, instead of taking a good square look around the office and observing that each individual is a sovereign Canadian citizen with ambition and brains, as well as hands.

Will have to revise your system? You bet—revise it so that we get the use of those brains. Loosen up the red tape and give that ambition elbow room. Make your regulations positive instead of negative. For I tell you, Lane, we can make more money by utilizing brains and ambition than we can possibly save by restricting our clerks to an error-proof system. That's the idea. Good-by.

WHY MEN FAIL.

Everyone knows men whose failure to rise in the world is plainly due to their inability to take the other man's point of view. I have in mind a salesman in a great mercantile establishment who is a genuine hustler, a persistent worker. He has a high forehead, a strong nose and chin; his general appearance is agreeable. What is the matter with him? Why can one so surely predict that he will never rise to the lucrative positions in his business he might legitimately aim at? Because he is always complaining of the exactions of his superiors, the long hours, insufficient pay, the use of the time clock, the necessity of caring for his stock, and a hundred other things that prove how far he is from comprehending or trying to comprehend his employer's point of view. He never in all his 30 years has caught even a glimpse of himself from anybody's point of view but his own.

How can you gain another man's point of view? First, by posting yourself on his business; then by the use of whatever reason and imagination you possess trying to think his thoughts after him. Every ambitious worker, then, should post himself on his employer's business. Let your curiosity and your observation eat it up bit by bit. Ask questions of everyone whenever you can do so without becoming offensive. Let no process that comes to our notice as a subordinate escape your complete understanding. Never be satisfied with simply obeying orders; obey certainly, but as quickly as possible learn the full significance of the order you have obeyed. If your employer insists on a certain routine that you as a subordinate find inconvenient, comply with it, not only because that is your simple duty, but because as an ambitious man you should put yourself in his place.

THE MAN WHO CHEATS HIS WORK

An employer of thousands of men was asked what thing in all his large operations gave him the most concern. "The man who does a little less than is expected of him," is the reply. "He is the dangerous factor in all business. The absolute failure we readily discover and discharge, but the 'almost' escape detection for months and often for years, and they make our losses as well as our fears," and with a very serious smile he added, "The drip in business is worse than the leak."

Thousands of men fancy they are fulfilling their duty to their employers and to their tasks by keeping hours and performing just enough to hold on to their positions. They have an idea that to do more would be to give larger service than their compensation required. They object to what they believe would be extra values. "The old man shan't get more than he's paying for" is the vernacular.

Possibly it never strikes these trimmers that in cheating their work they are doing double damage; they are injuring their employers much, they are robbing themselves more; they are, in fact, losing everything in life that is worth while. They fare worse than if they did nothing at all, for time with all its precious values slips entirely from them and leaves no substance or satisfaction. Half doing soon brings undoing. It is the nine-tenths doing or the ninety-nine and one-hundredths doing that bleeds business and saps character.

Crescent BM&Co. TRADE MARK. Brand

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

Hamilton, Ont., April 24th, 1906.

Dear Sir:—

RE THE FOOD VALUE OF PEAS

It is estimated that food for the average man should contain 125 grams proteïds, 500 grams carbohydrates and 50 grams of fat, representing over 3,000 calorics of heat energy.

It will be seen that the carbohydrates are the largest in bodily demand.

Peas are especially rich in carbohydrates. In fact, so much so is this the case that Peas have been called the poor man's beef It is claimed that 1½ lbs. of dried Peas would supply the daily requirements of proteid for the average man, and the energy liberated, weight for weight, is greater than in beef, eggs or milk.

Canned Peas are without doubt the cheapest and the best food on the market at the present time. Taking the standard amount of energy liberated the cost of Peas is less than half the cost of Meats, etc., and many of your customers are spending too much money on Meats, Eggs, etc.

By calling your customers' attention to the facts as stated above, you will largely increase your sales, and especially so if you only sell Peas packed by the Canadian Canners, Limited, under any of the following brands, viz.—"Canada First," "Little Chief," "Log Cabin," "Horse-shoe," "Auto," "Lynnvalley," "Maple Leaf," "Kent," "Lion," "Thistle," "Globe," "Grand River," "Jubilee," "White Rose," "Deer," etc.

The Peas of these brands are packed the same day as picked, and when best suited for table use. The process of packing them is such that the Peas travel from the field to the can without coming in contact with the human hand, and thus these brands of Peas are more wholesome and cleanly than if cooked in a private kitchen.

You may assure your customers that every tin of goods under our label is guaranteed as to quality.

Yours truly,

"CANADIAN CANNERS, Limited"

Ceylon Tea....

the grocer's best.

Tea soil cannot be found anywhere. The best tea can only be found at certain altitudes. "Ceylon" has the finest soil for tea production and the healthiest altitudes in the East, reaching some 8,000 feet. The "Best" tea comes from plantations where soil and climate combine to give that aromatic fragrance and gentle stimulating exhilaration, which healthily grown tea always imparts. ¶ Did you ever hear of a grocer who sold only "Ceylon Tea" who didn't do a flourishing trade? Then why not share "Ceylon" success yourself? . . . . . .

Ceylon Tea....

holds trade like the true British Bulldog. Sell only Ceylon Tea . . . .

Cured and Packed
Where Caught!

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

One reason why the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies, Kippered Herrings, etc., retain the rich, delicate flavor of the freshly-caught fish is because they are cured and packed right at the water side where they are caught.

There is no dirt, no slime in the "Thistle" Brand. There are no "odds and ends" thrown in in a hurry. The "Thistle" Brand contains nothing but carefully-selected fish—only the best will do for the "Thistle" Brand!

The cost to clean, cure and pack the "Thistle" Brand is without doubt greater than the cost involved in marketing any other Brand in the country, yet the high quality has been steadily maintained. The "Thistle" Brand competes on quality and not on price. It is the Standard Brand of Canned Fish!

Highest Quality Always.

Beware of Imitations!!!

None are genuine that do not bear the name of

"THE FAIRBANK PLAN"

LOOK INTO IT

and see just what "The Fairbank Plan" is. While we spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year advertising the six great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

and educating the public regarding them; and while we intend to continue doing this, we realize fully that advertising alone has not accomplished the splendid results we have enjoyed in the sale of these goods, but that "the man behind the counter" has been an important factor in extending and increasing our trade. It was the realization of this fact that gave birth to "The Fairbank Plan," as a method of rewarding the retail clerks for their earnest co-operation in selling these goods and, consequently, a portion of our immense advertising appropriation is now set aside for the recognition of the dealer and his clerks.

"The Fairbank Plan" is an absolutely fair method of rewarding the clerk in direct proportion to the interest displayed in pushing the six specialties, as each package of these goods is couponed in such a manner that the coupon can be easily removed before the goods pass into the hands of the consumer. For these coupons we offer many valuable articles.

If you will send for an illustrated premium list of "The Fairbank Plan" it will convince you that this is no cheap trading-stamp scheme.

"To use with Lamb or Fish or Meat,

Queen Quality Sweet Pickles

Remember Queen Quality Pickles are no experiment. We have been making them for ten years and they now have a "good hold."

We advertise to scatter their fame further.

We are anxious that Queen Quality Sweet Pickles shall get a try in your store.

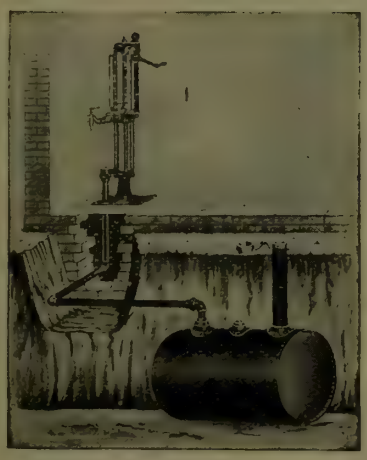
GASOLENE ECONOMY



CUT No. 42
Tank Buried, Pump in Store. One of Fifty.
Good for Kerosene, too.

Is it economy for you as a dealer in gasolene to handle it in wooden barrels or faulty metal tanks when oil experts say that from fifteen to fifty per cent of all gasolene so stored is lost through evaporation, leakage and waste?

Is it economy for you to run the risk of an expensive fire which could have been prevented had you taken the precaution here mentioned?

Is it econmy for you to consume ten minutes in getting a gallon of gasolene for a customer, when ten gallons can be drawn in one minute with a Bowser Gasoline Outfit? It's safe, convenient, economical and clean. The Standard Equipment for gasolene storage. Endorsed by experts. Send for Gasolene Catalog "B"

The Nibble of a Mouse

will eventually consume the biggest cheese, and the loss of pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars, if it don't "bust" the biggest business, will reduce the profit to an alarming extent. And you're bound to lose more or less if you do a credit business, and depend on ledger balances taken from the day-book. Throw out your day-books and other time-wasting devices, and adopt the modern Allison Coupon System.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? A CALLER AT OUR LONDON, ENG., OFFICE.

Alfred C. H. Froemcke, of Montreal, who has been making a hurried visit to the principal cheese centres in Great Britain, managed to find time to call at the London office of The Canadian Grocer. Mr. Froemcke is one of the best authorities on butter and cheese in Canada, and is well known amongst the trade in London, Liverpool, Bristol and Manchester, which cities he has just been visiting. Mr. Froemcke is a passenger on the steamship Canada, which left Liverpool May 5.

Merchants in the tourist areas of Ontario are anticipating a big season and are buying accordingly.

GOOD ADVERTISING

A department devoted to the improvement of Retail Advertising. The editor of this department will be pleased to answer questions on advertising and review any advertisements submitted to him.

ABOUT NEXT WEEK'S ADVERTISING.

During the past week no great changes have taken place on the markets so that the safe policy to pursue will be the "pegging away" attitude.

The maple sugar season is just about over and the fresh fish season has just opened—i.e. at prices making continuous sales possible.

There is quite a demand for molasses and while prices are firm, a little specialty advertising could be done on this line.

In fresh fruit, strawberries and pineapples appear to have the run, arrivals being quite frequent. The Winter apple season is drawing to a close, so that, unless one had a good stock, "apple" advertising would be unnecessary.

Tomatoes and onions are deserving of mention as they are beginning to come in freely. Prices should soon be within the reach of the majority.

Keep your eye on sugar.

A Grocer's Jingle for the Children.

Kelly Liken, a grocer at Ashland, Ky., gets out a blotter with the following alphabetical jingle printed thereon. He offers a present to every child less than ten years old who will memorize the lines and repeat them at the store:

A is for Apple, ripe and red,
B is for Butter to put on your bread,
C is for Candy, a large display,
D is for Dinner-Basket, to fill for the day,
E is for Eggs, pure and fresh,
F is for Flour to increase your flesh,
G is for Gloves, to save the hands.
H is for Harps, that play like brass bands,
I is for Ink, to write on your leaf.
J is for a jar of our best Chipped Beef,
K is for Kelly, who is here yet,
L is for Likens, who will stay, you bet.
M is for Molasses, Sorghum or Syrup,
N is for New Things, we always stir up,
O is for Oysters, now eat your fill.
P is for Pickles, sweet, sour and dill,
Q is for Quarter, that will buy a whole lot,
R is for Red Horse, a plenty we've got,
S is for Smoked-Bacon, by strip or slice.
T is for Trap, to catch your sly mice,
U is for Underwear, soft and warm,
V is for Vegetables, fresh from the farm.
W is for Woodenware, buckets and baskets neat.
X is for Xcellence of which our stock is complete.
Y is for Yeast, your bread to raise,
Z is for Zu Zu, that's all the craze.
& is for And-so-Forth, all we've missed and hundreds of things not on this list.

Customers' Names.

When you are approached about selling a list of your customers' names turn the offer down. It's not the right thing to do, and the person seeking the names is considering his own welfare, not yours, nor your customers.'

One or two merchants are said to have supplied a manufacturer of instruments with a couple of thousand names and these people were then pestered with mail order literature. Think what would have happened to the merchants if the story had leaked out.

Trade Tempters.

A grocer in Atlanta on the Thursday of one week gave away with every 25 cent purchase (or more) a novel hatchet with thermometer attached.

Another grocer ran this ad for a week: "Purchase one dollar's worth of anything in our store and get a half-pound box of ——— candy absolutely free."

Wishing to push the sales of a new blend of tea a western supply store offered with each pound three triple-plated, coin-silver spoons.

This in a New Haven paper: "Health first of all. Free this week—with every 12-pound bag of —— whole wheat flour a half-pound box of —— baking powder, worth 15 cents."

The photograph scheme turned in quite a number of new orders for a Spokane grocer. He advertised that with with every purchase in his store there would go a ticket entitling the holder to have a plain photograph, or a distinct tintype, enlarged, and a sample was kept in the store to show that the work was not "cheap."

The Better Way.

The general public is not foolish. It is growing wise and is needing more seductive bait every day to induce it to buy.

Your circular letters—What do you do about them? How do you feel toward them? Does each one interest you? Or, do you look on them with indifference? Do you treat them ill-manneredly? If you do, beware! It means money out of your pocket, loss of prestige, gain to your competitor.

I know of a concern sending out fairly good circular letters, that has the man taking care of that department sitting with his letters and typewriter directly where he can be seen by every person coming into that office. I can read the thoughts that pass through the minds of each man who enters that office in response to an advertisement as he gazes upon the means that brought him there. "Baited, eh! Thought I had a personal letter, and that man there is sending the same thing to other people just as fast as he can print the names. I don't like it," and he goes away disgusted with the firm and its methods.

I know of another firm, up-to-date, progressive and far-seeking. Each circular letter has a personal aspect and finish. When a client calls, in response to a letter, the manager grasps him cordially by the hand and says: "Why, yes, I couldn't see why no answer came to my first letter, so I thought I would write to you again, and I know our business transactions are going to be pleasant."

There is no way of telling that each circular letter of that firm is not personal, except by, perhaps, a shade of color in the filling-in ribbon. What the letter says is bona fide, every promise is kept, every statement true, so that there is no reason under the sun why it cannot be called a "personal letter" instead of the somewhat opprobrious "circular letter."

Can yours be thus termed? Do you go farther than filling in names and changes? Do you meet every promise, every statement, every wish, conveyed in your letters? If not, why, revise your letter to what you actually can and will do and then go ahead to live them—and your circular letters will become real personal letters.—A. H. W.

A traveling agent for a large wholesale grocery house was selling a bill of goods to one of his customers, a grocer in a little village. "Now," he said, "to wind up with, don't you want a few cans of our maple syrup? You'll find it the best you ever kept in stock."

"No," said the grocer. "I've got plenty of maple syrup."

"When did you get it? I don't remember selling you any when I was here on my last trip."

"You didn't. I got this in the country."

"Is it the real stuff?"

"That's what it is. My brother made it in his own camp. He's got 500 trees."

"I'd like to taste it."

A sample of the country maple syrup was brought out. He tasted it, and took the grocer to one side.

"Say," he said, in a low tone. "I'm not going back on the strictly pure goods I sell, of course, but I want a gallon of this stuff for my own use."

WINDOW AND INTERIOR DISPLAYS

A BRIGHT, ATTRACTIVE WINDOW.

The decoration of show windows, it seems, is looked upon from the standpoint of expense by very many grocers and not from any beneficial results that may accrue ; in fact, they have not as yet been convinced that it pays, that it is one of the best advertisements to attract and maintain trade there is, which has been proven time and again by grocers who have made a thorough test of the practice. Neither will they be convinced until they, too, have given the method a like test.

Looked at as an Investment.

Of course, it is good business to take into account the cash expense of outgoes, but it is equally good business to consider the financial benefits derived from investments, whether it be two dollars or two thousand, and the time expended in arranging a window display is an investment, likewise the stock and fixtures. But the above class of grocers are not yet ready to look at it that way and whatever display they do chance to make is just so much time lost to no object, or at least no more so than sweeping the floor or keeping the stock in place. But those are essentials which facilitate trade ; other grocers there are who consider window displays in the same light as hanging up pictures at home or decorating the mantleshelf with evergreens, while others follow the practice simply because the neighboring dealers do so or because it is the custom, losing sight of or ignoring the main count in the transaction, that it is an investment and pays. But the old saying has it that "ignorance is bliss and it is folly to be wise," so we presume this sentiment must be admitted until the dawn of light, yet it is pretty hard medicine to swallow and those who are enlightened have a duty to perform in delivering their fellow-tradesmen from this fallacy.

As a Suggestion of Prosperity.

The up-to-date business man tries to see his store as strangers see it and realizes that a bright business place suggests prosperity while a dismal store gives an impression of a failing business and the desirable customer shuns it as a place not only gloomy but unlikely to be properly stocked.

Arrests Attention.

Notice how the brightest store in the block attracts the attention of the people passing along the street. Even the man in a hurry will unconsciously turn his face toward the bright places along his route, and if he remembers anything at all about the way he has come it is of those cheerful spots that flashed across the sidewalk and attracted his attention.

OUR ILLUSTRATION.

The illustration given this week is that of the store of R. S. Jones, Wellington street, Stratford, Ontario. The interior shown is one of those long, narrow stores, somewhat difficult to display to good advantage. Mr. Jones, however, has made an excellent showing. He has made ample use of the several kinds of movable fixtures, which are readily pushed to and fro as occasion requires. Behind the counter is arranged a good long row of store bins for handy service. One of the great features of this store is the amount of canned goods carried, a trade which Mr. Jones has specially thrown himself open to cultivate ; these lines, therefore, take a prominent place in the display. Mr. Jones has been in his present store some six years, and the illustration is given as showing more what can be done with simple, inexpensive fittings under ordinary conditions rather than as showing the more elaborate and expensive fixtures.

An Interior Display of R. S. Jones, Stratford.

REMODELLING THE WINDOW.

Remodelling a show window is the subject of an interesting bit of suggestive talk by Frank Farrington, who writes to Brains thus :

"We have been putting plate glass windows in our store this week. I say 'we,' but I mean the boss and the carpenters. They say it's a good sign if a new clerk calls the firm 'we' the first day he works for them. I'm not a new clerk, but I'm a 'we' clerk just the same. I'm just as much a part of the concern as if I got a slice of the dividends each year.

"The old windows were pretty fair. They were big and let in a good deal of light and we kept them clean and full of good goods with the prices on them, and they made money for us; but plate glass, of course, is the thing and we had to have it. All the neighbors and our competitors were ahead of us getting it, but we had been so busy getting the business that we hadn't found any time to tear the front of the store all to pieces until last week. We didn't really have the time. We took it.

"When it came to putting in the new windows, the boss wanted to know what I thought of running them clear down to the floor. Lots of the windows nowadays, you know, are right on the ground.

"People used to have their windows up high. You had to stand on your tiptoes to see in. Then they all got an attack of the notion that low windows were the thing, and most of the later-build windows represent the notion gone to seed. Window panes that rest right on the sidewalk. You have to get down on your knees to see what the goods really look like if they are small things.

"The boss said he was going to put in one of those get-down-on-your-knees windows. I told him to think it over a while first. He wanted to know what my objections were. He said that nobody put their windows up high nowadays, not even as high as your knees.

"I told them that if I were in his place it wouldn't make a bit of difference to me what nobody or anybody was doing, because I would want windows the way I wanted them and that would be the way I would have them.

"I said that my idea of the right height for a window was, with regard to the inside appearance or the arrangement, to choose a height that would let every one outside see the goods with the least effort. That meant that the bottom and floor of the window must be low enough for the smallest person to see in and yet high enough so that no one would have to bend down to examine the goods or to read the price cards.

"About nine people in ten are more or less off in their eyesight and have to get rather close to things to see them well. Make the bottom of the window about two feet from the ground and you will suit every one.

"Well, he heard my story and thought it over a few days and ordered the windows up to 24 inches, and now that they are in we are all stuck on the height. It's just right. The windows dress up to the best possible advantage with any kind of small goods.

"Hundreds of fine show windows are spoiled by being lighted wrong at night. and in the daytime, too. Some dealers seem to think that the idea is at night to get all the light they can to shine out af the windows on the street, so that every one going by will say, 'My, what a bright light!'

"That's all right if you want people to remember your store simply as the store with the bright light, but if you are to sell the goods, the goods are what you want to show. The goods themselves have to be the attraction. If that is the case, the goods must be lighted whether the pavement outside is or not. Arrange your lighting scheme so that the light will fall on the goods."

WARREN BROS. & CO. TO REORGANIZE.

The old established wholesale grocery firm, Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto, is about to be reorganized and converted into a joint stock company. The business was a part of the Canada Grocers, Limited, from the directorate of which company Mr. W. A. Warren resigned in February with the intention of retiring from the grocery business. When the various firms comprising the Canada Grocers dissolved that arrangement and bought back their businesses, the Warren business, had Mr. Warren continued in his intention of retiring, would have had to be wound up, unless another purchaser could have been found by the Canada Grocers. Members of the staff urged Mr. Warren to reconsider and this week he consented and it was decided to reorganize. The new company will consist of Mr. Warren and seven members of the staff, two inside men and five travelers. Mr. Warren will be president and manager. Application for the charter will be made next week.

CANNED GOODS LOSSES.

The latest estimates of the loss of canned goods in the San Francisco disaster place the total loss of salmon at 225,000 cases (at least 200,000 cases of this was red Alaska tall salmon). Canned fruit loss in first hands is approximately 180,000 cases. (This does not include jobbers' loss). Tomatoes, 80,000 cases; sundry vegetables, packers' hands, 20,000 cases; sundry vegetables, jobbers' hands, 250,000 cases. This does not include the corn which was held in large blocks by the San Francisco jobbers, and which was bought early at a low price.

Much tin for the Alaska salmon canners is said to have been destroyed and cannot be replaced in time so that this year's pack may be a half to three-quarters of a million cases short. That with the expected general shortage will greatly enhance the price of salmon abroad.

AMERICAN TOMATOES.

Maryland packers have packed in the last fifteen years about one-third of the output of the United States, and are known to nearly every buyer in the United States. The climate of Maryland is particularly suitable for the growth of the tomato as regards yield, flavor and texture, the packers are considered the most experienced, hence are able to cater to the wants of buyers located in various localities. Maryland packed tomatoes are largely used by buyers to be marketed under their own (buyer's) labels.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

From this on to the end of the shipping season The Canadian Grocer will endeavor to give a brief summary each week of the shipping trade, through the port of Montreal, of interest to the grocery trade. This has been usually done after opening of navigation each year.

The Allan liner Virginian reached port last Saturday, being the first turbiner of the season. The trip was made in seven hours better time than the initial trip last year. The Virginian carried a large and varied cargo.

The Dominion liner Dominion cleared Montreal for Liverpool Saturday, May 5, with a general cargo including meats, cheese, and other products. Quite a lot of western goods were shipped, including 500 boxes of Quaker oats.

The Dominion liner Turcoman also cleared on Saturday with Bristol for her destination. The cargo was even more varied than that of the Dominion, grain, hay, meats, dairy products, flour, lard and Grape Nuts being included. A good sized shipment of cream separators was also made.

It is rumored in shipping circles that the Allan Company will shortly build a new boat without turbines which will run between British ports and the St. Lawrence ports.

There is some talk also of the C. P. R. Co. building two new boats of the Empress type.

There is a possibility that before the shipping season is over the St. Lawrence route will be used by two steamers at present engaged in the Liverpool-New York service. In London there is at present considerable attention given to the Canadian freight, as well as passenger service, and in Liverpool there is said to be a rumor to the effect that two combine steamers are to be taken from the Liverpool-New York service to be placed on the Liverpool-Montreal route.

The F. F. Dalley Co. have closed their Winnipeg branch and will in future handle their western business from Hamilton, Ont.

VISITOR FROM SPAIN.

E. H. Morgan, representing Rein & Co., Malaga, Spain, was a visitor to Montreal trade this week in company with the firm's local representative, Alex. Hendery. Mr. Morgan has been making a tour of the principal Canadian and United States cities, visiting representatives and the grocery and fruit jobbing trades. He reports very favorable reception and the gratifying information that Rein & Co.'s brands are taking a prominent position in buyers' orders. After a trip to Quebec and the Maritime Provinces Mr. Morgan returns to Malaga.

CAMPBELL, WILSON & HORNE.

The Calgary branch of Campbell Bros. & Wilson has been separately incorporated and will be known as Campbell, Wilson & Horne. The Canadian Grocer extends congratulations to John Horne, the Calgary manager, who has thus been admitted to the firm. Mr. Horne is an experienced commercial traveler and last year was president of the Northwest Commercial Travelers' Association. In January last he resigned his position as sales manager in the Winnipeg house to become manager in Calgary.

NEW MONTREAL ADDRESS.

Sutcliffe & Bingham, manufacturers of Kkovah jellies, have moved from their Montreal premises on St. John street to larger and more modern quarters at 30 William street, where in future their business will be transacted, under the managership of G. H. Bradwell as heretofore.

CALIFORNIA PRUNE CROP.

A prominent American dried fruit dealer writing from California is quoted as saying that in his opinion the prune crop of that valley will not be more than 25 per cent. heavier than that of last year, which would make it 50 or 60 per cent. of a full crop. In his opinion the opening price will remain at 3c. f.o.b. bag basis for but a short time, advancing to at least 3½c. basis. On account of the earthquake labor is likely to be scarce and packers are desirous of selling 50-lb. rather than 25-lb. boxes.

A. E. Roy, who was formerly connected with the Winnipeg branch of the F. F. Dalley Co., is commencing business as a manufacturer of grocers' sundries on Portage avenue east.

MACHINES MAKE GLASS JARS.

For the first time glassware is now being turned out completely by automatic machinery. It is being done in Muncie, Ind., U.S., at the big fruit jar factory of Ball Brothers, and the success of the process is due to A. L. Bingham, of the factory, whose inventions of labor-saving machinery have been largely instrumental in giving Ball Brothers the control of the world's fruit jar market.

Although jars have been turned out by machinery for many years it was not until the present that machinery has been made to take the place entirely of human intelligence in their manufacture. One man now operates the machine that turns out the ware.

IDEAS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS

EARNING, SAVING AND SPENDING MONEY.

According to the proverb, "an empty bag cannot stand upright"; neither can a man who is in debt. A man in debt cannot be relied upon to tell the truth; hence it is said that lying rides on debt's back. The man who owes money generally has to make excuses for not paying it when due, and in many cases has to lie about it. The first step in debt is like the first step in falsehood—almost involving the necessity of proceeding in the same course, debt following debt, as lie follows lie. Many a man can date the beginning of the failure of his life from the day he first borrowed money, and realizes when too late the force of the proverb, "who goes a-borrowing goes a-sorrowing."

The Best Test of Character.

The way a man uses money—makes it, saves it and spends it—is perhaps one of the best tests of character. Money should by no means be regarded as the chief end of life; neither should it be held in contempt, as it represents to a large extent the means of physical and mental comfort. Some of the finest qualities of human nature are intimately related to the right use of money—generosity, honesty, justice and self-sacrifice.

An Inferior Class.

The class of men who live from hand to mouth will always be an inferior class. They necessarily remain impotent and helpless, hanging on to the skirts of society—the sport of time and seasons. Having no respect for themselves, they fail in securing the respect of others. In commercial crises they invariably go to the wall.

The Law of Nature.

The world has always been divided into two classes—those who have saved and those who have spent—the thrifty and the extravagant. The building of all houses, the mills, the bridges, the railroads, the ships, and the accomplishment of all the other great works which have done so much for man's advancement and happiness have been done by the savers; and those who have wasted their money have always been their slaves. It is the law of nature that this should be so.

Loose Cash Thrown Away.

Lord Bacon's maxim, that when it was necessary to economize it was better to look after the petty saving than to descend to petty gettings, is a good one to follow. The loose cash that many persons throw away uselessly would often form the basis of fortune and independence. These wastes are their own worst enemies, and are generally found in the ranks of those who are constantly railing at the injustice of the world.

Keep Accounts.

John Locke, the great English philosopher, strongly advises this course: "Nothing," said he, "is likelier to keep a man within compass than having constantly before his eyes the state of his affairs, in a regular course of account." The great Duke of Wellington kept an accurate detailed account of all the moneys received and expended by him. "I make a point," said he, "of paying my own bills, and I advise everyone to do the same; formerly, I used to trust a confidential servant to pay them, but I was cured of that folly by receiving one morning, to my great surprise, duns of a year or two's standing. The fellow had speculated with my money and left my bills unpaid." Talking of debt, his remark was: "It makes a slave of a man. I have often known what it was to be in want of money, but I never got into debt."

Washington was as particular as Wellington in matters of business detail, and it is a remarkable fact that he did not disdain to scrutinize the smallest outgoing of his household—determined as he was to live honestly within his means, even when holding the high office of president of the United States.

Riches no Proof of Worth.

Worldly success, measured by the accumulation of money, is no doubt a dazzling thing, and all men are naturally more or less the admirers of worldly success, but though men of sharp, dexterous, and unscrupulous habits, ever on the watch to push opportunities, may get on in the world, yet it is quite possible that they do not possess the slightest elevation of character, nor a particle of real goodness. Riches are no proof of moral worth, says Francis Collins, and their glitter often serves only to draw attention to the worthlessness of their possessor, as the light of the glow worm reveals the grub.

Men of Sterling Worth.

The power of money is, on the whole, overestimated. The greatest things which have been done for the world have not been accomplished by rich men, but by men generally of small means. Christianity was propagated over half the world by men of the poorest class. And the greatest thinkers, discoverers, inventors, artists, and authors have been men of moderate wealth, many of them little raised above the conditions of manual labor in point of worldly circumstances. The making of a fortune enables some people to "enter society," as it is called, but to be esteemed here they must possess qualities of mind, manners, or heart, else they are merely rich people, nothing more. There are men in society now as rich as Croesus who have no consideration shown them, and elicit no respect. Why? They are but money bags; their only power is their money. The men of mark in society—the guides and rulers of opinion—the really successful and useful men—are not necessarily rich men, but men of sterling character, of disciplined experience, and of moral excellence. The poor man in the joy of a cultivated nature, of opportunities used and not abused, of a life spent to the best of his means and ability, can look down without the slightest feeling of envy upon the person of mere worldly success—the mere man of money.

WHEN TO RAISE SALARIES.

Asked recently the question, "How often and at what time of the year do you give your employes a raise in wages?" the head of one of the largest and best known publishing companies in the world made this reply: "We raise our employes on the civil service basis. We have over one thousand two hundred employes in our Chicago offices alone. If we attempted to raise them at a certain time and on a certain basis, there would be endless confusion. Besides, I believe in compensating an employe according to what he is worth. We train them for a certain duty. After they have become competent to discharge it we pay them accordingly. This makes a man self-reliant, for if he is interested in his work he will fight for higher wages. He will work harder and better."

When They are Worth it They get it.

Another extensive employer of labor in the west gave this answer to the same question: "We pay salaries on the 'selling basis.' We raise them likewise. We know that our different departments will stand a certain percentage in salaries—varying from 3 to 5 per cent. The employe who can produce the biggest sales gets the best salary that that department can afford to pay for salesmen. We have no particular time for raising employes' wages—just when we ascertain that they are worth it they get it. Pay your help a living, fair wage and raise them just as soon as they deserve it; then you will get good work out of them."

Show Appreciation by Raising Salary.

Here is another reply: "We have a fixed time for raising salaries — at Christmas. We pay our help good salaries and just as soon as they become fitted to discharge the duties without having someone around all the time instructing them, we raise—and raise to the limit, too. You must show your appreciation of the employe's efforts by paying him. He will do your work then."

Little Sermons on Advertising

Delivered by John C. Kirkwood.

The Handicap of Being Unknown.

I REMEMBER that when I was a retailer, a traveler called on me to sell a line of laundry soap. He said he had sampled the town; that there would be a big demand in consequence; and he wanted me to order five cases. Prior to his coming I had never heard of his firm or his soap, and I was not ready to take up his soap on short notice. Moreover, I had had experience in just such cases as the one in question—sometimes costly experience—and I was deaf to all arguments. The soap salesman became angry. He said that he had sampled the town; that he was not leaving all the work of introduction to the grocery trade. He said that his house was co operating with the trade in the most practical manner. I didn't buy.

I do not say that the firms one never heard of are on that account unreliable, unworthy of confidence. But I do say that the firm that solicits the retailer's favor and co-operation, owes it to the retailer to establish and maintain an acquaintance. And I say furthermore, that this acquaintance is best developed through the medium of the retailer, trade newspapers; granted, of course, that this newspaper is reputable, widely circulated and a recognized authority in the trade or interests it claims to serve. A trade newspaper of this description comes to be looked upon by the retailer as his work of reference. What he fails to find there is lacking in importance, and so is unworthy of his serious attention. This applies not only to editorial departments and kindred matter, but also to the advertising section. A retailer is warranted in looking for the advertisements of the firms he deals with, in the advertising section of his trusted trade newspaper. A right appreciation of this point would lead some non-advertisers to become advertisers with resulting gain.

A wholesale or manufacturing firm may be 100 years old, and yet be unknown to the trade that distributes its goods. I have in mind a firm of clothing makers, an old and honorable firm, having a very large factory, and known to the jobbing trade as providing certain grades of goods unexcelled anywhere for quality and value. This firm has been forced through competition to brand its product and to go direct to the retail trade. It recognizes the handicap it is under in being practically unknown to the retail trade.

Even though it can say to the retailer, "you have handled thousands of dollars worth of our goods without knowing it," this firm is facing the problems of the future with no confidence, no reliance in its long years of successful manufacturing. It has to begin afresh as it were, and one of the first things it is doing, is to begin advertising in the trade newspapers circulating among the retailers selling its class of goods.

It takes a situation of this sort to bring home neglected or forgotten truth. This firm of clothing makers is vainly wishing now that it had begun years ago to establish an acquaintance with the final distributor of its merchandise. It was urged to advertise time and again, but its steadfast reply was, "No. We sell only to the jobbing trade. We know all the firms we care to see to. What's the use of our advertising?"

This situation brings into clear relief the fact that to be known and favorably known is a business asset of untold value. The cost of getting and keeping known, is in realty a very small annual charge, too small to be seriously considered by any firm with a heart bigger than a mouse.

These sermons are supposed to be short, and so it is necessary now to close.

The application is: Non-advertisers will find it prudent and profitable to develop an acquaintance with the trade through advertisements in the right trade newspaper; and advertisers should maintain their advertising without a lapse.

G. T. PACIFIC PROSPECTS.

When in Winnipeg last week, F. W. Morse, vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway made a statement concerning the early construction of the railway which will be hailed with delight throughout the west. Every added facility for handling the wheat crop in a hurry each Fall is of almost inestimable value to the farmers and business men of the west and there is therefore general satisfaction with the authoritative announcement of Mr. Morse which was as follows:

"The contractors have the work well covered for the Grand Trunk Pacific, and we expect to, as formerly stated, be a factor in handling the wheat crop of 1907 from this country to our Lake Superior port, Fort William, unless there should be delay in the construction of the Government end of the line from here to Lake Superior Junction."

The hope is general throughout the west that Mr. Morse's expectations may not prove to be too sanguine.

MONTREAL BOARD OF TRADE MEMBERSHIP.

It is pleasing to note the success of the council of the Board of Trade, of Montreal, in their efforts to increase the membership of the board. At the beginning of 1906 an alarming state of affairs was revealed when it was made known that the membership of the board had been declining almost steadily since 1887. A statement issued by the secretary on February 13 showed that the membership, which in 1887 was 1,362, had fallen to 976. It at once became apparent that something must be done to check this downward movement. The council took measures not only to stop the falling off, but also to increase the membership.

The success with which their efforts have met is illustrated by the fact that no less than one hundred and ten new members have been enrolled since the present council assumed office in February last. This makes the total membership nearly eleven hundred, which must be encouraging, not only to the council itself, but also to the members as a whole. It is the intention of the board to bring the membership up to the two thousand mark, and if the present good work is continued, which is to be hoped, their efforts will be crowned with success.

A WINNIPEG PUBLICITY BUREAU.

There is sound sense in the proposal of F. W. Henbach that the city of Winnipeg should raise, in part from the civic funds and in part by subscriptions, a sum of $25,000 to be expended by a publicity bureau in making known the advantages of the city as a manufacturing centre.

The project for supplying the city with cheap motive power from the waterfalls at Lac du Bonnet is now well under way and the transmission lines of the private development company are already in St. Boniface, across the river from Winnipeg. The municipal enterprise will, in all probability, be under way in a few months; and there is every reason to believe that the chief impediment to Winnipeg's growth as a manufacturing city will then be almost immediately removed.

Nevertheless it has long been accepted as indisputable that Winnipeg is laboring under grave disadvantages in her efforts to promote manufacturing and some special effort is necessary to advertise properly the fact that the handicap has been removed.

A manufacturer or a merchant may have a reliable line of goods to sell, but unless he lets his customers know their merits the goods are apt to remain on his hands. In the same way, Winnipeg may offer many advantages to the manufacturer, but they must be made known. A publicity bureau in charge of a competent man could do great things for Winnipeg.

GROCER THE GREAT TEACHER.

Who is the arbiter of quality in foodstuffs?

"This is a market for price, not for quality," said a Toronto importing broker the other day. Reminded that the wholesale grocer made the same complaint against the retailer, he admitted, "Yes, of course the wholesaler is in the hands of the retailer."

In whose hands is the retailer? The consumer's, certainly; but only to an extent. A grocer has two kinds of sardines. He has made it his business to know something about sardines. He tells his customer the cheap, flashy can contains sprats seasoned in smoke and oil but having in themselves no more flavor than blotting paper, and that the dearer can contains real sardines, packed in real olive oil and having the delicate flavor and texture which only the sardine possesses. He might tell him a lot more and the customer would be interested and in most cases would give the few extra cents and take the better article and go away with the impression that the grocer knows his business. The grocer probably has a larger profit than had he sold the inferior article, and anyway he has the satisfaction of knowing that he has sold good stuff and not an imitation.

Did the consumer handle the retailer or did the retailer handle the consumer?

The entire food-consuming public is always at school to the grocer. He is the real professor of dietetics and the man in the best position to tell people what foodstuffs are pure and what are not.

That is why there is force in the proposal put forward by A. McGill, analyst of the pure food branch of the Department of Inland Revenue, that the retail grocer should assume responsibility for the purity of the goods he sells.

THE GOLDEN RULE.

It's a poor rule that doesn't work as well in business as in other walks of life, and the Golden Rule is not a poor one. But it is undoubtedly forgotten by many a man who has gained a little authority and who enjoys lording it over those who do business with him.

Few men are more frequently the victims of this kind of thing than commercial travelers. No one who has not been on the road can realize the extent to which the traveling salesman is compelled to take insults from the different buyers and proprietors he visits. It is a most difficult thing for him to even secure an audience with the great man, who often deliberately neglects him long enough to make him lose a whole day by missing a train. How would the buyer or merchant enjoy being treated in this manner? Would he like to "kow tow" to every customer who buys goods from him, in the way he expects a traveler to do obeisance to him? Is not the Golden Rule of some value in business life? Even considering the question from the basest standpoint, the merchant should remember that a traveler has many opportunities to benefit him in one way or another.

In pleasing contrast with this all too common thing is the treatment accorded commercial men in one of Canada's finest stores, located in Montreal. Just at the entrance to the office is a sign which reads:

"Travelers are welcome at any time during business hours. Mr. L—— is generally in his office from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 2 to 6 p.m. Foreign travelers will please telephone and make appointment before coming."

There is something for every merchant to learn in that notice. Perhaps this unfailing courtesy serves to explain much of the success attained by the firm mentioned.

ORGANIZATION FOR THE GROCER.

What would it profit the retail grocery trade to organize? A very great deal if the object were for improvement instead of to seek class legislation and eliminate fair competition. Only by organization, pooling of experience for common knowledge and concerted action, can the retail grocery trade be placed upon the high level it ought to be. The tendency is ever towards cheapness; the best interest of the grocer and the best interest of the public is to be found in betterment, better stores, better goods, better methods, better treatment of customers, are the words that spell solid success for the grocery trade. The grocer handles foodstuffs. So many grocers seem to forget that. A man may carry a poor umbrella, and wear cheap boots and sleep on a cheap bed, but if he knows it he doesn't want inferior food. Of course in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred he doesn't know. Often the most inexpensive foods are the best. Why, if the grocers of this country would take an interest in canned salmon, for instance, they would create a demand that would multiply the demand ten times. There are few more delicious dishes, and none more easily and quickly prepared or more nutritious.

It is knowledge the grocer needs, and organization would help him to it—knowledge of goods, of better methods, of what the manufacturer and wholesaler are doing, the knowledge of what other men in the trade are thinking. Men with common interests can get a great deal of inspiration and help by association, by getting together and talking things over. It is utilizing the social side of human nature for the improvement of business. Organization, and only organization, can do it.

BANKS AND BUSINESS VENTURES.

Banking methods, like everything else in this progressive age, are undergoing a process of evolution. It is not so very long ago that bankers felt it infra dig to depart from certain clearly defined customs. Like the doctors, they must not advertise for business, while to canvas for customers was almost a sin. These days are departing.

In the United States many of the banks are adopting aggressive and progressive methods of advertising and some of the best advertising that is being done is by the banks. In Canada the spirit of evolution is also abroad. Some of the banks are advertising, and advertising in a way that shocks the decorum of the old-timers. Not only are they advertising, but many of them have inaugurated systematic methods of door-to-door canvas in residential parts of cities for depositors.

It is possibly almost unnecessary to say that this progressive spirit is born of competition. New banks are coming into existence almost every month and in order to get business these are naturally driven to employ more progressive methods than their older confreres.

The business men of the country naturally gain by this more modern condition of affairs. It will not be so difficult for them to get accommodation and they will not have to pay as high a price for that accommodation as is now too frequently the case. The banks get their money from depositors at less than half what they, in many instances, charge their customers for accommodation.

Just as agriculture is the backbone of industrial life in Canada, so the banks are the backbone of trade and commerce. There is in our mind at the moment a certain small town in Canada whose manufacturing industries are the envy of many larger towns. This enviable position is directly traceable to the encouragement which manufacturers who located in that town received from a particular bank whose headquarters were stationed there. There is in fact scarcely an industry there which does not owe its success to the assistance it received from that particular bank. The bank was not careless. It thoroughly investigated the affairs of every client and if his business promised well and the management was honest, enterprising and competent, they lent liberal assistance.

With the development of the modern tendency now in evidence on the part of the banks of this country the experience of this particular town will become more general. There is every reason why this should be so, for like a business man with good prospects, the outlook for the industrial development of this country is most auspicious.

WHAT THE RETAILER CAN DO.

One of the leading spice millers in Canada told The Canadian Grocer this week that the reason for the present advancing market in spices was the pure food movement in the States. The use of real spices in place of adulterants had occasioned such a phenomenal demand as to increase prices in all lines. One naturally exclaims, "What immense quantities, proportionately, of adulterants must have been used!" It is not to the advantage of the retailer to handle impure goods. But what can the individual retailer do in the face of the manufacturer? Organize. Organize in the interests of the trade and of the customers.

A CAN OF CORN.

A traveler was in a grocery store the other day when a child brought back a can of corn. It was a cheap grade the grocer was selling at 5 cents.

"Mamma got two cans," she said. "The other one was all right but she said this was rotten and wants the money back."

"The other one was all right, eh?" answered the grocer. "Well, I can't give you the money back. Tell mamma she only paid the price of one good can."

How is that for a method of increasing a grocer's popularity and building up his trade. He saw a chance to get some cheap corn and bit. Instead of drawing custom he drove it away.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Quebec Markets.

FLUCTUATIONS—

Ginger, Cochin—Added to list, 12c. to 17½c.

B. C. salmon—Declined 1c.

Lake trout—Added, 9c.

Montreal, May 10, 1906.

Business during this week has been very good when considered generally. Collections are coming in fairly well. Farmers in the country are too busy to do very much buying, and the country trade has been affected to a certain degree by this fact. After Spring work is well under way, however, and the farmers are able to get into town more frequently, there is likely to be a better all round trade. There is little new in prices this week, practically no changes having taken place. Sugar in some quarters is selling very well, while other houses say that grocers are holding off to a certain extent. Teas are better this week than they have been for the past two or three weeks. The market in Japan opened on about the same basis as last year, the teas being a little better in quality. Ceylon greens are scarce. China greens are reported as being subject to better inquiry. Molasses is unchanged locally, but reports from the Barbadoes say that the market there is very strong at an advance of one cent. Canned goods are unchanged. Spices are a little better than they were last week. Ginger continues to advance at primary markets, but the prices here have not yet been affected. The coffee market is none too strong, but more encouraging reports are coming from Brazil, and it now looks as if the crop will be much better than at first anticipated. Evaporated apples are still high and held in limited quantities.

CANNED GOODS — In the market there is nothing particularly new to report. The demand is very good, taken generally, but no individual lines can be said to have the lead in the market. At the advance noted last week tomatoes are moving freely. Canned fruits are having a fair sale all round, and vegetables are also meeting with very good sale.

SUGAR—Since the recent advance in sugar there has not been anything new. Business, according to some wholesale houses, is very good, while other firms state a poor demand prevails. Taken generally, however, very fair business is being done. Many merchants have bought the best part of the Spring requirements in sugar, while others are holding off as if waiting for something further to develop. In jobbing circles there was a rumor current that some foreign sugar was due to arrive in Montreal at the beginning of the week, but it has not arrived so far, and it is probable that the report was nothing else than a rumor.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES — Molasses is having a fair demand at present, and orders received are easily filled by both importers and jobbers. Spring buying has been better since the boats began to run, and grocers throughout the country are gradually receiving their supplies.

Advices from the Barbadoes state that there has been an advance of one cent, the price now being 17c., including puncheon. The market is very strong.

TEA—The situation as a whole is better this week than it was last. Cable advice from Japan are to the effect that the opening of the market at Yokohama was on the same basis as last year. The quality of the teas was rather better than those offered last year. The market locally is gradually becoming cleared up, and probabilities are that by the time the new Japans arrive the market will be very bare. There is a scarcity of Ceylon greens, and the quality is poor. There is a better demand reported for China greens. Ceylon blacks are moving very well. Good teas generally have brought good prices this week.

COFFEE—The market is in about the same condition as it was last week. The speculators are still busy with their reports, but latest advices from Brazil state that the crop now amounts to 12,000,000 bags, which is at least two millions higher than was estimated by speculators. The market is none too strong, but it is better under this condition than it would otherwise be. Javas and Mochas are firm.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—There is not much that is new in dried fruits this week. As reported last week, the crops in California are just about cleaned up. What was held in stock there has been used up by the great demand for everything eatable for the earthquake sufferers. Practically nothing is now obtainable from that region but a few lots of raisins. Some houses are making quotations and taking orders for the new crop already, early as it is. Prunes to hand are not the best quality although a few good lots are in stock locally. Reports from Greece say that the market continues firm for currants. Some good business is being done in nuts, but stocks are not the largest.

Some dealers have received quotations for new California raisins in 1 lb. cartons on the following basis: Fancy seeded, 6c.; choice seeded, 5¾c. 12 oz., fancy seeded, 4⅞c.; choice, 4⅝c. These prices are all f.o.b. coast.

SPICES—Peppers, which have been on the quiet side at primary markets for some little time past, are now moving better. Ginger continues to advance at primary markets. What was bought a while back for 9½c. to 10c. is now obtained at no less than 16½c. to 17c., while importations at 5½c. to 6c. now cost 8c. to 9c. Nutmegs are unchanged.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—Jobbers report very good business in rice at present. Orders that have been slowly coming in from country points are being shipped every day, and city orders are keeping fair. Tapioca remains at 6½c., with a demand which would be much better if the price were lower.

EVAPORATED APPLES — There is not a great deal being done these days in evaporated apples, as the price, which is still 12½c., is altogether too high to permit of profitable trade. The scarcity continues and the few lots required are very hard to obtain, when of the best grade such as we quoted above.

FISH—Fresh fish continue to arrive and are now coming in in greater quantities. Fresh halibut is coming in by express every day, and the quality of shipments received is said to be very good. Fresh lake and brook trout are now quoted, and from this time they are likely to be very much in demand. Fresh haddock has advanced one cent, while B.C. salmon has declined one cent. Salt and pickled fish have fallen off considerably since the new stock began to arrive, until now these lines are not often asked for. Smoked fish remain unchanged as to price.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, May 10, 1906.

BUTTER — Market is steady. Prices a shade higher, 19c. being asked in most cases.

CHEESE—Market steady in tone. Prices for both white and colored remain unchanged.

EGGS—Firm market. Receipts fairly large. Prices a little higher.

PROVISIONS — Good local demand continues. Hogs still scarce. Abattoir dressed selling $10 to $10.25 per 10 lbs.

Ontario Markets.

FLUCTUATIONS—
Valencia raisins higher.
Carolina rice advanced.
Tapioca dearer.
Smoked meats higher.
Butter easier.
Eggs firm.

Toronto, May 10, 1906.

GROCERIES—Business this week has been pretty good, but nothing to boast of. The market fluctuations have not been of a kind to arouse great interest. The canned goods situation is about as last week with corn and peas a little firmer. The sugar market is quiet again and the outlook does not betoken anything different. Valencia raisins have advanced. Evaporated apples are practically unprocurable. Carolina rice and tapioca are higher. Spices are firm, due, it is said, to the pure food regulations. The fish supply is still short. Olives have advanced 15 to 25 per cent., due to a crop shortage.

CANNED GOODS—The firm tone continues, but no further advances are recorded this week. There has been no recession from the advance made by tomatoes, but speculative interest in the vegetable is said to have subsided for the moment. It may be just to take breath, but there are a few less enthusiastic dealers who incline to the opinion that there are more tomatoes in the country than some people think. One prominent broker said he knew of 15,000 cases held among three or four individuals beyond their requirements.

Peas are firmer but prices remain as before. There is said to be a lot of sour corn on the market and not the product of any packer in particular. One dealer explained it by saying that in the rush entailed by last year's very large pack there was some carelessness, due perhaps to haste.

Strawberries are getting very scarce and the quotation now for 2's in heavy syrup is $2.

Beets are entirely sold out.

Northern River salmon are firmer in sympathy with the remainder of the market.

SUGAR—The market is not showing activity this week. In Europe raws are a shade lower, but in America the tone in cane is firm, though there is little business doing. Prices of granulated continue firm. Locally business is reported quiet after the advance of last week which stimulated buying, though one refinery representative claimed that sugar was going out quite freely.

There are no special indications for the immediate future, but opinion inclines to an even level of prices for a time at least. Last week the European raw market for beet showed a decline of 3d. "The special reasons for this European decline and easier tendency," say Willett & Gray, "are because of the closing of May contracts and the continued favorable grinding of the Cuba crop, which maintains its prestige up to the full number of centrals, 180, with larger receipts for the week at 52,000 tons, and with indications that favorable weather will continue to enable estates to grind their cane, of which there is still plenty in the field, according to information given us to-day by prominent sugar merchants just returned from the island."

The world's visible supply at the end of last week was, according to Willett & Gray, 3,955,776 tons, against 2,776,005 tons last year, an increase of 1,179,771 tons.

F. O. Licht reports the probable European beet area this year as from 1,741,000 acres to 1,836,500 acres, as against about 1,891,235 acres in 1905. That would mean a decrease from the average of about 5½ per cent. and a decrease in the sugar product of 1,035,000 tons.

TEA—Latest mail advices from London show the market waiting for the British budget to see if the duty will be lowered. The tendency is a little lower for commoner teas and a stronger tone for the better grades. Locally there has been a little movement lately without quotable change in prices.

COFFEE—The market has not developed marked change this week. Willett & Gray say :

"April receipts at Rio and Santos were 170,000 bags larger than in April last year, bringing the total crop movement for ten months of the season about 75,000 bags smaller than the same time last year. This still points to a total crop of about 10 million bags, and not 12,000,000 bags, which was so positively expected by many a year ago. It is generally stated by good authorities that the falling of the beans of the July flowering was very general in the month of March, and it is admitted in all fair quarters that the next Santos crop, on this account alone, is not likely to turn out as large as many had expected or estimated. As to the final result or outturn, opinion can only be formed after the principal harvesting months of May, June and July are passed.

"While the world's visible is about 2,000,000 bags less than a year ago, prices are actually 30 points lower, a proof conclusive that the market has discounted all possible unfavorable events of the future and has overlooked entirely the favorable features, including the steady decrease of supplies, visible and invisible.

"The large stocks had been in the way of higher prices, notwithstanding the current crop is so much smaller than consumption. The decreases in stocks may be overlooked for awhile, but no staple article can be kept down for any length of time where the consumption is largely in excess of the production."

DRIED FRUITS—Some attempts to buy select Valencia raisins in London recently were met by counter offers at extremely high prices, the market there apparently having advanced by at least 5 shillings per cwt. The result has been that a good deal of selling has been done by brokers between houses and there is general hardening of prices on spot, as those who are carrying more stock than their own requirements demand have been able to transfer their surplus to their neighbors who had less.

"The currant market abroad continues strong," said Mr. J. L. Watt, of J. L. Watt & Scott, yesterday, "and generally speaking each new purchase is a little higher priced than the previous one, but the advance has been very gradual, and today stands about ½c. above the lowest point."

In other imported dried fruits there is little new to report. Except in raisins there is no really cheap cooking fruit on the market, figs, evaporated apples, small sizes of prunes, etc., being quite exhausted. Scarcely a house on the street has any evaporated apples left and there are none to be got.

Fresh offers for California seeded raisins for Fall shipment have been made at what the brokers term "satisfactory, even tempting prices." Buyers are not taking hold very greedily, however; some are buying, but on the whole it seems to be a little early. The prices for prunes are about on a parity with last year's opening prices and for raisins at about the present level.

A CANNING FACTORY AT LONDON

A project is on foot for establishing a canning factory at London, Ont. Mr. Allen, of the Bates Manufacturing Co., Toronto, is one of the chief movers in the undertaking, and it is understood that the work of erection will start at once.

"Our building will be 600 feet by 240 feet," said Mr. Bates, "and we will do about $700,000 worth of business annually. At present we are simply occupying temporary quarters in Toronto. We know that we are going to enter into strong competition with canning factories on all sides, but we believe that we will make good."

The company is assured of water at cost price, and it is understood an amicable arrangement as regards assessment will be arrived at.

STRAWBERRY PLANTS DESTROYED

There will be few or no strawberries in the Ottawa district this year. The unusual Winter has completely destroyed the plants, and immense beds are a total ruin at the Central Experimental Farm and in private gardens.

The fate of the orchards will not be known for two or three weeks yet. All exotics are also destroyed.

The Ottawa market for small fruits will be dependent on importation, and fortunately, reports received at the farm indicate a bumper crop of berries in the west.

In the Montreal district the crop is reported as one-half ruined.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, May 9, 1906.

The local grocery markets are in a healthy condition, and collections continue good. Trade in all quarters is satisfactory, and travelers continue to send in substantial orders. Prices generally are firm throughout the list. The supply of hams and bacon is very limited. The season is now approaching when the demand for both will increase, and as the local dealers have only a limited stock of their own cure, they will have to purchase elsewhere. Canned goods are selling freely, the stocks of tomatoes becoming somewhat light. Other canned goods are in good supply, and can be bought at more reasonable prices than ever before.

SUGAR—The Acadia Sugar Refinery Co.'s announcement of an advance of ten cents per hundred pounds on all grades of refined sugar, came as a surprise this week. The local refinery's move is considered most unusual, coming, as it did, so close after the announcement of a decline of ten cents per hundred pounds in Montreal. The local market is usually governed by New York and Montreal, and in this instance a departure has been made from the custom. Prices quoted here are as follows :

XXX granulated, $4.30; Austrian granulated, $4; bright yellow, $4.10 ; No. 1 yellow, $3.80; unbranded yellow, $3.65.

The steamer Canada Cape, from Demerara and Barbadoes, will land 13,000 bags of sugar here this week, and she has about 11,000 bags for Montreal.

FRUIT—The local dealers are beginning to stock up with fruit, and trade is good. The Jamaica oranges now arriving are of better quality, though most of them are quite green. Bananas are in good supply: the quality is up to the average and the demand is good, now that apples are about over. Bananas range in price from $1.75 to $2.25. Besides the steamers running direct to the fruit ports, large quantities of bananas are imported here by the weekly boat from Boston, and also by the triweekly steamers running from Boston to Yarmouth, and brought here over the D.A.R. Strawberries of good quality are quoted at 30c. per box; tomatoes at $4.50 per crate, and pineapples from $2 to $2.25 per dozen.

VEGETABLES — Vegetables are in good supply and the demand is fair. The quality of the stock now on the market is exceptionally good for the season of the year. New Brunswick potatoes are quoted at $1.50 per barrel, and Prince Edward Island Calicoes at $1.35 per bag. Turnips are worth 90c., parsnips at $1.95, and beets and carrots at $1.50. Egyptian onions are quoted at 2c.

BUTTER—The receipts of butter from local points are somewhat disappointing. It was expected that the supply would increase with the fine, mild weather, but so far only a small quantity is marketed, and therefore the price keeps up. Prices are unchanged.

EGGS—Nova Scotia eggs are firm at 18c. The receipts have improved slightly, but not sufficient to affect prices any. Prince Edward Island eggs are worth 16c. to 17c. here. The receipts from Island points have decreased somewhat, owing to the bad condition of the roads. The farmers are unable to reach the market to dispose of their stock.

FISH—There is a bountiful supply of fresh fish on the market, the varieties being cod, haddock, herring, cusk, halibut, gaspereau, bass, salmon, trout and lobsters. Oysters are becoming very scarce. Heavy shipments of live lobsters from this port continue to the American market. The Plant liner Halifax on her last trip took 600 crates to Boston. They are quoted there at $13 per crate.

SALT—The Danish steamer Brattinsborg has arrived here from Iviza with a record cargo of salt. She is now discharging 4,650 tons, which is consigned to A. W. Whitman.

Fire last week did considerable damage to the large warehouse and grocery store of Nickerson, Grant & Co., corner of Bronn abd Hawthorne streets, Yarmouth. The fire originated in hay in the banana room, caused, it is supposed, by a plumber's candle, who was fixing the gas pipe. The loss to the building and stock is covered by insurance in the Commercial Union, Nova Scotia, Home Guardian, and North British and Mercantile.

"The White Store" on Gothinger street is now open for business. The proprietor is C. E. Choate, who for a number of years has conducted an extensive retail business on the street mentioned. Just as his business was well established, he learned one day through a mercantile report that his place of business had been leased for a term of five years. The new parties to secure the store were A. F. Doyle & Co., and it is stated that it took a couple of hundred dollars a year more than Mr.. Choate was paying to secure the premises, and a five years' lease. It is understood that Mr. Choate was not even consulted in the deal. He at once set out to secure other quarters, and succeeded in purchasing a building two doors north of his former store, which he has since had converted into a modern grocery, and business is going on just the same in the new stand as in the old. The interior of the store is finished in white enamel, and it is quite attractive.

Another firm which has been compelled to change quarters is that of C. & W. Anderson, a name which has been connected with the grocery business of this city for half a century. For the past ten years this firm has conducted a fancy grocery on Granville street. The store occupied by the firm was among the number purchased by the Bank of Commerce for their new building. In consequence Messrs. Anderson had to move, and they are now located on George street in an up-to-date store. All the fittings of the interior are brand new, everything being imported from a firm in Berlin, Ont., and when they arrived were all ready to set up. The store is lighted throughout by electricity.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, May, 1906.

The figures for the Winter port business of the past season show a great increase over any previous year. They are most encouraging. When you remember that practically all the facilities have been provided by the city to prove that St. John is without doubt the Winter port of Canada, being so situated as to successfully handle both the import and export business, is it not now time, when success is assured, for the Government to see that the further facilities which are a necessity if this magnificent business is to be held, should be at once provided ? They must be provided in time for the coming season, for best results.

It is now a national matter. This is the tenth year, with one exception, the imports have shown an increase, but we want the Government to see that Canadian trade is held to Canada, and that the British preference is confined to goods imported via Canadian ports. This would mean full cargoes inward as well as outward. This year we had 113 sailings, twelve more than last season. Grain shipments were over 7,000,000 bushels. Canadian exports over $13,000,000 of value and United States goods over $9,000,000, a total of over $23,000,000. There were 34,000 cattle shipped. Outward tonnage was 275,000 tons, passengers to arrive 19,912. As compared with last season the freight handled shows an increase of upward of 110,000 tons, an increase in value of about $10,000,000. It has been a record of steady improvement each season, and as a result of which St. John is proud.

OIL—In burning oil values are unchanged. Business at this season is light. Attention is now given to lubricating and paint oils, particularly is there a greatly increased sale for gasoline. Paint oils keep high. Cod oil firm.

SALT—Sales of Liverpool coarse salt are active, prices are firm. In fine salt there is improved business at even prices.

CANNED GOODS—One of our importers received last week a large shipment of corn, some three thousand cases ; prices unchanged. Peas are low. Tomatoes are firm at the advance. Peaches and strawberries are in rather light supply. Gallon apples are firm at the advance. Some American canners are pushing very strongly for business in canned meats. Oysters are firm. Domestic fish quiet. A fair stock of sardines held.

GREEN FRUIT—There is large busi- Oranges begin, in some grades, to show ness. Bananas are the large line. waste. Some nice Jamaicas now offered, prices are firm. Lemons, a fair sale at even prices. Apples dull, best stock is held at high figures. Some native rhubarb is seen, price is high. Few strawberries imported, price too high. A few tomatoes and cucumbers seen.

DRIED FRUIT—Prunes scarce and high. Seeded raisins firmer. Loose unchanged. Currants are firm, market is really higher, but price here unchanged. Peels, particularly citron, high. Dates firmer. Evaporated apples are extreme. Dried are scarce. Onions are easier.

SUGAR—After the advance of last week the situation is much better, market being considered quite firm. There is quite a large sale here for Barbadoes sugar, which is low and good.

MOLASSES—Already the imports of Barbadoes this season are equal to the full quantity imported last year, and there is still a large quantity to arrive. Prices are higher. In Porto Rico some old still held. One small cargo of new here and at least two more afloat.

FISH—Gaspereaux continue a light catch. There is a good supply of halibut. A few shad are seen, but it is early. In dry fish, while market is easier prices still quite high. Pickled herring still very scarce. Smoked somewhat easier.

FLOUR, FEED AND SEED—In flour prices are held firm, good steady business. Feed is scarce and high. Oats held at full figures. Oatmeal is firmer, sales not large. Cornmeal is unchanged. Beans rather dull, prices at least no lower. In barley some lower figures have been quoted. There is little sale for peas. Seeds are selling freely, prices are high.

The following communication signed by J. F. Hunter, president of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada, has been received at this office:

The Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada.

"We do not always agree on what is of benefit to ourselves.

"I think we will agree that the miners' unions, the brotherhoods of engineers, firemen, brakemen, trackmen, carpenters and unions of various kinds have advanced the interests of their membership.

"The bankers' associations have benefitted bankers; loan companies have agreed upon uniform rates of interest; the Grocers' Guild have advanced their interests, and so on all through the list —'In union there is strength.'

"Does the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada benefit you or if successful is it likely to do so?

"Are there any matters detrimental to the trade that might be adjusted to our mutual benefit if we were united and as a unit would work to further our common interests?

"Is it possible to advance our interests in regard to legislation regarding the assessment of stocks, the collection of debts, preventing false advertising of goods, to abolish the fee now charged for the inspection of weights and measures? Are our interests always safeguarded by railways when they are changing their classification and freight tariffs, when they say what goods shall and shall not be allowed in mixed carloads?

"Could we do anything to prevent price-cutting and a thousand and one other matters?

"I think without a doubt at least 90 per cent. of the retail merchants will agree—yes, there is ample scope for work in our common interests.

"If this be so, is it not a fact that we have a very much better chance of accomplishing these and similar matters if our requests are backed up by the united force of retail merchants?

"The manufacturers are alert when anything affecting their interests is brought up. The railway interests, the steamboat companies, the manufacturers and similar organizations do not stand idly by and see their interests infringed on. They are thoroughly organized and use their organized force. Why should we not be equally alert and by thorough organization be in a position to stand up for our interests?

"The Retail Merchants' Association is intended to look after these and many other matters of equal importance.

"In order that we may be successful in doing so, it is necessary that we have the earnest and cordial support of the entire retail trade if possible.

"Will you give us your support?

"Some few say, 'Oh, it did not benefit me any last year, I will not continue my membership.' Is that a fair way of estimating results? Did you ever know of an organization which from its very inception showed results—that returned dollar for dollar?

"What the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada has accomplished for its members during the past year:

"1. Securing legislation in 'An act respecting the taxation of personal property in incorporated towns and villages,' whereby taxation is equalized. Previously only a portion of the business men were taxed. Under the present bill secured by us, all classes will be assessed alike according to the rental value, instead of the assessment being on amount of stock carried. This new bill will reduce the general merchants' assessment to less than one-half of former assessments.

"2. The passing of the Trading Stamp Act, and the successful prosecution under the provisions of this act.

"3. Early closing by-law in the majority of the larger towns in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

"4. The establishment of a credit reporting and collecting department which is open for the free use of the members of this association.

"5. A credit protecting or coupon system.

"6. The successful opposition of Dominion legislation respecting the amendment of the Postmasters Act in which permission was asked to compile a directory of all the post office patrons for the purpose of selling same to mail order houses and like concerns.

"Also several other matters that could only be righted by securing Dominion and provincial legislation.

"Review, railroad companies, insurance, new merchants starting up in a place, all have their up hill and usually unprofitable experience during the first years of their inception. If you, as a business man, see an opportunity to buy a piece of property which you think likely to advance in value and buy it, do you become discouraged and sell out next day or so or lose your first payment and let it go, simply because you cannot at once turn it over at a profit? Certainly not. If you consider that there is merit in the proposition you hang on content to let time work the advance. Use the same consideration for our association, and I have no doubt the final results will be equally gratifying and profitable.

"Be fair. Does it not require time and hard work to effect thorough organization? This costs money. Is not thorough organization and your honest, hearty and continued moral and financial support necessary to put us in the most advantageous position to achieve results?

"It is your and our interests we are aiming to advance; you should be equally anxious and willing to lend your influence and funds. If all get in line success is assured; the quicker we get in line the sooner will we see unmistakable signs of success. You have an individual part and responsibility in assisting or in rendering the work more difficult.

"We ask for and hope to receive your hearty and cordial support in a good, honest, fair trial.

"A letter to our secretary signifying your interest and co-operation would be very cheering and beneficial. Head office, 53 Scott block, Winnipeg."

The merchants in Arnaud, Man., have agreed to close their stores during the Summer months at seven o'clock. This is a step worthy of imitation in other western towns.

Manitoba Markets

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, May 10, 1906.)

FLUCTUATIONS—

Apricots advanced 2½c. per lb.
Peaches advanced 2½c. per lb.
Plums advanced 1½c per lb.
Nectarines advanced 2c. per lb.
Prunes advanced 1½c. per lb.
Evaporated apples advanced ¾c. per lb.

Business continues very brisk, the turnover for the first four months of the year having been considerably in excess of the sales for the same period in 1905. Sugar very quickly recovered the recent 10c. decline, and those who bought during the few days of lower prices are congratulating themselves. The California dried fruit situation is still uncertain, and local agents and wholesale houses have no definite information as to the supplies available. In the meantime all California fruits have been sharply advanced, and, in sympathy with these advances, evaporated and dried apples are held at exceedingly high prices.

BUSINESS NOTES.

It is rumored that J. J. McCabe, of W. B. Stringer & Co., Toronto, is to be married next month.

Thomas Smith, formerly eastern representative of the W. B. Stringer Company, of Toronto, has severed his connection with that firm to join the staff of McWilliam & Everest, wholesale fruit brokers, in Toronto.

Commercial travelers did not enjoy the taste they got of local option at Stouffville, Ont., this week. The hotels were both closed. Travelers had to go to private houses for meals and there was no such thing as staying over night.

H. A. Rutherford & Son, Bolton, Ont., to meet the increased demands of their business are building a considerable addition to their store. They began their present business in Bolton only two and a half years ago and this is the second time they have had to enlarge.

W. B. Stringer, of W. B. Stringer & Co., wholesale fruit brokers, Toronto, was in Montreal during the week. Mr. Stringer is reorganizing his Montreal office which has been put in charge of a new representative, R. M. Stephens. The new offices are located at 17 St. John street.

Caster & Davey, of Aurora and Schomberg, Ont., have painted their Schomberg store inside and out and greatly improved the appearance of the premises. They bought out M. Manning's business in Schomberg a couple of months ago and are very well pleased with the branch undertaking.

NEW QUARTERS.

The Canada Maple Exchange, Montreal, has removed from 118 King street to 618 Beaudry street.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

Business in cheese during the week has shown an appreciable improvement. Interest was centered around white and prices obtained have been high, too high for export, in the opinion of some of the leading operators. In their opinion the high prices are not warranted, judged by the position of the market in the United Kingdom. Reports from the cheese boards show a preponderance of colored, while white is sought after, following the tendency of the market as reported last week. Colored cheese is going at 10¾c. to 11c., and white 11c. to 11¼c., this latter figure allowing little export margin. At the Belleville board last Saturday prices ranged, white 10 15-16 to 11c., and colored 10 9-16 to 10⅝c. At Winchester 1-16 to 1-8 higher was obtained. The strong position this week locally is attributed to the necessity of certain exporters to secure stock for orders on hand. Receipts are showing up well and when the grass makes have come in more freely lower prices are expected. Pastures have been somewhat backward this season and full grass goods are slow coming in.

The butter market remains weak and our view last week indicating downward tendency has been verified, as since then the market has declined from 2 to 2½c. per lb. The view was expressed then that 19c. was high and being overlooked and that dealers expected to buy at 18c. This has eventuated and several good sized lots were turned over this week at 18c. Finest Eastern Townships creamery was sold at 18¼c. and several lots at 18c. The quality was hardly suited for export. Ontario finest was sold at 18¾ to 19c., but at these figures leaves no margin to dealers. Since our last report the English market has been more favorable for dealers here and the present indications are that heavy shipping will be done during the coming fortnight. As soon as full grass butter is more freely obtainably and English buyers can obtain their favorite June makes usually held for storage here for their account, more activity will be noticed. A large make is looked for this season.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

There has been practically little change in the general situation during the week under review. As regards the conditions ruling in the live hog market, arrivals still show great deficiency, and packers have, in consequence, to greatly curtail their output. The domestic demand for bacon continues to develop strength, and prices are gradually moving upward. At present high prices of live hogs packers find it impossible to sell at old figures. In the English market the demand for bacon has developed unexpected strength immediately after the resumption of recent business, and while holders of the fancy brands quoted prices open till the end of the week others put up their limits 2s. per cwt., and the basis on which business has been done during the week has been quite that much. The Danish supply is much shorter and the arrivals from Ireland, while short at the present show no sign of getting larger in the immediate future. Canadian landings are limited and agents of all imports are very confident. The market closed firm, with prices 2s. to 4s. per cwt. above those of previous week.

The Chicago market denotes a substantial degree of strength. One report remarks: "There has been no grumbling over the degree of activity in merchandise in this country for a year or more. All European markets, also, are well situated in trade activity.

"Firmness as to prices of hog products had been based, chiefly, upon the liberal rate of consumption of them here and in Europe, with the closely sold up productions.

"There is no reason for apprehension of diminished demands for supplies or for statistical positions more in favor of buyers than they are at present for the period this side of at least July. Therefore, from a supply and demand basis the hog products market should be highly encouraging for selling interests. Yet for the near future it is not probable that there will be any very marked bulges in prices.

"The receipts of hogs at the packing points continue moderate, and are, most of the time, under estimates. The shippers continue in competition with the packers for the hog supplies, and their prices are well maintained. The packing is generally insufficient for the current needs for consumption. There is little prospect of a material further, or burdensome, accumulation of hog product supplies for at least a few weeks more."

OUR LONDON LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

Some change has come over the position of the butter market in London, and there has been a noticeable improvement in the demand for both first and second grades. This is evidently due to the fact that retailers have found it advisable to reduce their prices. There is still a shortage of choicest colonial brands, and values have gone up for Australian choicest from 1s. to 2s. For the secondary quality the price has gone away up 2s. and 3s. It certainly does seem hard upon the retailer that, just when he has to lower his own prices, sellers should raise theirs. The latter people evidently consider themselves in a strong position. As a matter of fact, no New Zealand butter has been received for considerably over a week. On Sunday, April 29, 36,000 boxes are due. The total imports of butter, according to statistics, for the past week (April 21-27) have been 24,000 cwts. less than for the corresponding week last year. Since July 1 last, something over one million boxes of colonial butter have been imported into the United Kingdom. Supplies due from Australia next week will be on a limited scale. Quality is being well maintained, there being a very noticeable improvement in shipments from Queensland.

The market for Canadian cheese is not at present on a very firm footing, and the public demand has shown a slight falling off. Choicest quality Canadian cheese is realizing 68s. per cwt. for colored, and 62s. to 64s. for white. New Zealand cheese is also quiet at prices ranging about 3s. less than Canadian for choicest colored, and about 62s. for choicest white. The imports of cheese from Canada for the last three weeks has averaged 9,000 cwts., and from New Zealand 8,000 cwts. These quantities have been about on a par with the consumption.

The Danish consul in London has issued his annual report, and it goes almost without saying that he has some interesting facts to state in regard to the position of Danish produce over here. His opinion on the standing held by Canadian bacon, supported as it is by statements of many well known importers and buyers, cannot fail to be of value to Canadians. Canadian bacon, it is admitted, is certainly a keen competitor, probably the keenest, for the great popularity which Danish bacon enjoys, but apart from certain shortcomings which will probably be remedied in course of time, the Dominion product is at a disadvantage on account of the regular steamship connections and the shorter distance which Danish shippers enjoy. The latter are thus able to put their produce on the market in a more finished condition. Then there is the question of packing. Some Canadian houses have adopted the Danish method of packing in bales instead of boxes, "but with doubtful success, owing to the want of cooling chambers in the steamers." The bacon, the consul says, is not quite satisfactory. It is perishable and has to be sold at once on arrival.

As a rule Danish bacon is from 3s. to 8s. per cwt. dearer than Canadian, although the latter has been known to cost just as much. "As regards London and the south of England, Canadian bacon shows a diminished consumption, as buyers who have once got used to Danish and Irish bacon do not find Canadian satisfactory. Elsewhere it gains ground, ousting the inferior American article." Wales is certainly Canada's best market for bacon, and one Welsh wholesaler has stated that he prefers Canadian to Irish, and that he is able to sell twenty times as much.

There are many dealers, however, who declare that they have handled Canadian bacon second to none, and the general opinion seems to be that the great failing with Canadian bacon is the too free use made of borax. Maize-fed bacon could, if it were properly treated, compete with the best brands of Danish.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—There is a good demand for provisions generally this week, and packers report good business both locally and with country trade centres. Hams and bacon are still going out well. Bacon has advanced to 18c., but at this figure good business is being done. Pure lard is moving very well, although a decline of ¼c. in prices might indicate that the demand is not large enough to suit all. Pork has advanced since last week.

BUTTER—The past week end prices have been advanced at country points, more as a result of competition between some of the buyers than of the market conditions. Doubtless some of the purchases will be exported, which will have a firming effect locally, so that prices may not decline further for a few weeks. With the advent of the grass goods shortly, the export trade will open up in earnest, but according to reports from England prices will have to be about the present range to admit of much being done.

CHEESE—The feature of the market is the scarcity of white cheese. Owing to the higher prices obtainable for colored earlier in the season, all the factories were coloring their make, resulting in a dearth of the white article. The latter is at present bringing ¼c. more than the colored, rather an unusual occurrence, but with the factories making white now, the position will probably be reversed in two weeks. Shipments last week were very heavy, 44,435 boxes going forward, compared with 10,891 the same week last year. The English market is gradually declining for the old cheese, while the fodders, being cheaper, are in fair demand.

Finest new colored Ont.	0 1[illegible]	11
Finest new white Ont.	0 11	0 11¼

EGGS—The market is firm at present and dealers are asking 16½c. for cases. This price is a little high, and is caused by the accumulative tendency on the part of the egg merchants, as the market is kept very nearly clear of eggs. It is hard to tell what the conditions will be next week, but it is thought that there will be an easier feeling towards the middle of the week.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—The market still continues very firm, with slight upward movements in spots. Receipts of hogs continue light; stocks are said to be small, and as the season of largest consumption of smoked meats is beginning there is practically no likelihood of lower prices for some time to come. Smoked breakfast bacon, roll bacon, and medium hams, have moved up ½c., and the top on backs is advanced a cent. Business is reported fair to good.

BUTTER — The market continues weak, but considerable variation is noticeable in quotations on the street. Most dealers are inclined to keep their selling price at last week's level, for creamery prints 20c. to 22c., but some are quoting 19c. to 21c. The same variations characterize quotations throughout the list. Bakers' butter, quoted 15c. to 16c. by some, is 13c. to 14c. with others. Quality, doubtless, has much to do with it. The supply continues to increase, though the cheese factories are doing much to curtail it.

EGGS—The market continues firm and higher than a week ago. The supply is said to be large, but evidently the demand for pickling and storage is larger. With the pickelers and stores it is May and June eggs or none, so that they usually have not much choice. Probably a million dozen are required for storage in Toronto alone, and there are large plants throughout the province.

MOISTURE IN BUTTER.

Canadian buttermakers were some time ago advised by an American expert to put a larger percentage of water into their butter for export. A recent discussion of the subject by a committee of the British House of Commons goes to show that it would be unwise to act on this questionable advice. It goes to show also that Canadian butter, which is popular at present on account of its dryness, is watered by English dealers before being resold. Clearly it will be difficult to have the Canadian standard kept high unless the British law against adulteration is made stringent and is drastically enforced. The outcome of this controversy will be watched with interest in Canada.

"Then when evening comes, and his day's work is over, what does he do?"

"That's what mother wants to know."

A QUEBEC CHANGE.

W. C. Bickell, who has been twenty years with one of the best known firms of wholesale grocers, Whitehead & Turner, of Quebec, has severed his connection with that firm to accept an interest in the firm of R. F. Cream & Co., general brokers and commission merchants, of the same city, who are open for a few good agencies in the grocery line.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

There is practically nothing to report since our last issue. There have been slight fluctuations on the market, but at the close no material change from our last quotations. Farmers are now engaged in seeding so that there are very few deliveries of wheat at mills, which is a great factor in keeping all local prices firm.

Advices from Manitoba say: "The wheat is nearly all in. Another week of fine weather enabled farmers to get ahead rapidly with this work and by Saturday night from eighty to ninety per cent. of the wheat seeding was done. At a number of points in the older parts of Manitoba the work was entirely completed. Already some of the wheat is above ground. A fine warm rain on Wednesday gave it a good start. No more favorable season has been experienced in Manitoba for a long time."

Export inquiry for flour has generally been disappointing, bids being much below what dealers are prepared to accept. Montreal reports, however, that bids of 22 shillings for 90 per cent. Winter wheat flour have been accepted. Millers, on the other hand, are not showing great readiness to offer freely at prices to let out at that.

It is understood that the Canadian Northern Railway will begin very soon the construction of its proposed grain line from the French River to Montreal. This road, which will run through Ottawa and down to Hawkesbury, will, as a matter of fact, constitute Mackenzie & Mann's first link of the system which, within a comparatively short time, will extend from the St. Lawrence to Port Arthur, and then to the Saskatchewan River.

The first shipments of Manitoba wheat across the lakes have been received at all the ports except Collingwood and Meaford, and the grain is now being rapidly hurried forward to the mills throughout the country. Some of them were shut down for want of it, and it is well for them that navigation opened a couple of weeks earlier than it did last year, or they might have been seriously inconvenienced.
